

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

To Financial Secretaries.

NOTICE.

If you hold any loan cards of no further use send them to this office.

NOTICE.—How to duplicate Loan Cards.

It frequently occurs that new secretaries through error or lack of knowledge, transfer the amount a member "has coming" instead of what he owes. In duplicating a card, figure up all the member has borrowed and subtract all he has paid, and if there is a balance against the member transfer to new card in red ink in figures and letters the amount due the International Union. Also enter on new card all that may be essential that you find on the old, then sign and seal it. Send the old card to the International office.

MEMBERS OUT OF WORK ARE NOT ENTITLED TO THE SIXTEEN WEEKS' PRIVILEGE IN DUES UNLESS THEY NOTIFY THE SECRETARY WEEKLY BEFORE THE EIGHTH WEEK. THIS INCLUDES TRAVELING MEMBERS, WHO SHOULD ALWAYS CARRY A CERTIFICATE AND HAVE SAME SIGNED WEEKLY.

Before granting or accepting retiring cards secretaries and members should consult Sections 76 and 77 of the Constitution.

SECRETARIES TAKE NOTICE.

The attention of secretaries is directed to the amendment to our loaning system just adopted and published in this issue.

The new law provides that if the fare to the nearest union is $1, or less, the loan shall be $1; if the fare to the nearest place is $2 or more than $1, then the loan may be $2; if the fare to the next city is $3, or more than $2, the loan shall be $3, etc. In each instance the loan is to be even dollars. The 50c extra provided under the old law is abolished. In all other respects the law is unchanged.

Under the New Law.—Secretaries cannot take in to account the extra 50c that was permitted under the old law. Hence, if the fare to a certain place is 75c under the new law a dollar may be granted; if it is over one dollar then $2 may be granted.

Communications and matters for publication in the Journal should be written on one side of paper only and should reach the International office on or before the 10th of current month.

Items for the Journal should be placed on separate slips of paper—not the backs of reports, etc.—in order to insure prompt publication, and should reach this office not later than the 10th of each month if intended for current publication.

NOTICE.—In cases where a member claims he did not receive a postal receipt for a loan repaid, secretaries should issue a receipt and mark it "duplicate," rather than write to this office to ascertain whether the same has once been issued. This will save time and money and fully answer all requirements in the case.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address, if possible, so as to obviate delays, mistakes, etc. This is important.

When writing to headquarters for information regarding fines, please state time and place and union imposing same, as near as possible.

Members who have been such for three years, taking retiring cards and failing to pay 20 cents dues, forfeit all previous time on benefits.

When members retire by retiring card—20-cent or otherwise—secretary should enter full information on books and monthly report; same when re-admitted by retiring card. When a suspended 20-cent retiring card holder is re-admitted by retiring card, he should be entered on books, reports and card as "Reinstated by Retiring Card." In such cases date of time on benefits, etc., commences when card is re-deposited.

If secretaries when ordering supplies will place the order on the regular blank, it will greatly simplify the work here and avoid unnecessary delay for those who order the supplies. We receive an average of 300 pieces of mail in the office daily. Sometimes an order is sandwiched into a two or three-page letter containing three or more different subjects, and there is danger in such cases of an order being overlooked. Hence we ask that in order to save unnecessary delay and annoyance for yourself that when ordering supplies you place the order on the regular blank, giving your name and address.

Any secretary holding the card of Dennis Daley (32039) please at once notify the International officers. Party drew loan to San Francisco, January, 1906.

Do not use any old numbers, except to suspended members owing loans, until after Jan. 31, 1908. Then use only the numbers that became vacant after Jan. 31, 1908.

In reporting deaths, kindly comply with the following and you will save time and unnecessary work. Give full name, number, date and place of initiation of member. Has member held retiring card? If so, did he pay his dues? This information relates only to such as you can obtain from the records of your own union. If admitted by card, state when and where from, and in addition send in such card, but place on your letter the information necessary, as the letter is filed as a matter of record. Before paying death benefits study Sections 145 and 151, inclusive. Send in a death blank properly filled out for all death benefits paid.

Financial secretaries are cautioned against recognizing any card that shows alteration in figures. In last month's Journal we noted the case of Henry Graper (103748), who, in spite of very clumsily executed erasures and alterations, was enabled to impose upon a number of secretaries. The loan card is the property of the union, and any member altering or attempting to change any figures is fined $26 as per Section 109. Confiscate any card that shows alterations and send it at once to this office for inspection.

A RETRACTION.

Providence, R. I., October, 1908.

G. W. Perkins, International President:

Dear Sir—Believing that a serious mistake was made by Union 10, Providence, when it was trapped by the machinations and false accusations of one James DeBell into issuing a circular under date of January 30th-April 3d, 1907, containing what we now believe to be false charges against Messrs. A. Strasser and W. Best. In extenuation of our action at that time, we now deem it advisable to say that J. Spero, P. Schreck and M. E. Touvim came to Providence, and we made a serious mistake, believing that they were able to substantiate the charges. The charges we made were based upon the bare statement of DeBell and a few others. When we called upon the committee to substantiate the charges, the committee were unable to produce a single iota of evidence in support of the charges we were tricked into making.

We therefore now unhesitatingly say we had no foundation in fact for the false, malicious and ungrounded charges made and uttered by the foregoing stated parties, and we make this straightforward retraction as simple justice to Messrs. Strasser and Best. Signed:

Geo. J. Meadows, M. J. Donovan, A. Lowenstein, Edward Follett, Geo. J. Mitchell, Robt. F. Wilcox, Chas. Turner, L. E. Dodge, C. Neilson, J. A. Allard, Max Hercov, B. Edelman, J. C. Tolman, Jos. Morim, Alfred Fournier, F. F. Ray, Ed Beaudoin, John Jerrett, David A. Yeav.

The foregoing retraction having been made the charter, by vote of the International Executive Board, has been restored to Providence, R. I.

The out-of-work benefit proves its value and worth as a trade union benefit during dull times.

DECISIONS OF INTERNATIONAL EXECUTIVE BOARD

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22, 1908.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., by Union No. 97, of Boston, Mass., against the decision rendered by the International president, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—Fitzgerald.

Negative—Tracy, Gariepy, Bolio, Conrad Weber, Roberts, and Gompers.

The basis of the appeal was: Union No. 97 applied for the right to strike in a certain cigar factory in Boston, which application the International president claims he could not recognize. Union No. 97 appeals from the decision of the International president to the Executive Board.

The International president bases his decision upon substantially the following grounds:

That section '79 of the Constitution reads as follows:

Sec. 79. "The International Union guarantees its moral and pecuniary support to all its members in difficulties which may arise between them and their employers and shall commence on the day when the difficulty is approved by the proper authorities of the International Union."

That this section distinctly says "between them and their employers."

That the term "them" in this case plainly means the members of the Cigar Makers' Union only.

That an amendment to the Constitution, providing for a strike or lockout on account of the tobacco strippers, and providing for paying benefits on account of the same, was defeated by popular vote, the result of which was published in the Journal of May, 1908.

That sections 92 and 93 of the Constitution clearly state what shall be considered as grievances, and under the law there can be no others.

That there is nothing in this decision which either denies or affirms the right of a union to strike or quit work in aid of the strippers or anyone else; the decision simply says that the International Constitution does not provide for the payment of strike benefits in aid of sympathetic strikes.

That an organization such as ours, under present conditions, can not be run on sentiment or sympathy alone, and be successful. The Constitution must be strictly adhered to in every particular.

That under the laws, the International president could not have rendered any other decision.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International president is sustained.

Fraternally yours,

Samuel Gompers,
First Vice-President.

DECISIONS OF PRESIDENT

Gross Bros., cigar manufacturers and 20 cent retiring card holders, appealed against 138 Newark for compelling them to pay label assessments. The appeal was not sustained.

R. Hoyd appealed against 99 Ottawa for suspending him for non-payment of dues. The union replied that he owed eighteen weeks' dues and had failed to appeal to the union before appealing to this office as the laws provide. The appeal was not sustained.

C. Taumban appealed against 149 Brooklyn and the J. L. C. for fining him $25 for violating the label laws. The appeal was not sustained.

Miss J. G. McMillan appealed against 129 Denver for collecting a fine imposed upon her by the strippers' union before she was a member of union 129 Denver. The appeal was sustained.

Freitag Bros, appealed against 25 Milwaukee for refusing to allow them to give presents with cigars. The appeal was not sustained.

Union 225, Los Angeles, appealed against 35, Dayton, for neglecting to promptly compel one of its factories from supplying union label goods to a strike shop in Los Angeles. The appeal was sustained.

W. Scheuerman appealed against 117 Orange for compelling him to hire men through the office. The decision is that unions have a right when good reasons exist to form rules providing that manufacturers hire the help through the office of the secretary, but no such rules can prevent any one who is a traveling member from taking such jobs through the office of secretary.

B. Uckman appealed against unions of St. Louis for fining him $2 for violation of the rules of the joint unions and for refusing to allow him to work as a packer. The appeal was not sustained.

W. R. Henneker et al., Lander, Wyo., appealed against 129, Denver, for not fining one member for allowing himself to be suspended and two others for working below the bill. The union replied that the member was not suspended by Union 129 and that there was not sufficient evidence to convict the others of the offense alleged. The appeal was not sustained.

A. A. Vandenbrock appealed against 313, Lima, for compelling him to deposit $100 for further use of the labels. The appeal was not sustained.

C. Miller and S. Levi appealed against 4, Cincinnati, for refusing to allow them to work Sunday instead of Saturday. The appeal was not sustained.

Jos. Moss appealed against 2, Buffalo, for adopting a local by-law which enables any member to borrow $50 or $100 of their death benefit from the Int. fund. The appeal was sustained.

M. E. Winters appealed against 172, Davenport, for compelling her to deposit $100 for further use of the labels. The appeal was not sustained.

A. Mohr appealed against 73, Alton, for fining him for failing to parade on labor day. The appeal was not sustained.

H. H. Grimes, a 20c retiring card holder, appealed against 161, Denver, Pa., for fining him for failing to parade on labor day. The appeal was sustained.

Approved the application of Union 120, Muscatine, Iowa, to impose a fine of $25 and suspension on C. H. Jacobsen (76547) for paying below the bill of prices. Following is the vote: Affirmative—Eight.

Approved the application of Union 227, Chicago, Ill., to impose a fine of $100 on Joe Solomonsky (81015) for slandering members of the union, working against the interests of the union and running a scab shop while a member of the union. Following is the vote: Affirmative—Eight.

Approved the application of Union 407, Norwich, Conn., to impose a fine of $35 on F. Theisse (98714) for working in the unfair shop of Willey of Groton, Conn. Following is the vote: Affirmative—Eight.

Approved the application of Union 322, Joplin, Mo., to impose a fine of $25 on Tony Wells (84963) and Hy Klingeldorfer (50992) for working in the scab shop of Leon Bancher. Also fined A. Lawson and John Adams $25 each for working in Sprigg's non-union shop. Following is the vote: Affirmative—Eight.

Approved the application of Union 350, Paris, Ky., to impose a fine of $50 on Anthony B. Kunk (75156) for quitting a job in a union shop and going to work in the strike shop of the Central Kentucky Cigar Co., and $25 each on Roy Gillen (1097) and Ben Rickey (80337) for working in the same shop. Following is the vote: Affirmative—Seven.

When we adopted the out-of-work benefit we went on the theory that a little help when a fellow is down is worth more than a whole lot of sympathy.

Never lose sight of the main issue—the trade union.

CORRESPONDENCE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19, 1908.

To all affiliated unions, greeting:

You are hereby advised that, in pursuance to the Constitution of the American Federation of Labor, the Twenty-Eighth Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor will be held at Denver, Colo., beginning ten o'clock Monday morning, Nov. 9, 1908, and will continue in session from day to day until the business of the Convention has been completed.

Representation.

Representation in the Convention will be on the following basis: From National or International Unions, for less than 4,000 members, one delegate; 4,000 or more, two delegates; 8,000 or more, three delegates; 16,000 or more, four delegates; 32,000 or more, five delegates; 64,000 or more, six delegates; 128,000 or more, seven delegates, and so on; and from Central Bodies and State Federations, and from local trade unions not having a National or International Union, and from Federal Labor Unions, one delegate.

Organizations to be entitled to representation must have obtained a certificate of affiliation (charter) at least one month prior to the Convention; and no person will be recognized as a delegate who is not a member in good standing of the organization he is elected to represent.

Only bona fide wage workers, who are not members of, or eligible to membership in other trade unions, are eligible as delegates at least two from Federal Labor Unions.

Delegates must be selected at least two weeks previous to the Convention, and their names forwarded to the Secretary of the American Federation of Labor immediately after their election.

Delegates are not entitled to seats in the Convention unless the tax of their organizations has been paid in full to Sept. 30, 1908.

The importance of our organization and our movement, the duty of the hour and for the future, demand that every organization entitled to representation shall send its full quota of delegates to the Denver Convention, Nov. 9, 1908.

Do not allow favoritism to influence you in selecting your delegates. Be fully represented.

Be represented by your ablest, best, most experienced, and faithful members.

Credentials.

Credentials in duplicate are forwarded to all affiliated unions. The original credentials must be given to the delegate-elect and the duplicate forwarded to the American Federation of Labor office, 423-425 G Street Northwest, Washington, D. C.

If there be any further information regarding the Convention, or the arrangements for the convenience of the delegates, it will be communicated in a later circular, or through the American Federationist.

Sam'l Gompers,
President.

Philadelphia, Oct. 5, 1908.

"He whom the Gods would destroy they first make mad."

In last month's journal Mr. Patrick Mahoney of Boston sends a letter full of personal spleen containing innuendos and abuse of my humble person, he don't in the slightest degree meet the logic and arguments contained in my August letter on conventions, but confines himself to personalities. Well, I can stand his personal tirades, I am used to being abused, for expressing my convictions. Let me say that my articles criticising the Boston amendments were written entirely in an impersonal sense, and made no personal flings at anybody, whether at would-be delegates, ex-delegates, officials, or high privates, nor did I question the integrity of the Boston union in the least. Mr. M. says in his letter than I charge the Boston union with making a proposition for the holding of a convention. My letter does nothing of the kind.

If Mr. M. will read my letter over again he will discover that what it really did say was that the Boston amendment proposed to "facilitate the holding of a convention" not the actual holding of one. Mr. M. ought to understand the difference between facilitation and an accomplishment. If the Boston amendments had carried they would have facilitated the holding of a convention, inasmuch as the changes wrought by the Boston amendments would make a convention a possibility, whereas under the present law, a convention is a remote possibility. Thus the Boston effort would "facilitate" the thing if not its actuality; in other words, help it along. As to M.'s fling at conditions in Philadelphia, let me say that I am not responsible for that, I have all my life urged unionism in Philadelphia, but there is a faction in control of the union here which does not believe in trades unionism.

they believe in socialism. For years they have harped on the platform of the Socialist party, as the only salvation, everything else was dross and rubbish. This persistent, never ceasing propaganda has destroyed the faith and confidence of the rank and file to such an extent that inertia and stagnation permeates the whole body. The "motto" has come to be, "what's the use, vote the Socialist ticket and we get the millennium." In conclusion, I request the readers of the journal to read my August and September articles over again and compare them with Mr. Patrick Mahoney's decoction.

John S. Kirchner.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 6, 1908.

It being part of my duty to glance through various tobacco journals, one is somewhat surprised to read the various items and compare them with the trade of the past.

As an instance a writer of economics for Columbian University shows that centralization is the order of the day in our industry.

Again we read that Findlay is offering a cash bonus to any cigar manufacturer who will establish a factory employing one hundred or more men. This means free land and no taxes, quite an inducement.

That Tampa manufacturers are in close touch with the Immigration Bureau. What for?

That the Trust caters mostly to the poor. Are we getting the support for our label we are entitled to? Are we under an obligation to union men who ask for union products?

That the closing of saloons and cafes is injurious to the cigar industry, but I suppose we must have crusaders. The Tobacco Leaf has entered the list in a crusade against smokers. One would have thought that the tariff and the Philippine question were weightier subjects.

Expert medical men are of the opinion that tobacco used moderately is beneficial.

And that business is not what it ought to be. This unfortunately we know from actual experience, but we are looking forward to better times. This depression (made artificially) has lasted longer than we anticipated and is going to last longer than we expect, but we shall emerge from it stronger and wiser. Cool judgment and tact will add to our numbers and prestige.

To know the true situation is one-half the battle. After the storm comes the calm. Today and now is the time to build and to boom the label.

We are going to emerge from this crisis stronger and better equipped than we ever were.

Henry Abrahams.

Westfield, Mass., Sept. 26, 1908.

Mr. G. W. Perkins, International President,
Dear Sir:

Having bought an interest in the Bay State Cigar Co., of this town, I am compelled by our laws to take out a retiring card. I therefore herewith tender my resignation as fourth vice-president of the C. M. I. U. of A.

In retiring from the International Executive Board I desire to express my appreciation to the members of the Board for the courtesy they have always shown me in the nineteen years I have been a member of the Board, also to the members in general who have re-elected me to that office from time to time.

While I am about to retire from active membership in the union I shall never cease to be interested in its welfare, and to contribute what little assistance I can to promote the true principles of unionism.

With sincere regret at severing my connection with the union, and an earnest wish for your, and its continued prosperity, I am,

Yours fraternally,

L. A. Bollo.

E. Greenville, Pa., Oct. 8, 1908.

Nowhere has the evolution in the cigar industry been more marked than in the First and Ninth Internal Revenue Districts of Pennsylvania. It is not many years since the product, particularly of the Ninth District, was regarded with suspicion by dealers and smokers. And in truth the cigars turned out in many of the factories was of an inferior quality as compared with those of other localities. Yet withal the industry flourished, and manufacturers outdid each other in an effort to capture trade by still further cheapening the price and quality of their output. Cigarmakers, too, with stoical indifference, regarding the welfare of craft and self, although constantly importuned to do so by fellow craftsmen outside the district, failed to provide for themselves the advantages of protective organization.

Thus matters went on for a while, cigar factories like mushrooms, seemingly springing up over night, and the men, women and children of entire communities were drafted into the army of cigarmakers, with the result that in due course of time the market became glutted with an inferior class of goods. But with the general improvement in business, and the tendency toward higher prices that came about ten years ago, a reaction set in, and the quality of Pennsylvania cigars has ever since steadily improved. And, although some of the shops that formerly turned out cheap trash have passed out of existence, the number of cigarmakers has increased, the larger factories turning out the better grades of cigars, having greatly added to their force of workmen.

This improvement in the quality of the product from the Pennsylvania cigar factories has already won sufficient recognition from dealers and smokers, to insure the Pennsylvania made five cent cigar, a place throughout the entire country in the high class cigar stores, hotel cigar stands, drug stores, and other places usually patronized by the more particular class of smokers. It is a notable fact that the smaller manufacturers who still stick to the old style seed mold work are practically at a standstill, while the big concerns that make a specialty of fine hand made five cent cigars, even in these dull times, are rushed with orders, and in some instances are working overtime.

Thus the keen foresight of the manufacturers in taking advantage of the opportunities presented by the changing conditions has won for them increased and more profitable business, while the shortsighted cigarmakers who, with everything to gain and nothing to lose by applying intelligently the power they unitedly possess, remain apart, and suffer the pangs of poverty and privation, as a penalty for their blind adherence to an unprofitable individualism.

To win them over to unionism is not an easy task. Their environment has taught them to believe too strongly in the doctrine that working people should be satisfied with their lot. So it was, so it is, and so it ever shall be, seems to be the burden of their lament, yet there is hope. I am following the slow method of personal solicitation and am making some converts. While work is plentiful here at present, shop conditions are growing worse, and is quite beyond understanding why the awakening among these drowsy-headed victims of economic unconcern is so long deferred.

A recent occurrence in Pennsburg, an adjoining borough to E. Greenville, demonstrates however, that our agitation has not been entirely in vain in this dark corner of cigardom. The proprietor of a large factory there, that had been working on a limit, proposed a half dollar reduction, and to put the shop on full time, if same was acceptable to the cigarmakers, but to their everlasting credit they flatly refused this generous (?) offer, preferring, they said, to work short time and retain the prevailing scale of wages, to longer hours and shorter pay. And now the shop is running full time at any rate. Thus step by step they are becoming educated to the philosophy of collective bargaining, and although the day of their organization is not in sight, that time may come earlier than we anticipate, for during the coming winter we are likely to witness some radical readjustments in the industrial world, and should our fears be realized a woeful time is surely ahead for the unorganized.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 24, 1908.

I notice in the September Journal that the amendment proposed by Union No. 248, Jacksonville, Fla., as new section 151½, has already received more than the necessary endorsements to submit it to a vote of local unions.

In the Journal for August, page 14, last column, we find a very glowing picture of what the said new section 151½ would do, not only for the members, but for the locals as well.

The plea put forth by Messrs. Kelly, Volmer and Marzyck is so nicely worded that the members will quite unwittingly vote for something, the results of which are not anticipated.

They state that with the adoption of said amendment the locals would increase in membership from 50 to 100 per cent, with a corresponding increase in your death benefit, further on, "no death, no assessment." Now, let us analyze this new section 151½. In 1906 as per journals, we find that death benefits paid were for 527 members, which at 5 cents assessment for each would be a total in assessments for the year on each member of $26.35; $2.19 per month, or an average of nearly 9 cents daily, an average of from 50 to 75 cents per week, and with the supposed increase in membership would also come the increase in deaths.

Let the members study the new section 151½, calmly, coolly and thoroughly; not rush in without thinking what the result would be, simply because the plea made by the three gentlemen named is so very neatly and alluringly put together that the members are very likely to lose sight of what the assessments would amount to, in their efforts to secure the increase of death benefits of $2,000, or more; that without warning they would impose upon themselves a burden that would very likely reduce our membership from 50 to 100 per cent, instead of increasing it to that extent.

"No death, no assessment," sounds very fine on paper, but when we find in August Journal, page 11, death benefits paid for sixty-two members, presumably in January, 1908, and on page 14, for February, 1908, for forty members, a total for two months of 102 deaths means 102 five cent assessments, or $5.10, or an average of from 60 to 65 cents per week. I think the members will consider twice before voting to adopt new section 151½.

When we had only two 50-cents assessments per annum it was hard enough to collect the same and many members were suspended for failure to pay; how will it be if the assessments reach the sum of from 50 to 75 cents per week?

This is merely a friendly warning note to the members not to rush rashly into the fray and adopt new section 151½ without knowing what the adoption of said section would mean to the members in assessment weekly. "Forewarned is forearmed."

In the September issue of the Journal appears an article from Tampa, Fla., protecting against the employment of women in the cigar industry, while in the same issue from Boston, Mass., we find the following statement: "We know no race, creed or sex in the trade union movement." Thus the cry is once more being raised against women (this time from the southern section of the country), while down east they are no longer regarded as a peril to the trade, although it is but a short time ago that this same Boston was asking for legislation against them. The statement of the Boston writer is one with which all fair-minded union members will agree. It might almost be called the very essence of unionism. But, alas, how often it is that we seem to forget ourselves and our duty as union members. Not very long ago when the question arose of electing a secretary for this local the issue was made Jew against Gentile. Fellow members this arraying of one race against another, of one sex against another will never advance the interests of our organization. "In union there is strength." Do not undermine that strength by internal dissensions. Every member we add to our organization of whatever race, creed or sex adds just that much more strength to it, providing they live up to the principles which it advocates. By thoroughly organizing ourselves we can accomplish more good in the trades union movement than in any one way. And unless we do this we will never be the power in the industrial world that we would like to be, and, in order to accomplish all our aims, that we must be.

Fellow craftsmen:

"The Good Thing loves the Fakir Bold,

The Green Goose loves the Cook.

The Farmer loves the Brick of Gold

And the Sucker loves the Hook."

In their attempt to commit the trade union movement to the support of their movement Socialists have met one defeat after another. Shall this new tack of the shrewd "class-conscious" navigators be any more successful? Shall the flag of neutrality which they now fly at their topmast to conceal their real intent hide from us the fact that all who board the Socialist ship are bound for the port of destruction? These are questions which for the sake of our union's life we are bound to consider. Kindly allow me to throw the search light upon one of the Socialist party's tactical moves, by which it uses trade union ammunition to undermine the fortifications of labor. The Socialists of New York, affiliated with the Socialist party, are issuing a daily paper, very appropriately named The Evening Call. The question of ownership necessarily came up. "The Daily Call Conferences" and "the committee" reported its conclusions in "The Worker," New York, April, 27, 1907, which were finally adopted—placing The Evening Call in the hands of a private corporation known as The Workingmen's Co-Operative Publishing Association; chartered under the laws of the state of New York; organized with W. W. Passage, president; Frank M. Hill, treasurer; Julius Gerber, secretary and others.

There were two chief reasons given for placing the paper in the hands of the corporation, I quote:

"It is extremely difficult to own and manage successfully a large business through a great organization which is and must remain democratic in its character. Either the business must fail or the democratic character must be eliminated."

How it is that the Socialist Labor party of the United States has owned and controlled its paper, The Daily People, for the past eight years without eliminating its democratic character of management? If the S. L. P. of the U. S. can own and manage The Daily People why not the Socialist party of New York? One state is surely not as large as the United States.

Behind the above excuses given for private ownership can be seen the shrewd minds of the Socialist lawyers and "intellectuals" who control the compass and the chart of the Socialist ship and who despite their loud cry for absolute democracy keep hold of the tiller. A private corporation was decided upon not until the sum of about $25,000 was already collected. Now the crux of my whole protest is that a large part of the money for The Evening Call came directly or indirectly from the trade union movement. This fact will be seen more clearly by an examination of the second chief reason given for the corporate ownership of their daily paper. As trade unionists we should sit up and take notice. I quote:

"It would be bad politics for the party to have continual disputes with the unions. The New York Volkzeitung was several times threatened with a strike. Remember the strike on the Jewish Foward. Remember the walk-out on The Appeal to Reason. Under no circumstance could the Socialist party afford to have a strike of its employees."

Why should the management fear trouble with their workmen? Do the Socialists intend to run their paper below the level of fair conditions? Union hours? trade union wages? If so their fear is well grounded, they may expect "continual disputes." But if these Socialist employers intend to give their workmen a square deal "continual disputes" are not likely to be their fate. "Continual disputes" would not have arisen on The Volkzeitung, The Foward or The Appeal to Reason if Socialist employers had done the square thing. Thus we must logically conclude that the Evening Call intends to call the men to work for less than the men are worth, as the other Socialist papers did, and so got into trouble with trade unions. At least we may logically conclude that the New York Socialists do not intend to make the reoccurrence of such conditions improbable. So the responsibility for trouble is shifted from the back of the Socialist party on to the shoulders of a private corporation. This is considered by the "class-conscious" of New York to be good politics. They have hid their heads in the sand, but their ugly carcass is left in open view and were it not that the "sucker loves the hook" it would have been seen by the trade unionists of New York ere this.

If capitalist employers can give trade union conditions and wages why not expect Socialists to do the same? It is worth while to look at a dispute on a Socialist publication—for it will throw light on the second reason given for the private ownership of The Call. The Appeal to Reason, published in Girard, Kan., with its circulation exceeding the combined circulation of all other Socialist papers, published in the United States; its paid subscription alone is said to amount to $350,000, is the only English paper mentioned. It is owned by Socialists—its largest shareholder being J. A. Wayland.

Charles L. Breckon—a Socialist—is the gentleman who forced into public view the conditions on The Appeal to Reason. Only to think of the difference between Socialist deeds and Socialist words! To Mr. Breckon is due the credit for forcing the then National Secretary of the S. P. (William Mailly) to open up some of the information in his possession bearing on the unfair conditions that prevailed in The Appeal. All of which Socialist leaders had kept under cover until the national campaign of 1904 was over: Mr. Breckon said:

"The wages paid the great majority of the employees was $3 a week. To ask for more was in many instances to invite a discharge. This fact can be fully demonstrated. Ask Wayland to publish in the 'Appeal' an itemized list of the employees with wages paid July 1, 1903, and their wages paid and number of employees on the pay roll Feb. 1, 1904."

A scanning of the Socialist press from that day to this will fall to find the "itemized list" demanded.

Speaking of the chief of "The Appeal," he said:

"Wayland was the czar who insisted on ruling with an iron hand, and with the help of his brother-in-law, Chas. D. Bevans, held a most perfect system of espionage over each and every employee."

"He (Wayland) lives in one of the finest houses in Girard, most elegantly furnished, has a negro coachman, a fine team of sorrels, and wants for nothing material. He also owns several fine business blocks in this city, one of which is occupied by a leading dry goods firm. In addition he possesses a number of United States bonds which, whenever pressed for cash, he sells to the bank."

The following letter of A. W. Ricker, once an "Appeal to Reason" employee, to the National Secretary of the Socialist party shows that low wages was not the only evil that existed in the plant.

"Girard, Kan., Oct. 22, 1903.

"Dear Mailly:

The internal workings of the 'Appeal' are rotten. It has been a sweat shop. It has treated its help like slaves. Its business manager has made a habit of making insulting approaches to the girl employees during periods of semi-intoxication.

"—There are abuses in the office that will never be cured as long as Comrade Wayland lives, for they are incidental to his personality—"

Employees of "The Appeal," forty in number, were organized into Federal Labor Union 11478, A. F. of L. They went on strike and after two days "they won." They reported this victory in the following words:

"We were granted every item of our demands and they were as long as your arm."

Within four months after "they won" there is another report which reads:

"All who took an active part in forming the Federal union to correct and wipe out the abuses in this institution have been fired in true capitalistic fashion, one at a time, with a lapse between each so as to lessen the chances of united opposition to the action taken."

By a Socialist, The Appeal to Reason is said to be engaged in "the smoothest and most unprincipled schemes ever worked on a veridant enthusiasm."

Shall The Evening Call go on and on working the smoothest and most unprincipled scheme that has ever been worked on the trade unions is what I desire to ask? Not alone has thousands of dollars been extracted from the trade unions with which to establish The Call, which leads to trade union defeat, but the Call was placed in the hands of a private corporation with the express purpose of evading its responsibilities to its employees.

Neither the Appeal to Reason nor the Volkzeitung and the Fowards were owned legally by the Socialist party when the "continual disputes," which are feared by The Call, took place. Disputes occur where unjust conditions prevail, why not count on fair conditions, especially if Socialism is truly a friend of unionism? If the New York Socialists really wanted to protect the interests of their employers why not try party ownership? Instead of shifting the blame for trouble upon a private corporation? The fact that The Appeal to Reason contains only Socialist matter; written by Socialists; that it is circulated, financed and owned by Socialists is all to be set aside for the reason that the Socialist party did not legally own the paper when the strike occurred, hence the Socialist party was not to blame for the damnable conditions that prevailed. The Evening Call in the event of a strike, may hide behind a corporation is the reason for placing this Socialist paper and the trade union funds collected to launch it in private hands. Verily, a good scheme to evade justice, to let the sucker bite.

Every evening The Call calls upon the trade unions for funds. But why the delegates of the New York Central Federation Union should have voted to supply Socialist promoters with credentials is a mystery that is explained only by the fact that the sucker loves the hook. From The Evening Call of July 1, 1903, I quote:

"There is just now great need of committees to visit the unions and locals in behalf of The Call. Credentials from the Central Federation Union will be furnished to those going into the labor organizations, and the comrades presenting themselves to the Socialist locals will be instructed in the work."

The Socialists have not been slow to take advantage of the indorsement given to them by the C. F. U. These "class-conscious" gentlemen of New York are gathering in thousands of dollars with which to support their daily paper, which is in fact a covert enemy of the trade union movement.

Now to come nearer home to our own craft The Call published lately a list of trade union donations. Progressive Cigarmakers International Union No. 90 of New York City stands highest. Its donation is $500.

I assume it to be within the rights of members of the C. M. I. U. to question the expenditure of any local union. More especially is it a duty when the money is appropriated for institutions organized upon principles contrary to those for which we cigarmakers have associated ourselves together. Union 90 has given $500 that went into the hands of a private corporation—and Union 90 must have known the reasons for placing The Evening Call in the hands of the corporation, for if I am not mistaken Union 90 is officially represented in the "conferences" that conceived the plan of evading responsibility. Has Union 90 to burn? Did Union 90 escape the panic? Are no members of Union 90 unemployed? Would not $500 worth of meal tickets, or coal, or receipted rent bills have been better for the poor members of Union 90 than to have a private corporation $500 richer? Is Union 90 unaware that there are hundreds of cigar makers battling against reductions in wages in various parts of the country—would not a $500 donation have been spent to better purpose than in giving a stone in place of bread? Or does Union 90 think it more fraternal to distribute $500 worth of polluted hot air for the benefit of cigar makers through the medium of The Evening Call? Surely there is nothing on the market save Lawson's Bay State gas that can beat it for a fool investment.

What would the Socialists of Union 90 say if Mr. Bryan were to place the Commoner and Mr. Hearst the American into the hands of a corporation to protect the Democratic and the Independence party from responsibility for any strike, because "it would be bad politics" for their respective parties "to have continual disputes with the unions"? What if in the bargain Bryan and Hearst were to collect monies from trade unions to send out their papers? What would these "class-conscious" gentlemen of Union 90 not say in condemnation of everybody directly and indirectly connected with the Bryan and Hearst papers?

Just where are we at fellow craftsmen? Does membership in a trade union mean the right to tax organized labor to support private corporations organized to disorganize the trade unions? Are we members of trade unions to be forced to pay revenue to an organization which seeks our life and the disruption of civil society? If so we had better listen to a Call that shall speak with commonsense, not with the blatant tones of the red demagogue.

David Goldstein.

Fellow Craftsmen:

Local 188, Seattle, Wash., requests you to second the amendment proposed by us (which appears in the October issue) to assess ourselves ten cents for advertising the label of the C. M. I. U. of A., at the Alaska, Yukon & Pacific Exposition. In doing so we know the unions of the west and the traveling members who passed through Seattle will endorse it, but our Eastern unions and members who are working in the East not familiar with conditions on the Pacific slope, we wish to explain, and hope to show the advisability of such an amendment.

Seattle is the greatest transient city in the United States and has grown from a city of 20,000 (in fifteen years) to a Western metropolis of 280,000, and at least eighty per cent of the population is transient, and as every member of the C. M. I. U. of A. which has served on the agitation committee is aware that it is a more difficult task to boost the label successfully in a transient city than a settled community. You will easily see what a task our pioneers of unionism had in Seattle to establish our label. But we have never despaired—and diligently worked away—with our local assessments running high. Still what can 40 to 50 members do in a city that grew faster than our membership.

This exposition will be nearly all people from Alaska, where we have several members—in a territory almost as large as the U. S. Alaska is almost thoroughly organized, especially the miners. But 90 per cent do not know what a label looks like, and we had no way of reaching them to educate. But by this exposition we have the opportunity for a small amount of money to do that, and we feel that with a ten cent assessment we may be able to open several hundred jobs not only in Seattle and Alaska, but all over the country, because Alaska buys cigars from all over the country (United States). Besides Alaska we have the states of Washington, Idaho, Montana and Oregon, where only a few cigarmakers work in jurisdiction towns and are without funds for agitation purposes. But by a good systematic agitation at the fair we will be able to reach thousands of union miners, lumbermen and other new union men, who are not familiar with our label, but could be easily converted.

So brothers of the old and settled East, it is up to you to assist the pioneers of the West by a small sum of ten cents which will be a great benefit to us and perhaps to you—should you ever come West.

Moral: Vote to second the amendment and boost for same.

President.

DEATH OF CHARLES GEORGE BLOETE.

By Geo. A. Stevens.

The sudden passing away in New York City on Oct. 1 of Charles George Bloete, a highly esteemed and well beloved member of Cigarmakers' Union No. 144, closed a long, honorable and useful career.

Mr. Bloete was born on Oct. 29, 1839, in Verden, a small city in what was then the Kingdom of Hanover, but is now a province of Prussia, Germany. Left an orphan when quite young, he was adopted by a family who had been neighbors of his father and mother. When 11 years of age the boy was placed at work stripping tobacco in a cigar factory, his weekly earnings ranging from 30 to 35 cents. As the monarchy had a compulsory education law which applied to children under 14 years of age, his foster parents were required to send him to school during a part of each day; his school hours in winter being from 8 to 10 o'clock in the morning and from 1 to 3 p. m.; in summer from 7 to 10 a. m. He was obliged to toil in the factory from 10 a. m. to 12 m. and from 3 to 8 p. m. At school his studies were limited, the main subject being religion, but by close application to his text-books he acquired a smattering of arithmetic and geography and learned to read and write.

At the age of 14 he had developed into a bunchmaker and his wages rose to 75 cents per week. It was at this time that he decided to make his home in an adjacent town, having heard that the pay there was higher than in his native city. He became a full-fledged cigarmaker when 17 years old and joined the union of his trade at Flensburg, Schleswig. In those days the government allowed workingmen to organize local unions, but would not permit of the establishment of national trade organizations. There was, however, a mutual understanding among the Cigarmakers' Unions of the various localities whereby working cards were interchanged and other courtesies extended.

Soon after becoming a journeyman young Bloete, following the custom inaugurated by the old-world guilds, traveled afoot through the country. In the winter of 1857-8 a financial and industrial panic spread over Germany and the surrounding countries. Like hundreds of other workmen, thrown into idleness by the hard times, he roved from place to place seeking employment, and had his first object lesson of the practical benefit of trade-unionism, as the local unions aided the travelers financially and cared for the sick. Every tourist had to carry a passport, which was vised by the civil authorities of the towns in which he stopped. He was also required to show the officials an amount of money sufficient to provide for his immediate needs, to satisfy them that he was seeking work and was not a vagrant. The beneficial feature of the unions thus became a source of great help to the traveling workman. For eight weeks the youthful cigarmaker was on the road, and as he could not get anything to do in Germany he wandered to Jutland, Denmark. He found the Danes an extremely hospitable people. They treated perigrinating workmen with the kindest consideration, sparing no pains to relieve their distress and procure employment for them. Bloete soon obtained a job and remained there six months, going thence to Heide, Holstein, where he labored for a year, proceeding from there to Hamburg, in which city he became a member of the Bildungs-Verein, an institution of learning founded and maintained by workingmen. A corps of instructors were in daily attendance. Here all his leisure moments were spent in completing his education, the English language comprising a part of his curriculum, and he was a regular attendant at all lectures. Connected with the Bildungs-Verein were a library and reading room, where a large number of local and foreign newspapers were kept on file, among the latter being Karl Heinzen's Roxbury (Mass.), Pioneer. Heinzen was an ardent exponent of the principles embodied in our democratic form of government and was of the prominent New Englanders who agitated in favor of the abolition of slavery. The young cigarmaker carefully read each issue of the Pioneer, and, becoming thoroughly imbued with the doctrines of liberty therein lucidly set forth he resolved to emigrate to America. In the spring of 1866 he sailed from Hamburg, arriving in New York in May, and ere long his name was enrolled on the membership list of Cigarmakers' International Union No. 90. He was completely Americanized in a short time; took out his first papers in 1868, and became a naturalized citizen in 1871.

Toward the close of 1868 Union No. 90 ordered a general strike for an increase of wages. Mr. Bloete took an active and prominent part in that struggle. The demands of the men were not conceded by the employers, the strike was abandoned and the union rapidly decreased in membership.

In 1873 the United Cigarmakers of New York was organized, but refused to affiliate with the International body because the latter at that time prohibited the admission of women and colored men to the ranks of its subordinates.

The United Cigarmakers vigorously opposed this rule, and informed the International that if it consented to the abrogation of the objectionable section, the New York union would make application for a charter. The International agreed to the proposal, and in October, 1875, the United Cigarmakers was chartered as Cigarmakers' International Union No. 144. A few months later No. 90 dissolved and turned its funds and other property over to the new organization. Mr. Bloete joined the United Cigarmakers soon after its inception and remained a conspicuous figure in the councils of No. 144 up to the time of his demise. After he had been connected with that union for one year he was elected German recording secretary, and served in that capacity for eight consecutive annual terms.

Cigarmakers, like all other craftsmen, suffered from the great panic which prevailed in the seventies. There were thousands of non-union people at work in the New York tenement houses at the close of that business depression, and their wages had been reduced to so low a figure that they determined, in 1877, to request Union No. 144 to organize and aid them in their endeavor to restore their former schedule of prices. The union promptly championed their cause; and, under the generalship of Adolph Strasser, Samuel Gompers, and Myer Dampf, some 8,000 cigarmakers, whose demands were not heeded by the employers, went on strike. There was only $600 in the treasury of the local union, and appeals were forthwith issued for financial assistance. All over the land the cigarmakers organized for the purpose of raising funds for their New York brethren, and money poured in from labor organizations in all quarters of the United States and Canada and from England and Belgium. The strike was handled in a business-like way. Stores were rented and stocked with provisions. Each family was supplied with the necessities of life, homes were provided for tenants who had been evicted from houses owned by cigar manufacturers, the unmarried men received lodging and meal tickets, and medical attendance and furnished to those who were afflicted with illness. Mr. Bloete served on the relief committee, which appointed him chairman of a sub-committee to purchase the food supplies. His committee bought nearly 160,000 pounds of meat, besides immense quantities of bread, vegetables and groceries, which were distributed among the strikers.

This controversy marked an epoch in the history of trade unionism, for it tended to revive the labor movement in the United States. The duration of the strike was seventeen weeks and it cost $49,476.39 to maintain it. Although the workers did not succeed in having their wages raised, the result was not an absolute failure, for in the provincial towns the unions which had sprung into existence on account of the strike thrived wonderfully, and ultimately bettered the condition of their members.

In 1886-7 Mr. Bloete represented his union in the New York Central Labor Union, and for two years he did admirable work on the arbitration committee of the latter association. He familiarized himself with all phases of the labor question during his fifty-one years' connection with cigarmakers' unions, and it was because of his profound knowledge of economic subjects that Labor Commissioner Peck in 1887 commissioned him Special Agent of the New York State Bureau of Labor Statistics, with headquarters in New York City. This position, which was unsought by him, he held for more than seventeen years, performing its exacting and important duties with distinguished ability. In December, 1904, owing to ill health, he tendered his resignation to Labor Commissioner McMackin, who futilely besought Mr. Bloete to withdraw it, and two months later the resignation was accepted. Although he subsequently regained his health he retired from active labor and spent the remaining years of his life seeking quietude and bestowing acts of kindness upon his fellow beings.

The deceased was well and favorably known in labor circles. He was an ardent, sincere trade-unionist; a man of noble character, capacious soul, generous impulses, sterling honesty, broad intellect, unruffled judgment, and ripe wisdom. This good man has departed from earthly life, but his memory will ever remain fresh and sweet in the minds of those who were fortunate in being numbered among his friends and acquaintances. Having attained:

"The bound of man's appointed years, at last,
Life's blessings all enjoyed, life's labors done,
Serenely to his final rest has passed;
While the soft memory of his virtues, yet,
Lingers like twilight hues, when the bright sun is set."

LOCAL FINES

Note.—Fines below $5 are not published in the Journal. See Sec. 195.

Sec. 197. Members having been fined by local unions shall pay such fines on the following basis: $10 or less, 10 per cent of weekly wages and benefits paid by union; or amounts more than $10, 15 per cent, aside from payments no loans as provided in the constitution.

In all cases where fines are imposed by local unions it will facilitate matters by giving the number, if party fined is a member of the union.

Union 12, Oneida, N. Y., rescinded the fine of $5.00 on F. C. Ferguson (72962).

Union 166, Defiance, Ohio, fined Jake Zimmerman and John Meyers $10.00 each for working below the bill of prices at Geo. Shoemaker's shop.

Union 123, Hamilton, Ohio, fined Howard Smith $5.00 for drawing illegal benefits.

Union 25, Milwaukee, Wis., fined Arthur Constant (109364) $10.00 and annulled his retiring card for working in an open shop for six weeks without depositing his card.

Union 299, Middletown, Conn., fined W. E. Connor (84743) $6.00 for unpaid board bill. It would be advisable for Mr. Connor to pay a little attention to this, as Union 299 means business.

Union 26, South Norwalk, Conn., fined F. Fay (36621) $3.50 for unpaid board bill and room rent.

Union 95, St. Joseph, Mo., fined A. J. Dixon (106801) $5.50 and suspension for unpaid board bill. Also fined Wm. Hering (84651) $5.50 for conduct unbecoming a union man by leaving an unpaid board bill.

Union 6, Syracuse, N. Y., fined Henry Schlemm (62536) $10.00 for employing a non-union plumber. Union 14, Chicago, Ill., fined J. Sherre (463) $10.00 and M. Goldstein (7897) $5.00 for working overtime in the shop of Harry Cohn.

Union 20, Decatur, Ill., fined D. W. Ryan (82902) $10.00 for allowing himself to become suspended, this being the third suspension in four years.

Union 395, Waterbury, Conn., fined Jacob Binkley (38572) $9.00 for unpaid board bill.

Union 423, Sterling, Ill., fined Ed. J. Kelsey (97978) $4.50 for unpaid board bill. Pay within eight weeks or we will suspend you.

Union 301, Akron, Pa., fined Henry Zwally (106379) $5.00 for allowing himself to become suspended.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED

The following are the only alterations or amendments to the Constitution adopted since the Detroit (1896) convention and not published in the 18th edition of the Constitution:

By Union 138, Newark, N. J.:

Amend Section 77 on line 4 after the words "International Union," "Any retiring card holder who is working at the cigar trade, or deriving a livelihood therefrom, shall also pay all local assessments levied for label agitation purposes."

Section 77 to read:

Section 77. Any member having contributed dues for three years, taking a retiring card, may continue to receive the sick and death benefits upon the payment of twenty cents per week and all assessments of the International Union. Any retiring card holder who is working at the cigar trade or deriving a livelihood therefrom, shall also pay all local assessments levied for label agitation purposes. Any member failing to avail himself of this privilege shall forfeit all previous rights and benefits; but this shall not be so construed as to mean the annulling of his retiring card. The retiring card of any person violating the laws or working against the interests of the International Union shall be annulled, which shall forfeit to the holder all rights and privileges granted by the Constitution. Any person holding a retiring card and entitled to sick and death benefit shall be entitled to a vote on all questions relating to said benefit. (Adopted May, 1908, Journal.)

By Union 483, Gloversville:

Amend Section 146 by inserting the words "one or" after the word "of" on the eleventh line of the second part of Section 146. Also on the thirteenth line of the same sentence drop the words "any kind of labor" and insert instead the following words, "their usual occupation."

Part to read:

The International Executive Board shall, at the request of a local union (properly attested) of which any contributing member entitled to death benefit, and who has through total blindness or the loss of one or both hands or incurably insane become permanently incapacitated for performing his usual occupation, order an investigation of the facts of the case. Should the evidence be conclusive and satisfactory to the Executive Board, the International President shall cause the payment of such sum less $50.00 as the disabled or insane member would be entitled to in case of death at the date of said application, to be paid to the applicant or guardian. (Adopted July, 1908, Journal.)

By Union 144, New York:

Relating to Section 211, District of New York. "It shall be optional with the local unions of New York so long as the open shop system is in operation to stipulate that any member joining the union cannot work in a label shop until he or she has been a member of the International Union for at least one year. This shall not debar apprentices who served their apprenticeship in a union shop from working in any union shop receiving the label, or cigarmakers coming from foreign countries that are accepted according to Section 67 of the International Constitution." This law shall be null and void December, 1911, unless resubmitted and approved by the members of the International Union. (Adopted September, 1908, Journal.)

By Union 14, Chicago:

Amendment to Sections 76 and 77 of International Constitution:

Section 76. Any member quitting the trade or becoming a foreman as defined in Section 64, or a continuous employer of one or more union cigarmakers who has not been a member for three years, may continue to pay full dues and all assessments, local and International, and receive all sick and death benefits to which his term of membership may entitle him. When such member has paid dues continuously for three years he shall be transferred to the beneficiary class and be subject to Section 77. Members failing to avail themselves of this privilege shall, upon the payment of all union indebtedness within thirty days, be issued an absolute retiring card, which shall entitle the holder to readmission, as a new member, free of charge.

Section 77. Any member who has contributed full dues for a continuous period of three years quitting the trade, or becoming a foreman as defined in Section 64, or a continuous employer of one or more members, may be placed in the retired beneficiary class and continue to receive the sick and death benefit upon the payment of 20 cents dues per week and all International assessments, and local assessments levied for label agitation. All persons in the retired beneficiary class shall be entitled to vote on all questions relating to sick or death benefits, or assessments they are subject to, but shall not be entitled to sick benefit while in a foreign country, away from the jurisdiction of the International Union. Any member failing to avail himself of this beneficiary privilege shall be granted, within thirty days, if clear on the books, an absolute retiring card, entitling the holder, upon his return to the trade, to readmission free of charge as a new member. The retiring card of any person, violating the laws or working against the interests of the International Union, shall be annulled.

Section to read accordingly.

(Adopted October, 1908, Journal.)

By Union 467, Arecibo:

Amendment to Section 67: By adding after the words "three dollars ($3.00)," except in Puerto Rico, where the initiation fee shall be one dollar, payable in advance, or in four weekly installments. This amendment to remain in force one year from the date of its adoption.

Section to read accordingly.

CHICAGO, OCTOBER 15, 1908.

For a number of years conciliation and arbitration has been a cardinal principle with the printers, and its application has been the means of pre-
CONCILIATION serving industrial tranquility to a large extent in that organization. Speaking of this feature, President Lynch in his address to their recent convention said: "We have accomplished two great things: We have maintained industrial peace and have not found it necessary to leave our employment because of disagreements. In the past year all disputes have been adjusted but one and our union and publishers are working in harmony. While not all cases have been settled absolutely to our satisfaction, yet there has not been an arbitration decision rendered that has not brought positive benefit to the local affected, and the case may be stated in stronger terms, that the average arbitration decision has been much better than the average scale secured where the arbitration agreement has not been in effect. Surely there must be some remedy that will to a reasonable degree at least prevent the strike and the resultant loss to employer and employee. If our present arbitration agreement, the most perfect of its kind in existence, does not offer a remedy, then the industrial problem presents only one solution, and that through the resort of force. This will mean the survival of the strongest. If the wage-worker, under the present system, has nothing to look forward to in the last analysis except the strike, then indeed is his future unstable. Arbitration decisions should at least have a fair trial. It should not be condemned without the fullest test. I have faith in arbitration as a deterrent to industrial chaos, and believe that the great bulk of union men approve the effort at industrial peace."

A world's congress of delegates representing the best doctors and experts on tuberculosis the world can produce has just been held in Washington, D. C. While the reports we have are meager, enough has come to the service to give the average layman at least some idea of the means first to prevent and secondly to cure consumption in its incipient stages. As the doctors get more confidential and less reticent we find that pure fresh air, cleanliness, sunshine and rational living are the natural preventatives and that pure, fresh air, sunshine, raw fresh eggs and pure, sweet milk are the very best remedies for incipient consumption. All agreed that consumption is the greatest destroyer we have and that it is unnecessary and can be prevented by the use of proper preventatives and rational living. One of the greatest contributory causes to the ravages of the great white plague, insanitary work shops and dwelling houses, did not receive the attention and action the subject merits. On this important phase of the question it remains as in all others, of an economic nature, for organized labor to create a sentiment and compel final action. Consumptive germs cannot live in pure air and sunlight, hence all workshops should be so located that the rays of the sun may do its natural work in stamping out this awful disease. The cellar and garret workshop, where no ray of sunshine ever finds its way, should be relegated to oblivion. This can be easily accomplished by a little public agitation. The general public is becoming interested and alarmed over the frightful and unnecessary annual slaughter by this disease, from which, in this country alone, 400 human beings yielded up their lives every day in the year, and is ready to co-operate with any rational movement for its suppression.

Since the amendment on union 248 Jacksonville, Fla., has received sufficient indorsements to go to popular vote we deem it advisable to place such information as we may have on this important matter in your hands. The amendment provides that a 5 cent assessment shall be levied on all members for each death, the proceeds to go to the heirs, less 5 per cent, which shall go to a fund to provide a home for sick and disabled cigarmakers, out of which, however, all dues and assessments of sick members shall be paid. The amendment is crudely drawn, even if the plan is right. It provides for the establishment of a home, but does not specify what the home shall cost or how soon it shall be started, nor in any way furnish even a foundation upon which to start. The amendment provides that members shall not pay the assessment until they are such for two years, thus making two classes of members and fish of one and flesh of the other.

The records here show that the average death rate is 50 per month. This would necessitate 50 five cent assessments each month, amounting to $2.50 per member, which, added to the weekly dues, averages $1.30 per month would make $3.80 per month per member, or about 87 cents per week. Add to this the necessary local assessments levied for label and other purposes, the weekly dues would be at least $1 per week. A compulsory insurance in a purely trade union is a serious matter. All, or nearly all, will agree that a reasonable death benefit is a splendid thing. But we have many single members who do not care to carry a heavy insurance. Owing to our natural make-up a trade union is justified in adopting a chain of benefits in which all may participate, such as the ones we now have. Benefits along such lines cannot be too numerous. We hold that a superannuated benefit or old age pension which constitute a benefit that our members can partake of while they are still on earth will do more to build up and strengthen the union than a compulsory insurance feature such as proposed by the amendment of 248 Jacksonville. Some members are conscientiously opposed to an insurance of any kind. While we have a right to go as far as the membership please in the direction of living benefits in which all may be materially benefited, it is a serious question as to how far we may go in a COM-PULSORY insurance plan, especially where the trade is not thoroughly organized and in which the unorganized are compelled to work for ridiculously small wages.

We have an undoubted right to build a home for sick or disabled members and to adopt any kind of a benefit in which all may participate.

but to say to a thoroughly honest, conscientious union man who is such from principle that he must pay for compulsory insurance or be suspended from the union, or to say to the non-unionist who works for frightfully small wages and whom we must reach that the dues and assessment are $1 a week, is a serious matter and should not be lightly passed over. We are heartily in favor of everyone of the present benefits we now have and in adding to them, but they should be of the kind that properly come under the sphere of trade union activity, and against which there can be no serious well grounded objection.

We recently received a pamphlet containing the proceedings of the Seventh International Congress of Cigarmakers, held at Stuttgart, Germany, August 11-16, 1907. We note as of peculiar interest what Mr. H. Jugters of Belgium has to say concerning the United States. On page 22-23 of the proceedings he says:

"The Wages.—In many parts a notable amelioration has taken place, though the tobacco prices have advanced.

By the assistance of the international committee, sections, solely composed of Belgians, were erected in America, with the aim of helping us in strikes and lockouts by means of voluntary contributions; these sections have already given 4,500 frs.; Boston excepted, where in 1897, by influence of our members over there, 2,100 frs. were gathered. In Boston our countrymen are the most numerous, they count there 1,000 men.

Furthermore there are sections at Philadelphia, New York, Manchester and New Haven, the total amount of members being about 2,000. They have resolved to erect a National Federation in America; if they are successful, we hope to meet one of their delegates at our International Congress. We have also introduced a Federation's label in Belgium, which we will try to make use of in the best manner in favor of the workmen.

Finally we have to announce that at Liege there has been erected a professional school to teach the cigarmaking." The fact that we have sections and now a proposed Federation of Cigarmakers in these places may be news to many of our members, especially to those outside the places named. The thought naturally arises why these sections composed exclusively of union cigarmakers?

The State of Oklahoma, one of the youngest in the Union, has many excellent laws calculated to protect and advance the interests of the so-called common people. In this respect it is far ahead of any of its older and more pretentious contemporaries, which go to make up the galaxy of stars in our Union of States. It is said that this state has one of the very best arbitration laws in operation in any man's country. We have not studied this law, hence do not affirm or deny this statement. Among the other laws directly in the interest of labor may be mentioned the sanitary inspection law, the one providing for safety appliances in all dangerous occupations, the one providing for ample protection to miners, etc. All told, it is said they have 20 laws directly in the interest of the workers. All told, 22 or 23 laws were approved and advocated by the state Federation of Labor and, as stated in the foregoing, 20 of them were adopted.

If you can't boost, don't knock. There is a vast difference between a knocker and a kicker. A knocker is always a grouch and a failure in life; always in despair himself, he brings nothing but misery into the lives of those who are unfortunate enough to be in his company. The kicker who kicks when it is necessary often does great good and in the long run makes conditions and life the better worth living.

It is sometimes said that during good times trade unions run themselves. This may be partly true, but by no means so in all respects. There, however, is no question but what during dull times the unions require more thought and attention to keep them right side up and intact. Men's loyalty, courage and devotion to our great cause is often put to the severest tests during periods of commercial and industrial depression. And it becomes the duty of the steadfast and strong to encourage and lead the faltering. Those who have passed through similar trying times know by experience that a brighter day is not far ahead and should encourage the less experienced members to remain steadfast.

One division of the U. S. Supreme Court has just decided that we have a right to indulge in peaceful picketing. This is a right that no one questioned until the "injunction judge" got in his little work. The decision just rendered grew out of the case of the iron molders' strike against the Allis-Chalmers Co. The judge issued the usual injunction restraining the molders from doing anything except to return to work, and especially against peaceful picketing. The case was appealed with the result stated in the foregoing. Small favors thankfully received. It's sometimes refreshing to be told by the courts that we have certain rights even if we and everybody else already knew it.

The reports indicate that the state of trade has improved slightly but not to the extent we had hoped for nor is it anywhere as good as it was prior to the slump last October. The depression is not confined to any particular locality, but seems to be general. Members who contemplate traveling might take note of the fact that one place seems about as bad as the other so far as the chances of obtaining work is concerned.

A kindly word and a pleasant smile often goes a long way in bringing sunlight into the lives of others. Life at best for the average wage-earner is none too good and a kindly word costs nothing and often does great good. Be a ray of sunshine in the life of your fellow-worker. It will do both good.

In these dull times competition is more keenly felt than during normal trade conditions and the temptation on the part of the dealer to handle the non-union product is also greater. Now more than any other time there is greater need of persistent label agitation.

The widespread publicity which has been given the struggle to re-establish union conditions in the composing room of the Butterick Publishing Company has reached all classes and conditions of men. Every city and village on the North American continent has heard of the Butterick magazines and patterns. Union men have taken up the fight, and the efforts of Typographical Union No. 6 will cease only when the eight-hour day prevails and union wages are paid.

That this fight has aroused the sympathies and enlisted the services of many outside the ranks of organized wage-earners has been manifest for some time. Especially among professional and literary men and women is there a tendency to do more than look on.

REPORTS OF ORGANIZERS.

Oct. 1, 1908.

I am unable to distinguish any decided improvement in trade conditions, or in the labor movement, in eastern Ontario or Quebec so far visited, compared with the last few years.

Last year Belleville presented some improvement in labor organization, today it seems to be dying out. The label seems to be in somewhat better evidence, but the demand remains about the same. Distributed some advertising matter donated by Union 27 Toronto. No meetings during my stay.

In Kingston the leading cigar stores are carrying a better line of union brands than formerly. Hotels and saloons with few exceptions handle nonunion brands made in the place. Attended meeting of labor day committee of council and distributed advertising matter through the city.

Brockville once possessing a lively trades union movement, seems to have gone completely to pieces, the central labor body has not met for a long time, and there is no indication that organization exists. Our people are in work just now, following a long layoff, and are by no means certain how long work will continue this time. There is a good showing of label goods, but there is no advertising, and consequently, there is poor demand.

In Montreal trade is exceedingly dull, our people with many others have been walking the streets for months looking for, but unable to obtain employment. And the end is not yet, for a huge strike is on extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific, over the C. P. R. systems, tying up the coal, wheat and cattle, movement, and throwing thousands employed in other interdependent industries out of work.

Union 58 has been doing good work in advertising the union label, but the labor movement of Montreal is slow to respond. Attended and addressed local union during my stay. Union 58 is issuing advertising matter in the shape of memorandum books, with general information and treatise on the union label. It is printed in French and English, and should prove useful throughout this section of the country. The Union kindly donated a number of them to me for use in Quebec.

Quebec, the provincial capital, sometimes called the Gibraltar of America, is the stronghold of the ultra Canadian movement known as the Canadian nationalist congress. They held their annual session during my stay in Quebec, and changed their name to that of "The Canadian Federation of Labor." The great bulk of its membership is composed of boot and shoe workers of the city of Quebec, there being numerous large factories located here. They have some locals situated in Montreal and Ottawa, and in several places in the province of Quebec. Numerically speaking, they do not amount to much, but they have behind them a powerful influence strongly opposed to internationalism, and which is in a position to render them effective assistance in their propaganda against international unions. The local politicians, too, anxious to carry favor with this influence, are not slow in denouncing internationalism in some sections of the province.

Our local here is in a poor position. One which it is impossible to make any headway, their numbers are continually decreasing, for when one goes away he invariably stays away, the conditions here not holding out any hope of improvement. Addressed meeting of the local union, and assisted in the reorganization of the central labor body which had gone to pieces on account of local differences. Distributed advertising contributed by Union 58, Montreal.

The trades and labor congress of Canada, composed of trades councils, and local unions of an international character, held their annual convention this year, in the city of Halifax, Nova Scotia, Sept. 21 to 26th. This body is the legislative mouthpiece of organized labor in Canada.

There were 211 labor bodies affiliated, and about eighty delegates in attendance, of whom three were cigarmakers, the resolution pledging the endorsement of congress to the cigarmakers' union label being introduced by Jos. McCarthy, delegate and president of Union 27 Toronto.

The total receipts of congress were $8,944. Total expenditure, $7,442.09. The features of the convention were the debate on the industrial disputes act, otherwise known as the Lemieux Bill. The western miners with a large delegation, together with the railway engineers being instructed to move for the repeal of the bill, which is of the character of compulsory investigation, the operation of which these people claim works out to their disadvantage, and which has proven powerless to avert the great strike now going on on the C. P. R. system. However, it was agreed to submit certain amendments to the government, and in case of failure to adopt them submit a motion in favor of repeal to a referendum of the unions chiefly affected by the act.

Hugh Frayne, fraternal delegate from the A. F. of L. to the congress made a splendid address, distinguished by an especially eloquent appeal on behalf of the blue union label, and others. Keir Hardie, the veteran leader of the British socialists, made another splendid address, in which he gave the history of the labor political movement in Great Britain, and incidentally, severely scored the Canadian and American socialists for their attitude towards the trade union movement in politics. The incoming executive officers are President Alphonse Verotillo M. P., Montreal; Jas. Simpson, Toronto, vice-president, by a very narrow majority and P. M. Draker, secretary-treasurer, and also fraternal delegates to A. F. of L. convention. There being a large delegation from the east, the cigarmakers' delegates were able to preach the label with some effect, though the condition of the one small factory here precluded organization. I attended and addressed a successful organization meeting of street railway employes. Meeting opened at half past one a. m., and concluded at 4 a. m.

Yours Fraternally,

W. V. Todd,
Organizer.

Creston, Iowa.

The local here is in bad shape not holding meetings regular and no activity on the part of members. Called a meeting; got them straightened out. One scab shop of two men could do nothing with him. Label in fair demand.

Bedford, Iowa.

Two buckeyes not union, but pay price when employing a man. No label in sight. Red Oak, Iowa.

Four retail stores; all scab; all ex-union men. Six men working in town. Not a label in sight. Worked with them, but to no avail. No organized labor in the town. Hamburg, Iowa.

A small town, one buckeye. No labels to be seen. Tried to get him back but he said what's the use. Plattsmouth, Neb.

This local is in bad shape since the big shop moved to Lincoln, Neb. It leaves practically all the members bosses. Label in good demand.

Council Bluffs, Iowa.

The home of one of the largest jobbing houses in the country, Parago & Moor. The union shops have a hard time of it. One scab shop Cook & Co., working four girls. The label in fair demand.

Lincoln, Neb.

I put a week in working among the saloon and other business men. Was a little difference with one job which was settled O. K., and Lincoln bids fair to be one of the best union towns in the west if the members will work harmoniously and quit petty troubles. Labels in demand.

Fremont, Neb.

I worked with the strike shops of Brietenfield and he is so mad at the unions it was impossible at this time to do any thing from what I could learn from the boys and the firm. A square head caused all the trouble and then left town. Label in good demand.

Have put in ten days boosting the label which it sadly needed. Had the president of the local with me in a campaign of the saloon. Had a letter sent to all of the saloons of the state through the secretary of the Liquor Men's Association, showing them why they should buy union label goods. Organized labor do not demand the label.

Tampa, Fla., Sept. 1.

This month of August I have been elected president of the Joint Advisory Board of Tampa, and this position allows me to work more in conjunction with this body than ever before, although the Board always aided me in the work of organization as much as they possibly could.

My last report in some instances has been blistering and some resented very much because I exposed them as they are. They made up some kind of story which says that "I pretend to take the women out of the factories" and as good many do not read English and others do not take the trouble to read and find more convenient to make believe that they believe everything that is said, spread that news broadcast without thinking that with such conduct they are helping me more than what they intend to do.

But never mind what they might think or say, I will keep saying that if the cigar makers of Tampa do not organize soon in three or four years to come there will be very few men working in the cigar factories; that it is a disgrace to any community or craft that the women be in the factories working and a good deal of men, fathers and husbands of many of those working women, are expending the money which their wives and daughters make, in the barrooms and other worst places and in the meantime there are many with a family to support which are out of a job for over five and six months.

The work of the women in the factories while the men are parading the streets is an immorality to the family, to the country, and cannot bring forth but slavery, because even if the man take care of the children his care is not to be compared with the care of the mother, and the children grow up seeing in their father the tyrant of the family and they cannot have respect for him but fear, and are prepared to accept any other kind of tyranny.

During this month there has not been much increase in the membership of the unions because there has been a good deal of cigar makers laid off in the factories. Today we have over two thousand out of work in our craft in Tampa. But the Joint Advisory Board is working with more faith than ever in the organization and I think that as soon as the work in the factories be better that we will see the benefit of the work for the organization. In a few days the manifesto of this Joint Advisory Board will be ready to be published in the English language and I am of the opinion that this manifesto will bring many members to the union.

The manufacturers are thinking that these conditions which exist today will last for ever, and I cannot state if they think correctly or not.

On August 17th the Labor Day committee sent them a letter endorsed by the Building Trades Council and the Central Trades and Labor Assembly and up to date we have not answered or acknowledged the letter and the Labor Day committee decided to publish it in the English and Spanish languages for the benefit of the public.

The letter read as follows:

Tampa, Fla., Aug. 17, 1908.

Mr. President of Cigar Manufacturers' Association of Tampa,
Dear Sir:

We beg to advise you that the labor organizations of this city will hold a Labor Day celebration at Sulphur Springs on Monday, Sept. 7th, 1908, and we would respectfully request that the factories of the members of your association be closed on that day so that their employes may be able to participate in this celebration.

Very Respectfully,

Building Trades Council,

By W. H. Campbell, Sec-Treas.

Central Trades and Labor Assembly,

By James F. Scott, Secretary.

I cannot imagine why the manufacturers did not answer such letter. Some say that an answer would be to recognize the union, and in my opinion that is a mistake, because it was not the Joint Advisory Board the body which sent the communication.

As I understand it it was a letter from to corporations addressed to one and if the latter did not want to grant the request at least should acknowledge receipt without compromise as politeness demands.

But they must know what they are doing and the ground they stand, as we know our own.

Allentown, Pa., Sept. 9, 1908.

Conditions in the cigar trade in Pennsylvania continue very much the same as noted in previous reports, except possibly a little duller than a month ago. Some of the large factories that make exclusively high grade hand made 5 cent goods are phenomenally busy.

The evolution in the cigar making industry in this southeastern section of Pennsylvania has been marked by its transition from low grade scrap mold work to a fine quality of long filler shaper and straight hand work, that finds a ready market in the drug stores and elsewhere that standard quality goods are sold; from the kitchen and corn crib shops to the most elegantly equipped cigar factories to be found anywhere. And were it not for the abominably low wages that obtains in these modern examples of cleanliness and sanitation in cigar manufacturing, Pennsylvania certainly would be a paradise for cigar makers. As it is, however, many of the advantages that should accompany pleasant surroundings for the workers are lost on account of the merciless nerve wrecking grinding pace at which the cigar maker finds himself compelled to go for ten or twelve hours a day if he hopes to find enough in his pay envelope to keep body and soul together.

Although conditions such as we are experiencing at present on account of the general business depression are not the most favorable times for pushing organization work. I have nevertheless, succeeded in organizing a new local union at East Greenville, and hope to organize at a few other points in the near future.

THANKSGIVING.

By the Rev. Charles Stelzle.

The bounteous harvest—fruit of the cold, and the rain, and the storm, as well as the warmth, and the sunshine and calm, all of them needed to bring to us blessings of life and nourishment.

The full-grown man—master of self; quick to respond to the needs of the weak, and ready to help in the battle of life—made strong by the stress and the strain of the strife. These having their share in bringing to him the broadening-out and the filling-in, which gave him a vision of his brother-man as part of God's great universe, which was made for all mankind.

LOST CARDS

Section 11. Any member losing or destroying his loan book shall not be entitled to receive any benefits or a duplicate loan book before the expiration of two months, and financial secretaries of local unions must notify the International President of such loss or destruction immediately, the same to be published in the official Journal by the International President. The International President shall be the only person to issue a duplicate.

Members having lost their traveling cards take notice:

No duplicate card will be issued for lost card unless the full name of member, the card number, the date of initiation and the union where the card was last deposited are given. Members who lose cards are not entitled to benefits until they secure duplicates. No duplicate cards are issued except upon application through some secretary, when the time limit of two months has expired.

Month after month unscrupulous men impose upon secretaries and members under the plea of lost cards. The constitution provides a punishment for lost cards. Its purpose is to stop the carelessness and the traffic made with full cards by permitting them to be held as security.

Don't issue letters to any member claiming lost card unless you know his actual standing.

Secretaries have no right to issue certificates in place of lost cards. Members who secure employment should be entered as admitted to the union.

Secretaries should be careful and enter all loans granted and repaid and all balances carried from one card to another in letters and figures. The issue of duplicates will be delayed in all cases where information is not complete.

Secretaries should examine due books where claim of lost card is made. Report full name, number, date and place of initiation and when and where card was last deposited.

Private loans will be entered on duplicates issued upon request of unions.

Enter all loans granted in figures and letters.

 The last two are either frauds or the name and number is not correctly stated, as no initiation occurred at time and place stated or withdrawal from unions mentioned. Secretaries would do well to question claimants to lost cards, and if in doubt take a description.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED

Local No. 188, of Seattle, Wash., proposes the following amendment to Section 70 of the International Constitution:

Amend Section 70 by adding after the word "week," on line 2, the following:
 "That an assessment of ten (10) cents be levied on all fifteen (15) and thirty (30) cent members, the proceeds to go for advertising the label of the C. M. I. U. of A. at the Alaska, Yukon and Pacific Exposition, which will be held in Seattle, Wash., from June, 1909, to November, 1909. The expenditure of the money raised by this assessment to be under the supervision of the International President and Executive Board."

Amendment proposed by Union No. 130, of Saginaw, Mich., to Section 146 of the International Constitution:

Strike out all after the words "death benefit," line 11, second paragraph, as it reads in the seventeenth edition of our Constitution, and insert the following: "And who has through partial or total blindness, the loss of one or both hands, incurably insane, or any other incurable sickness or disease, become permanently incapacitated from making or packing cigars, order an investigation as to the facts in the case. Should the evidence and facts be conclusive and satisfactory to the International Executive Board, the International President shall cause the issuing of a ten-cent (10c) assessment on all thirty-cent (30c) and twenty-cent (20c) members, and the sum total so collected paid to such afflicted member, or guardian. The same shall be in lieu of any and all other benefits which might accrue by the reason of the sickness or death of such member. When a member has been incurably sick or insane for two years he shall be considered as incurable. Such member after receiving this assessment shall then be granted a permanent retiring card after giving a properly attested receipt for benefit received." (This amendment to be first above any others that may conflict with this one), and makes all special benefit assessments come under this head.

The amendment of Union 248, Jacksonville, Fla., as published in the August Journal, as follows:

Section 151½.—All 15, 20 and 30-cent members who have been members for two years in good standing shall be eligible for this benefit. Upon the death of such member there shall be a levy of 5 cents upon each 15, 20 and 30-cent member for the benefit of his family; the proceeds of this assessment goes to the family or his heirs as a life insurance, less 5 per cent, which is to create a fund to establish and maintain a Home for Sick and Disabled Cigar Makers.

The International President of the Cigar Makers' Union is hereby authorized to pay all dues and assessments of sick and disabled members out of the 5 per cent reserve fund at the Home. The International Secretary shall keep a separate account of each member at the Home, and all moneys advanced in payment of dues and assessments shall be repaid as per Section 106, but no member shall be assessed for the 5 per cent death benefit until he becomes eligible at the end of two years.

This Section 151½ shall take effect within 15 days after its adoption by a two-thirds vote in all the local unions in the United States, Canada, Puerto Rico, Cuba, and where any local union may exist under the jurisdiction of the International Union of North America. And the International President is hereby authorized to frame certificates to send to their local unions for each member to fill out for their beneficiary.

Notes by No. 97, Boston: The situation in our craft at present is far from rosy. Millions of cigars less were produced in the last eight months of this year than in the corresponding eight months of last year.—Thirteen hundred looters struck against conditions in Lynn this week.—Our label committee have miniature factory in full blast at Mechanics' Fair. It is in charge of Pres. Tobin, ex-Presidents Wiesler, Mahoney and Kinder.—J. H. P. and B. C. A. Keystone don't bear a blue label. These are 5c goods and are not smoked by millionaires.—The best means of agitation is to visit the various labor organizations.—Label committee visited Lawrence and found too many non-union cigars. Wake up and do something.—The label crafts have done more to organize, reduce hours of labor, improve sanitary conditions than any other force in the labor movement.—Demand the label on all commodities and when you have work done see that the man who does it wears a union button or carries a union card.—Thirty cents dues never did and never will make a union man.—Whatever the outcome of the election, the injunction as applied to labor must go, and this is the result of the agitation of the President of the A. F. of L.—High dues and a chain of benefits are the only things that will hold workmen and women together.—After the depression is over, labor will take another step forward.—In a republic where every man is a citizen and every man a voter the future destiny of the nation depends on the education of the masses.—Don't say your child is fourteen and send him in the mill or the factory; give him or her a chance in life.—The trades union is the workingmen's college.—When labor is thoroughly organized along trade lines it can then move another step but not till then.—You cannot win in a strike against improved machinery.—The trade school is here; shall the state or a private corporation control them?

REPORT OF INTERNATIONAL FINANCIER.

Owosso, Mich., Oct. 5, 1908.

Since last report have examined the accounts of the following unions, viz.:

No. 19, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

The books and accounts here are in excellent condition, neat and accurate. Benefit cards and vouchers correct and filed in rotation. Ledger posted showing actual standing of all members. Cash and stamp accounts correct. Statement as follows:

In possession Secy. V. A. Ripley.....28.80

Total.....$ 405.80

No. 22, Detroit, Mich.

The books and accounts here are in good order. Benefit cards, original bills and vouchers for expense all on file. Ledger posted O. K. A poor chance for any one to draw an illegal benefit here, as the secretary and officers look after the accounts very closely. Trade conditions here indicate that there is something the matter with the membership—way over 400 members and 50 means a big meeting. What do you know about that? And from remarks made to me by a couple of the members (men who disgrace the card they carry) the cause is not hard to find. It takes the efforts of a good many good men to offset the harm a few men with an unhealthy mind can do in a few minutes. Statement as follows:

Balance on hand Nov. 1, 1904.....$ 3,246.59
Expended over percentage in 1904-6 and 7.....468.44
Receipts to Sept. 1, 1908.....40,267.38

Total.....$43,982.41
Expense to Sept. 1, 1908.....43,436.55

Balance should be Sept. 1, 1908.....$ 545.86

Funds of Union—

Sept. 1, 1908, in Wayne County Savings Bank.....$ 38.93

Sept. 1, 1908, in People's Savings Bank.....458.97

In possession Secy. Fred Wolf.....50.05

Total.....$ 545.95

Surplus on hand Sept. 1, 1908......09

No. 130, Saginaw, Mich.

The books and accounts here are in excellent condition. Balanced at the end of every month. Cash and stamp accounts correct. Ledger correctly posted. Benefit cards and vouchers for expense on file. Statement as follows:

Balance on hand July 1, 1906.....$1,838.34
Receipts to Sept. 1, 1908.....3,865.33
Expended over percentage in 1907.....9.91

Total.....$5,713.58
Expense to Sept. 1, 1908.....3,973.72

Balance on hand should be Sept. 1, 1908.....$1,739.86

Funds of Union—

Sept. 1, 1908, in Saginaw Co. Savings Bank.....$1,703.16

In possession Treas. C. Kreanchauf.....21.70

In possession Secy. Frank Bricker.....15.00

Total.....$1,739.86

The only fault to find here was regarding members O. O. Work not drawing benefit and the application of Section 73. Only three or four involved. Immediate steps to adjust their dues accounts will be taken.

No. 169, Cheboygan, Mich.

Except for the failure in not reporting an amount not accounted for by H. J. Taunt when he retired as financial secretary the books and accounts are in good order. Some of the members over the limit in dues. Taking chances with Section 73 is very poor judgment. Failure to hold regular meetings must not continue. Members of 169 should take more interest in union affairs. "Your personal interest" in the home industry proposition should prompt you to better effort. Get busy. Be real union men. "Try it." Statement as follows:

Balance on hand July 1, 1906.....$ 221.75
Receipts to Sept. 1, 1908.....716.55

Total.....$ 938.30
Expense to Sept. 1, 1908.....516.54

Balance should be Sept. 1, 1908.....$ 421.76
Receipts to Sept. 11, 1908.....1.50

Total.....$ 423.26
Expense to Sept. 11, 1908.....12.25

Balance should be Sept. 11, 1908.....$ 411.01

Funds of Union—

Sept. 11, 1908, in Cheboygan Co. Savings Bank.....$172.10

Certificates of deposit on Cheboygan Co. Savings Bank.....155.25

In possession Secy. Norman Lennox.....4.31

Total.....$ 331.66

Deficiency of union Sept. 11, 1908.....$ 79.55

This is deficiency "on account old union." The $327.35 in bank and certificates includes the $42.10 not accounted for by ex-Secretary H. J. Taunt when he retired from office, but now replaced by him. No. 184, Bay City, Mich.

The books and accounts here are in good order. Benefit cards and vouchers are on file. Cash and stamp accounts correct. The only trouble here is that several of the members disregard Section 73. Left written instructions for the officers and members regarding the payment of dues, etc. Statement as follows:

Receipts to Sept. 1, 1908.....2,448.50

In Citizens' Com. and Savings Bank.....597.59

In possession Treas. Wm. Crego.....40.20

Total.....$2,010.67

No. 245, Ashland, Wis.

The books and accounts of this union are not in good order. The members' dues' accounts in the ledger being more than a little mixed up. The due books had been called in and returned just before I arrived. All this causes dissatisfaction and is the result of neglect on the part of ex-Secretary Frank Gauthier. The future looks better. Statement as follows:

Balance on hand Sept. 1, 1906.....$2,133.51

W. A. CAMPBELL,
International Financier.

Jedno po druhém z těch hnutí pro rychlé rozluštění doznáních křivd a bezpráví, jež obkličují a tísní práci na všech stranách, hnutí, jež rodí se z nadšení a vedená jsou muži, kteří nemají žádných ustálených zásad, se hroutí. Kdežto hnutí unionistické dále žije, mohutně neustále, i v časech vážné ochablosti průmyslu, pozvolna avšak bezpečně zvyšující úroveň života jeho členstva; a právě ten pozvolný vzrůst svědčí o jeho stálosti pro budoucnost. Ono nevyrostlo přes noc a nezhyne přes den. Vzrůst jeho byl povlnový, jeho zásady a metody správné, poněvadž zvelebují podmínky životní současně se svým vzrůstem a logicky směřuje ku konečné emancipaci.

Každý pokus zorganizovati řemeslnické unie setkal se s opozicí svedených dělníků a vydílačských zaměstnavatelů; avšak my jsme organizovali. Každý nezdar ve stávce byl rozhlášen jako smrtelná rána unii; avšak my jsme se vzpamatovali. V každé krizi předpovídána naše smrt, avšak my jsme ožili. Každé rozhodnutí se strany některého předpojatého soudce proti unii bylo vítáno jako zničení všeho, co stojí v cestě stále vzrůstající hltavosti monopolu proti spravedlivým požadavkům dělníků unii; avšak monopol není vítězem; požadavky práce musejí býti splněny. Organizace bude žít, prosperovati a dodělá se úspěchu. Uvědoměli muži a ženy, kteří tvoří její členství, nemohou býti oťeseni ve víře, zastrašení od přichylnosti neb buldozování soudními rozhodnutími.

V dobách nepříznivých potřebujeme organizace k povzbuzování odvahy, k úlevě v neštěstí a k odražení útoků nepřátel vždy hotových k využitkování bezmocných. V dobách prosperity potřebujeme organizace k získávání prostředků k povzbuzování pokrokových — prostředků pro budoucnost — a získání od zaměstnavatelů zvýšení mzdy, které vlna pokroku a vzrůstající uvědomění činí nutnými. Pamatujte, že vyhlídky na úspěch v dosažení cílů řemeslníckých unii závisí od energie, nadšení a obětavosti členů samotných.

Zkrat'te pracovní hodiny a zaměstnejte více lidí — zaměstnejte více lidí a zvýšíte konsumní sílu země — zvýšte konsumní sílu dělníků a tím otevřete doly a továrny, a dobré časy na místě aby byly na obzoru, budou zde.

„Ten, kdo se nepřipojí k unii svého řemesla, jest nepřítelem své třídy, nepřítelem svých vlastních zájmů, a zasluhuje nejhorší stav otroctví.“

Zkrat'te pracovní hodiny a mnohá zla, jež nyní doléhají na člověčenstvo, zkrátí se sama.

Houževnatost, s jakou členové stáli při Mezinárodní unii během této tísně průmyslové, jest dokladem loyálnosti a věrnosti k zásadám, jež málokdy byla předčena ve hnutí dělnickém.

Je to velmi příjemno plouti po klidných vodách; avšak když vlny zvýveny jsou nepřátelskými živly a veliké nebezpečí hrozí, scéna se změní a není tak zábavná. Totéž platí o dělnickém hnutí. V dobách prosperity je snadno býti členem unie. Nevyžaduje to žádné oběti, práce je dosti a zaměstnavatel bez reptání platí vysokou mzdu; avšak v dobách průmyslové a obchodní tísně, kdy lidé pracují polovic času a v mnohých případech jsou úplně bez práce, kdy zaměstnavatel jest dosti neodvislý a urážlivě nafoukaný, vyžaduje to lidí zásadních, aby vydrželi. Skutečnost, že neztratili jsme jediného členu během této krise svědčí o jakosti a konstrukci Mezinárodní Unie a její budoucnosti, která je opravdu růžovou.

Jest naším míněním, že touha po lepších podmínkách životních nikdy sice neuhasne a že práce nebude spokojena, dokud neobdrží plný a spravedlivý díl své námahy, ale nutnost stávkky k uskutečnění této touhy a dosažení spokojenosti, bude mizeti zrovna v poměru, jak budeme dokonale zorganizováni. Až ta doba nadejde, nebude nutnosti pro dělnické stávkky. Mezitím organizujte se, agituje, plat'te vysoké poplatky a udržujte dokonale stávkovní zákony. Dobré stávkovní zákony a plná pokladna jest nám v našem zápase za hospodářskou svobodu, čím suchý prach byl našim praotecům v boji za svobodu a politickou neodvislost.

Známká jest řemeslům používajícím ji zrovna čím Building Trades Council jest stavebním řemeslům. Ona napomáhá organizovati a udržovati unie a zamezuje snižování mzdy.

Podporujte všechny známky. Nenese-li váš nákup uniovou známku, podporujete potní dílny a skébskou práci.

Skutečná, trvalá prosperita nadejde až massy budou moci spotřebovati, co vytvoří.

Řemeslnické unie napomáhají členům dostá-vati více a více spravedlivého podílu práce.

Prosperita nevrací se tak rychle, aby se jí lidé museli vyhýbat.

Zvyšování mzdy nezvyšuje celkové výlohy životní. Historie dokazuje opak.

Poštovní spořitelny budou dobrou věcí — pro některé — ale co trápí průměrného dělníka jest, jak vydělati dosti peněz na živobytí.

Nikdy neříkejte dost. My chceme víc a více až dosáhneme spravedlivou náhradu za naši práci.

Čím vyšší jsou mzdy dělníků, tím větší jejich spotřebná schopnost.

Znáte-li někoho, kdo nepatří k unii, hleď'te jej získati k unii jeho oboru.

Pracujte pro dobro Americké Federace Práce.

Má-li dělník peníze, všechn obchod zkvětá.

Falsche Issues.

Die Van Cleave Gesellschaft von sogenannten Union „Busters“ hat immerfort eine falsche Idee betreffs der Haltung der Gewerkschaften den Ge-richtshöfen gegenüber geschaffen und hat diese fal-schen Ideen immer wieder dem Publikum unter die Nase gerieben. Die organisierte Arbeit verlangt keine Spezialprivilegien, sondern besteht nur auf gewissen Rechten und auf der Freiheit, diese ohne Hindernisse oder Beeinflussung Seitens der von den Richtern geschmiedeten Gesetze auszuüben. Die organisierte Arbeit ist für alle ihre Handlungen die Verantwortung zu übernehmen bereit, und verlangt nur, daß sie für den
Fall, daß sie etwelve von den niedergeschriebenen Gesetzen unseres Landes verlegt, in vollständig ge-sehmähtiger Weise, und zwar vor einer Jury, die aus ihres Gleichen besteht, prozessiert wird. Wir erheben Einspruch gegen die Erlassung von Einhaltsbefehlen bei Arbeiterfreistellungen, wir verlangen aber nicht, daß wir von der Wirkung von bestehenden Gesetzen, welche die Zerstörung von Leben, Freiheit oder Eigentum verhindern sollen, ausgenommen werden sollen. Die Arbeit ist nicht das Eigentum der arbeitgebenden Klasse; die Annahme des 14. Amendements schlichtete diese wichtige Frage ein für allemal. Ein Einhaltsbefehl, welcher eine Gewerkschaft oder ihre Mitglieder davon zurückhält, daß sie zu Nichtge-werkschaftlern, oder den Streikbrechern, sprich oder ihnen Beistand und guten Rath anbietet, bedingt ein gewisses Besitzrecht auf die Nichtgewer-schaftler oder Streikbrecher zum Allermindesten.

Wir widerstreben der Wiedereinrichtung von Ver-sicherungen auf menschliche Wesen durch den von den Richtern geschaffenen Einhaltsbefehls-Prozess.
In diesem Punkte sind wir absolut im Rechte, von jedem nur erdenklichen Standpunkte aus betrach-tet, und Nebemann, der die Lage überhaupt ver-steht, selbst Van Cleave eingeschlossen, weiß das auch ganz genau.

Eines schönen Tages wird die große Masse der Bevölkerung unseres Landes das gleichfalls wissen und wird den jetzt wüthenden Kampf zu würdigen verstehen.

„Die in der General-Commission der deutschen Gewerkschaften vertretenen Arbeiterverbände zählen gegenwärtig 1,865,506 Mitglieder, darunter 136,929 weibliche. Im Jahre 1891 zählten die deutschen Gewerkschaften erst 277,659 Mitglieder, und zwar nur Männer. Die Hamburger Gewerkschaften allein haben 100,000 Mitglieder. Die Einnahmen der deutschen Gewerkschaften betru-gen im letzten Jahre 51,396,784 Mark, oder 25 1/2

Mart pro Mitglied; die Ausgaben 43,122,519 oder 23 Mart pro Mitglied. Der Kassenbestand belief sich zu Beginn dieses Jahres auf 33,242,545 oder fast 18 Mart pro Mitglied.

Bereit sein, das ist die Hauptfache.

„Man kann sich nicht immer prügeln“, hat der vollstündlichste Staatsmann aller Zeiten einmal einem der wohlmeinenden Freunde zur Antwort gegeben, die ihm beständig zu Unterdrückungsmaßnahmen gegen die Widerfacher seiner Verwaltung aufstacheln wollten. Und Abraham Lincoln hatte Recht. Das Leben ist zwar ein beständiger Kampf, der früher von Allen gegen Alle geführt wurde und jetzt, wo die Barbarei einer höheren Gesittung Platz zu machen hat, zwischen denen ausgekämpft werden muß, deren Klasseninteressen einander feindlich sind, aber — immer prügeln kann man sich deshalb doch nicht. Die Kämpfer würden sich sonst gegenseitig vernichten, würden einander aufessen wie jene Löwen, von denen man nachher nur die Webel im Wüstenlande fand oder wie die beiden Staben in Kissen, von denen auch nicht viel mehr übrig geblieben ist. Der Endzweck unserer Entwicklung besteht keineswegs in der Vernichtung des Menschengeschlechtes, sondern in der Erreichung eines möglichst idealen Gesellschaftszustandes. Daß wir diesem Ziele näher kommen, wird von Schwarzscheidern geleugnet, und doch genügt ein flüchtiger Blick in die Kulturgeschichte, um uns den himmelweiten Abstand erkennen zu lassen, welcher zwischen den heutigen Rechten der breiten Masse des Volkes und selbst zwischen denen besteht, welche diesen Massen in der viel gerühmten athenischen Republik zustanden. Die Summe der Lebensgenüsse und der Bequemlichkeiten, auf welche heute auch „die Geringsten“ als auf etwas Selbstverständliches Anspruch erheben, ist um vieles größer, als die derjenigen, welche vor nicht allzuferner Zeit überhaupt bekannt und nur für wenige Auserlesene reserviert waren.

Die Menschheit hat mithin auf ökonomischem Gebiete fast ebenso gewaltige Fortschritte gemacht wie auf dem der politischen Emanzipation und der religiösen Duldung. Wo man es vor kaum 250 Jahren für ganz selbstverständlich hielt, „Fegen“ zu verbrennen oder zu ertränken, sieht man heute Geschöpfe von ganz gleicher Art sich als Verrätinnen, Schriftstellerinnen, Lehrerinnen betätigen und kommt ihnen mit Wohlwollen und Achtung entgegen. Die unüberäußerlichen Menschenrechte, vor Alters verlegt und als fluchwürdige Hirngespinnste verdammt, werden jetzt wenigstens im Prinzip allgemein anerkannt und eine starke Unterströmung macht sich in der Gesellschaft geltend, sie zu verwirklichen. Alle diese Wandlungen haben sich in verhältnismäßig kurzer Zeit vollzogen, und jeder Sieg, der errungen werden mußte, hat natürlich Kampf gekostet. Ein Ergebnis dieser Kämpfe sind in erster Reihe die Arbeiter-Organisationen — denn das Recht sich zu freien Vereinigungen verbinden zu dürfen, mußte, wie jedes andere Recht, erkämpft werden. Vom Kampf sind also unsere Genossenschaften gezeugt und für den Kampf — ein Hauptfordernis für diesen besteht aber in der Vorbereitung, die für ihn getroffen werden muß, in der Veranziehung der Streitkräfte, in der Beschaffung der Kriegsmittel. Ein Heer, das dauernd im Felde liegt und von einer Schlacht zur anderen zieht, muß notwendig aufgerieben werden — das ist nur eine Frage der Zeit. Deshalb ist es gut, wenn besonnene Köpfe verhüten, daß der Erfolg des Ganzen nicht beständig um nebenwärtlicher Punkte willen, die nur untergeordnete Bedeutung haben, aufs Spiel gesetzt werde. Die Gewerkschaften dürfen sich nicht darauf verlassen, ihre Kräfte zu zerplittern, sie müssen sich beständig in Bereitschaft halten, um dem Gegner die Spitze bieten zu können, wenn Wichtiges auf dem Spiele steht.

Die Löhne zu reduzieren mitten in einer Periode der sogenannten „Ueberproduktion“, heißt einfach das Uebel zu vergrößern. Wollen die Kapitalisten die angebliche „Ueberproduktion“ beseitigen, so brauchen sie einfach nur die Löhne zu erhöhen, und die Arbeiter werden bald in Folge ihrer vermehrten Kaufkraft der Ueberproduktion ein Ende machen. Die Existenz der Ueberproduktion ist der beste Beweis dafür, daß die Arbeiter nicht den gerechten Antheil der Werthe erhalten haben, den sie geschaffen. — Carpenter.

Ce qui suit est tiré du „Brisbane Worker“, bien connu comme un journal radical en faveur du travailleur. Il porte en tête de ses articles de fond, la devise suivante: „Socialisme de Notre Époque.“ L'article est très significatif et parle hautement en faveur de l'agitation des corps de métiers.

„A ceux qui sont impatients pour l'amélioration de la société, les méthodes des corps de métier peuvent paraître lentes. Mais ces personnes doivent se rappeler que toute action isolée n'affecte jamais de réforme. Ce sont les actions isolées des non-unionistes qui, neuf fois sur dix, sont responsables de la défaite des unionistes dans querelles industrielles avec les patrons. Il est certain que si les méthodes sont lentes, c'est parce qu'il leur faut donner, à la grande masse de travailleurs, une connaissance des conditions économiques qui sont la cause de la plupart de la misère qui existe de nos jours. Pour assurer la plus efficacité dans les combinaisons, les unions doivent être assez libérales dans leur politique à l'égard des membres afin de permettre aux hommes de toutes nuances d'opinion en politiques et en religion, de se rencontrer pour délibérer sur un but commun; et tous les buts communs de la grande majorité des ouvriers sont des tâcher d'obtenir de meilleurs gages et une réduction d'heures. Pour atteindre ces buts ils fraterniseront plus vite que pour tout autre chose, de leur plein gré maintenant, ou forcées plus tard, afin de se protéger contre les conséquences du concours dans la production. Par elle association doit éventuellement instruire et éclairer les cerveaux les plus étroits, et la tendance sera de plus en plus élevée. Sans la force du nombre, cependant, on ne peut rien accomplir. La négligence des parlements, les gages modiques, les longues heures de travail et les désœuvrés existent parce que l'ignorance et l'apathie de la majorité du peuple les permettent. N'oublions pas que, pendant que la grande masse du peuple est obligée de mendier de l'ouvrage et des gages à un petit nombre de personnes, que le meilleur marché pour vendre le travail à cette époque de production sera seulement atteint en restant sur la route de l'union. N'oublions pas qu'aussi longtemps que l'ouvrier est traité comme commodités inertes, et dont on se sert seulement comme source de profit le bien-être de l'ouvrier n'entrera jamais dans les calculs de capital et que tant que cet état de choses durera avec nous, la représentation de l'ouvrier dans le parlement est très bien, mais ne fortes unions industrielles hors du parlement valent encore.

Après l'organisation et le mouvement pour la réduction d'heures, le travail de l'enfant prend place en importance, dans la lutte économique. Visitez les voies et les grandes routes, allez dans les parcs et les cours de récréation pour les enfants, et vous trouverez en nombre excessif, des hommes robustes cherchant en vain de l'ouvrage au lieu des enfants qui devraient y être. Puis, prenez place aux coins des rues dans les districts des grandes manufactures à six heures du soir et vous verrez les enfants que vous avez en vain cherchés dans les parcs. Ils occupent la place de leur protecteur naturel et essayent de supporter le père dans son loisir forcé. Tout cela veut dire une intelligence rabougri, une constitution affaiblie, une décadence préma-ture pour les femmes et les hommes de l'avenir.

Il n'y a pas de question devant la législature de l'état qui demande plus hautement des restrictions législatives que celle qui règle l'emploi du travail de l'enfant.

La prospérité future, le développement humain sur les lignes d'une civilisation éclairée, et le salut même des institutions libres, demandent une application immédiate des réformes pratiques et celles qui sont réellement applicables sous les conditions existantes. Le mouvement des corps de métier présente le plan le plus pratique et le plus sensé pour agir contre des conditions qui ne sont pas de notre choix, et cependant sont en force malgré nos idées et nos désirs: premièrement, par une complète association des travailleurs afin qu'ils obtiennent une plus juste part de leur labeur et finalement toute leur part. Deuxièmement, en diminuant les heures de travail au point où tous peuvent avoir l'occasion de gagner sa vie honnêtement, ce que le monde leur doit, et puis la chance de devenir producteur aussi bien que consommateur, et de participer dans les joies comme dans les peines de la vie. Selon nous, la question de diminution des heures du travail au point de l'ouvrage pour tous, est de plus d'importance que toutes les autres questions devant le public américain. Elle est plus importante que la question financière, le tarif, le problème des terres, et un mot, toutes les autres questions pâlissent d'insignifiance devant cette gigantesque question économique, et la société ne peut l'ignorer sans danger pour elle-même. A moins que cette question de diminution d'heures de travail soit envisagée honnêtement, et décidée de bonne foi, la famille humaine éprouvera et atteindra bientôt une condition dans les affaires qui sera sans control, et la marche à une civilisation plus élevée recevra un choc que peu d'hommes désireraient ressentir.

Les travailleurs organisés ont fait, font et continueront à faire leur devoir sur cette voie et continueront à revendiquer une meilleure organisation, une augmentation de gages, et une diminution d'heures de travail. La société en masse, participera-t-elle à cette oeuvre? La question est clairement posée; que chacun s'aligne et prenne sa part dans le grand combat pour une plus haute civilisation et l'émancipation de tous les abus et de toutes les injustices.

A l'avenir, que le mot d'ordre soit: Organisation complète et la diminution des heures de travail au point que tous aient l'occasion de travailler.

Les corps de métier n'ont pas d'excuse à offrir ni d'explications à donner pour leur raison d'être. Aucune institution au monde n'a fait davantage pour la communauté que ce qu'ils ont fait pour l'ouvrier. Malgré de grands désavantages, ils l'ont tiré du dernier degré de la servitude et l'ont placé à même de revendiquer ses droits, et étant bien organisé d'obtenir augmentation des gages et diminution d'heures de travail en temps d'activité industrielle et de maintenir ces avantages en temps de stagnation industrielle. Ils ont mis l'homme à même de réclamer son indépendance dans les manufactures, et ce qui vaut mieux, sera à même finalement d'établir un système industriel qui ne mécontentera pas l'honnête homme.

Celui qui dit que les corps de métier ne valent rien, ont servé à leur utilité, peut être compte parmi les travailleurs dans l'intérêt de l'association des fabricants. Les organisations des travailleurs ont leurs organisateurs, et les associations des fabricants ont leurs désorganiseurs. L'homme qui parle sans cesse contre les bureaux des corps de métier et vous dit, confidentiellement, que ce sont des fauquiers et que les unions vieux jeu et les fauquiers devraient être abolis, est un désorganisatear pour l'association des fabricants, aussi sûr que vous vivez.

PORQUÉ NOS ORGANIZAMOS.

Nos unimos porque debemos hacerlo. No es asunto de sentimiento, ni de caridad; es asunto de negocios. Es verdad que sentimos las brutalidades de nuestro caos industrial, pero aunque esto sea un incentivo, no es la base de nuestro unionismo de oficios. Somos unionistas de oficios porque no hay otra agencia que nos obtendrá los sueldos buenos, et corto día de trabajo, la independencia parcial al presente, y completa, esperamos, en lo futuro.

No hay otra agencia? Declaración andaz. Podemos dar la prueba?

Problema: Cómo obtener el producto de Toda escuela de estudio económico—y hay muchas—reconoce la necesidad de la union para conseguir las ventajas así como para retenerlas una vez conseguidas. Un individuo no puede levantar diez quintales; diez individuos pueden hacerlo con facilidad. La historia lo manifiesta. Toda la evidencia y toda la experiencia hacen irrefutables los beneficios de la unidad.

En este caso, entonces, una union de quienes? De todas clases? De los propietarios, banqueros, comerciantes, obreros—las personas que constituyen una facción política? No; las dos clases primeras nos explotan—no podemos unirnos con ellas. La tercera es el instrumento de sus clientes, es de venta; “hará jirones de una pasión” por oro—tenemos que excluir esta clase. Las cuatro y cinco, que sufren con nosotros, les aceptaríamos en nuestra organización, pero no lo desean; pues creen que les será más ventajoso tenernos en sujeción. De consiguiente, tenemos que unirnos solamente con nuestros compañeros, los trabajadores?

Pero hemos pasado por alto las profesiones—los sacerdotes, médicos, escolares, redactores. Hombres aptos! Inteligentes, versados, selectos! Mas, con unas estimables excepciones, son partidarios indiferentes, no guías. Son hombres de opiniones embotelladas.

Pues—los trabajadores! Y éstos? Robados, engañados, maldichidos! Burlados, objetos de tiros, encarcelados! Unánimes, naturalmente? Hombres de ideas, intenciones y recursos semejantes? De ningún modo. Más bien, son hombres de ideas, objetos y medios muy diversos, que se deben poner de acuerdo en acción. Son hombres progresivos, morosos, dominantes, resistentes, liberales, dogmáticos, heréticos, ortodoxos, egoístas, radicales, conservativos,—de opiniones de todas variedades. Es una union de hombres de todos géneros y condiciones.

Naturalmente, es imposible organizar estos hombres diferentes con un programa compuesto.

Tan bien se puede hablar del equilibrio de las facultades, según dice Andrew, á pesar de la ley de la individualidad. Será imposible en cualquier caso sino él del interés propio. El incentivo poderoso de deseo mutuo, el producto de su labor. No hay diversidad de opinión tocante á esta cosa. Para obtenerlo se pondrán de acuerdo sobre ciertos métodos dentro de ciertos límites. Tales métodos deben ser sencillos, necesariamente, y los límites, estrechos, pero no incapaces de expansión. No serán tan limitados como los más limitados, ni tan amplios como los más amplios. Serán promedios, con la tendencia de mejorarse, debida á la educación que sigue el cambio de las ideas y el contacto. La norma se avanzará continuamente por la sumisión de los pícaros á los honrados, por deferencia á la ley natural, el sentido de lo que es derecho; los instruidos elevarán á los ignorantes; el ladrillo del radical, contestado por el gruñido del conservativo, obrará para medificar á los ambos; el hombre arbitrario, el resistente, el hereje y el ortodoxo temporizarán, se acuerdan de no hacer caso de sus ideas particulares diferentes, mas de trabajar juntos para un motivo comun. Cualquiera esfuerzo de exceder este límite por fuerza resultará en indiferencia, y romperá el vínculo de la union. Le consiencia se pondrá en huelga.

(Puede decirse que si habia sido posible poner en ejecución todas las resoluciones adoptadas por la union de oficio, tendríamos “todas clases y condiciones de organizaciones. El caso es, que el individuo se contentará en cierto modo, por su protesto.)

Lo máximo de organización, de “variedad universal en unidad” solamente se puede lograr por lo mínimo de coerción; y no importa qué sea la organización, puede efectuar poco sin fuerza numérica. La gente gobernará á pesar de los tangentes. Tal es la libertad de la sociedad. Eso no es el progreso, lo que se divide de la masa á causa de su tardanza. Puede ser magnífico, valeroso, pero no es la guerra. Tarde ó temprano se tendrá que retirarse. La tontería de tales personas se colma cuando atacan á masas de sus compañeros sufridores, según hacen algunos anarquistas, socialistas de estado, y otros. No pueden hacer más que romper y deshacer la union, y entonces más tarde se dejan la vía de la union, ó entran otra vez al abrigo y enseñan, si su locura no ha descontado sus servicios. Este privilegio de separarse no se debe ejercer sino cuando se trata de emplear la coerción.

Pues bien, debemos tener la union, que debe ser fuerte numéricamente, que debe ser de deseo promedio, y que será educadora, adaptable, y de consiguiente progresiva. Tal es la más alta forma de organización que el hombre pueda alcanzar, construida sobre un terreno comun, á lo largo del cual se debe caminar; y tal es la union de oficios.

Obtendremos el producto de nuestro trabajo por medio de la union de oficios progresiva.

Son progresivas las uniones de oficios? Si, son progresivas aunque son lentas. Lentas porque tienen que educar la gente, y progresivas á cuenta de su educación. Durante el último decenio la union de oficios ha encontrado un “terreno comun” sobre muchas ideas nuevas. Si son todas correctas ó no, no hablaremos de eso aquí. Baste decir que dan evidencia de la flexibilidad, de la expansión y de la tendencia progresiva. Algunas de estas ideas son; la nacionalización de las compañías que se consideran como los monopolios inevitables, las minas, los ferrocarriles, los teléfonos, los telégrafos, la municipalización de los tranvías, el surtido de alumbramiento y de agua, la abolición del monopolio de tierra, y de dinero; legislación directa; la balota Australiana, y otras. Todas de éstas la union ha aprobado y sostenido, demostrando concluyentemente que sus límites no se han fijados, y que está lista, que es menester que adopte lo que sus miembros desean. Sus motivos y métodos actuales están bien conocidos; adoptarán otros tan pronto como la educación que dispare tan generosamente haya nivelado las colinas y llenado los huecos en las mentes de sus miembros. Sus posibilidades se limitan solamente por la falta de conocimiento y por el non-unionista. No se pueda ofrecer una censura de la union de oficios que no se puede aplicar á toda la clase trabajadora. Al tiempo en lo futuro cuando se puede lograr los resultados por los métodos nuevos, no serán nuevos á la union de oficios.

Y esto es porqué nos organizamos.

Si los trabajadores dejasen sus uniones de oficios, permitiendo á los empleadores el fijar de los sueldos y horas de trabajo, qué sería el resultado? Primero, una degradación demasiado horrible para contemplarse; más tarde, una culminación de escenas que harían parecer en comparación, comme el juego de niños la locura de venganza de la revolución de France. Las organizaciones de los oficios son las válvulas de seguridad del descontento justo. Los Caesares de las corporaciones deben tener cuidado en su tratamiento de nuestras organizaciones.

El hombre que asiste á las reuniones de su gremio y protesta fuertemente contra cualquiera proposición, como un hombre debe hacer, tiene razón aunque sus ideas sean erróneas, pues al fin tendrá las ideas correctas. Pero el taciturno, furtivo “trabajador crítico” á la esquina que tiene miedo de protestar honradamente, temiendo de perder á sus amigos, no tiene razón y nunca la tendrá. Tiene Vd. razón? Si no, debe Vd. tenerla, pronto.

NOTICE.

Tom A. Wood (108617) for altering figures the second time is hereby expelled as per Section 109. This party was initiated October 3, 1903, at Springfield, Mo. His card was duplicated at Kalamazoo, Mich. Secretaries are requested to confiscate his card on presentation. He is a man about 5 feet 10 inches, about 30 years old, smooth face and talks with a southern accent, hair inclined to be sandy with a sprinkling of gray about the temples, nice smooth talker, keeps eyes partly shut.

NOTICE.

J. Andrews (51722) for having altered figures the second time is expelled and as he forged the names of several secretaries, officers are requested to have him arrested on sight, and the means for vigorous prosecution to land him in the penitentiary will be furnished. He is described as a man 35 years old, dark complexion, about 5 feet 8 inches and weighs about 165 pounds. Examine carefully all loan cards.

NOTICE TO OFFICERS AND MEMBERS.

In printing the nineteenth edition of the Constitution, an omission occurs in Section 77, on line 7. A comma and the words "and local assessments" should follow "International assessments." The sentence to read: "All International assessments, and local assessments levied for label agitation purposes." This amendment as published in another place is correct.

Any secretary knowing one C. A. Lewis, who has a blue card, please correspond with Secretary Chas. Gerold, No. 122, Warren, Pa. This man beat a board bill of $3.00, left last August without his card. We hold his blue card, No. 11580. Joined July, 1908, No. 166, Defiance.

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES.

The amendment adopted to Sections 76 and 77 does away with the issuance of retiring cards to all who continue to pay dues as beneficiary members.

Retiring cards are only for those who pay up and actually terminate all connection with the union, insofar as the payment of dues is concerned. Members who transfer from the 30-cent list to the 20-cent beneficiary membership list are simply changed from one class to another and deducted from one and added to the other.

Members who have not paid 30-cent dues for three years and quitting the trade under Section 76 and wishing to qualify for Section 77 as a beneficiary member should be kept on without any other change than to make a note of the intention on the ledger page. If such member desires to travel to another jurisdiction he should be given a transfer card and his intention to qualify as a 20-cent beneficiary member written on the transfer card. Such beneficiary members are not entitled to any benefits except sick benefits after one year's membership and whatever death benefits their term of membership entitles them to.

To Financial Secretaries.

NOTICE.

If you hold any loan cards of no further use send them to this office.

Before granting or accepting retiring cards secretaries and members should consult Sections 76 and 77 of the Constitution.

NOTICE.—How to duplicate Loan Cards.

It frequently occurs that new secretaries through error or lack of knowledge, transfer the amount a member "has coming" instead of what he owes. In duplicating a card, figure up all the member has borrowed and subtract all he has paid, and if there is a balance against the member transfer to new card in red ink in figures and letters the amount due the International Union. Also enter on new card all that may be essential that you find on the old, then sign and seal it. Send the old card to the International office.

MEMBERS OUT OF WORK ARE NOT ENTITLED TO THE SIXTEEN WEEKS' PRIVILEGE IN DUES UNLESS THEY NOTIFY THE SECRETARY WEEKLY BEFORE THE EIGHTH WEEK. THIS INCLUDES TRAVELING MEMBERS, WHO SHOULD ALWAYS CARRY A CERTIFICATE AND HAVE SAME SIGNED WEEKLY.

Items for the Journal should be placed on separate slips of paper—not the backs of reports, etc.—in order to insure prompt publication, and should reach this office not later than the 10th of each month if intended for current publication.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address, if possible, so as to obviate delays, mistakes, etc. This is important.

In reporting deaths, kindly comply with the following and you will save time and unnecessary work. Give full name, number, date and place of initiation of member. Has member held retiring card? If so, did he pay his dues? This information relates only to such as you can obtain from the records of your own union. If admitted by card, state when and where from, and in addition send in such card, but place on your letter the information necessary, as the latter is filed as a matter of record. Before paying death benefits study Sections 145 and 151, inclusive. Send in a death blank properly filled out for all death benefits paid.

If secretaries when ordering supplies will place the order on the regular blank, it will greatly simplify the work here and avoid unnecessary delay for those who order the supplies. We receive an average of 300 pieces of mail in the office daily. Sometimes an order is sandwiched into a two or three-page letter containing three or more different subjects, and there is danger in such cases of an order being overlooked. Hence we ask that in order to save unnecessary delay and annoyance for yourself that when ordering supplies you place the order on the regular blank, giving your name and address.

DECISIONS OF PRESIDENT

F. Doerfer appealed against 42 Hartford for fining him $15 for buying a cigar in a trust store. The evidence shows that he bought the cigar on a bet made with union men to prove that the cigar was not what it was advertised to be. The two union men substantiate this story. The appeal was sustained.

M. J. Doherty appealed against 165 Philadelphia for paying one week's illegal sick benefit to M. Solkow. The appeal was sustained.

J. E. Winfrey appealed against 318 Chattanooga for compelling him to go on the retired list. The appeal was not sustained.

A. L. Lee appealed against 318 Chattanooga for compelling him to go on the 20-cent retired beneficiary list. The appeal was not sustained.

A. Nagelmaker appealed against 97 Boston for refusing to find a member, R. Nagel, guilty for violating the 8 hours law. The appeal was sustained.

F. Devett appealed against 272 Lansing for fining her $5. The appeal was not sustained.

W. Summers appealed against 253 Oakland for fining him for failure to attend regular meetings. The appeal was not sustained.

W. Imhoff appealed against 311 Auburn concerning his card. The union replied that the card had been sent and the case settled. Appeal dismissed.

F. Theisse appealed against 407 Norwich for fining him for working in an unfair shop. The appeal was not sustained.

T. J. Devereux appealed against 266 Memphis for refunding the initiation fee a member had paid in. The appeal was sustained.

C. E. Hackman appealed against 487 Baker City for refusing to accept J. H. Mills as a member. The union replied that the case had been settled and Mills given a card. Appeal dismissed.

Decker & Salby appealed against 114 Jacksonville for refusing them the labels until they cease handling non-union goods. The laws make it optional with local unions in this case and this office has no say in the case. The appeal was not sustained.

R. Fajans appealed against Joint Label Committee, Brooklyn, for fining him $25 and compelling him to deposit $100 for further use for the labels. The appeal was not sustained.

J. Ludders appealed against Joint Label Committee, Brooklyn, for fining him $25 and compelling him to deposit $100 for further use of the labels. The appeal was not sustained.

L. C. Johnston appealed against 172 Davenport for retaining a member in office who had been elected a member of the state legislature. The appeal was not sustained.

S. M. Fritz appealed against 488 Middletown concerning the price allowed on a certain cigar. The appeal was not sustained.

M. Mock appealed against 271 Rochester for placing him on the 90 days' list. The union replied that he was over the constitutional limit. The appeal was not sustained.

Approved the application of Union 147, Union Hill, N. J., to impose a fine of $20.00 on Louis Paulson (74372) for embezzling $93.97 from Blue Label League of Hudson Co. Following is the vote: Affirmative—Six.

CORRESPONDENCE

Grand Rapids, Minn., Dec. 28, 1908.

As one of the old members who are interested in the articles that appear in the Journal discussing the need of a home for the aged and disabled members of the C. M. I. U., I fully agree with the article written by Mr. Wm. Betting which appeared in one of the late issues of the Official Journal. I hope that the home will be built as it is only justice to our aged members and our union would be praised the country over for doing it.

I think the best idea would be to appoint a committee of three, to be selected from the section of the country wherein the home is to be located, and ten to be selected from unions who have had some experience and know something of the country where the home would be located. The International Executive Board to select a committee to decide where said home shall be located.

I hope that members will bring this great question up in their unions.

LOUIS POLAK.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 2, 1909.

The amendment submitted in the November Journal by Union 42, Hartford, empowering a local union upon application and by a vote of local unions to elect one or two arbitrators in case of a difficulty is certainly a cunning attempt to become foolish.

Under it the union would make, in case of a strike, an application to the International union for the privilege of electing one or two members as arbitrators. The International president would have to submit this application, together with the reason therefor (this is not stated nor implied) to a vote of the local unions, and if approved the union would elect the member or members from some other union. This would require at least six weeks' time, as all unions would have to be given the privilege to vote on the question; there being no provision to expedite matters, hence the usual course of voting would govern. In the meantime the local union and the International union's hands would be tied in any case where less than 51 members are involved, as no one is empowered to act until the arbitrators are elected.

In the majority of cases prompt action, through the International agents, averts trouble and results are obtained satisfactory to the local unions.

Under the amendment proposed the union declares that the International president is competent to appoint an agent in cases involving 51 or more members, but not competent to appoint arbitrators to adjudge any difficulty.

The amendment compels the arbitrators selected to deposit their cards in the union where the difficulty is in progress. This emphatically, insidiously and effectively destroys every vestige of fairness that attaches to such an office. Why go to another union to select an arbitrator and then tie his hands with your own by-laws? Are you afraid of your own members or unwilling to force upon them a conclusion that others could be made to bear with impunity? Your amendment provides no punishment expressed or implied as to the arbitrators except such as you may have hidden in your by-laws, but, when it comes to the agent, the amendment empowers the union to demand the revocation of the appointment of the agent by complaint of the local union without trial, defense, or appeal. The president or the executive board cannot instruct, discipline or discharge the arbitrators for any cause, but the union can discipline, instruct, intimidate, stigmatize and discharge an agent on any trumped up charge without trial, defense or appeal. The whole thing, for thing it is, is repugnant to common decency and fairness. The amendment is founded on ignorance, based upon prejudice and spite, and should be defeated. It has no place in our laws or practice.

Since the local union makes itself the final judge in all arbitration proceedings, the election of an arbitrator is superfluous and only made to cover up the real purpose which seems to be to proceed without restraint or hindrance. A union under such conditions could practically raise or lower its bill of prices, indefinitely prolong a strike and blind the International union in support thereof without consultation or vote.

Under its provision the agent appointed by the International president is superfluous because Section 94 as proposed permits the arbitrators to act only in conjunction with the local strike committee and gives the agent no standing except as an observer, and, if his observations did not suit the local union, or were not made as often as in their wisdom the circumstances warranted, the union could immediately demand the revocation of his appointment. Even admitting that a trial might be granted, the demand to revoke his appointment would place him under a charge, thus preventing for the time being his acting in the premises. By doing away with the agent temporarily we proceed in silence and in darkness to do our work. See!

To National and International Unions.

Dear Sirs and Brothers:—There were a number of matters considered by the Denver Convention of the American Federation of Labor directly affecting and of special interest to the affiliated National or International Unions. Brief reference to these special matters follow:

That the officers of the National and International Unions be particularly requested to use their influence to bring about the affiliation of their Locals with Central Bodies and State Federations of Labor where they are now unaffiliated.

That the National and International Unions should give to their Locals in Canada all the moral and financial assistance possible; and further, that in line with the invitations extended and the wish expressed by the organized labor movement of Canada that the officers of such National and International Unions should personally and officially visit their Canadian Locals whenever practicable and possible.

The convention especially directed that the attention of the officers of National and International Unions should be called to the AMERICAN FEDERATIONIST, and that they are requested to urge their Locals and members to subscribe for the official magazine. It is urged that with an increased subscription list, such as that to which the official magazine is entitled, by reason of the great value of the matter published therein, it would give the opportunity of extending reliable information that is of value and interest and that should be within the possession of every member of our great movement.

Trusting that the above matters will receive prompt and favorable consideration, and asking you to keep me fully advised in regard thereto, I am

Fraternally yours,

SAM'L GOMPERS,

Pres. American Federation of Labor.

York, Pa., Dec. 21, 1908.

There has been action taken by Union 242 that all members that were not affiliated prior to 1900 and have become members on and before November, 1907, and were fined by 242 for working at the strike shop of Kerbs, Wertheim & Schiffer's, as an inducement to have them join have rescinded such fines for that offense. As I have not and did not have the names I could not send them, as when they were fined I was not secretary. There is no record on the books of such fine and names. We have quite a number on our book and have been such for a year and we have not fined any one for any other offense, so all fines that appear on the record at the International office stand rescinded that were fined by 242 who were members prior to November, 1907.

E. S. BALTOZER.

Lancaster, Pa., Jan. 8, 1909.

In addition to my former article published in last month's Journal signed Unionist I wish to make another earnest plea for the support of the Amendment offered by 257 of Lancaster. Under no circumstances can the members of the Int. Union look upon this proposition of ours lightly, when it is known and felt by the cigar makers throughout the whole country that this locality is fast becoming the leading cigar manufacturing center of the United States. Once this is known then everyone should be able to judge for himself what the final result will be if it is not soon thoroughly organized. In the past many have looked upon these districts as a detriment to unionism, but whose fault is it that this condition of affairs should exist? It certainly is not the fault of the ones who are making this request for assistance. Some may think if it's possible to organize the cigar makers in other places at the rate of three dollars initiation fee, it could be done here. It should be considered the enormous hold the cheap manufacturers have here in Pennsylvania employing thousands of non-union labor at starvation wages, then think what a grand prize this is to them and how desperately they will fight to hold onto it. We have made special effort in the way of organization. The trouble we have found is this, to get a general movement in progress at the same time when one union would start to get in members it seemed the others could not follow suit. This, then, would give the enemy an opportunity to strike a deadly blow at the flower that was beginning to bloom, by nipping it in the bud, either by discharging the most active workers to scare the rest, or close their factories for a short time to get rid of the union people. We firmly believe that the only way to overcome this obstacle is to get something to start a general revival over the whole two districts at the same time, then the enemy would not know where to strike the blow and amendment is intended for a move in that direction. With the above objects in view we once more ask the membership of C. M. I. U. of A. to give us their hearty co-operation and indorsement of our amendment.

In return we assure you that our success will be your success.

H. TILLBROOK.

Philadelphia, Jan. 1, 1909.

In the November and December Journals appear certain amendments to the Int. Constitution relating to arbitrators and agents appointed by the Int. President or Executive Board for the purpose of investigating difficulties between members and their employers, and effect a settlement of same by means of arbitration. These amendments being offered by Union No. 42, Hartford. In my humble opinion the amendments of Union No. 42 of Hartford would (if adopted) effectually destroy what little practical recognition our laws now give to the principle of avoiding strikes and settling difficulties by means of arbitration. Our present laws dealing with that subject were first embodied in the Int. Constitution at the Cincinnati convention in 1885, and while not perfect, have nevertheless materially added to the moral and ethical prestige of the Int. Union; by thus placing it on record, as favoring the settlement of our difficulties with employers by the peaceful, orderly, more sensible, and less costly methods of conciliation, and arbitration, rather than by a resort to brute force, as represented in the "strike" or "lock-out." Strikes are in the industrial world what wars are in the affairs of nations; they stand for the same thing, both in principle and practice, as well as in effect, and should not be employed except in extreme cases, and as a last resort when other means have failed, and then only when the chances for success are reasonably fair. Strikes also represent the "sacred right of revolt" on the part of the oppressed and labor cannot afford to have that right taken from it, but it should exercise that right with caution, prudence, preparation, and only as a last alternative. The consequences of strikes, like wars, are tremendously far-reaching and sometimes of dire consequence to one or both of the contending parties to the conflict. Why not substitute, and perfect, the peaceful, sensible, and rational method of conciliation, and arbitration, for the barbarous, ancient and ignorant resort to an "arbitrament of the sword" or an appeal to brute force as represented in wars, strikes, etc.? Strikes, although bloodless, are sometimes in effect just as deadly as are wars. Numerous wrecks strew the pathway of organized labor, testify to this fact. More labor organizations have been destroyed by ill advised, injudicious or intemperate strikes than all other causes combined; nor has the injury stopped there. Thousands upon thousands of our fellows with their still more numerous dependents have come to bitter grief and calamity, through some ill advised, senseless strike, engineered by some fire eating hothead, or designing "jawsmith," for some petty grievance, imaginary wrong, or any old reason, that may for the moment have furnished a plausible pretext. Understand that I do not oppose strikes; on the contrary, I hold them most precious and as the sacred right of revolt, but only with the qualifications above set forth. I do not believe with the average "brass band striker" in fighting for the sake of fighting. Workingmen especially should never never think of a fight with an employer, either for a small or serious grievance unless they are sufficiently organized, and well equipped in funds, and administrative capacity. Any other course is injurious if not suicidal. No one but a fool or knave will counsel workingmen otherwise. Workingmen more especially should try to accomplish their purposes by means of conciliation and arbitration, reserving the strike as the last extremity.

Throughout the whole intellectual world of today the movement for settling the disputes of mankind by a peaceful discussion, by reason, and courts of arbitration is steadily gaining headway, making converts daily among the more intelligent, more humanely inclined. Over two centuries ago the prophet Isaiah said, "The time will come when the nations of the earth will convert their spears into pruning hooks and their swords into plowshares." In the face of this onward trend, this progress toward peace and humanitarian impulses, shall we, the C. M. I. U. of A., take a backward step? Shall we place ourselves in a reactionary position? I hope not. We cannot afford to thus stultify our record.

In the opening of this letter it is said that the Hartford amendment would destroy what little recognition our laws now give to arbitration. Had Union No. 42 of Hartford offered changes which would extend the principle, or improve the laws, or which would remove any inconsistencies or imperfections, no one could sincerely have made the least objection; but their propositions strike at the very essence and heart of arbitration, to-wit:

Sec. 94 of Int. Constitution be stricken out and following amendment inserted:

Sec. 94 to read: The local union shall be empowered upon application to and by vote of local unions to elect one or two members of the Int. Union other than a member of their own local, to arbitrate any difficulty affecting the members; the Int. President to furnish them with credentials. Said arbitrators shall act in conjunction only with strike committee of the local union. Should the terms of settlement be approved by majority vote of strike committee and approved by local involved it shall be binding upon all members of the International Union and all official communications in reference to said difficulties must be signed by a majority of local strike committee. Any laws that conflict with the foregoing section are hereby repealed.

It will be seen from the above, Union No. 42 of Hartford proposes to have the arbitrators elected by the local union having the difficulty, after being empowered so to do by vote of all the local unions. Under the present law arbitrators, or agents, are appointed by the International president or executive board, which insures promptitude and action before the affair has assumed that bitterness and passion when any effort at a calm or reasonable adjustment becomes well nigh impossible. Union No. 42 of Hartford proposes a method instead, which is time consuming and a hindrance.

Besides it is reasonable to suppose that a union under such a circumstance would most likely elect only such arbitrators as would do its bidding; in other words, would actually push the strike to the limit, and not arbitrate the same.

It will be further seen that the "terms of settlement" must receive the approval of the local union and its "strike committee" before it can have any binding effect. What is the use of having arbitrators under such a law, since they have no power to make any settlement? They would only saddle a useless expense on the organization. Union No. 42 of Hartford might as well have moved to strike out the whole thing; it would at least have been a more direct and honorable way of accomplishing their purpose.

But the above is not all; here is another gem (?):

Sec 95 to read—

Upon election of International Arbitrator or Arbitrators by a Local Union he or they shall immediately proceed to the union where the trouble exists and deposit his or their card in said union and shall stand as a member or members of strike committee of Local Union.

The above robs and destroys every vestige of the character essential to an arbitrator and simply makes of him part of the machine to carry out the will of only one side to the disputants. Here is yet another of the same sort:

Sec. 97. Add to Section 97 the following: And he shall deposit his card in said Local Union and become subject to its by-laws.

The above section compels the arbitrator not only to become a member of the local union involved, and its strike committee, but also renders him subject to its local by-laws as against the laws of the International constitution. Under such a law not alone the arbitrator but the International union as well would be placed at the mercy of a local union. The International union would have nothing to say, the local could do as it pleased; prosecute its strike to the last extremity and drain the general fund of the International union to its heart's content by simply conforming its by-laws to suit the case.

It is inconceivable how any number of intelligent men could advocate such propositions. The principles of arbitration, indeed its very essence, lay in the fact that the persons or agent chosen to investigate and adjust the difficulty shall be such as are not directly involved in the controversy; they should be, in a measure, at least, independent and free to act in an impartial and fair manner to both of the parties in a conflict. Any other method is but a farce and a hollow mockery.

Now a word as to the manner in which the amendments of Union No. 42 of Hartford have come down to us for our suffrage.

On May 7th and 8th at Springfield, Mass., nine unions with 17 delegates held a convention, purporting to represent the New England unions; three others sent letters of approval, making a total of 12 unions. How far their claim of representing New England is justified can be judged from the fact that in the New England states there are 45 local unions of the International union. Of this number only 12 took part, to-wit:

Union No. 66, Lewiston, Me.; Union No. 97, Boston, Mass.; Union No. 49, Springfield, Mass.; Union No. 192, Manchester, New Hampshire; Union No. 94, Pawtucket, Rhode Island; Union No. 398, Stamford, Conn.; Union No. 156, Suffield, Conn.; Union No. 39, New Haven, Conn.; Union No. 42, Hartford, Conn., while Unions 395, Waterbury, 484, Meriden, and 269, Nashua, sent letters of approval, leaving 33 unions who took no part in said convention.

These 12 unions by constituting themselves a "wheel within a wheel" are the real promoters of the amendments offered by Union No. 42, Hartford, as I propose to show, by quoting from the printed proceedings of that convention, a copy of which is before me. I quote see page 25:

"Moved, seconded and carried that a committee of three be elected to offer amendments to International Constitution.

The following committee was elected:

Mr. C. O. Beals, No. 66, Lewiston, Me.
Mr. A. Breabaart, No. 97, Boston, Mass.
Mr. Wm. Collins, No. 192, Manchester, N. H.
The conference then adjourned until Friday, May 8th, 9:30 a. m."

On May 8th the above committee reported the amendments now pending, and published in our official journal.

I further quote see pages 26 and 27:

"Motion made and seconded that the report of Committee on Amendments to International Constitution be accepted and endorsed, and Secretary be instructed to forward copy to unions represented for final endorsements. Carried.

Moved and seconded that this conference remain permanent for THREE MONTHS and that Hartford be elected to offer the amendments to the Constitution. Carried."

It will be seen from the above that the amendments are the work of that convention and that Union No. 42 of Hartford acted under orders in submitting them to the International union. It is not contended here that local unions have not the right to proceed in this manner, but it is at least questionable if this species of "log rolling" is conducive to the best results.

In conclusion let me again urge upon the members the necessity of strengthening the principle of conciliation and arbitration by making our laws clearer and more decisive. The Hartford amendments will destroy, not build up, consequently they should be defeated. With a happy new year to all the readers of the Journal, I am

Yours fraternally,

JOHN S. KIRCHNER.

New York, Jan. 4, 1909.

I have been instructed by Union No. 90 to notify the members at large through our Journal that the union abstains answering Mr. D.

Goldstein's glorious article in last month's Journal, and allow him full sway to write whatever he pleases. AD. GROELINGER, Sec'y.

New York, Dec. 24, 1908.

The mountain quaked and brought forth a mouse.

Mr. Goldstein again rushes into print of our Journal with false statements, and after trying to palm them off upon the membership at large he says it makes no difference whether he is a liar or slanderer or a true trade unionist, and that that is not the question.

Why it makes all the difference in the world when you have some man in the movement to make a statement whose word can be accepted as truthful. I feel that it's useless to argue any further the question of the "Evening Call" with him.

And to further show how much reliance can be placed upon anything that Mr. Goldstein states permit me to call your attention to this fact. About 21 months ago I had a little controversy with Mr. Goldstein and I taxed him with having sent out postal cards to members of Union 97 asking them to vote for me for delegate to the A. F. of L., and Mr. Goldstein replied by stating that that was news to him and that he never was guilty of the allegation, but just to prove to the members of what clay Mr. Goldstein is modeled, and that he was guilty of a deliberate falsehood, I give you the copy of the postal card which he sent out and which reads as follows:

Comrade:

I would kindly call to your notice that an election will take place at Friday night's meeting for delegate to the A. F. of L.

Morris Brown (secretary Union 144, N. Y.) is a candidate. He is an active party member and would make an able assistant to our J. Mahlon Barnes.

Fraternally,

(Signed)

DAVID GOLDSTEIN.

If Mr. Goldstein is still in doubt as to the postal card which is in my possession, if he so desires I will gladly forward the same to the secretary of Union 97 providing, however, that the secretary will testify to the correctness of the reading of the postal card and the handwriting of Mr. Goldstein that will possibly tend to refresh the memory of Mr. G.

Mr. Goldstein invites me to investigate the Appeal to Reason case, why Mr. Wayland was not railroaded out of the party, and why the matter was hushed up, and that it might carry me to a fruitful investigation, if I really desire and find out what the Socialist party stands for essentially.

I want to tell my Beantown friend that I know full well what the Socialist party stands for without his information, and that I am perfectly well satisfied with the principles that it stands for, though I may not be satisfied with every action of the party, and possibly with not all of the members of it; but the Socialist movement is like all others, it makes mistakes and individual members of it are no more infallible than any others, but I will never denounce the entire movement for the shortcomings of a few, neither will I turn traitor to it because I cannot impose my personal opinion upon them the same as Mr. Goldstein did upon the party in Boston.

I want to say right here that I am not a Socialist out of fad or fancy or profit and gain nor for anything that the Socialist party can give me, but because I am opposed to the present structure of society in which people are compelled to seek their salvation in death rather than starve, or live a life of shame, while there are some few people who revel in wealth and splendor and hold the destinies of the whole nation in the palm of their hands.

Mr. Goldstein further states that I ought to know that no man holding a position of responsibility in the Socialist movement of this country wields more power or at least has a larger following than Mr. Wayland and were he to be railroaded out of the party he could with his Appeal Army and 350,000 subscribers organize a new Socialist party and what would be left of the Mally-Brown-Union 90-Call outfit? You are rather sure that Mr. Wayland could do that, aren't you, but permit me to call your attention that that has been tried before; for instance, you left the party and so did Martha Moore Avery, and you denounced the Socialist party right and left, and what effect did that have upon the movement? Just about as much as a ripple upon a body of smooth water. Then again it was tried by your former tutor, Mr. Daniel De Leon, and all that is left of him is a skeleton, but the Socialist party in spite of all the enemies it has stands stronger today than ever. It has a paid up membership of 50,000 and 447,000 voters, and this conclusively shows that no one man can dominate or ruin the party. Besides, we can well be proud of many of the new recruits who recently joined the party, whose character as well as their intellectual understanding of things will compare favorably with the best in the land.

In the concluding sentence of Mr. Goldstein's harangue he states that my letter was insulting. O, Beans, to insult you is impossible and you know it, but it's not the imaginary insult that you are smarting under, it is the exposure that hurts you, for the truth is a bitter pill to swallow. You talk about insults. Why compare, or rather let the members compare your language and that of my article, and judge for themselves, yet Mr. Goldstein is thankful to me because I opened up a new field for his talents. Who ever charged you with talents outside of slander, falsehood, vituperation, billingsgate and egotism? Permit, if you please, some one else besides yourself to be judge of your talents. Self-praise stinks.

Napoleon the Great once said, "I love treachery, but I despise the traitor."

No doubt when Mr. Goldstein reads this answer to his ravings he will commence to spout like a geyser, but the mud will stick to him only without affecting or harming any one else.

Your Bowery friend,

MORRIS BROWN.

Baltimore, Md., January 7, 1909.

In reading over carefully the amendments to the constitution proposed by Union 42, Hartford, Conn., which have been patched together in a secret conference held at Springfield, Mass., the inexperience and confusion can be noticed in every line.

The conference was undoubtedly composed of retrogressives and reactionaries; of men, who like the mythical Lysiphus of ancient Greece, were condemned by the gods to roll the stone up the hill and down the hill all the time, with the single exception, perhaps, that the framers of this makeshift aimed at rolling back the International union for a period of thirty years.

The arguments presented in the circular, issued by the Springfield conference in favor of the Hartford amendment, consist of deliberate misrepresentations, malicious slander and criminal libels. It did not contain a line which appealed to common sense and mature judgment.

The laws governing strikes and lock-outs are based upon the experience and the mistakes of the past. They are not the invention of one or more leaders. They reflect the history of the International union, and an honest attempt to correct serious mistakes by legislation. The printed proceedings of the Cincinnati convention of 1885 contain valuable information in this connection.

To the careful student of the history of the International Union, and to the observer of current events in the labor movement, our strike laws progressed, step by step, in the right direction. What we need is not a repeal, but a strengthening of the present laws.

The Hartford amendments propose to wipe out the arbitration clause in the constitution by the substitution of a subterfuge, which would give the local strike committee more power than the International Union. It would give them full power to squander the funds, without any restraint whatsoever, and prolong a strike or a lock-out for an indefinite time.

Prior to the enactment of section 94 of the constitution in 1885, the constitution contained the following article:

"When the members of a local union have been on strike for a long period the International Union shall submit the following question to a vote of local unions: 'shall the strike in Union No. — be continued?' If the question is voted in the affirmative, the same question shall be again submitted as the Executive Board may determine, until the successful termination of the strike or its discontinuance by the votes of local unions. The vote of local unions shall be the same as upon strikes.

The above law was in operation during the strike and lock-out in Cincinnati, O., in 1884-1885, and failed to produce the desired results, because the local strike committee flooded the country with circulars from time to time containing misleading statements of facts.

The Cincinnati lock-out caused by the disagreement over the wages of one man, involved over eleven hundred members for a period of 57 weeks; and forced the Executive Board of the International Union to levy assessments of six ($6.00) dollars upon every member. During the same time, owing to the constitutional time limit of collecting assessments, the general fund of the International Union was as low as Twenty Thousand Dollars. The prompt payment of the strike benefits reduced the funds of some local unions as low as Twenty Dollars, and some had but one single dollar left in the treasury. These are matters of history, and cannot be disputed successfully.

The amendments offered by Union 42, Hartford, Conn., would give a few designing and unscrupulous men in the large centers of industry the power of destruction, and increase their inclination for mischief immensely. I mention incidentally New York City, Tampa, Fla., Boston, Mass., and Philadelphia, Pa.

They could provoke and encourage strikes and lock-outs under fictitious causes, absurd demands and imaginary grievances, which could not stand the light of investigation; at the same time depriving local unions, not directly involved, of representation by arbitrators, but compelling them to pay all assessments, or stand the penalty of forfeiture of membership and surrender of charter. This would place the power in the hands of a few, and in many cases in the hands of one single local leader, without the sobering influences of responsibility and reputation.

The amendment proposes to deprive the Int. President and the Executive Board of the important function of appointing arbitrators, and to delegate it to the union in trouble, with power to elect from another union, who would be compelled to deposit their cards with the union on strike or lock-out and abide by its by-laws. This part of the amendment is absurd in the extreme.

No reason has been assigned why the chief executive officers of the International Union shall be deprived of the important function to represent the will of the majority; and to continue in pursuit of the policy of giving union manufacturers an opportunity to remain in business and to increase their output; thus enlarging the field of employment for cigar makers in union shops and under union conditions.

If the framers of the Hartford amendments are opposed to the policy of giving union manufacturers a square deal, and help them to fight the products of the Trusts and the cheap non-union manufacturers, they ought to come forward and advocate their cause in an open and frank manner. This they have failed to do; but adopted the under-handed methods of willful slander and deliberate misrepresentation.

Yours fraternally,
A. STRASSER.

Notes by Union 97, Boston: 97 donated $25 to Italian sufferers.—Levied $7.50 assessment for needy unemployed.—Our last label committee by hard and persistent efforts have done much to prevent re-filling.—Special effort should be made to organize the unorganized. The Delsel-Wemner Co. of Lima, Ohio, employ 1,500 people in Lima and 500 in Wapakoneta, a total of 2,000; have the team system; they make the San Felice 4 1/2 inches long, for which a small, very small, wage is paid.—The Trust are selling too much of their trash; when will or-ganized labor ask for and demand the label?—The number of cigar factories are decreasing; the spas-modic increase of small factories during depres-sions don't count, for they don't last. What do they receive for their product?—There were 650,000,000 less cigars produced in 1908 than in 1907.—There was a decrease in the number of cigars made in Massachusetts in 1908 in six months of 2,037,656.—Efforts are being made to reduce tariff on Sumatra.—Average number of cigars imported from Cuba, 60,000,000 per year.—One of the good things of 1908 was the closing of the convict labor cigar factory in Marquette, Mich.—The old year is gone; we have nothing to regret. May the new year be a prosperous one.—Fraternity is a great word.—Advertise the label; boom it; work for it.—97 passed resolutions condemning actions of Judge Wright for his violation of law.

LOST CARDS

Section 11. Any member losing or destroying his loan book shall not be entitled to receive any benefits or a duplicate loan book before the expiration of two months, and financial secretaries of local unions must notify the International President of such loss or destruction immediately, the same to be published in the official Journal by the International President. The International President shall be the only person to issue a duplicate.

Members having lost their traveling cards take notice:

No duplicate card will be issued for lost card unless the full name of member, the card number, the date of initiation and the union where the card was last deposited are given. Members who lose cards are not entitled to benefits until they secure duplicates. No duplicate cards are issued except upon application through some secretary, when the time limit of two months has expired.

Month after month unscrupulous men impose upon secretaries and members under the plea of lost cards. The constitution provides a punishment for lost cards. Its purpose is to stop the carelessness and the traffic made with full cards by permitting them to be held as security.

Don't issue letters to any member claiming lost card unless you know his actual standing.

Secretaries have no right to issue certificates in place of lost cards. Members who secure employment should be entered as admitted to the union.

Secretaries should be careful and enter all loans granted and repaid and all balances carried from one card to another in letters and figures. The issue of duplicates will be delayed in all cases where information is not complete.

Secretaries should examine due books where claim of lost card is made. Report full name, number, date and place of initiation and when and where card was last deposited.

Private loans will be entered on duplicates issued upon request of unions.

Enter all loans granted in figures and letters. 66119 Joe Murphy. Reptd. by 469; last deposited at 224.

There are habitual fault finders with trades union methods and policies; it is hard to build up but much easier to tear down. Promises will not do; results alone tell. This is the only practical test which can be applied.

CHICAGO, JANUARY 15, 1909.

The Kind of Relief That Does Not Degrade.

While all classes of workers have suffered severely during the long depression the reports of the officers of charitable associations indicate that the applicants for relief have been almost exclusively confined to people who have no affiliation with labor organizations. Many of the unions which do not pay regular out of work benefits have assisted needy members by donations, loans, etc.

The Int. Union has expended for out of work benefit during the year 1908 about $102,000.00, surely a splendid sum given not as charity, but as a matter of right from the members' own fund created for that very purpose.

Based on the comparison of the amounts expended for out-of-work benefit during 1908, with the three severest years of the depression of 1893 to 1898 it will be seen that the depression, insofar as the number of the unemployed who drew benefits was not near as severe as the former one.

During the former depression taking the three severest years, we averaged about $170,500 per year for out-of-work benefit. During that period the membership averaged a little over 27,000 members, while for the year 1908 we expended for out-of-work benefit purposes about $100,000, with a membership of about 41,000. However, for a more complete comparison, it should be remembered that during the former depressions we paid four terms, $18 per term, with a limit of $72 per year, while now we only pay for three terms, or a limit of $54, hence, if we deduct one term from the average amount, $170,000, paid during former depressions, it would mean about $127,875 on a three-term basis on a membership of 27,000, while, as stated in the foregoing, during the year 1908, with 41,000, and on a three-term basis we expended about $100,000. With 14,000 more members in 1908, we paid $27,000 less per year than we did in the former depression with only 27,000 members.

While the general accounts have not been marshaled and tabulated for the year 1908, this work is sufficiently advanced to warrant an estimate as to the result. Present available figures indicate that the expenditures exceeded the income by fully $70,000.00. This, however, will leave us a comfortable sum of $705,000.00, and more than the legal per capita, with which to do business at the same old stand in the same substantial way. While we all feel glad of the fact that we are able to spend this amount to relieve the distress of our members all regret the necessity of having to do so on account of the suffering and privation of the unemployed. Regardless of what the immediate future may hold in store in the way of better employment we are fortunate in having a well stocked treasury and able to meet the demands be they large, small or indifferent.

Some observers say they think the worst of the depression is over and that the state of trade will steadily grow better.

We, however, see no great improvement in the trade and do not look for normal trade conditions in the immediate future. We can all expect and hope for better trade but should not close our eyes to actual conditions.

The Denver convention of the American Federation of Labor unanimously adopted resolutions calling upon the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. to co-operate in any effort to proper and fittingly celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of A. Lincoln and calling upon all affiliated unions to make February 12th a holiday wherever possible. The following are some of the more striking of the many splendid things Lincoln said which applied directly to the organized labor movement:

LINCOLN THE COMMONER.

"Labor is prior to and independent of capital. Capital is only the fruit of labor. Capital could never have existed if labor had not first existed. Labor is the superior of capital and deserves much the more consideration."—From the First Annual Message of President Lincoln.

"If this country cannot be saved without giving up the principle of Liberty, I was about to say I would rather be assassinated on this spot than surrender it."—Speech at Independence Hall, Philadelphia, Feb. 21, 1861.

"I am exceedingly anxious that this Union, the Constitution, and the liberties of the people shall be perpetuated in accordance with the original idea for which the Revolution was made."—Trenton, New Jersey, Feb. 21, 1861.

"Thank God, we have a system of Labor where there can be a strike. Whatever the pressure, there is a point where the workingman may stop."—Speech at Hartford, 1860, referring to the New England Shoeworkers' great strike.

"I am glad to see that a system of labor prevails in New England under which the laborers can strike when they want to. * * * I like the system which lets a man quit when he wants to, and wish it might prevail everywhere."—Speech in New Haven, Conn., March 6, 1860.

"I hold that while man exists it is his duty to improve, not only his own condition, but to assist in ameliorating the condition of mankind."—Speech at Cincinnati, Ohio, February 12, 1861.

The foregoing sayings are more striking and notable because of the fact that the labor movement was small and insignificant as compared with its present proportions and because they were given birth at a time when it was neither fashionable nor customary to look with favor or even tolerance on the labor movement. A great many cities and places have arranged to have public celebrations on Feb. 12th and our members and locals are urged to co-operate in an effort to make the occasion one befitting the memory of the great commoner and undoubted friend of organized labor. Regardless of how we may have differed with Lincoln on some policies we can afford to forget that and as working men and women take our hats off to Lincoln from an organized labor standpoint.

Shall free speech and a free press be maintained as a guaranteed constitutional right, or will the American people spinelessly permit this right and privilege to be stolen from them by judge-made law? No democratic form of government, with its republican institutions, can long exist without the right of free speech and a free press. The sentencing of Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison to one year, nine months and six months in jail, respectively, for exercising the right guaranteed to them by the federal constitution, is a flagrant violation of all law, precedent and even-handed justice.

We call your especial attention to the constitution of the United States bearing upon this point, which we publish elsewhere in a set of resolutions adopted by the Chicago Federation of Labor. The constitution expressly guarantees the right of free speech and a free press, and a right to trial by jury for any offense committed. No law has ever been adopted which in any way abridges the right of free speech and a free press by any legislative body. True, however, an attempt has been made to steal this right and privilege from us by judge-made law. The American people, whether in the organized labor movement or not, cannot afford to permit this attempt to succeed if they desire to maintain our republic and its free institutions. If judge-made law is to govern in a free republic, then our boasted democracy is a hollow mockery and insofar as freedom is concerned we are no better off than the countries governed by kings and potentates. The right of free speech and a free press carries the right to say and print the things which displease as well as the things which may please. By common consent, however, all decently inclined people recognize that while we have the right of free speech and a free pen, we cannot print libelous matters or things that traduce the personal character of our fellow-men without being liable to be arrested, tried by a jury and punished for the offense committed. Despite this well-defined moral principle and the laws relating thereto, people still have a right to say or print even libelous matter, but, of course, are amenable to the law, and if they say or print libelous matter they should be punished in compliance with the written laws prohibiting the offense committed.

There is nothing in the law or mode of jurisprudence as guaranteed by the federal constitution, however, which permits a judge to say whether the offense committed is against the law and punishable by fine and imprisonment; even in cases where men or papers say or commit libelous acts they cannot be declared criminal and deprived of their liberty without a trial by jury. Labor does not deny the right of judges to issue injunctions for the purpose of protecting property, but does deny the right of any judge to issue injunctions which will rob labor or any citizen of his right to say or print anything he may please. Labor asks for no immunity and for no privileges not guaranteed to all other citizens. We will abide by the law of our land, made such by the will of the people, expressed in the constitution and through our chosen representatives; but protest against being robbed of any of our constitutional rights and privileges by judge-made law. We are not prepared to say that the people of this country are not capable of self government, but assert that when judges arrogate to themselves the right to do things contrary to guaranteed constitutional rights, they are the ones who first cast a shadow upon the success of our free institutions, and the right and ability of the people to successfully govern themselves. Labor strenuously objects to an attempt upon the part of certain judges by the injunction route, to make labor any part of property. The right to own the time or labor of the individual or the individual himself we had fondly hoped had forever been destroyed in our common country. Samuel Gompers and associates have committed no crime nor violated any written law in connection with the matter and things on account of which they were unconstitutionally and illegally deprived of their right to free speech, free press and their liberties by the recent drastic action and decisions made by Judge Wright. It was commonly supposed that people wearing the judicial ermine and occupying the exalted position of federal judges were also equipped with dignity and impartiality. The labor movement or its methods was not on trial before Judge Wright and the unprecedented insulting and biased language employed by the judge in lecturing Samuel Gompers and associates has raised a doubt in the minds of some as to whether all judges possess the judicial temperament or either of the foregoing qualifications. We now, as heretofore, believe in our free institutions and in human freedom, justice and liberty and believe that they cannot be destroyed by designing individuals who may be selfishly or otherwise inclined. We urge that every union take this matter up, discuss it in a calm and dignified manner, and that the delegates to the Central bodies bring the matter up in the Central Labor unions and have it fully discussed in a calm and dignified way.

We call your attention to the resolutions adopted by the Chicago Federation of Labor and urge that all members carefully read them and that you be outspoken in denunciation of the attempted policy and new departure of certain captains of industry who are seeking to stifle the growth and usefulness of the organized labor movement of our time and country, and in so seeking are apparently regardless of methods employed. While, in our judgment, we have reached a crisis and critical period, we counsel careful and dignified action. It may be barely possible that certain people seek to divert the labor movement from its declared peaceable and evolutionary methods into one of a revolutionary character and one which they perhaps feel, if diverted, could be more easily destroyed. If so, we shall disavow them.

The records of this office show that we shipped during the year 1908 to local unions, less amounts returned, 27,172,156 blue labels as compared with 31,586,094 for the year of 1907. Which is some indication of the effect of the depression showing as it does a falling off of 4,413,938 in labels used during the dull times of 1908.

Speaking of industrial accidents, the United States Bureau of Labor says "between thirty thousand and thirty-five thousand workmen lose their lives in accidents in the course of their employment in this country during a year." Probably more than one-half of these fatal accidents are due to carelessness, indifference and a lack of proper safeguards on the part of the employer, and by the same logic it may be said that one-half of these fatal accidents could be averted by intelligence and rational methods, factory inspection, legislation and control. In addition to the frightful number of fatal accidents, the same source of information discloses the fact that there are about two million non-fatal accidents, which is due, almost wholly, to the needless risk, caused largely by avarice and greed.

Last spring the near prophets said the dull times would be over as soon as the nominations for president were made, they then said they will be over after the election but old prosperity still held back.

Excuses commenced to follow; first it was the tariff, then it was the members of the cabinet. The facts are, nobody knows when the depression will end and old prosperity will again be in the saddle. Of one thing we are morally certain, that is, that this depression like all others will end in due time. Good judges hold that times are gradually improving and that we will witness the return to full normal trade conditions by the spring of 1910.

The radical hair brain shouter who professes that he wants to fight any way regardless of the merits of his case or the injustice done often tears down in a minute that which it has taken years to build up.

The men with cool heads, good judgment and who are conscious of the rights of others and who know how to be fair are the ones who keep the labor movement alive and on a permanent basis.

The necessity of harmony and unity of purpose with a determined shoulder to shoulder all together movement is greater today than ever before.

REPORT OF DELEGATES A. F. OF L. CONVENTION.

To the Officers and Members of the Cigar Makers' International Union, Greeting:

We, the undersigned, your delegates to the twenty-eighth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, desire to submit the following report:

The convention was called to order in the Auditorium, Denver, Colorado, on Monday, November 9th, by President Gompers. Addresses of welcome were delivered by the governor of Colorado, the mayor of Denver, President Halley of the Colorado State Federation of Labor, and President French of the Denver Trades and Labor Assembly, to which a fitting response was made by President Gompers.

The report of the Committee on Credentials showed the presence of 321 delegates, representing 83 national and international unions, 25 state branches, 61 central bodies and two fraternal delegates, representing the British Trade Union Congress, one representing the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, one representing the National Women's Trade Union League, one representing the Department of Church and Labor of the Presbyterian church and one representing the Women's International Union Label League. During the course of the convention several of the delegates were seated representing different organizations. By action of the convention, charters were issued to two international unions; the Operative Plasterers and the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks.

Your delegates served upon the following committees:

Committee on President's Report—Tracy.

Committee on Labels—French.

Committee on Adjustment—Smith.

Special Committee on Lincoln Centennial Celebration—Barnes.

Several delegates from city central bodies and the delegate from the Ohio Federation of Labor were denied seats in the convention because of the fact that they were members of an organization known as the American Flint Glass Workers' Union, because they had seceded from the American Federation of Labor and were trespassing upon the jurisdiction of the Glass Bottle Blowers' Association, an affiliated organization.

President Gompers submitted his annual report, which was a most interesting and valuable document and since it has been already published in the columns of our official journal, it needs no further comment at our hands other than the suggestion that it be carefully read and studied.

Notwithstanding the fact that we have been and are going through a very serious industrial depression, the report of Secretary Morrison showed the receipts to be considerably in excess of the expenditures, as well as showing an increase in membership of affiliated organizations during the year.

During the convention able and interesting addresses were made by fraternal delegates from the British Trade Union Congress, John Wadsworth and Herbert Skinner, as well as addresses from fraternal delegate P. M. Draper of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada. Mrs. Raymond Robins, representing the National Women's Trade Union League, Miss Anna Fitzgerald, representing the Woman's International Union Label League, and Rev. Charles Stelzle of the Presbyterian church, as well as a most excellent address on general labor matters by Mr. Raymond Robins of Chicago.

During the convention another new department was formed to be known as the Railroad Department, by the delegates from the various organizations engaged in transportation. This now makes three departments within the Federation; the Building Trades Department, the Metal Trades Department and the Railroad Department.

During the convention a large number of resolutions were adopted dealing with many subjects; among which were a resolution to exclude from the United States all Asiatic races; one for stricter efficiency of the laws in the merchant marine and fishing industry; one to provide better sanitary conditions for men employed on public works; one for free text books and woman suffrage. Another resolution was adopted providing to raise a benefit for Frank K. Foster of Boston, who is in broken health; another approving the Massachusetts saving bank and annuity system; one declaring against compulsory arbitration and favoring voluntary arbitration; another calling for more vigorous agitation in the interest of union labels and union stamps; another urging all local unions to immediately affiliate with state branches and city central bodies; another against sending public work to foreign countries for the purpose of having such work done by cheap labor. A resolution was adopted instructing the Executive Council to continue gathering and compiling information regarding loss of life and providing for laws for the protection of the same. Another resolution was adopted urging congress to make Lincoln's birthday, February 12th, a legal holiday and calling upon all unions to make that day of the coming year a holiday wherever possible by the unions. It was reported to the convention that an agreement had been arrived at in the jurisdiction dispute between the International Union of Steam Engineers and the International Union of Brewery Workers, such agreement to be subject to ratification by referendum vote of the two organizations. A dispute between the firemen, teamsters and brewery workers was left in the hands of the Executive Council for further efforts at adjustment. A resolution was adopted instructing the Executive Council to compile and have published as widely as possible the decisions of the Supreme Court in the past fifteen years affecting labor. A rising vote of thanks was given to President Gompers for his courageous position in the Buck's Stove and Range Company suit. An adjustment of the differences between the International Longshoremen's Union and the International Seamen's Union was reached by the parties in interest.

The report of the Committee on President's Report, as adopted by the convention, doing as it does, declaring the policy of the American Federation of Labor for the ensuing year, is a most valuable and interesting document and your delegates deem it advisable to embody the report of that committee in full in this report. The report of the Committee on President's Report, which we hope our members will carefully read, is as follows:

Denver, Colo., Nov. 19, 1908.

To the Officers and Members of the Twenty-Eighth Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor, Greeting:

Your Committee on President's Report, to whom was referred such report, some matters from the report of the Executive Council and sundry resolutions, beg to report as follows:

The President calls attention to the fact that fourteen years ago the Convention of the American Federation of Labor met at Denver; that then, as now, the country was in the throes of a financial and industrial panic. We are in entire accord with him when he charges "The Princes of Finance" and "Captains of Industry" with their responsibility for such conditions. He expresses the hope that the mountain regions of The Rockies and The Sierra, with the population living under less restraint, may stand as a bulwark against all efforts to destroy government by law, and to curb human freedom. We desire to join with him in this hope, and at the same time we urge upon all the working people of this country the imperative necessity and the solemn duty to resist by all means at their command the present tendency on the part of the employers and the "Princes of Finance" to establish in some form or other in this country political and judicial despotism.

We realize fully that the President has not only been required to "devote all his time" to the interests of the Federation and its declared policies and principles, but that he has done so to the fullest extent. We appreciate the difficulty and stress under which this report was written, and we, therefore, appreciate more fully its scope and force.

We urge that the President's report may be read with the greatest of care by all members of the labor movement and its friends and that the delegates to this Convention may, as we feel they will, use every effort to bring it to the attention of their members.

Extending Growth in Organization.

We desire to congratulate the Convention and our movement upon the fact that the membership of the Federation has increased during the past year, notwithstanding the industrial conditions and the opposition which we have been compelled to encounter.

International Unions.

Under this heading the report deals with the settled policy of organizing National or International Unions as soon as there are sufficient locals affiliated with the Federation, from which they may be formed.

The President calls attention to the fact that to permit the locals to organize National or International Unions before they have sufficient inherent strength is sometime a disadvantage to such locals, and tends to retard the movement, and he suggests that some discretion should be exercised in this matter. In this suggestion and recommendation we concur.

He further calls to our attention that there has been substantially no reduction in wages, owing to the declared policy of the labor movement and the determination of its organizations and members to resist all wage reductions and he urges the continuance of that policy. We recommend that this Convention concur in that declaration.

State Federation and City Central Bodies.

The report calls attention to the fact that there are at present affiliated with the Federation thirty-eight (38) state federations and six hundred and eight (608) city central bodies. We endorse all that the President says as to their influence for good both in the industrial and legislative fields.

Attention is called to the mutual respect and good feeling existing between the officers of the National and International Unions and the state federations and city central bodies. Your committee recommends that such good feeling and mutual respect be still further increased by the officers of National and International Unions using their influence to bring about the affiliation of their locals with such central bodies and state federations where such affiliation does not now exist.

With the purpose of further increasing the educational and legislative influence of such central bodies, your committee recommend that they be requested to provide legislative committees, that in defining the duties of such legislative committees it should be specified that they shall watch the Congressional Record, keep in touch with the Legislative Committee of the American Federation of Labor stationed at Washington, D. C., and bring before such central bodies and state federations all matters of interest to our movement, and further, that they shall regard as unofficial any report on legislative matters that may come to them or to the central bodies, unless such report comes from the headquarters of the American Federation of Labor, over the signature of the President.

As a matter of information we desire to state that a daily copy of the Congressional Record may be obtained free by applying to the Congressman from your Congressional district or Senator from your state.

Directly Affiliated Locals.

Under this heading it is reported that there are now five hundred and eighty-three (583) local unions in direct affiliation with the American Federation of Labor. The President here deals more particularly with the necessity for using discretion in the formation of national or international unions, with which matter we have already dealt. He further calls attention to the fact that there have been a number of wage contests during the year; that many advances have been secured; that reductions have been successfully resisted owing to the moral support that the officials of the American Federation of Labor have been able to give, and through the financial support from the defense fund. We desire to express our gratification at the report made, and to endorse the policy followed.

Labor Movement in Canada.

We read with great satisfaction the report made and recommend that it be adopted. We desire to congratulate our Canadian brothers upon the distinct progress which they are making, both in gathering together into efficient organizations the workers of the Dominion, as well as upon the growth of the international solidarity. We desire to recommend to the national and international unions that they give to their locals in Canada all the moral and financial assistance possible, and that they comply with the wish expressed by the fraternal delegate from Canada, that the officers of the national and international unions should personally visit their Canadian locals whenever practicable and possible.

Porto Rican Labor Movement.

There is submitted in the President's report a comprehensive statement from the official representative of the labor movement in Porto Rico, of the difficulties under which the workmen labor in the island, in which reference is made to the extension of organization in the island, to remedial legislation obtained and that which has been denied the toilers, in all of which we concur. We desire to express our gratification at the progress made and the spirit exhibited by the Porto Rican workmen, and also to express the hope that their feeling of confidence and trust in their fellow workers here may be a constantly growing value to them and to us.

The President calls attention to the recommendation of previous conventions that the Constitution and other official documents of the national and international unions be translated into Spanish and distributed among the organized workers of Porto Rico, so that they may become thoroughly acquainted with the aims, objects and principles of these organizations. He suggests as additional reasons for so doing that we may thus reach the workers of other Spanish-speaking countries on this continent. Your committee urges that the recommendation be adopted.

Labor's Fraternity—International Peace.

Your committee recommend the endorsement of what the President has to say under this heading, and expresses the hope that the interchange of fraternal visits may be continued and extended. We therefore recommend that the Convention concur in the recommendation made by the Executive Council to the effect that a representative of the American Federation of Labor attend the next Convention of the International Conference of Trade Unions which will meet shortly after the close of the British Trades Union Congress, and having in mind the report made by the fraternal delegates to the British Trade Union Congress, we recommend that the Convention concur in the request made to send Mr. Gompers as our special representative to the British Trades Union Congress. We further recommend that he be instructed to attend the International Congress of Trade Unions, and that he visit such other countries as the Executive Council may deem advisable.

Buck's Stove and Range Company Injunction.

Under this heading the President makes a clear and comprehensive report of this injunction, stating what it forbids and what action has been taken with reference thereto. He reports upon the process for contempt of court, instituted against him, Vice-President Mitchell and Secretary Morrison. He further calls attention to the fact that under the injunction he is forbidden to make a report to this Convention upon this subject. We urge upon all members of the labor movement and all friends of human liberty to read and digest the report upon this subject and the subjects allied thereto. We recommend that it be adopted, and that a vote of thanks be given to President Gompers for the splendid example he sets in giving this report and his willingness to take the consequences.

Shall Injunctions Injure Free Speech and Free Press?

We note and endorse the President's report upon this question. We desire again to call attention to the report upon the subject of injunctions made by this committee to the Twenty-Seventh Annual Convention of this body meeting at Norfolk, Va., and in addition we desire to quote, with our approval, the following from later documents issued by the Federation:

We contend that equity, power and jurisdiction, discretionary government by the judiciary, for well defined purposes and within specific limitations, granted to the courts by the Constitution, has been so extended that it is invading the field of government by law, and endangering individual liberty.

As government by equity, personal government advances; republican government, government by law, recedes.

And further: "Despotic power under the ermine is as dangerous as despotic power under the crown." They (the judges) cannot divest themselves of their humanity by putting on the judicial ermine any more than the king can divest himself of his by putting on the crown.

We affirm that government by law and government by injunction cannot exist together, and we again state that the usurpation which undertakes to deprive us, as working people, of our rights as citizens cannot and will not stop until it has invaded all fields of human activity and made the judiciary the irresponsible arbiter of all relations between employer and employee, buyer and seller, man and man.

The President well says that it is now the American Federation of Labor and the American Federationist which are enjoined from the exercise of the right of free speech and the liberty of the press, and that in the future it may be some other publication. The American people must learn these facts in order that popular government may be preserved.

Injunctions Against Workmen.

We again urge the careful reading of this report and the statements under this head in particular. We endorse the statements therein made in full and in particular, and call attention to the fact that it is by assuming that business is property, that the barest shadow of justification can be found for the acts of the judiciary on these lines.

Business consists of a location, of stock, and patronage.

Location and stock are property; patronage is not.

Patronage rests upon nothing except the good will of the patron.

There can be no business without patronage; hence, business can not be property.

Courts used to be concerned, and justly so, with the preservation of property as such; not with the profitable or unprofitable use thereof.

When courts shall have been compelled to retrace their steps back to this fundamental position, government by law and equal freedom will to this extent have been restored.

Your committee again recommend that all candidates for legislative or judicial positions be carefully investigated as to their past acts, and interrogated as to their position on this matter, before they be given any support, and "that those who from their actions or expressions are deemed unsound, be, regardless of any other question, repudiated."

Supreme Court Decision Extends Sherman Anti-Trust Law to Hatters and All Labor Organizations.

We endorse all that the President has said upon this subject. We urge that it be studied; that each organization place itself, so far as it is able, in the Hatters' place in order that it may realize the terrible significance of this position.

We recommend and urge upon all officials of labor organizations to study this question for themselves, with a view of bringing it in its nakedness before their members in order that each individual may fully appreciate its full meaning and the danger to which the organizations themselves, their individual members and their joint and individual property are exposed.

Bill Amending Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

Under this heading the President reports upon the bill that was introduced in Congress to amend the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, and the efforts that were put forth to have it enacted. Your committee recommend that the report be adopted and the bill approved, and the bill be urged in every way possible to its final passage.

Bill to Regulate Injunctions.

The President under this heading submits for our further endorsement or such action as we shall deem proper the Pearre bill. We recommend that it be re-endorsed.

He further submits a copy of the British Trades

Dispute Act, and calls attention to the fact that by this act the joint funds of the organized workers of Great Britain have been placed in proper security. We recommend that the Executive Council obtain competent legal advice upon the advisability or the necessity of inserting the principles contained in the Trades Dispute Act in either the Wilson (H. R. 20,584) or the Pearre Bill (H. R. 34).

We further recommend that the Executive Council be instructed to confer with the representatives of other organizations, with a view of prevailing upon them to give their full and undivided support to this important legislation.

Legislation.

We note with some interest what the President says in his report relative to the legislation passed by the last session of Congress as well as his reference to the failure to pass a general Employers' Liability Law.

Your committee recommend that the Legislative Committee be and is hereby instructed to use its best efforts in the direction of having a comprehensive general Employers' Liability Law placed upon the statutes during the forthcoming session of Congress.

We also note with interest what the President has to say relative to the passage of a Child Labor Law, to apply to the District of Columbia. As he states in his report, Congress failed to make provision for the enforcement of this law and that at the present time the law is being enforced, partially, by the selection of two members of the police department, who were selected by the District Commissioners. This arrangement, however, is only temporary, and for a successful enforcement of this law an appropriation by Congress is necessary.

Your committee recommend that a bill be drafted providing for an appropriation to cover the cost of enforcing this law, and be presented to the forthcoming session of Congress.

Some Supreme Court Decisions.

Under this heading the President calls attention to some of the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States. Your committee recommend that the Executive Council be instructed to compile and have published as widely as possible the decisions of special interest to Litigation Harassing Labor.

We note what the President has to say upon this subject. We recommend its adoption. We further recommend that it be carefully read, and in addition we desire to call your attention to these significant words:

"If the situation is to become so acute let us personally, as best we can, defend our rights before the courts, taking whatever consequences may ensue. For one, I can see no remedy for these outrageous proceedings, unless there shall be a quickening of the conscience of our judges or the relief which the Congress of our country can and should afford."

Bearing this in mind your committee desires to state that whenever the courts issue any injunctions which undertake to regulate our personal relations either with our employer, or those from whom we may or may not purchase commodities, such courts are trespassing upon relations which are personal relations and with which equity power has no concern; that these injunctions are destructive of our rights as citizens, as well as of popular government.

And we therefore declare that we will exercise all the rights and privileges guaranteed to us by the Constitution and laws of our country, and insist it is our duty to defend ourselves at all hazards, and we recommend that such be our action, taking whatever results may come.

We further desire to warn our fellow unionists that testimony extorted under equity process may be partially used in a damage suit under the Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

However, your committee feel constrained to say that when blanket injunctions are applied for or issued by the courts against the members of unions for no other reason except that they are members of the unions, and these injunctions are applied for or issued solely for the purpose of intimidating the members, we believe that such legal advice and protection as may be necessary should be provided for them by the organizations in interest.

Legislation and Political Action.

Under this heading the President described in chronological sequence the history of the efforts of the American Federation of Labor along these lines. We recommend its careful reading, and the unqualified approval of the statements made and the action taken.

We shall call attention to a few of his specific statements. We quote the following:

"The American labor movement is not partisan to a political party; it is partisan to a principle, the principle of equal rights and human freedom."

We call especial attention to this statement. In order that we may emphasize its soundness and because it has to some extent been disputed. We appeal to public opinion, we do our best to so cultivate it, so that it may become on subjects which we urge sufficiently extensive and strong to be crystallized into law. One political party deals with our policies and rejects them; another deals with them and adopts them; that is, it expresses itself as being in agreement with us on these policies, and if we are to remain true to the principles and policies which we have urged upon the public, we necessarily must work with such party for the accomplishment of our object. If an endorsement of our contentions by a political party is to compel us to abandon those contentions, then it needs but such endorsement of our very existence to compel us to disband. The thought needs but to be stated in order that it may be repudiated. Partisanship is exhibited by adherence to a party which refuses its endorsement, and non-partisanship consists in continued work for our principles, regardless of what any political party may be.

Our conventions have frequently declared that our movement has neither the right nor the desire to dictate how a member shall cast his vote. It has been my privilege and honor always so to insist. I have not departed, and can not now depart, from that true trade union course. At the Minneapolis convention the following declaration was adopted:

"We must have with us in our economic movement men of all parties as well as of all creeds, and the minority rights of the humblest man to vote where he pleases and to worship where his conscience dictates must be sacredly guarded."

Your committee are in full accord with this expression, and desire to reiterate the Minneapolis declaration, but we do hold that this declaration does not apply to an executive officer while he remains as such. Executive officers, when they are elected, are aware of the declared policies and purposes of the Federation. They assume the office for the purpose, so far as they can, of sustaining and giving effect to such declaration and policies as have been adopted. If, after more mature consideration, they find themselves unable to agree with, and feel that they must, in order to be true to themselves, proceed to oppose these adopted policies, or any adopted policy, your committee believe it to be their duty, as it certainly is their right, to resign from such office, and thus place themselves squarely within the Minneapolis declaration. Such action would be honorable to themselves and advantageous to the movement.

It has been my purpose to place before you the entire matter in connection with my participation in the campaign, whatever consequences it may entail. I submit it to you for such judgment as you may deem best to render and such action as you may care to take. I am deeply conscious of this one fact, that I have endeavored to give voice to the wrongs which labor has endured and to which the toilers are subject. I have plead for the righting of these wrongs, I have pressed home to the fullest the sufferings and injustice done my fellows. To the very limit of whatever ability and power I may possess, I have thrown it into the scale of the cause of my fellow workers.

In commenting upon this statement of the President, we feel that he has gone to his fullest limit, physically and mentally, in carrying out the mandates of the previous conventions of the American Federation of Labor, as well as the conclusions reached by the conferences of the representatives of the National and International Unions held in the city of Washington, D. C., in the years of 1906 and 1908, and we agree with the President when he says that the campaign as carried on by the American Federation of Labor was on a high plane; that the educational features are bound to be of lasting benefit, and that a greater moral victory has been won.

We recommend that the policy be continued and that every effort be made to bring the principles for which we contended and for which we shall continue to contend, not only to all members of the labor movement, but to all friends and adherents of popular government.

Economic Power Most Essential and Potent.

Under this caption attention is again called to the fact that the most important every-day work we can do is to get our fellow-workers organized on economic lines. We endorse the statements made by the President and desire to call attention to the fact that by far the greater number of wage workers are as yet unaffiliated with our movement, partly because it is not understood and partly because of the conditions under which they live and work. We desire to say that there is no form or kind of work that could not have its conditions improved from day to day, or rather from year to year, through organization on trade union lines and affiliation with the American Federation of Labor.

We hope to see the day when all legitimate wage workers will be within the fold of organized labor and will enjoy that encouragement and improvement in their condition which come from the principle of mutual aid, understood and sincerely practiced. We should work to this end to the limit of our power, bringing to it such ability and self-abnegation we have.

Initiative and Referendum.

We note the report made upon this subject and we appreciate the efforts put forth and the success gained, and hope and trust that we shall be able from year to year to note greater victories achieved. Incidentally we may here state that on the 3rd of November Missouri adopted the constitutional amendment to which the President refers.

Panama Canal and Labor Conditions.

We note the report upon the labor conditions at Panama. We endorse the statement made and recommend that the Executive Council be instructed to carry out the suggestions made by the President.

American Federationist.

We note with considerable interest what the President says in his report as to the American Federationist. We fully realize that it has been of valuable assistance in disseminating to the workers and our friends matters that are of importance and interest to our movement. That the extension of its circulation may be increased is the hope of your committee. No local union or the members thereof should be without a copy of this magazine. The price is reasonable, $1.00 per year, and within the reach of every member. We especially desire to call the attention of the officers of national and international unions and request them to urge their members to subscribe for the American Federationist. With an increased subscription list, such as our official magazine is entitled to, by reason of the immense value of the matter contained therein, it would give the opportunity of extending all reliable information that is of value and interest, and that should be within the possession of every member of our movement.

Regarding the "We Don't Patronize List," we recommend that the question of its republication be submitted to the affiliated unions for their decision, such action to be taken in accordance with their regular method and reported to the Federation office before September 15, 1909, and we further recommend that the President issue a circular letter giving full explanation for the information of the organizations and their members.

Labor Press.

We note what the President says in his report as to the Labor Press, and desire to express our thanks to the editors of the official journals of our national and international unions, as well as to the bona fide labor press. We fully realize many of the disadvantages under which the editors of bona fide labor papers have to work, but we desire to commend them for their untiring efforts and devotion to our cause. However, we realize that there are publications issued which masquerade as labor papers, but which in reality are but vultures upon the body politic, and whose columns are open to the highest bidder, particularly those bidders who are in opposition to our movement. For this class of so-called labor papers we have nothing but the utmost contempt, but would urge upon our members and friends, wherever possible, to give their support to the regular bona fide labor papers.

On motion the report of the committee was adopted.

Conclusion.

In conclusion we desire to manifest our appreciation of the work done and the progress made during the past year. We express the hope that the work will continue and that we may all learn more fully to appreciate its value, and the value of absolute unity and solidarity among our members, and that by the time of holding our next Convention the substantial growth in our movement during the past year will be continued and extended.

As no candidate received a majority of all votes cast, a second ballot was ordered. In compliance with the law—Section 52—Messrs. Jerry Cronin of Bangor, Me., and E. Brunell of Hartford, Conn., having received the greatest number of votes, their names were placed on the second ballot. The union admits that the election was held open for one week and opportunity given to vote every day in the week. Union 440, Tampa, Fla., cast 260 votes for Mr. Brunell; the vote was protested and appealed against. These votes have not been counted. However, this action does not affect the final result or standing of the two highest candidates, who are Jerry Cronin, Bangor, Me., and E. Brunell, Hartford, Conn.

The election has to take place at one regular or special meeting and cannot be strung along for a week or any length of time.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY THE CHICAGO FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 3, 1909.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the Chicago Federation of Labor:

Whereas, The right of trial by jury was incorporated in and made part of the constitution of the United States after the revolution of 1776. This principle was also a part of the "Bill of Rights" which the colonists enjoyed under the British government. The trial by jury is guaranteed by the following articles in the federal constitution:

"Article VI. In all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the state and district where the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law; and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor; and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense.

"Article VII. In suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any court of the United States, than according to the rules of the common law.

"Article III. Section 2. The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury, and such trial shall be held in the state where the said crimes shall have been committed, but when not committed within any state, the trial shall be at such place or places as the congress may by law have directed."

Whereas, The foregoing quoted articles specifically provide for a trial by jury and clearly set forth that this right shall not be denied in any case except cases of impeachment. The words "In all criminal prosecutions" admit of no exception.

Whereas, The right to issue injunctions does not exist anywhere, not even in monarchical England, except for the protection of property and it was hoped and supposed that one of the results of the great war between the states was the destruction of the brutal and barbarous notion that human beings could in any sense be deemed property or that any person could have any property right in another or in that other's time or labor.

Whereas, The right to issue injunctions in trades disputes thus attempting to place human beings under the caption of property has been arrogated to themselves by certain judges who have not hesitated to punish for contempt and without a trial by jury those who were even alleged to have violated judge made laws and

Whereas, Labor's attitude and contention on the writ of injunction is substantially as follows:

The crass ignorance of corporation lawyers and a hostile press is so rampant on the position and attitude of labor upon the abuse of the injunction process that we deem it a public service as plainly and concisely as possible to submit labor's attitude and contention. It will be seen that labor neither questions the integrity of nor desires to "shackle" the courts; that it stands for and insists upon absolute equality before the law—nothing more, nothing less. We believe we have the right to demand that the press, however hostile, shall not wilfully misrepresent or misinterpret labor's position. We ask a careful consideration of labor's contention upon this all-important question of our time, and we challenge a discussion of the points here submitted. Labor insists that:

The writ of injunction was intended to be exercised for the protection of property rights only.

He who would seek its aid must come into court with clean hands.

There must be no other adequate remedy at law.

It must never be used to curtail personal rights.

It must not be used ever in an effort to punish crime.

It must not be used as a means to set aside trial by jury.

Injunctions as issued against workmen are never used or issued against any other citizen of our country.

It is an attempt to deprive citizens of our country, when these citizens are workmen, of the right of trial by jury.

It is an effort to fasten an offense on them when they are innocent of any unlawful or illegal act.

It is an indirect assertion of a property right in men when these men are workmen engaged in a lawful effort to protect or advance their natural rights and interests.

Injunctions as issued in trade disputes are to make outlaws of men when they are not even charged with doing things in violation of any law of state or nation.

We protest against the discrimination of the courts against the laboring men of our country, which deprives them of their constitutional guarantee of equality before the law.

The injunctions which the courts issue against labor are supposed by them to be good enough law to-day, when there exists a dispute between workmen and their employers; but it is not good law—in fact, is not law at all—to-morrow or next day, when no such dispute exists.

The issuance of injunctions in labor disputes is not based upon law, but is a species of judicial legislation, judicial usurpation, in the interests of the money power against workmen innocent of any unlawful or criminal act. The doing of the lawful acts enjoined by the courts renders the workmen guilty of contempt of court, and punishable by fine or imprisonment or both.

Labor protests against the issuance of injunctions in disputes between workmen and employers, when no such injunctions would be issued when no such dispute exists. Such injunctions have no warrant in law and are the result of judicial usurpation and judicial legislation rather than of congressional legislation.

In all things in which workmen are enjoined by the process of an injunction during labor disputes, if those acts are criminal or unlawful, there is now ample law and remedy covering them. From the logic of this there is no escape.

No act is a crime unless there is a law designating it and specifying it to be a crime.

No act is unlawful unless there be a law on the statute books designating and specifying it to be unlawful; hence, it follows that:

No act is criminal or unlawful unless there is a law prohibiting its commission; and it further follows that:

An injunction never was intended to apply and never should be applied, in disputes which arise between workmen and their employers.

It is agreed by all, friends and opponents alike, that the injunction process, beneficent in its inception and general practice, never should apply, and legally can not be applied, where there is another ample remedy at law.

We assert that labor asks no immunity for any of its men who may be guilty of any criminal or unlawful act.

It insists upon the workers being regarded and treated as equals before the law with every other citizen; that if any act be committed by any one of our number, rendering him amenable to the law, he shall be prosecuted by the ordinary forms of law and by the due process of law, and that an injunction does not lawfully and properly apply and ought not to be issued in such cases.

The injunction process, as applied to men engaged in a dispute with employers, includes the allegations of criminal or unlawful acts as a mere pretext, so that the lawful and innocent acts in themselves may also be incorporated and covered by the blanket injunction. And the performance of the lawful and innocent acts in themselves, despite the injunction, renders them at once guilty of contempt of the court's order, which is summarily punished by fine or imprisonment, or both.

In itself the writ of injunction is of a highly important and beneficent character. Its aims and purposes are for the protection of property rights. It never was intended, and never should be invoked, for the purpose of depriving free men of their personal rights, the right of man's ownership of himself; the right of free locomotion, free assemblage, free association, free speech, free press; the freedom to do those things promotive of life, liberty and happiness, and which are not in contravention of the law of our land.

We re-assert that we ask no immunity for ourselves or for any other man who may be guilty of any unlawful or criminal act; but we have a right to insist, and we do insist, that when a workman is charged with a crime or any unlawful conduct, he shall be accorded every right, be apprehended, charged and tried by the same process of law as any other citizen of our country.

With our position so often emphasized and so generally known, it is nothing less than wilful untruth and misrepresentation for any one to declare that it is our purpose to obtain any special privilege, particularly the undesirable and unenviable liberty of creating a privileged class of wrongdoers.

When the real purposes and high aspirations of our movement and the legislation it seeks at the hands of the law-making power of our country shall be better understood by all our people, and the great uplifting work which we have already achieved shall find a better appreciation among those who now so unjustly attack and antagonize us, our opponents will be remembered for their ignoble work and course.

The injunctions against which we protest are flagrantly and without warrant of law issued almost daily in some section of our country and are violative of the fundamental rights of man. When better understood, they will shock the conscience of our people, the spirit and genius of our republic.

We shall exercise our every right, and in the meantime concentrate our efforts to secure the relief and redress to which we are so justly entitled.

Not only in our own interest, but in the interest of all the people of our country, for the preservation of real liberty, for the elimination of bitterness and class hatred, for the perpetuation of all that is best and truest, we can never rest until the last vestige of this injustice has been removed from our public life.

Whereas, Judge Wright on Wednesday, December 24, 1908, handed down a decision in the alleged contempt case of the Buck Stove & Range Co., declaring Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison guilty of contempt and sentencing them to one year, nine months and six months respectively in jail; thereby robbing them of a constitutional right to trial by jury.

Whereas, We hold that the sentence was not only unjust and unfair, but was given in plain, open, insolent defiance of the guaranteed constitutional right of trial by jury and in flagrant violation and disregard of any principle of law warranting the issuing of injunctions in clearly trades disputes.

Whereas, The injunction contempt proceedings and unlawful incarceration of the three defendants in prison is a wilful desecration of the fundamental, sacred and imperishable right to freedom of speech, freedom of the press and human liberty.

Whereas, Mr. Gompers and associates have committed no crime specifically made such by written law or by any moral obligation of citizenship, we fail to appreciate that fine sense of discrimination on the part of the courts that results in sending labor men to prison for long terms, while heads of rich and powerful corporations under like circumstances are punished by fines, which may be paid without hardship, and which are generally paid and borne by the corporation and not by the individual.

We unreservedly denounce such policy and action on the part of such judges as being unjust and cowardly, well calculated to magnify class distinction and hatred and to suggest to the people generally that such discrimination is prompted through hope of reward or fear of disfavor, and not through any desire to do justice or enforce the law.

Therefore, be it resolved, That we renew our faith in the integrity, honesty, devotion to duty and loyalty of purpose of Samuel Gompers and associates and commend them for the magnificent and courageous stand they have taken for justice, equity and human liberty.

Resolved, That we denounce the decision and sentence as unfair, unlawful, not warranted by facts nor demanded by any high moral or patriotic purpose, and assert, if permitted to stand, will soon be applied to other citizens and the public press in general.

Resolved, That all organized labor of Chicago co-operate with the Chicago Federation of Labor in making the public mass meeting a success, to voice the protest of labor and all liberty loving citizens, and to further protest against this unprecedented invasion of human rights, human freedom and liberty and that the Executive Board be empowered to make suitable arrangements.

Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be furnished each delegate and that each delegate be and is hereby instructed to report back to their respective unions and that each affiliated union be requested to adopt these or similar resolutions.

REPORT OF DELEGATES A. F. OF L. CONVENTION.

were elected fraternal delegates to the next British Trade Union Congress; and President Gompers was instructed by the convention to visit that congress and such others as may be held on the continent of Europe during the coming year, for the purpose of bringing about a greater solidarity in the labor movement of this country and Europe. Jerome Jones of the International Typographical Union, who represented the Georgia State Federation of Labor, was elected fraternal delegate to the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress.

Toronto, Canada, was selected as the place for the holding of the next convention.

It is no reflection upon any of the previous conventions of the American Federation of Labor to say that there never was one so clear from pettiness, carping criticism, or personal differences as the last Denver convention. All officers and delegates approached the various problems with serious minds and high standards, and the discussions were pitched in a lofty and harmonious key. The debates were pointed, logical and eloquent. The spirit actuating the convention was that of unity, fraternity, and solidarity. The convention expressed the determination to organize the yet unorganized workers, to bring into greater harmony the united workers, and to establish and maintain the greatest general federated labor movement of our time.

In view of recent action of the courts, particularly condemning President Gompers, Vice-President Mitchell and Secretary Morrison to terms of imprisonment of twelve, nine, and six months respectively, for alleged violation of the Buck's Stove and Range Company injunction, and their maintenance of the rights of labor not only to do the things which they were enjoined from doing but also in the exercise of the freedom of the press and freedom of speech, clearly shows the wisdom of the action of the Denver convention. It is our hope that the men of labor will learn and clearly understand the lesson, and to stand true to the great cause of organized labor which in its best sense stands for universal justice and human liberty.

In conclusion, we respectfully submit the above report to the consideration of the members of the Cigar Makers' International Union, and with gratitude for the respect and confidence reposed in

Fraternally yours,

JOHN T. SMITH, SAMUEL GOMPERS,
THOS. F. TRACY, J. MAHLON BARNES,
GEO. R. FRENCH,

LE POUVOIR ECONOMIQUE LE PLUS ESSENTIEL ET LE PLUS EFFICACE.

Le mouvement des corps de métiers, fidèle à son histoire, ses traditions et ses aspirations, a fait, fait aujour'hui, et sans nulle doute, dans l'intérêt du genre humain fera plus pour humaniser la famille humaine que toutes les autres agences combinées. Consacrant nos efforts primitifs aux membres de nos organisations il n'y a pas cependant de déclaration que nous puissions faire ou d'acte que nous puissions prendre pour leur protection et leur avancement, qui n'ait sons influence bienfaisante sur les travailleurs non-organisés et sur la masse du peuple. La résistance à la réduction des gages par les travailleurs de l'union est le frein à de nouveaux empiètements sur les non-organisés. D'obtenir une augmentation de gages ou une réduction d'heures de travail par les travailleurs de l'union, c'est aussi d'assurer ces avantages au labeur non-organisé. Nous ne pouvons obtenir un acte législatif pour protéger les droits et les intérêts des organisés sans que cet acte ne comprenne également tous les travailleurs.

Notre mouvement est la barrière et le frein contre l'agression et la tyrannie d'un côté; de l'autre côté, c'est le levain pour l'élévation de tous, et c'est pourquoi le pouvoir économique et l'influence du mouvement du travail est le plus puissant. Nous avons exercé et nous continuerons à exercer notre pouvoir politique et cela aussi sans devenir partisans politiquement. Nous aspirerons à élire aux législatures nationales, d'état, et municipales, des hommes dans les rangs des travailleurs, des hommes de bonnes foi, intègres, intelligents, et sincèrement dévoués à la cause des travailleurs du peuple en général.

De quelque manière et de quelque forme les travailleurs exercent leur énergie et leur activité, commencement et résultat, l'effort est pour l'élévation de tous, quelque notre activité naturellement doit être primitivement consacrée à obtenir pour notre mouvement économique le développement de plus libre et le plus étendu.

Notre mouvement n'a demandé et ne demandera au gouvernement rien de ce que les travailleurs peuvent et devraient faire pour eux-mêmes. Le mouvement du labeur est fondé sur le principe que ce que nous faisons pour nous-mêmes, individuellement et collectivement, est bien mieux fait. C'est pourquoi, pour les travailleurs, l'exercice de leur pouvoir économique est, après tout, le plus grand et le plus efficace dont ils puissent se servir.

La possession d'un grand pouvoir économique ne veut pas dire d'en abuser, mais plutôt d'en user d'entablement. La conscience et la possession du pouvoir économique demandent responsabilité, sagesse et soin dans son usage. C'est ce qui a fait du mouvement des travailleurs un levier de force qui inspire la confiance et le respect des masses de nos travailleurs aussi bien que le support sympathique des érudits, des penseurs et de tous ceux qui aiment la liberté.

Le mouvement des travailleurs comme il est compris et exprimé par "La Federation Americaine du Labeur" est le combat historique des travailleurs. Il a apporté la lumière et l'espoir dans les manufactures, dans l'atelier, dans la vie et le foyer de nos travailleurs. Il a soutenu le choc de la bataille, et porte d'honorables cicatrices des batailles du passé. Il représente les espérances et les aspirations pour un jour serein et meilleur, non seulement pour l'avenir mais pour aujourd'hui, demain, et après-demain, chaque jour meilleur que son prédécesseur.

Le Mouvement du Labeur au Canada.

C'est avec une grande satisfaction que je rapporte les grands progrès du mouvement des travailleurs parmi nos compagnons de labeur dans le Canada. Ceux qui ont charge des affaires du mouvement tant local que provincial sont sérieux et fidèles et voient à ce que les intérêts des travailleurs sont protégés d'une manière nationale aussi bien qu'internationale.

Il est intéressant de remarquer que, malgré les efforts de ceux qui voudraient rompre les relations fraternelles, internationales et bienfaisantes qui existent parmi les travailleurs du Canada, des Etats-Unis et tout le continent

American, les liens d'union et de fraternité sont constamment et plus fermement resserrés. Les relations fréquents entre les représentants compétants de l'union avec les nôtres des deux côtés des frontières et surtout par l'ardeur de notre organisateur spécial, Mr. John T. Flett, et le travail volontaire des organisateurs de l'unification des buts et des aspirations des travailleurs amènent des résultats sensibles, économiques et bienfaisants. L'exercice des droits législatifs et politiques doit, sans doute, être toujours reconnu et concédé mutuellement.

Dans un rapport fait récemment par le secrétaire du Congrès de Commerce et de Labeur du Canada, que nous honorons et accueillons aujourd'hui parmi nous comme délégué fraternel à notre convention, Mr. P. M. Draper, dit:

"Sans exagération on peut dire qu'il n'y a jamais eu, dans l'histoire du mouvement du travail au Canada, tant de progrès dans l'organisation des travailleurs. La conscience de sa puissance quand elle est unie a balayé le pays d'un bout à l'autre et cela malgré les mêmes vieux appels au préjugé et à la cupidité, malgré les faux-rapports, les persécutions et la coercion, les forces du travail ont continué à s'unifier.

"Aujourd'hui les travailleurs organisés au Canada respirent les mêmes aspirations, entretiennent les mêmes ambitions, luttent pour la même fin, à savoir: l'élévation et l'amélioration de la masse des travailleurs qui souffrent non-seulement des coups et traits de l'outrageante fortune, mais aussi des lois injustes et oppressives, de leur administration prévenue, des barbares conditions qui environnent le travail journalier des hommes, femmes et enfants, plus que des mille maux qui affectent la chair.

Un enthousiasme illimité est la note tonique du mouvement au Canada. Dans toutes les provinces du Canada, du British Columbia à l'ouest à Nova Scotia à l'est, l'élévation a commencé. Les yeux des travailleurs se sont ouverts enfin à la futilité de dépendre sur d'autres sur eux-mêmes. Ils comprennent la nécessité de fortes organisations internationales. L'urgence d'envoyer à la législature leurs propres représentants prendre part à la formation des lois aux quelles il leur faut obéir, leur en a appelé comme jamais avant aujourd'hui, et un optimisme salutaire inspire tout le mouvement et promet les résultats les plus bienfaisants.

Les deux points saillants du mouvement du labeur au Canada en ce moment sont: Premièrement, une fidélité inébranlable à la cause de l'union internationale des métiers, et secondement la même loyauté dans l'action politique indépendante pour le support de la candidature d'un représentant du labeur.

Las uniones locales que emitan cartas circulares que se hayan rechazado por el redactor del periodico oficial, lo hacen en violación absoluta de la letra así como del sentido de la ley. La Sección 206 de la constitución dice en parte como sigue:

Sec. 206. "El periodico oficial de la Union Internacional se instituirá 'Cigar Makers' Official Journal' (Periodico Oficial de los Cigareros). Se redactará de conformidad con los principios y resoluciones de la Union Internacional. El Presidente Internacional será el redactor y publicador."

La Sección 208 dice como sigue:

Sec. 208. "Los miembros que se crean perjudicados porque el Presidente no quiera publicar sus comunicaciones tendrá el derecho de apelar a la Junta Ejecutiva Internacional cuya decisión será conclusiva."

Se verá por lo que precede que, primero, segun las leyes el Presidente Internacional es el redactor, y segundo, es su deber redactar el Journal de conformidad con los principios y resoluciones de la Union Internacional; tercero, la ley previene que los miembros que se crean perjudicados porque el redactor rehuse publicar sus comunicaciones pueden apelar a la Junta Ejecutiva, cuya decisión será conclusiva.

Las uniones que emitan cartas circulares cuya publicación haya sido rehusado, lo hacen en violación y desafío abierto de las leyes. Al cubrir los delincuentes con la capa de caridad les hemos el beneficio de la duda tocante a si sabian o no las leyes. El hombre que habla en voz más alta acerca de las leyes y que da arengas más largas con respecto a lo que debemos hacer, por lo general es él que sabe poco de las leyes y las aprecia menos. Las leyes que se han adoptado como el resultado de la larga experiencia de los unionistas sinceros, pensativos y fieles, algunas veces sufren ataques de las personas que nunca leen una constitución sino para buscar algún tecnicismo que les permitirá eludir el resultado de alguna infracción, cuyas personas no estiman de ningún modo el verdadero interés de la unión. Las leyes previenen, además, en la Sección 44, que si algún miembro o alguna unión no quede satisfecho con una decisión del Presidente Internacional, puede apelar en primer lugar a la Junta Ejecutiva y por último a un voto popular de los miembros en general. El Presidente Internacional se tiene dispuesto siempre para sostener sus decisiones si se apelan contra ellas conforme a la provisión de las leyes, pero no se cree obligado a contestar a aquellas personas que asen la ley en sus propias manos, quienes no hacen caso de las leyes de apelación si tienen quejas verdaderas o imaginadas, no muestran el respeto debido a la Junta Ejecutiva Internacional y como último ultraje no hacen caso del voto popular, el tribunal final. Aunque el Presidente Internacional invita la crítica sincera y respeta las opiniones sinceras de otras personas, él no cree que debe hacer caso de las insinuaciones sutiles y los menosprecios que se deseminan por circulares ilegales enviadas por personas que profesan representar el tipo que se llama más alto de la existencia socializada. Estas personas tienen la costumbre de dar las leyes que quieran, se constituyen si mismos como el tribunal, el juez, el jurado y los arbitros finales en cualquiera dificultad sin hacer caso de las leyes que previenen para la apelación hasta el voto popular, cuya decisión la ley dice es conclusiva, y esto se hace cuando se crea conveniente para ganar un privilegio injusto a otras personas a quienes no pueden dominar y a quienes esperan destruir. Las leyes dicen claramente que al poner una cuestión a voto popular y al decidirla por aquella autoridad más alta, los miembros en general en su capacidad suprema, dicha decisión será conclusiva. El fin y motivo indisputable de esta ley prudente y benéfica es que una vez se haya resuelto una cuestión de este modo, los malcontentos, perturbadores, reaccionarios y candidatos contrariados no puedan continuar sus disputas y disensiones en la Unión Internacional. Nuestras leyes son las mejores que existen en cualquiera organización de oficios del mundo, pues protegen los derechos de todo miembro por el privilegio de apelar al voto popular, y aquellos que no quieran someterse a estas leyes magníficas no son dignos de gobernar, ni aun de aconsejar; no son honrados con sus contrarios ni con la organización y sus leyes, y mal representan y mal respetan su organización con una impunidad que procede de un desprecio premeditado de los derechos de sus prójimos. El Presidente Internacional queda preparado para sostener cualquiera decisión aún hasta voto popular; convida á críticos honrados para una discusión franca y abierta de todas las cuestiones de la unión. Pero él somete que no es justo dar oídos á las insinuaciones ó acusaciones de cualquiera clase que se hagan y circulen contra alguien, á menos que sean de conformidad con nuestras leyes y á menos que cada parte á cualquiera controversia tenga la oportunidad de explicar su posición. Cualquiera miembro ó gremio que tenga dudas ó temores tocante á cualquiera cuestión que trata de los derechos de un miembro ó gremio ó de la Unión Internacional en general, nos hará un favor escribiendo á la oficina central, y en tal caso siempre recibirá una contestación atenta con toda la información que sea posible obtener.

Siempre el escuchar ambas partes de una cuestión antes de determinar, es una buena regla para gobierno en una organización de trabajadores.

La ley no pone al Presidente Internacional como un autócrata ó juez final, ni hace á la Junta Ejecutiva Internacional el tribunal final, pero de veras le ley hace á los miembros mismos en su capacidad suprema el tribunal de recurso final, y ningún miembro ó gremio tiene derecho de seguir otro modo de procedimiento.

Al quitar el derecho de radactor de rehusar comunicaciones, ningún miembro, oficial ó gremio estaría seguro de los ataques de malcontentos y enemigos maliciosos. Se llenaría el Journal con los acusaciones y contra-acusaciones que muy pronto destruirían toda confianza, toda fraternidad, y toda seguridad en la solidez de la Unión Internacional.

Para la información de los miembros en general, permitámonos avisarles que no rehusamos más de dos cartas al año como promedio. Y SE DEBEN ACORDARSE QUE REHUSAMOS Á TANTAS QUE ESTAN ESCRITAS EN ALABANZA DE LA ADMINISTRACION COMO A AQUELLAS QUE ATACAN A LOS OFICIALES. Hemos rehusado artículos que alababan al Presidente Internacional si contenían algo ofensivo ó injusto con respecto á otra persona. Tenemos varias cartas llenas de aprobación de la oficina Internacional y de los oficiales en los archivos de esta oficina que no hemos publicado, y si cualquier miembro ó gremio duda esta declaración, pede nombrar su propia comisión para verlas.

El redactor trata de obrar justamente en proteger los derechos de todos los miembros y gremios en el rechazar ciertas comunicaciones. Las personas que escriban cartas calumniosas deben acordarse que hay otras que pueden y están dispuestas de vengarse. La única regla segura parece la que ahora existe, conforme á nuestras leyes actuales, bajo la cual un redactor justo protege los derechos de todos, y impide á la vil calumnia que resultaría en la destrucción de toda confianza, y que perjudicaría á todas las personas interesadas.

El Movimiento del Trabajo en Puerto Rico.

Hemos continuado nuestros esfuerzos para ayudar á nuestros compañeros y á la gente en general de Puerto Rico tanto que las oportunidades hayan permitido. Con otros representantes de la unión, hemos hecho visitas en Puerto Rico, y también hemos trabajado por medio de correspondencia, y literatura enviadas allí, así como por medio del servicio permanente de un organizador competente, con quien cooperan algunos de los organizadores voluntarios. Hay un espíritu de solidaridad entre la gente allí, y su simpatía con los ideales americanos ha producido buenos resultados.

No puedo hacer mejor que cotiar aquí el informe de nuestro organizador allí, el representante del movimiento de organización en la Isla de Santiago Iglesias:

"La Federación Americana de Trabajo es al presente el único recurso del cual esperamos obtener la libertad, la justicia y la felicidad, no solamente para los trabajadores, sino para la gente en general en Puerto Rico."

La organización de los trabajadores en Puerto Rico ha sido, sin duda alguna, y aún es, el modo mejor y más seguro para comunicar los sentimientos é ideas de la gente Norte-americana á los corazones de la gente de Puerto Rico. Si la gente de Puerto Rico llega á ser americanos, la única institución responsable por este resultado sería la Federación Americana de Trabajo. Los "trusts," los monopolios y las combinaciones capitalísticas se han importado de los Estados Unidos para explotar la inexperience y la infelicidad de los rancheros y trabajadores en general, con el motivo de construir grandes fortunas con el producto del trabajo barato. Ninguna de estas instituciones podrá jamás transformar los puertorriqueños en americanos. Las ideas americanas que existan ahora entre los puertorriqueños se deben al trabajo, á la fidelidad y la bondad de la Federación Americana de Trabajo, así como á sus principios de justicia, y á la ayuda que hemos recibido, y lo que pueda hacer para nosotros en lo futuro.

Auflehnung wider das Gesetz.

Untergeordnete Gewerkschaften, welche als Rundschreiben Briefe aussenden, welche von dem Redacteur des amtlichen Journals zurückgewiesen worden waren, thun dies in offener Verletzung von Geist und Buchstaben des Gesetzes. Section 206 der Verfassung lautet theilweise, wie folgt: "Sekt. 206. Das Amtsblatt der Internationalen Gewerkschaft soll den Titel tragen "Cigar Makers' Official Journal". Es soll in Uebereinstimmung mit den Prinzipien und den Beschlüssen der Internationalen Gewerkschaft redigiert werden. Der Internationale Präsident soll sein Schriftleiter und Herausgeber sein."

Section 208 lautet, wie folgt:

"Section 208. Mitglieder, welche sich dadurch getränkt fühlen, daß der Präsident sich weigert, ihre Zuschriften zu veröffentlichen, sollen das Recht der Berufung an die Internationale Vollziehungsbehörde haben, und deren Entscheid soll endgültig sein."

Aus dem Vorstehenden kann man ersehen, daß das Gesetz erstlich den Präsidenten zum Schriftleiter ernannt, und es zweitens ihm zur Pflicht macht, das "Journal" in Uebereinstimmung mit den Prinzipien und den Beschlüssen der Internationalen Gewerkschaft herauszugeben. Drittens, daß es die Bestimmung enthält, daß Mitglieder, welche sich durch eine Weigerung des Schriftleiters, ihre Zuschriften zu veröffentlichen, getränkt fühlen, Berufung bei der Vollziehungsbehörde einreichen können, deren Entscheidung dann endgültig sein soll.

Untergeordnete Gewerkschaften, welche Rundschreiben aussenden, welchen die Veröffentlichung verweigert worden war, und dies thun, ohne Berufung bei der Vollziehungsbehörde eingereicht zu haben, thun das in offener Verletzung und Nichtachtung der Gesetze. Indem wir diese Schuldigen mit dem Mantel der Liebe bedecken, haben wir ihnen die Wohlthat des Zweifels darüber andeuten lassen, ob sie die Gesetze kannten oder nicht. Der Mann, der am Lautesten über die Gesetze spricht und die langatmigsten Tiraden darüber losläßt, weiß gewöhnlich am Wenigsten darüber und giebt selbst wenig um diese Gesetze. Gesetze, welche als das Ergebnis einer Lebenserfahrung von wohlmeinenden, nachdenkenden und getreuen Gewerkschaftlern geschaffen worden sind, werden manchmal von denen angegriffen, die sich niemals eine Verfassung durchlesen, es sei denn, um in ihr eine Technikalität zu finden, mit deren Hilfe sie aus einem bösen Loch herauskriechen können; diese Leute geben auch nicht mehr um die wirkliche Wohlfahrt der Gewerkschaft, als um ein Butterbrot. Die Gesetze schreiben weiterhin in Section 44 vor, daß Mitglieder, welche mit irgend einer Entscheidung des Internationalen Präsidenten unzufrieden sind, zuerst Berufung bei der Internationalen Vollziehungsbehörde und dann bei der ganzen Mitgliedschaft, von der sie eine Urabstimmung verlangen, einlegen können. Der Internationale Präsident ist aber zu jeder Zeit bereit, seine Entscheidungen zu vertreten, wenn gegen diese in Uebereinstimmung mit den Gesetzen Berufung eingelegt wird, sieht sich aber nicht veranlaßt, denen Antwort zu geben, welche das Gesetz in ihre eigene Hand nehmen und bei jeder eingebildeten oder wirklichen Kränkung die Bestimmungen über die Berufung außer Acht lassen, sich über die Köpfe der Mitglieder der Internationalen Vollziehungsbehörde hinweg ihre eigenen Bestimmungen machen und schließlich das Ganze direkt dadurch beleidigen, daß sie die Urabstimmung als endgültigen Gerichtshof gänzlich mißachten. Während der Internationale Präsident eine ehrliche Kritik gern sieht und die ehrlichen Meinungen Anderer hochhält, sieht er sich doch nicht gehalten, schlaue abgefeimte versteckte Andeutungen und Sticheleien zu beachten, welche durch gefeindliche Pamphlete von denen weit verbreitet werden, welche unter dem Vorgeben, daß sie den höchsten Typus der sozialisierten Existenz vertreten, gewohnheitsmäßig das Gesetz in ihre eigene Hand nehmen, sich selbst als das Ganze betrachten, und Richter, Geschworene und endgültige Schiedsrichter in irgend einer Schwierigkeit dadurch zu spielen versuchen, daß sie das Gesetz, welches eine Berufung sogar an die Urabstimmung vorschreibt, welche nach dem Gesetze den Abschluß bilden muß, links liegen lassen, und welche diese Urabstimmung immer außer Acht lassen, wenn es ihnen dazu geeignet erscheint, einen unbilligen Vortheil über diejenigen zu erzielen, welche sie nicht ausnützen können, und welche sie deshalb aus dem Wege zu schaffen hoffen. Das Gesetz sagt deutlich, daß eine Frage, welche der Urabstimmung unterbreitet und dann von der höchsten Autorität, nämlich der gesamten Mitgliedschaft, in ihrer souveränen Stellung entschieden wird, damit auch endgültig entschieden ist. Die Bedeutung und der unbezweifelte Zweck dieses weisen und wohlthätigen Gesetzes ist es, daß nach der Erledigung einer solchen Frage nicht ein oder mehrere Dickköpfe, Unzufriedene, Reaktionsäre oder enttäuschte Amtsklüsterer im Stande sein sollen, die Internationale Gewerkschaft immer und ewig auf der Höhe des Streites und der Uneinigkeit zu erhalten. Unsere Gesetze sind von all denen, unter welchen irgend eine Arbeitergewerkschaft in der Welt steht, die gerechtesten, da sie das Recht eines jeden einzelnen Mitgliedes auf Berufung auf die Urabstimmung gewährleisten, und diejenigen, welche diese prächtigen Gesetze nicht anerkennen oder ihnen nicht gehorchen wollen, sind nicht dazu geeignet, die Führrstellung einzunehmen, ja noch nicht einmal dazu geeignet, Anderen einen beachtenswerthen Rath zu geben; sie sind unbillig ihren mannhaften Gegnern gegenüber, unbillig dem Verbands gegenüber und ebenso auch den Gesetzen gegenüber, welche sie falsch auslegen und mißachten mit einer Unverfrorenheit, welche aus einer abfälligen Mißachtung der Rechte Anderer und von Recht und Gerechtigkeit entspringt. Der Internationale Präsident ist bereit, jede Entscheidung zu vertreten, und müßte es darüber zur Urabstimmung kommen; er fordert zu einer ehrlichen Kritik und zu einer offenen und ehrlichen Besprechung aller die Gewerkschaft berührenden Fragen heraus. Er behauptet aber, daß es ungerecht ist, wenn Jemand sein Ohr Anklagen oder Andeutungen leiht, welche gegen einen Anderen erhoben und in Umlauf gebracht werden, es sei denn, daß diese Anklagen in Uebereinstimmung und Einklang mit unseren Gesetzen erhoben werden, und daß jede Seite die Möglichkeit hat, sich auszusprechen. Ein Mitglied oder eine untergeordnete Gewerkschaft, welche über irgend eine die Mitglieder oder die einzelnen Gewerkschaften oder die Internationale Gewerkschaft berührende Frage im Unklaren oder im Zweifel ist, řít uns einen Gefallen, wenn sie sich schriftlich an das Hauptquartier wenden, und wenn das geschieht, dann wird stets eine höfliche Antwort mit aller nur erreichbaren Aufklärung erfolgen.

Zimmer beide Seiten anzuhören und dann das Urtheil zu fällen, ist ein vorzüglicher Grundsatz zur Befolgung in allen Arbeiterorganisationen.

Das Gesetz stellt den Internationalen Präsidenten nicht als Autokraten oder Richter der letzten Instanz hin, auch macht es nicht die Internationale Vollziehungsbehörde zum letzten und unfehlbaren Gerichtshof, sondern das Gesetz sieht in der ganzen Mitgliedschaft in ihrer souveränen Eigenschaft den allerhöchsten und ausschlaggebenden Gerichtshof, und keine Einzelgewerkschaft und kein Einzelmitglied hat das Recht, für sich selbst eine andere Methode des Vorgehens zu schaffen.

Nimmt man das Recht dem Schriftleiter fort, gewissen Zuschriften die Aufnahme zu verweigern, dann würde kein Einzelmitglied, kein Beamter und keine Einzelgewerkschaft vor Angriffen von Mißvergnügten und hämischen Feinden sicher sein. Das Journal würde mit endlosen Klagen und Gegenklagen angefüllt sein, und das würde sehr bald alles Vertrauen, jedes Gefühl der Brüderlichkeit und jedes Gefühl der Sicherheit für das Bestehen der Internationalen Gewerkschaft zerstören.

Zur Aufklärung der Mitglieder möchten wir sagen, daß wir durchschnittlich noch kaum zwei Briefen im Jahre die Aufnahme verweigern. Und dann bitten wir daran zu denken, daß wir ebenso viele zurückweisen, welche das Lob der gegenwärtigen Administration fingen, als solche, welche die gegenwärtigen Beamten angreifen. Wir haben Artikel zurückgewiesen, welche den Internationalen Präsidenten hoch priesen, wenn sie irgendwie anstößig waren oder einen ungerechten Angriff auf irgend einen Anderen enthielten. Wir haben in unserer Redaktion eine Anzahl Briefe liegen, welche voll von Lob für den Internationalen Vorstand und seine Beamten sind, die wir nicht beröfentlichten, die wir aber gern irgend einem Mitgliede oder irgend einer Einzelgewerkschaft vorlegen, welche Zweifel in die bestehende Behauptung setzen, und sie können zu ihrer Durchsicht auch noch ihren eigenen Ausschuß ernennen.

Der Schriftleiter sucht bei der Schätzung der Rechte aller Mitglieder und Gewerkschaften und bei der Zurückweisung von Zuschriften recht und billig zu handeln. Diejenigen, welche verleumderische Briefe schreiben, sollten daran denken, daß es andere Leute giebt, welche bereit, willens und fähig sind, den Fieb auriß zu geben. Die einzige sichere Maßregel dafür scheint uns die in unseren jetzigen Gesetzen enthaltene zu sein, welche, unter einem billigen denkenden Schriftleiter, die Rechte aller schützt und etelchaste Verleumdung und nutzloses Dreckschleudern unmöglich macht. Wäre das aber gestattet, so würde es alles Vertrauen zerstören und würde allen Vetheiligten unheilbaren Schaden zufügen.

Začneme všichni Nový rok s pevným odhodláním získati více členů, sesilati a zvelebiti naše unie, pěstovati laskavého ducha vůči všemu lidstvu, býti papskem slunečna a ne "kopalem" a jako unionisté činiti nejvíce možného dobra největšímu počtu bez ohledu na vlastní zájmy.

PROTIVENSTVÍ ZÁKONU.

Místní unie, jež rozesílají dopisy v oběžníkové formě, které byly odmrštěny redaktorem úředního časopisu, činí tak ve zřejmém rozporu s písmenou a úmyslem zákona. Odstavec 206 hlavních stanov z části zní, jak následuje:

Odstavec 206. "Úřední časopis mezinárodní Unie budiž označen Úřední časopis doovníkářů. Tem budiž řízen v soulasu se zásadami a usnesením Mezinárodní Unie. Mezinárodní předseda budiž redaktorem a vydavatelem."

Odstavec 208 zní, jak následuje:

Odstavec 208. "Členové, kteří se domnívají, že jim bylo ukrivdno předsedou odepřením uveřejnění jejich dopisů, mají právo odvolati se k Mezinárodní výkonné radě, jejíž rozhodnutí bude konečným."

Povímněte si z předchozího, že první zákony ustanovují mezinárodního předsedu redaktorem, a za druhé ukládají mu za povinnost říditi časopis v soulahu se zásadami a usnesením Me-zinárodní Unie. Za třetí činí opatření, že členové, kteří se domnívají, že jim bylo ukrivdno odepřením uveřejnění jejich dopisů, mohou se odvolati k výkonné radě, jejíž rozhodnutí bude konečným.

Unie, které rozesílají oběžníkové dopisy, jichž uveřejnění bylo odmrštěno, aniž by se odvolaly k výkonné radě, porušují zřejmý zákon a protivi se mu. My však na prospěch těch provinilců předpokládáme, že dopustili se přestupku z neznalosti zákona. Tem, kdo nejhlásitěji mluví o zákonech a vykládá nejděle, co by se mělo státi, obyčejně nejméně ví o zákonech a nejméně dbá, co za povinnosti ukládají. Zákony, které byly přijaty po celoživotní zkušenosti dobře smýšlejících věrných a rozvázných unionistů, jsou často napadány těmi, kdož mečetli stanovy, leč aby tam našli nějakou technickou trhlínu, kterou by se mohli protáhnouti a kteří nemají nejmenšího porozumění pro nejlepší zájmy unie. Zákony činí dále opatření, v odstavci 44, že, je-li nějaký člen neb unie nespokojena s rozhodnutím mezinárodního předsedy, mohou se odvolati napřed k Mezinárodní výkonné radě a konečně k celkovému hlasování členstva. Mezinárodní předseda je vždycky hotov hájiti své rozhodnutí, když podáno jest proti němu odvolání v soulahu se známým zákonem, ale míní, že jest nucen odpovídati těm, kdož bérout zákon do svých vlastních rukou a kteří při každé domněle neb skutečně krivdě ignorují zákony dovolující odvolání, kráčí přes hlavy Mezinárodní výkonné rady a na konec uráží ignorováním celkového hlasování nejvyšší instancí. Kdežto mezinárodní předseda rád se podrobí poctivé kritice a váží si poctivého mínění jiných, on není toho náhledu, že měl by si všimati chytrácký stylisovaných insinací, které jsou šířeny nezákonitými oběžníky těmi, kdož vyhláší o sobě, že představují tak zvaný nejvyšší typ socialisované existence, jako ze zvyku bérout zákon do vlastních rukou, ustaví se jako soudce, porota a nejvyšší rozhodčí v každém nedorozumění, ignorováním zákonů, jež jasně činí opatření pro odvolání, i k hlasování všeho členstva, o němž stanovy praví, že jest konečným, a kteří vždycky ignorují celkové hlasování, když se jim to hodí do krámu a když mohou nabýti nesprávné výhody nad těmi, jichž jest nemohou používat za své nástroje a jež doufají zničiti.

Zákon jasně ustanovuje, že když nějaká otázka dána jest k rozhodnutí celkovému hlasování a jest rozhodnuta nejvyšší autoritou všeho členstva, že toto rozhodnutí bude závazným. Úmysl a nesporný účel tohoto moudrého a blahoděrného zákona jest, aby když nějaká otázka jest konečně vyřízena tím neb oním způsobem, nespokojenci, zpátečníci a zklamání úředlovci nemohli neustále udržovati Mezinárodní unii ve viru sporů a nesvárů. Naše zákony jsou ty nejspravedlivější, jež ovládají kteroukoli dělnickou organizaci na světě, zabezpečující práva každého jednotlivého člena zaručením práva odvolání ku všemu členstvu a ti, kdož nechtějí poslouchati a zachovávat tyto znamenité zákony, nehodí se, aby stáli v čele, ba ani by rady dávali; oni jsou nespravedliví vůči mužným odpůrcům, nespravedliví vůči organizaci a její zákonům, které překrucují a jichž nedbají s beztrápností, vyplývající z bezohlednosti vůči právům jiných a opovrhováním veškerým správným jednáním. Mezinárodní předseda jest hotov hájiti každé rozhodnutí, i před celkovým hlasováním; on vítá poctivou kritiku a otevřenou a upřímnou rozpravu o všech otázkách týkajících se unie. Avšak on tvrdí, že je to nesprávné propůjčiti sluchu insinucím a obviněním jakéhokoli druhu činěným a cirkulovaným proti komukoli, leč když činěna jsou v soulahu se zákony a když každá strana ve sporu měla příležitost býti vyslechnuta. Má-li nějaký člen neb unie pochybnost ohledně kterékoli unionové otázky, jež by se dotýkala práv člena neb unie neb Mezinárodní Unie, prokáže laskavost když dopíše do hlavní úřadovny, a když tak učiní, obdrží vždycky zdvořilou odpověď s všemi možnými informacemi. Vyšlyšte vždycky obě strany a pak rozhodněte, jest znamenitým pravidlem k následování v dělnické organizaci.

Zákon nečiní Mezinárodního předsedu žádným

samovládcem aniž nejvyšším soudcem a také nečiní Mezinárodní výkonnou radu nejvyšším soudním dvorem, nýbrž zákon činí členstvo, v jeho svrchovaném právomoci, soudem posledního útočiště a žádný člen aniž unie nemají právo zafiditi nějakou jinou proceduru sami pro sebe.

Vezměte redaktoru právo odmítnuti dopisy a žádný člen, úředník neb unie nebudou bezpečni před útoky škorpilů a mativých nepřátel. Úřední časopis byl by pak pln obvinění a protiobvinění, která by brzy zničila všecku důvěru, bratrské city a vědomí jistoty ve stálost Mezinárodní Unie.

Pro informaci členstva dovolte nám říci, že neodmítneme do roka průměrně ani dva dopisy. A rovněž pamatujte, že odmítneme uveřejnění zrovna tolik dopisů, které chválí administraci, jako těch, jež napadají úředníky. My odmítni jeme články, jež chválily mezinárodního předsedu, když obsahovaly něco, co bylo nepřijemné neb neoprávněný útok na kohokoli jiného. My máme značný počet dopisů, plných chvály pro mezinárodní úřadovnu a úředníky nyní zachovaných v této kanceláři, jež jsme neuveřejnili a jež ukážíme každému členu neb unii, kde by se vyskytly pochybnosti o této výpovědi a mohou si jmenovat svůj vlastní výbor k jich přezkoumání.

Redaktor chce býti spravedlivým ve obráně všech členů a umí př. odmítnuti dopisů. Ti, kdož píší urážlivé dopisy sem, měli by si pamatovati, že jsou jiní, kteří jsou ochotni, schopni a hotovi uhoditi zpět. Jediným bezpečným pravidlem zdá se býti ono, které je v platnosti nyní v našich přítomných zákonech, jež při nestranném redaktoru, chrání práva všech a zabráňují ohybným pomluvám a neuzitečnému házení blátem, jež, kdyby bylo dovoleno, brzy zničilo by všecku důvěru a způsobilo nenapravitelné poškození všem stranám.

NOTICE.

Tom A. Wood (106617) for altering figures the second time is hereby expelled as per Section 109. This party was initiated October 3, 1903, at Springfield, Mo. His card was duplicated at Kalamazoo, Mich. Secretaries are requested to confiscate his card on presentation. He is a man about 5 feet 10 inches, about 30 years old, smooth face and talks with a southern accent, hair inclined to be sandy with a sprinkling of gray about the temples; nice smooth talker; keeps eyes partly shut.

NOTICE.

J. Andrews (51722) for having altered figures the second time is expelled and as he forged the names of several secretaries, officers are requested to have him arrested on sight, and the means for vigorous prosecution to land him in the penitentiary will be furnished. He is described as a man 25 years old, dark complexion, about 5 feet 8 inches and weighs about 165 pounds. Examine carefully all loan cards.

NOTICE TO OFFICERS AND MEMBERS.

In printing the nineteenth edition of the Constitution, an omission occurs in Section 77, on line 7. A comma and the words "and local assessments" should follow "International assessments." The sentence to read: "All International assessments, and local assessments levied for label agitation purposes." This amendment as published in another place is correct.

Any secretary knowing one C. Lewis, who has a blue card, please correspond with secretary Chas. Gerold, No. 122, Warren, Pa. A man beat a board bill of $3.00, left last August without his card. We hold his blue card, No. 1580. Joined July, 1908, No. 166, Defiance.

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES.

The amendment adopted to Sections 76 and 77 does away with the issuance of retiring cards to all who continue to pay dues as beneficiary members.

Retiring cards are only for those who pay up and actually terminate all connection with the union, insofar as the payment of dues is concerned.

Members who transfer from the 30-cent list to the 20-cent beneficiary membership list are simply changed from one class to another and deducted from one and added to the other.

Members who have not paid 30-cent dues for three years and quitting the trade under Section 76 and wishing to qualify for Section 77 as a beneficiary member should be kept on without any other change than to make a note of the intention on the ledger page. If such member desires to travel to another jurisdiction he should be given a transfer card and his intention to qualify as a 20-cent beneficiary member written on the transfer card. Such beneficiary members are not entitled to any benefits except sick benefits after one year's membership and whatever death benefits their term of membership entitles them to.

To Financial Secretaries.

NOTICE.

If you hold any loan cards of no further use send them to this office.

Before granting or accepting retiring cards secretaries and members should consult Sections 76 and 77 of the Constitution.

NOTICE.—How to duplicate Loan Cards.

It frequently occurs that new secretaries through error or lack of knowledge, transfer the amount a member "has coming" instead of what he owes. In duplicating a card, figure up all the member has borrowed and subtract all he has paid, and if there is a balance against the member transfer to new card in red ink in figures and letters the amount due the International Union. Also enter on new card all that may be essential that you find on the old, then sign and seal it. Send the old card to the International office.

MEMBERS OUT OF WORK ARE NOT ENTITLED TO THE SIXTEEN WEEKS' PRIVILEGE IN DUES UNLESS THEY NOTIFY THE SECRETARY WEEKLY BEFORE THE EIGHTH WEEK. THIS INCLUDES TRAVELING MEMBERS, WHO SHOULD ALWAYS CARRY A CERTIFICATE AND HAVE SAME SIGNED WEEKLY.

Items for the Journal should be placed on separate slips of paper—not the backs of reports, etc.—in order to insure prompt publication, and should reach this office not later than the 10th of each month if intended for current publication.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address, if possible, so as to obviate delays, mistakes, etc. This is important.

In reporting deaths, kindly comply with the following and you will save time and unnecessary work: Give full name, number, date and place of initiation of member. Has member held retiring card? If so, did he pay his dues? This information relates only to such as you can obtain from the records of your own union. If admitted by card, state when and where from, and in addition send in such card, but place on your letter the information necessary, as the latter is filed as a matter of record. Before paying death benefits study Sections 145 and 151, inclusive. Send in a death blank properly filled out for all death benefits paid.

If secretaries when ordering supplies will place the order on the regular blank, it will greatly simplify the work here and avoid unnecessary delay for those who order the supplies. We receive an average of 300 pieces of mail in the office daily. Sometimes an order is sandwiched into a two or three-page letter containing three or more different subjects, and there is danger in such cases of an order being overlooked. Hence we ask that in order to save unnecessary delay and annoyance the order on the regular blank, giving your name and address.

This shall apply to jurisdiction towns within a radius of ten miles." The appeal was sustained.

Thomas M. Carroll appealed against Union 97, Boston, Mass., for discriminating against members out of employment, not drawing international benefits. Keep Away From Boston.

Boston, Mass., March 25, 1909.

For the first time in our history we are compelled to warn travelers in quest of work to keep away, we have at this writing three hundred men out of work and no jobs in sight.

There has been such distress this winter that assessments aggregating thirteen dollars and fifty cents were levied upon every man at work and another is pending.

We have so many of our own members out of work that it is impossible to render any assistance whatsoever to travelers.

To be forewarned is to be forearmed.

There are no chances of work here.

Per order Executive Board,
Henry Abrahams, Sec'y.

CORRESPONDENCE

Westfield, Mass., March 18, 1909.

The advocates of the amendments offered by Union 42, Hartford, Conn., are evidently ashamed of the illegitimate child they have brought into the world. They have not the moral courage to defend their offspring, and are endeavoring to bolster up their case by resorting to falsehood, misrepresentation and evasion. The arrogance and bluster displayed in referring to the arbitration clause in the constitution is the outgrowth of ignorance and confusion.

Twenty-five years ago the Cigar Makers' International Union was not confronted with the dangers which surround it now. The American Cigar Company, backed by the still more powerful corporation, the American Tobacco Company, was not in existence. The so-called "United Cigar Manufacturers," another powerful corporation, with a capital of twenty million dollars, were unknown.

The "United Cigar Stores," a branch of the American Tobacco Company, which is gradually absorbing the retail cigar trade of the country, by opening up new stores constantly in every section of the country, was a stranger to us twenty-five years ago.

The powerful combination of cigar manufacturers of Tampa and Key West, Fla., with drastic rules in reference to strikes and lock-outs, was not in sight.

The Island of Porto Rico, with its cheap and efficient labor in one craft, of which over one half is controlled by the American Cigar Company, was still a province of Spain twenty-five years ago.

There are other dangers lurking in the pathway, which will be mentioned from time to time.

Anybody who pretends to believe that the Cigar Makers' International Union will have smooth sailing for the next ten years to come, is laboring under a most serious delusion.

Bluster and flim-flamming of the rank and file does not constitute leadership; neither does it represent any constructive force. It lives from hand to mouth, preying upon its victims like the spider upon the fly, and blown to atoms when the first storm appears upon the horizon.

A chain of benefits backed by a sound financial system and an ample reserve fund are important features in a trade's union. But without common sense leadership, the strongest trade's union cannot maintain its strength and usefulness.

By underestimating the resources of the employers, financially and otherwise, and overestimating their own power, local unions destroyed union factories of old standing, setting the cigar makers adrift to shift for themselves.

With proper amendments to the arbitration clause, which will enlarge its usefulness, many dangers now in sight can be minimized and probably avoided.

Yours fraternally,
A. Strasser.

Pessimism and the Labor Movement.

The following paragraphs taken from the Bakers' Journal, the official organ of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers Int. Union of America, furnishes food for deep thought, and reflection. This union, and its Journal, has the reputation of holding strong so-called radical, or socialistic, predilections, its utterances are therefore all the more significant.

I quote the original German, in which the paragraphs appeared:

„Die Zahl der Pessimisten in der Arbeiterbewegung ist nicht nur weit größer, als angenommen wird, sondern sie wächst, besonders unter den Deutschen, in einem ganz ungeheuerlichen Maßstabe. Wo sind sie hingekommen, die Vielen, die noch vor Jahren eifrig mitwirkten an dem Aufbau und Ausbau der neuen Klassenbewegung der Arbeiterklasse? Viele sind total verspiegelt, nur die Wenigen halten allenfalls noch insofern Fühlung mit dem Organisationswesen, daß sie die eine oder andere radikale Zeitung lesen. So schreibt die „Freiheit“.

Wenn man rückwärts schaut, so findet man, daß diese Zurückzieher im Verlaufe der Zeit immer beliebter wurde. Während früher einer durchschnittlich zehn Jahre in der Bewegung ausharrte, konnte man später schon zufrieden sein, wenn man fünf Jahre lang die nämlichen Genossen im Gesichtskreise sah! Heute dauert die Aktivität vieler Genossen in der Regel höchstens zwei Jahre!

Manchmal begegnen wir solchen Verschwundenen im Wirtshaus, und wenn wir sie wegen ihres indifferenten Verhaltens zur Rede stellen, so entzücken sie sich als total vergiftete Gewerkschaftler, oder als Garnichtser. Aus ihren Entschuldigungsreden, sofern sie solche noch überhaupt der Mühe werth erachten, klingt ein Pessimismus heraus, welcher im höchsten Grade unwürdig und verächtlich ist.

Wer recht imponierend auftreten will, fündigt an, daßer gewiß am Plage sein werde, „wenn es einmal losgeht“. Die übrigen schimpfen wie die Rohrspäßen über diverse Personen, welche innerhalb der Arbeiterbewegung sich befinden, und die sie im Handumdrehen mit den Bestrebungen derselben, mit dem ganzen historischen Beruf des Proletariats als Gesellschaftsklasse identifizieren. Nach ihrer Ansicht ist Jedermann, der mit den Arbeiterparteien im Zusammenhang steht, verblumt, die Bewegung ist „für die Katz“, das Ziel zu erreichen, die ganze Menschheit eine verrückte Rottz u. s. w.

The sense and subject matter of the above translated into plain English is as follows:

„The number of pessimists in the labor movement is not only much larger than is generally admitted, but is growing at a tremendous rate, especially among the Germans. What has become of the many who only a few years ago were most active in the up-building of the new class-conscious movement of the workers; only a few still keep up a casual interest in the movement by reading one or another of the radical organs. When one looks over the past, it is found that this backsliding has grown more and more popular as time advanced. In the past active participation by individuals in the movement averaged about ten years; later this activity fell to five years; today many of our comrades hold their activity for but two years. Occasionally we meet some of those who have vanished, in a bar room, and when we call them to account for their indifference they either unmask as complete „pure and simple unionists,“ or non-entities. In their excuses, if at all they think it worth excusing, there sounds a note of pessimism that is unworthy, and contemptible to the highest degree; some boastfully announce that they will be on hand when the thing is once let loose, the rest content themselves with „knocking“ (like common scolds) various individuals within the ranks and who do not fully come up to their identification of the proletariat in society. According to their view everyone connected with the labor parties is on the „bum,“ the movement itself is to the dogs, the object never attainable, and the whole human race a disreputable mob.“

The article then continues in deploring this depressing tendency; vainly tries to explain it, and founders about seeking its cause. The Bakers' Journal (being familiar with socialist philosophy) need not go far to find the cause.

It is found right at home. The socialist doctrines founded upon the Marxian philosophy, breeds a fatalism, destructive of hopeful accomplishment in the minds of many men; naturally pessimism, misanthropy and despair, gradually absorbs their mentality, and calamity howling, coupled with physical inertia, fills up their temperament and disposition. And we cannot justly censure them, either; they are but the fruit grown from the seed. The socialist cult in its propaganda from Marx, and his disciples, down to the present day, spread this preachment, and doctrine; they proclaim that the modern capitalistic system of society is „rotten to the core,“ that it has a debasing, enslaving, degenerating effect upon mankind, making of us all a motley crew of rogues, scoundrels, etc., and a pack of hungry dogs fighting and snarling over the bones of a gross materialistic existence. In the same breath in which this is proclaimed, crime, greed, extortion, poverty and tyranny, is very fiercely denounced and pilloried; but in the final analysis the criminal the extortionist, the oppressor, the scab, even the heartless capitalistic exploiter of labor, is commiserated as a victim of an outrageous system of society. They cannot be blamed. They say the system compels it, thus the promptings of conscience are silenced by the convenient expedient of blaming it all on the system. How can such a doctrine produce anything but pessimism and misery. How can anyone harbor ennobling thoughts, lofty aspirations, or a courageous, hopeful resolve to apply his energy in joyous endeavor toward a better world, when such a harrowing black picture is forever held up before his mental vision.

Most minds are able to withstand its nefarious, baneful influence, and retain a feeling of optimism and hopeful interest in mankind. It is due to this power of resistance in the most of us that progress is made, and that the world is today better than it has ever been in all recorded history. But there are also some, less strong, and easily swayed, who soon give way to its blighting effects. It is of such the Bakers' Journal makes its lamentations. Woe! is to youthful, sensitive, impressionable persons, who let their minds become absorbed and carried away with the fallacies and snares of such a philosophy. They are lost—lost to the world, a nuisance to their fellows, and a burden to themselves. The end inevitably is an intolerant fanatic, or a perverted and morbid intellect. The doctrine of Marxian socialism also teaches that in the final analysis, force will be required to execute its tenets, and put in practice its theories. Logical minds will deduce from this that constitutional, peaceful efforts, through the ballot, are a waste of time and energy, since force will be necessary finally. Nevertheless, thus is produced the anarchist in our labor movement. The Socialist cult also teaches, that the present capitalistic system carries within itself the germs of its own destruction; that the ever narrowing cycle of repeated panics, with the progressive augmentation in the exploitation of labor by capital, and the breaking down of commerce in the life, and death struggle of competition for possession of the markets of the world, by all the nations of the earth, will force the crisis. Then the present system will break down of its own weight, and inherent rottenness; upon the wreck, and ruin, of which will be reared a new, and radically different, system and condition of society.

All this we are told is bound to come to pass, is inevitable, the inexorably fatal working of the present system permits of no other conclusion. Whether we like it or not, regardless too whether we do anything against it or for it, likewise also will any attempt at amelioration, or reformatory modification meet with failure. The logical easy going thinker will conclude from this teaching, the utter uselessness of any active interest, or participation in that line, he will say, oh! what's the use, the thing is bound to come off anyhow, it would therefore be foolish to waste either time, talent, energy, or means in its consummation, 'twere better to take things easy and wait until the social cataclysm comes of its own accord. The wait won't be any longer than the time it will take, for Socialists to get enough votes to give them the offices, thus is bred the self indulgent do nothing nobody, and of which the Bakers' Journal so justly complains. All this would not be so bad if it spun its gloomy, and enervating web over its own narrow sect, and cult, but its contaminating influence goes beyond it. The Socialist propaganda, its vile tactics, and its unscrupulous tacticians, cause much mischief in the trades unions. If the mischief were confined to its own faction we could look upon the elimination of the Socialist movement (in America at least) with perfect equanimity. In the trades unions, (the real bona fide labor movement, and which has so far proven to be of any help, or lasting value to us,) the same mischief is wrought, but by different methods, there the understrappers and small fry generally of the class conscious cult, is constantly scheming, plotting, and undermining, to gain control of the organizations, for the purpose of diverting the trade unions from their real work, and mission, in order to exploit, and prostitute them for the benefit of the Socialist theories, and its political propaganda. Their favorite method is to point the finger of suspicion at any, and every one, who does not agree with their half brained ideas, tried, true, and able veteran officials such as Gompers, Mitchell, Morrison, Perkins and Strasser, etc., are denounced, and maligned as fakirs, rogues, and grafters. If this does not work successfully another tack is taken, consisting of berating, and belittling the whole trade union movement, its progress is flatly denied, its successful achievements sneered, and scoffed at. Every failure is heralded from the house tops, and magnified into alarming proportions, every adverse action by government authorities, every unfavorable decision by the courts is at once seized upon, and used as an argument against what they are pleased to call obsolete trades unionism. While they are thus loud in these instances, they are discreetly silent when the results are favorable to the efforts of trade unions. We are further told that to raise wages, lower the hours of labor, etc., are mere palliatives, a plaster as it were to cover up a rotten ulcer; that it is equivalent to a man's effort to raise himself up by his bootstraps. Trades unions, strikes, boycotts, etc., they say, are no good and of no permanent value, except as a means of agitation, or to keep the pot of social unrest and discontent ever at the boiling point, thus fanning the embers of revolution. This is the only purpose and use they have for trades unions; the whole is then finally rounded up by an infallible dogmatism, (against which that of religious fanaticism is but child's play,) and according to which nothing is any good, or of use, except to build up a political machine; go to the ballot box, capture the state by voting the Socialist ticket. This, and this alone, we are told by these prophets of dark, and devious ways, will save us from perdition, and give us the millennium.

In the matter of strikes this same gentry is ever on the lookout for trouble, and most zealous in promoting them, because they are in line with their tactics to agitate, to keep the pot a boiling. If the strike succeeds they ingratiate themselves still further in the confidence of their dupes by saying we did it, if it fails they say we told you so, strikes are no good anyhow, you must strike at the root of the evil. This is only another proof of our philosophy, etc., thus they play the handy game of tails I win, heads you lose. To what unscrupulous end such tactics lead is best shown by the efforts made by Herr Bebel, the leader of the Social Democracy party of Germany. At the congresses of that party held in the cities of Bremen (1904) and Jena (1905) Herr Bebel used all his masterful ability, eloquence, and powerful influence, to compel or cajole the leaders of the German trades unions into bringing about a general strike of all the German trades unions, numbering then nearly two million members, for the purpose of following up, and giving additional effect to the revolutionary manifestations then the order of the day, in all the large industrial centers of Russia, consequent upon the disastrous ending of the Russo-Japanese war.

But at the congress of the German trades unions, held just prior to the congress of the Socialists at Jena, namely at Cologne, a general warning was issued to all their members to refrain from all association with the propaganda carried on by people, devoid of all practical experience of the struggle, between capital and labor; and who favored the general strike. To the lasting honor of the German trades union officials, it must be said that they frustrated the dastardly design of Herr Bebel, and his colleagues. They very wisely refused to enter into a scheme which would have surely, and completely, wrecked the whole German trade union movement, squandered its funds, and undone the work of twenty-five years of unremitting labor, and sacrifice spent in its development, progress and beneficent achievement.

It is needless here to say that at the succeeding congress of the Socialist party, held in the city of Mannheim (1906) Herr Bebel was forced to eat "crow" as best he could, seeing that he and his colleagues could not boss the German trades unions, and without who's co-operation his plans could not succeed. It mattered little, or nothing to Bebel how much havoc, riot or ruin would ensue therefrom, how many individuals would come to grief, and destitution, or how many families and homes were wrecked and ruined, so long as it served his revolutionary propaganda. The same effort was made here, and from a like source at the time of the Pullman strike in 1894, when it was very seriously urged for all labor organizations to engage in a general sympathetic strike, thus to tie up and paralyze the industrial energy of the whole country. Later on in 1903 the same agitation was begun by the same crowd, to induce the bituminous coal miners to go on strike in sympathy with the anthracite strikers, both attempts failed, thanks to the rockribbed steadfastness, and common sense of the unions. The bituminous miners kept steadily at work furnishing the sinews of war, about $1,500,000, which was the only way by which the anthracite miners could, and did win their strike. The teamsters of Chicago were not so fortunate, they allowed themselves to be inveigled into a sympathetic strike for a few locked out garment workers at Montgomery Ward & Co.'s, the result was it retarded the growth and usefulness of the once large and powerful Teamsters Unions of Chicago. How can the weakling, the lukewarm member, the new recruit, draw any cheerful inspiration, or courageous resolve when such a mass of senseless contradictions, and inconsistencies are constantly dinned into his ears? How can they retain a happy frame of mind when they see the mean factional wrangle going on for the mastery? How can they be filled with anything but disgust and inaction, when they see our oldest and best officials insulted, and slandered, and their character drawn into the mire? Thus many of the newer additions to our ranks are turned adrift and become pessimists and lost to the cause. This is the damage wrought by Socialist philosophy, and its tactics, in the trades union movement, were it not for this the American Federation of Labor would today number 3,000,000 members instead of only two million. The wonder is that it has progressed as far as it has with this incubous, this millstone hanging around its neck, and furnishes a convincing proof of its sterling integrity, sound principles, and salutary accomplishments. Let no one therefore be dismayed, pessimistic, or misanthropical but enter anew with a joyous resolve, and an optimistic hopefulness, to do our best in the uplift of humanity, to live and let live, making the most of our opportunities along the practical, rational, sensible lines of trade unionism. Remember every black cloud has its silver lining, and that tomorrow the sun may be shining.

J. S. K.

Boston, Mass., March, 1909.

To the members of the C. M. I. U. of A.

Fellow-Craftsmen: During the last campaign "The New York World" canvassed the vote of sixty-three delegates of the N. Y. Central Federated Union. Later a correspondent of "The New York Evening Call" and also "The Chicago Daily Socialist" characterized this poll as follows:

"One was brave enough to say he would vote for Taft. Eleven had sense enough to say they would vote for Debs. Fifty-one were foolish enough to say they would vote for Bryan."

Now it is sense—good sense—which enables one to know what to do and how to do it in order to better the lot of the poor, the sick, the halt and the blind. But this being so, good sense must long since have forsaken the standard bearer of the Socialist party.

But now to come to the facts. Pray, tell me, how can it be a sign of "sense" for trade unionists to vote for a candidate who on four different occasions used his utmost endeavor to destroy the trade union movement? Were these eleven delegates of the C. F. U. forgetful of the part which Mr. Eugene V. Debs is playing and has played in the labor world? If so I would remind them, for Socialists are fond of the delusion that Mr. Debs is a trade unionist, but a trade unionist should not be so deluded.

Mr. Debs was officially announced as the only workingman running for the presidency of the United States, that therefor all trade union men should vote for him. I deny this Socialist "fact" and the facts will prove the contrary of the Socialist conclusion.

Mr. Debs is not a workingman. Thus he is not a trade unionist, for he neither works at a trade nor is he an officer of a labor organization. Moreover he has done all he could to destroy the influence of trade unions. From 1897 up to the time his "red revolutionary devil wagon" left the windy city his only work has been to travel over the country "with fire in his eye and sulphur in his mouth." Surely his verbal pyrotechnic exhibitions are not work, for work implies doing something that is useful for somebody.

Kindly allow me to record some of the "work" of this man to vote for whom it is a sign of "sense." While acting as secretary of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and editor of its official organ, Mr. Debs entered into a compact with Mr. George W. Howard, formerly of the Railway Conductors, to destroy the then existing organizations of steam railway employees. Shall unionists then vote for a man who with tears in his eyes and Debistic protestations of love for the workingmen, organized the American Railway Union (1892) "to smash the brotherhoods"?

This organization lived just long enough to show that it requires something more than an inflated ego to found, and something more than cheap dues and a loud call to arms to sustain a labor union. Conversely it proved that rational leadership is necessary to found, and sound judgment to maintain a trade union. These the A. R. U. lacked, hence the failure of the first "work" of Sir "E. Violent" to become in his own too-sweet-for-anything-way an absolute despot.

When the American Railway Union was no more "E. Violent D." stomped the country for the free silver party. Upon the defeat of Mr. Bryan in 1896 Sir "Violent" sent forth a wall of despair, there was no longer any hope "except by the pathways mapped out by Socialists." Nothing will avail but a revolution of blood! blood!! blood!!!

"As a weapon (the ballot) could not be relied upon to execute the will of the people while they are in industrial bondage. An industrial slave cannot be expected to cast an independent ballot." (The Railway Times, Jan. 1, 1897.)

Addressing a body of workingmen (St. Louis, Aug. 1897), "E. Violent Debs" is reported to have again expressed his bloody outlook.

"The time will come to incite the populace. In the near future there will be an uprising of the people; Congress will be dispersed and the Supreme Court abolished (ein, zwei, drei). When that time comes you can count upon me. I will be ready to shed the last drop of my blood when that time comes (Sic)."

"To incite the populace" has been the work of the Socialist standard bearer.

In April, 1906, upon the arrest of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone, under the caption "Rise, Ye Slaves," he issued a "call," summoning "a million men to take up arms" for "we have got to fight." "If murder must be committed it is not the working class alone that will furnish the victims this time." He called upon organized labor "regardless of all other differences, from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to the Gulf" to rise "in one solid phalanx." This inflated class conscious leader's third "call" was so red-red that the Canadian postal authorities refused to circulate the issue of "The Appeal To Reason," which was the first to publish the treason. Even Victor Berger (who taught Debs his revolutionary doctrine) reminded his protegee that the "call to arms" he issued was "most foolish" it had "too much cucumbers" in its stomach. At least the Victor of Milwaukee thought the E. Victor of dual union fame ought to wait until the A. F. of L. shall adopt the "pistol resolution," (which Berger has presented lo! these many years to the Federation conventions), for then every man, woman and child will have a gun. So hot did "E. Violent" become that even his colleague in arms, lawyer Darrow, was forced to quiet him with "a strong substantial gag." Shall this gentleman with "sulphur in his mouth" blow the bugle call for organized labor to assemble at the ballot box? Where could such an irresponsible leader lead us save to destruction? Yet we are brazenly told a vote for him is a sign of sense.

Where, ah where, is the colony which was organized in 1897 which was to solve for all time the question of work, and the questions that afflict mankind? What became of the 175,000 acres of land, the railroad franchise and the money so freely given the Social Democracy, heaven only knows; for suspicion, distrust and dissolution set in. One clique keeping the colonization scheme while E. V. D., leaving the people in the lurch whom he had induced to invest, organized the Social Democratic party. Later, after some historical maneuvering, it became the Socialist party whose candidate Mr. Debs was for the third time.

Let us take another look at his record to see if a unionist of "sense" ought to have voted for him.

In 1898, the Western Federation of Miners issued a call which brought into existence a federation of some unions in the Rocky Mountain states. To this organization Mr. Debs lent his influence. It was organized in violation of the principle of American trade unionism, which knows no north, no south, no east or no west. For we believe in that solidarity which unites the men of one craft or trade in one country into one organization. And we believe in one national federation of these unions. Is this Debsitic dual union a reason why trade-unionists should have voted for the gentleman who works but does nothing useful? Would it be a demonstration of sense to have voted for the man who organizes for the purpose of disruption?

In 1902, the Western Labor Union, which, by admitting three Massachusetts shoe workers locals had departed from its jurisdictional intent, met in Denver, Col., where it adopted the name of the American Labor Union. Secretary Morrison and Vice President Kidd of the A. F. of L. appealed to the Socialists assembled in this Denver convention for unity. The A. F. of L. officials tried to dissuade them from organizing a dual federation. The mission of the committee was unsuccessful primarily on account of the tirade of "E. Violent" Debs against the competency of the A. F. of L. and its affiliated unions. Would we show sense by voting for this Apostle of Dual Unions, who mouths the Marxian battle-cry, "Workingmen of the world unite," who said the "pure and simple" unions are "effete and reactionary"?

The American Labor Union issued labels to destroy the power of the existing trade union labels. The "acorn label" granted to some disgruntled St. Louis shoemakers, and the boycott placed upon the product of six St. Louis manufacturers who used the label of the Boot and Shoe Workers' International Union is good proof of this charge. Besides in Lynn and in Salem, Mass., the label committee of Union 97, Boston, C. M. I. U. of A. were informed by some of the liquor dealers there that they would no longer keep on sale cigars bearing the blue label of the C. M. I. U. of A. for the reason that the American Labor Unions of those cities had notified them that its membership would withdraw the socialist patronage in the event of union cigars being continued on sale at their saloons.

Union 29, Denver, C. M. I. U. of A., in accordance with the International constitution was compelled to belong to the A. F. of L. central body. The followers of "E. Violent" thereupon declared the cigar makers' label would be "boycotted in the mountains" if they did not return to the A. L. U. central body. These socialist humanitarians who love the whole wide world brought unhappiness and affliction to our unfortunate brothers who are compelled to work in Denver on account of the climatic conditions so beneficent in repairing their broken health.

The edict of Herr Debs was that "the American Federation of Labor must go forward to the American Labor Union." The A. F. of L. did go forward and in its onward march it buried its dishonorable adversary in a grave of dishonor. Should trade unionists have voted for "E. Violent" for this exploit? The socialist press announced that a Debs vote from a trade unionist would be an evidence of sense. But let us look further for the innocence of voting for Debs.

In June, 1905, there assembled in Brands' Hall, Chicago, a collection of the various kinds of Socialist breeds—from "E. Violent" down to Lucy Parsons. This assembly was "called to order" by Mr. Haywood. He declared: "This is the Continental Congress of the working class. The A. F. of L. is not a working class organization." So amid "great applause" the assembled delegates designated themselves "The Industrial Workers of the World." Clasp hands with Daniel De Leon "over the bloody chasm," "E. Violent," the Socialist wisacre, gravely announced: "The A. F. of L. is not sound in its economics. The Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance is sound in its economics." But all that now remains of that "sound" economic body is its notorious record.

Though forgetting his repeated failures E. V. D. said:

"We are here for the purpose of eliminating that form of unionism which is responsible for the conditions as they exist today."

"For the purpose of eliminating pure and simple unions," the I. W. W. condemned the cigar makers' organization for withholding the blue label from Chinese and tenement house made goods. It declared that:

"The constitution of the Cigar Makers' International Union of America establishes an aristocracy of labor and discriminates against the workingmen because of their race and the poverty of their circumstances."

The rollers and bunch breakers' optional clause in our constitution we are told "is manifestly designed to foster a monopoly of a few craftsmen in collusion with a certain class of manufacturers against outsiders."

"The blue label of the C. M. I. U. of A. stands for the organizing of a few and denying the real workers the right to organize; it signifies that you must pay a price for a cigar stipulated by the union, no matter whether the cigars are made of potato peels or sauerkraut leaves."

That the work of elimination shall be complete the I. W. W. convention adopted a world wide label with hands clasped around the globe. This label adorned the Eugene V. Debs brand of cigars. Are these the reasons why a trade-union vote for the standard bearer of the Socialist party would have been a sign of sense?

Mr. Debs has time and again referred to trade unions as "graft infested," "rotten," "cesspools." He has on many occasions maligned the character and tried to belittle the work of its ablest leaders. In a pamphlet, bearing the printers label of the I. W. W., Mr. Debs, after questioning the integrity of John Mitchell and other trade union officials, inquires:

"Is this organization (the United Mine Workers' Union of America) of any real benefit to coal miners? What has it really done for them during the last few years?"

Is this attempt to belittle the work of our great leaders a reason why a unionist vote for Debs would have been a vote which shows sense? But a refusal to recognize facts or an attempt to bluff facts by asking questions, which infer the United Mine Workers' Union has not been of benefit to the coal miners, does not wipe out the record made by that union under the able guidance of John Mitchell. We shall answer your questions, "E. Violent." The wages of the men who work in and about the mines have been increased one hundred per cent during the past few years. Even the common laborers who formerly received $1.25 per day now receive $2.35 and $2.56 a day. The hours of labor have been reduced from 12 to 8 per day. Boys five, seven, nine and ten years of age are no longer employed in coal mines where the U. M. W. U. of A. have jurisdiction. By trade union and by legal enactment the United Mine Workers' Union has made it almost impossible to employ a boy in the coal mining industry below 14 and in some states 16 years of age. The United Mine Workers' organization has in many districts reduced the ton required by the operators of their miners from 3,000 to 2,000 pounds. It has had a check weighman representing the men standing at the scales recording the weight of the product the men sent to the surface. It has abolished the "pluck-me-stores" and established bi-weekly payment of wages in legal tender. This is what has been "really done for them during the last few years." Should union men have voted to tear down this work to show their sense?

What has Eugene V. Debs done to elevate the economic, the civil, the moral condition of the toilers since the day he left the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen? I shall answer that he has done them all harm. One thing and one thing only of value has Mr. Debs done. But that was of value only to Mr. Debs himself. By his erratic conduct of that memorably misled A. R. U. strike he gained the notoriety that has permitted him to travel throughout this broad land spreading his false philosophy at $100 per night.

But after all these reasons for opposing Mr. Debs and his party are only secondary to those deeper ones which prove that Socialism is a body of false doctrine; that it would disrupt the home, the state and those social and religious institutions which are necessary to sustain civilization. I shall not enter upon these reasons but I have shown that for a trade unionist to vote for the Socialist candidate is not a demonstration of sense but the very opposite, for here is the indictment:

1. Debs is not a workingman.
2. Debs is a professional agitator.
3. Debs is not a friend of the toilers.
4. Debs is an enemy of the toilers.
5. Debs is not a trade unionist.
6. Debs is a disrupter of trade unions.

7. Debs led in organizing the American Railway Union.

8. Debs led in organizing the Western Labor Union.

9. Debs led in organizing the American Labor Union.

10. Debs led in organizing the Industrial Workers of the World.

11. Debs thus aids the Parrys, Posts, Van Cleaves and the citizen alliances in weakening the power of the trade union movement.

My fellow-craftsmen, the great body of trade unionists of this country have not followed Debs and his so-called workingman's party, for they have sense, good common ordinary horse sense, sense enough not to destroy their own power of getting a fair day's pay for a fair day's work, sense enough not to become part and parcel of that force which follows the red flag to its own Waterloo.

Fraternally,
David Goldstein.

Boston, April 6th, 1909.

In the Feb. issue of the Journal I tried to show that the fears entertained by some that in the event of Sec. 94 being wiped out entirely some local unions, or some members of local unions who are bent on destruction, could endanger the International Union by causing strikes and lock-outs, were not genuine fears but merely thinly veiled attempts to slander; and that the International Union was well protected by the constitution.

In the March issue I tried to prove to you that the above named section was the direct result of the Cincinnati strike, and was never intended as an arbitration measure; that it was only intended to prevent a recurrence of strikes similar to the one in Cincinnati. Furthermore, I tried to prove that Sec. 94 played absolutely no part in the growth of the International Union, since in 21 years, from 1885 to 1906, not in one instance was it deemed necessary to make use of that section to protect the funds; and that our organization grew financially and numerically without the aid of that much-talked-of section.

In this issue I will show how that law was carried out by our arbitrators and what caused the Hartford amendment to be introduced.

All well regulated organizations and societies are governed by laws. The laws of any organization, especially one based on democracy, are the opinions of at least a majority of its members expressed by means of votes. Laws enacted in that manner are binding on all its members. Whether they are old or new members, big or small, strong or weak, powerful and influential or the most humble, all are supposed to be governed alike by those laws, and all are amenable to those laws; for, if that is not the principle upon which any organization is based then the whole question of democratic government is a farce, and the act of proposing and voting on laws is mere child play.

If laws are to be carried out properly, there are two things that must be taken into consideration; first, the intent of the law and what was sought to be remedied, and second, the word of the law.

In carrying out Sec. 94 the intent of the law was entirely ignored, and only the word of the law was taken into consideration when the arbitrators were appointed. The members of such local unions that may be on strike, who are forced to settle their difficulty with their employer according to Sec. 94, may grumble and protest that the spirit of that law was ignored, yet they can not refuse to receive the arbitrators since the letter of the law was carried out. When an objection is raised it is not against the law itself, but against the manner in which the arbitrators carry out the law after they are appointed.

Only in two strikes were arbitrators appointed; once in the Boston strike of 1906 and the other in the New Haven strike of 1908; and in both instances they violated not only the spirit of the law, but even the letter of it.

I will quote part of the law so that you may understand fully what I mean. Sec. 94 reads in part as follows:

"The Executive Board shall be empowered to appoint one or two members of the International Union with instructions to arbitrate, IN CONJUNCTION WITH A COMMITTEE OF LOCAL UNION, any difficulty affecting the members."

You will notice by the above that the arbitration board consists of one or two members appointed by the International Executive Board and a local committee which in all cases is the local strike committee. Those appointed by the Executive Board have no right to ignore the strike committee any more than the strike committee has to ignore them; to put it in plain words: the arbitrators representing the International Union and the strike committee representing the local union constitute one committee whose duty it is to bring about an amicable settlement of the difficulty. Any method of procedure other than that prescribed by the constitution is a direct violation of the law.

Have the arbitrators in the Boston strike and in the New Haven strike conducted themselves in accordance with the above law? Let us see if they have. The arbitrators that were appointed to act in the Boston strike openly admitted that they held conferences with the employers without the knowledge and consent of the strike committee representing Union 97. The constitution gave them no such powers, and by them ignoring the strike committee, and especially after having promised that they would not attend any conference with the employers without the strike committee, they not only went back on their own promise, but willfully and knowingly violated the constitution.

In the New Haven strike the same thing occurred. The strike committee reported that they were ignored time and again by the arbitrators.

Whether you construe that law as an arbitration measure, or whatever name you wish to apply to it, the fact still remains that the arbitrators that are appointed, whoever they may be, are still our servants, since we have to foot their bills and pay their salaries, and it is their duty to represent the cigar makers and not the employers; for if they are to represent the employers then they should pay their expenses.

Now let us see how our servants looked after our welfare. In April, 1906, Union 97 made application to strike for an increase in wages, which was sustained by a vote of the International Union. The International Executive Board saw fit to appoint two arbitrators to settle the difficulty between the union and the employers. Messrs. A. Strasser and Willard Best were appointed and took charge prior to the men going on strike. On May 1st, 1906, the strike committee of Union 97 received a communication from the manufacturers setting forth their attitude on the demand for an increase in wages. In the May issue of the Journal the communication from the manufacturers appeared in full with no statement from the union. This was conclusive proof to the members of Union 97 that the arbitrators came prepared to line up with the employers and against Union 97, in spite of the fact that they were to represent the C. M. I. U. who paid their expenses, of which Union 97 is part and parcel of.

That act, of having the employers' side of the question published and ignoring the union's side entirely, was not only contrary to the spirit of fair play, but was a direct violation of Sec. 94 since they ignored the strike committee of Union 97, when the law plainly says that they shall act in conjunction with a committee from the local union. But that offense is insignificant compared with what followed.

For further proof that the arbitrators ignored the strike committee and held conferences with the bosses, in direct violation of Sec. 94, I will refer you to a letter written by Mr. Strasser in defense of his action as an arbitrator, which was published in the Journal, in the issue of September, 1906. In that letter he informs us that on May 24, 1906, he and Mr. Best received an invitation from the manufacturers to attend a meeting which was to be held in Young's hotel that same day from 2 to 4 p. m. He also informs us that he and Mr. Best (the strike committee knew nothing of this invitation at that time) held a conference and decided to attend that meeting. Later on in his letter he informs us that at that meeting with the bosses the strike was settled, and the bosses agreed verbally to have all members on strike reinstated without discrimination. I want you to keep in your mind the day and date of this meeting—Thursday, May 24th.

On Friday, May 25th, one day after the strike was settled, of which neither the strike committee nor the union knew anything of, the members of Union 97 were discussing, at their regular meeting, the advisability of opening up negotiations with the bosses for a conference. Mr. Best was present at that meeting, and although he knew the day before that the strike was over he did not inform the members of that fact and allowed the discussion to go on and finally to take a vote on the matter. The union was not informed of the fact that the strike was over until the following morning, Saturday, May 26th, when Mr. Strasser personally handed Secretary Abrahams a letter from the manufacturers informing him that the strike was over.

Such conduct on the part of OUR arbitrators was a flagrant violation, not only of the word and spirit of our constitution, but a violation of the very principles upon which our organization was founded.

In New Haven they had even a worse experience than Boston had. Their strike committee also charges the arbitrators with holding secret conferences with the bosses, and in many instances absolutely ignoring the strike committee. Furthermore, the arbitrators in the New Haven strike rendered a decision, granting every demand of the employers, without even consulting the strike committee; an act that the arbitrators in the Boston strike very carefully avoided. I will not press the point that the arbitrators in the New Haven strike acted entirely in the interest of the bosses and against the men; but, what became of the instructions that they were supposed to receive from the International Ex-

Executive Board to arbitrate in conjunction with a committee from the local union? Is it possible that the Executive Board neglected to give such instructions to these men when Sec. 94 reads in plain English that they should? I cannot believe that the Executive Board neglected their duty; and the reason they voted to submit to a popular vote the award of the arbitrators was, that it was done in such haste that there was no time for the union to place all the facts before them; in fact the award was submitted before all the members of the board had voted.

As further proof that the arbitrators violated the constitution by rendering a decision without the knowledge and consent of the local committee, I will call your attention to that part of Sec. 94 which reads: "Should the terms of settlement not be agreeable to the union involved, but if approved by the arbitrators appointed, the Executive Board shall have power to submit said terms to a vote of the local unions, when, if approved, shall be binding on all members of the International Union."

If the arbitrators had the right to render a decision without the local committee, in accordance with the above law, why then, does it become necessary for them to approve their own acts before the Executive Board can submit it to a vote of the local unions?

The fact that it is necessary for the arbitrators to approve the terms of settlement before it can be submitted to a popular vote, is conclusive proof that some one else must be consulted regarding the term of settlement, and that some one else, according to Sec. 94, is the committee from the local union.

In the opinion of the members throughout New England, Sec. 94 plainly reads that the arbitrators are only part of a committee whose duty it is to bring about an amicable settlement of any difficulty. But, if that section can be construed as any one sees fit, then it is absolutely necessary to amend it so that it will be impossible to misconstrue it.

Sec. 94 became part of our laws as a result of past experience; and the change proposed by union 42 of Hartford is also the result of past experience. While it may not be altogether perfect, yet, it is a beginning in the right direction.

This amendment was either misunderstood by the members, or it did not meet with their approval for other reasons; or, it may be possible that they could not locate the amendment on account of it being placed in such an obscure corner in the November Journal, a corner where no one would ever look for amendments; but the principle is still there, and it is only a question of time when some amendment will be proposed that will meet with the approval of the members, and will destroy the usurping powers of individuals, and restore to the members of the International Union the protection that they pay for, and to which they are justly entitled to.

Faternally yours,
M. H. Touvim.

Note—The writer of the foregoing attempts to arrogate to himself the right to construe the constitution and does so to suit himself regardless of the facts, the law or the rule of fair dealing, although there is nothing in the constitution which authorizes him to do so. He, however, has a right to differ and to express his own opinions and if confined to facts nobody can reasonably find any fault. Let us get down to brass tacks, the facts and the law.

Section 44 of the constitution reads as follows:

"Sec. 44. The President shall decide all questions of law, or regulate any controversy or difficulty that may arise between the local unions, or members of the union, or the local unions and the International Union, subject to an appeal to the Executive Board, whose decision shall be final, unless reversed by an appeal to a popular vote of the members. A majority of all members voting to be final."

The facts. Nobody questions the constitutional right of the arbitrators to be in Boston; all agree that they were constitutionally appointed and there by constitutional right with a duty to perform in compliance with our laws.

If Union 97, Boston, was under the impression that the arbitrators ignored or violated any part of the constitution the PROPER AND CONSTITUTIONAL WAY TO PROCEED, AS WELL AS THE FAIR WAY, WAS TO APPEAL IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE PLAIN LETTER OF THE LAWS as set forth in the foregoing to the International President, to the International Executive Board and finally to the membership at large AND IN THAT CONSTITUTIONAL WAY ENDEAVOR TO OBTAIN REDRESS.

This they failed to do for reasons best known to themselves. Instead of proceeding as the law provides, they ignored the International President, the International Executive Board and the final court—the membership at large—and started a campaign of endless misstatements and insinuations in the columns of the official journal, which the writer of the foregoing letter is now, parrot-like, trying to perpetuate under the guise of a free press.

Section 94 of the constitution authorizes the Executive Board to appoint the arbitrators whenever they deem it advisable to do so for the best interests of the International Union. The local strike committee are not arbitrators; they represent the local union and are bound by local instructions. The strike committee represents the local union, the manufacturers represent themselves, and the International arbitrators, acting as the third party, have to carefully weigh the evidence presented to them by both of the first two parties concerned and decide in accordance with their honest convictions, impartially and for what they consider the best interests of all concerned. The arbitrators are union men and their action is subject to approval of the membership at large, hence the union is fully protected and has always the best of the situation. They must be fair, fearless and honest and act without fear or favor. This was the intent of the framers of the law. This is the fairest arbitration law conceivable. It is vastly different from the ordinary plan which permits the union to select one arbitrator, the manufacturers another and these two to select the third, who is not in any way connected with the union or even the trade.

Insofar as we are concerned the Cigar Makers' Official Journal is open to UNION manufacturers who are anxious to present their side of the case AND WHO ARE READY TO ABIDE BY THE AWARD OF THE ARBITRATORS MADE IN CONFORMITY WITH OUR LAWS.

NO JUST MAN OR FAIR UNION WILL OBJECT TO HEARING BOTH SIDES. NO ORGANIZATION CAN LONG MAINTAIN A REPUTATION OF FAIRNESS WHICH DENIES THIS PRINCIPAL OF JUSTICE.

The correspondent's assertions concerning the object of the publication of the Boston manufacturers' letter is absolutely false and entirely without foundation in fact.

The assertions as stated by the writer concerning the Boston strike are wholly at variance with the FACTS REPORTED HERE BY THE ARBITRATORS. His dates concerning time of settlement are misleading and his quotations of alleged statements of the arbitrators have long since been branded as absolute falsehoods and without the slightest foundation in fact by the arbitrators. His statements concerning the New Haven case are full of misleading insinuations and have been repeatedly branded as untrue by the arbitrators, who were on the ground and ought to know as much about the conditions there as the would-be regulator from Boston, who must depend upon hearsay for his information.

Whenever possible we appoint arbitrators who are possessed of the most experience and who have a wide knowledge of general trade conditions, and who are possessed of the moral courage to be fair in the discharge of a duty that is unpleasant and usually thankless at the best.

The arbitrators are supposed to give the union manufacturers a square deal and to act fearlessly, regardless of local clamor and passionate appeals, at the same time getting everything possible, consistent with fair dealing, for the union. The strength of the organization has to be used judiciously in the interest of all local unions and members thereof, of course, including the local union directly involved.

Men of integrity have a right to admonish employers for honest purposes whenever in their judgment they deem it necessary to do so. However, in the New Haven instance, the whole affair was thrashed out in the presence of the committee of the union. After all, under our laws, anything the arbitrators may do or decide has to receive the sanction of the International Executive Board and the popular vote, and he who questions this procedure questions and charges the whole human family with being incompetent, dishonest and incapable of self-government. We do not belong to that class of doubting Thomases. We do not belong to that class which always appeals to the selfishness, hatred and worst traits of the human character and which is always seeking to cause distrust and hatred of all union manufacturers and mistrust in the minds and hearts of our members.

The Hartford amendment run in two issues and was published under the proper heading in the December Journal and every member of the Board voted on the award and he who asserts otherwise resorts to deliberate falsehood.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 22, 1909.

During several conventions resolutions were adopted authorizing the International President to issue a uniform system of books for the use of local unions. The system of books provided for consist of a day book, ledger and treasurer's cash book. The books supplied by the International office are in use by nearly all local unions; only a few large unions have a system of their own.

The duties of the traveling auditors are described in section 55 of the constitution as follows:

"The President shall appoint, subject to the confirmation by the Executive Board, one or

CHICAGO, APRIL 15, 1909.

In the last issue we promised to continue the discussion concerning the protective laws of the International Union and to further expose the weakness of the advocates of a reactionary policy and the destruction of laws which dearly bought experience placed in our constitution.

Some of the writers admit that the Cincinnati, O., strike in 1884-5 justified the adoption of the present arbitration laws and then pretend to believe that there will never be another Cincinnati strike and that the necessity of such laws is now past. This reminds us of the fellow who because he had not had a fire in 25 years let his insurance run out and the next day his property was destroyed by fire.

How any man who aspires to leadership and assumes to construe the constitution and define the policy of the International Union can place himself in the position of holding that there will not be any more great strikes in the labor movement is beyond comprehension. He seems to have overlooked the hatters' strike now, on which involves the entire membership with a few exceptions. They have conveniently forgotten the disastrous telegraphers' strike, which ought to be fresh in the mind of at least a near leader. They forget the great teamsters' strike of Chicago, the A. R. U. strike and plenty of others too numerous to mention. In articles and speech these same people speak of the changed economic conditions brought about by the trusts, etc., but for argument's sake are led into the false position of saying there will never again be any great strikes such as Cincinnati.

The facts are that the International Union has greater dangers and more serious obstacles to overcome right now than ever before. We have the trusts—the American Tobacco Co., with its millions of capital and its thousands of non-union employees, to say nothing of the United Cigar Manufacturers, a corporation nearly, if not, as large as the trust, and other sources of danger that are liable to give us serious trouble at any moment. This is so apparent that it seems an insult to the intelligence of our members to even mention it.

Speaking of arbitration, reminds us that Pullman once said, "We have nothing to arbitrate," and the labor press of the entire country rose up en masse and with the workers denounced him as a heartless monster devoid of all human sense of justice and fair dealing. Later on Baer, of coal mining fame, said the same thing, and how those who are now trying to destroy our arbitration laws did denounce him from one end of the country to the other.

The progressive, sensible, intelligent, fair-dealing trades unions are rapidly adopting the plan of arbitration in the settlement of trade disputes. The street car people have a hard and fast arbitration clause in their laws and the success of their union is due to its enforcement. The International Typographical Union has an excellent arbitration plan which is used to the advantage and satisfaction of the honestly inclined members. The Building Trades of Chicago are splendidly organized and receive comparatively the shortest hours and highest wages, and we find that the following unions have arbitration clauses in their agreements and laws:

Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers.
Architectural Iron Workers.
Bridge and Structural Iron Workers.
Brick Layers.
Cement Con. Floor and Sidewalk Layers.
Holsting Engineers.
Hod Carriers and Building Laborers.
Gas Fitters.
Gas and Electric Fixture Hangers.
Plumbers.
Steam Fitters.
Steam Fitters, Juniors.
Sprinkler Fitters and Helpers.
Stone Derrickmen and Riggers.
Cement Finishers.

In a future issue we shall suggest measures which in our judgment should be added to in order to strengthen our present laws and endeavor to point out the reasons why.

With this issue we publish the annual financial report for the calendar year of 1908, recapitulation, tables of benefits, etc., and the balance on hand January 1st, 1909.

OUR FINANCES FOR 1908.

For the purpose of comparison we also publish the recapitulation for the year 1907. Taken together it affords a comprehensive bird's-eye view of the financial transactions and standing on the International Union.

The table of benefits shows the yearly transactions since the adoption of the high dues and chain of benefits, and is so arranged that it shows at a glance the workings of the system since its adoption, the cost of each benefit per year, and of all benefits for any number of years.

The table also shows the amount of dues that were paid at the various stages. For the benefit of the younger members the present rate of death benefits has been paid since January 1, 1887.

Prior to 1886 we paid $4 per week strike benefit until the strike ended. Commencing January 1, 1897, we cut out one term of the out of work benefit, otherwise there has been no material change in the payment of benefits. The table shows when each benefit commenced. The constitution of course shows the present rates and benefits paid.

The general fund shows a decrease of $69,345.75, which was caused by the continued depression in trade and the consequent greater outlay to pay the out of work benefit, which amounted to $101,483.50, or $81,986.00 more than was expended in 1907 for a like purpose.

The amount expended for sick benefit was $184,755.69, which shows an increase of $11,250.02 over the amount spent in 1907, with no tangible reason in sight.

The amount required for death benefit purposes was $220,979.71, which is $13,420.84 more than used in 1907 for this benefit. This is easily accounted for by the fact that each year more members are entitled to the maximum sum of $550. Ten years ago the amount expended for death benefit was $94,939.83, which compared with the amount expended last year shows an increase of $126,039.88.

We expended for strike benefit $32,423.39, which was only $9,778.71 more than we did in 1907, despite the extremely bad trade conditions which continued without abatement throughout the year.

For the benefit of the student and those not familiar with our system who may study the recapitulation, it should be noted that assistance from unions and assistance to unions, which involves an item of $60,770 in both the receipts and expenditures, is simply money transferred from one union to another, and while it has to be so entered, it is really neither a receipt nor an expenditure. Including the amount on hand at the beginning of the year, the financial transactions for the years 1907 amounted to $1,603,804.72.

The total benefits paid during the year 1908 was $586,255.73 and the grand total of benefits paid since the chain of benefits system was adopted November, 1879, or in 29 years and two months, is $8,372,783.60.

The report recapitulation and table of benefits show only the financial transactions of local unions. The amounts required to maintain headquarters is included in the expenditures of local unions, but the amount expended by this office is not included. The receipts and expenditures for the general office are published monthly in the Official Journal.

While the outstanding loans are an asset the amount is not included in balance on hand.

When everything is considered, especially the condition of trade, we feel safe in saying the report is exceedingly gratifying.

While we all regret the decrease in the funds due to the depression and lack of employment we all rejoice in our ability to be able to pay and the good cause in which it was spent.

We congratulate the membership on the splendid and substantial results disclosed and on the soundness of our financial standing.

DECISION OF COURT OF APPEALS

The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, in the appeal of the American Federation of Labor versus "The Bucks Stove and Range Company" affirmed the decision of the lower court with modifications. Justice Robb, in delivering the opinion of the majority of the court, recited the facts in connection with the record, and quoted decisions of which we publish in part:

"We approach a consideration of the legal questions involved in this case with a full realization of their widespread importance. We realize to the fullest extent that through the instrumentality of labor unions much has been accomplished for the betterment and amelioration of the conditions surrounding those who toil. In common with all who have the welfare of the country at heart, we are gratified that such progress has been made in behalf of labor, and we are proud of the intelligence, thrift and patriotism of the American workman. We believe him to be anxious for his rights, but, like all other good citizens, desirous of obeying the laws, we would not if we could, and could not if we would, take from him the right of organization. We would accord him every right under the law that his employer enjoys, and we believe mature consideration will fully convince him and those whose solemn responsibility it is to counsel and pride him that he should ask for no more."

Mr. Justice Harlan, speaking for the court in Powell v. Pennsylvania, 127 U. S. 684, said:

"The main proposition advanced by the defendant is that his enjoyment upon terms of equality with all others in similar circumstances of the privilege of pursuing an ordinary calling of trade out of acquiring, holding and selling property, is an essential part of his rights of liberty and property, as guaranteed by the fourteenth amendment. The court assents to this general proposition as embodying a sound principal of constitutional law."

Again in Allegeyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 589, the court quoted with approval the following from the concurring opinion of Mr. Justice Bradley in Butchers Union Company v. Crescent City Company, 111 U. S. 762:

"The right to follow any of the common occupations of life is an inalienable right. It was formulated as such under the phrase 'pursuit of happiness' in the Declaration of Independence. This right is a large ingredient in the civil liberty of the citizen."

In Hopkins v. Oxley Stove Co., 83 Federal. 912, the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit said:

"The right of an individual to carry on his business as he sees fit, and to use such implements or processes of manufacture as he desires to use, provided he follows a lawful avocation and conducts it in a lawful manner, is entitled to as much consideration as his other personal rights; and the law should afford protection against the efforts of powerful combinations to rob him of that right and coerce his will by intimidating his customers and destroying his patronage."

In Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 294, Mr. Chief Justice Fuller said: "The combination charged falls within the class of restraints of trade aimed at compelling third parties and strangers involuntarily not to engage in the course of trade except on conditions that the combination imposes; and there is no doubt (to quote from the well-known work of Chief Justice Earl on Trade Unions) 'at common law every person has individually, and the public has collectively, a right to require that the course of trade should be kept free from unreasonable obstruction.'"

Oral and written declarations in furtherance of a conspiracy are tentacles of the conspiracy and must be treated as such and not as independent acts. It would be an anomalous situation, indeed, if a court of equity, having ample jurisdiction to restrain the carrying out of the conspiracy to deprive a citizen of rights guaranteed him by the constitution, could be prevented from affording relief by the interposition of such a claim as is here made. Freedom of action is at least as sacred as an untrammelled tongue or pen, and those who conspire to defeat the former right ought not to be permitted to interpose a plea based upon the latter.

But we think the decree in this case goes too far when it enjoins the publication or distribution through the mails or otherwise of the Federationist or other periodicals or newspapers containing any reference to complainant, its business or product, as in the "We Don't Patronize" or "Unfair" list of the defendants. The court below found, and in that finding we concur, that this list in this case constitutes a talismanic symbol indicating to the membership of the Federation that a boycott is on and should be observed. The printing of this list, therefore, was what the court sought to prevent and what, in our opinion, the court had power to prevent; but the decree should stop there and not attempt to regulate the publication and distribution of other matter over which the court has no control. In other words, this branch of the decree should merely prohibit the printing of complainant, its business or product, in the "We Don't Patronize" or "Unfair" list in furtherance of the boycott.

The costs of this appeal are equally divided between appellants and appellees.

Mr. Chief Justice Shepard dissented from the decision of the majority. We quote in part:

"A conspiracy is rightly defined to be a combination of two or more persons to accomplish something that is unlawful, or to accomplish something that is not unlawful by the use of unlawful means."

The logical deduction is that a thing which is lawful when done by one person does not become unlawful when done by two or more persons in combination, provided no unlawful means are agreed upon or used. This doctrine having been denied by some of the English judges, in cases arising out of trades disputes, it was finally settled by act of Parliament. The sixth section of the statute, adopted Dec. 21, 1906, reads as follows: "An act done in pursuance of an agreement or combination by two or more persons shall, if done in contemplation or furtherance of a trades dispute, not be actionable, unless the act, if done without any such agreement or combination, would be actionable." (Public acts, Edw. VII, chap. 47.) The courts of this country, without the aid of statute, have now generally agreed that this is the doctrine of the common law. It has been declared by C. J. McSherry as follows: "Employees have a perfect legal right to fix a price upon their labor, and to refuse to work unless that price is obtained. They have that right both as laborers and in combination. They may organize to improve their condition and to secure better wages. They may even use persuasion to have others join their organization."

"They have an unquestionable right to present their cause to the public in newspapers or circulars in a peaceable way, but with no attempt at coercion. If ruin to the employer results from their peaceable assertion of these rights, it is a damage without a remedy. But the law does not permit either employer or employee to use force, violence, threats of force or threats of violence, intimidation or coercion." (My Maryland Lodge v. Adt., 100 Md. 238-249, A. D. 1905). See also National Protective Association v. Cummings, 170 N. Y. 315, 321, and dissenting opinion of Vann J. at p. 239:

"One person may not only cease to labor for another without liability to action, but may cease or decline to further purchase his goods, or to have any business relations with him."

This being lawful for one person to do, does not become unlawful when two or more persons, impelled by a like motive, voluntarily agree to do the same thing. Consequently, the persons composing the organization of the Federation of Labor had a legal right to agree together not to purchase the goods of the Bucks Stove and Range Co. Refusing to purchase does not constitute a "boycott in the legal sense."

The agents, arbitrators and representatives of the International Union have often been helpful with their advice and assistance in bringing about settlements of strikes, and while their helpful action has always been appreciated by the union and members directly involved they have not used a brass band to parade the facts in the Journal. Their service and usefulness is nevertheless understood and appreciated by the thoughtful, fair-minded real trade unionists who believe in making reasonable, substantial and permanent headway.

We have received many letters which are profuse in thanks and appreciation for the splendid service rendered by agents and representatives of the International Union in the settlement of strikes which we have accepted as a matter of fact without any boastfulness or bragging in the Journal. We refer to this now simply because of the studied attempt of certain writers for the Journal to discredit not only the law but the faithful and efficient service rendered under its operation by such agents and representatives.

CORRESPONDENCE.

more members, whose duties shall be to examine the financial accounts of local unions, instruct the financial officers in the discharge of their duties, and submit a financial statement of the condition of the unions examined by them to the International President; the report of the financiers on the condition of financial accounts of local unions to be published in the Official Journal."

About two years ago I instructed Mr. Chas. Willenski, Financial Secretary of Union 165, Philadelphia, Pa., to enter all payments made by members, not shop collectors, in a day book, giving proper dates, and to discontinue the system in use. There is not, to my knowledge, a single large union in the country which has such a poor system as Union 165, Philadelphia, Pa.

When a member comes to the office paying dues, etc., it is entered in pencil (all entries should be made in ink) on a so-called office list, and sometimes on a collector's list of another shop. Here is an illustration:

S. H. Collector.	January 4, 1908.
	30 Dues.
A. B.	$1.50
C. D.60
E. F.30
Total	$2.40

Mr. Chas. Willenski, Financial Secretary, then used the balance of the collector's list as his day book, making pencil entries of members working in other shops, but failing to give date of payment.

When I remonstrated with him about it he flippantly remarked: "The difference in the handwriting shows that only part of the collection was made in that particular shop."

Under this system of entry Mr. Chas. Willenski, Financial Secretary, had the opportunity of placing a member who ought to be on the 90-day list in good standing, without the possibility of detection.

If the instructions given to him to keep a proper day book were not satisfactory he had a right to appeal in accordance with section 44 of the constitution.

A Financial Secretary who allows some members to be in arrears from twenty to thirty weeks and makes a practice of granting illegal and excessive loans to traveling members does not come in court with clean hands.

Yours fraternally,

A. Strasser, Int. Fin.

Chicago, Ill., April 8, 1909.

Moses H. Touvim, formerly of Chicago, now of Boston, who for reasons best known to himself and his backers, too ably assisted by a few others, has revived a discussion which took place three full years ago.

Judging from the fact that absolutely nothing new has been introduced, a fair deduction prompts us to believe that some ulterior motive lies under this thin veneer of constant publicity. Had this crowd received the full measure of the satisfaction they supposed would be theirs, it is highly probable these articles would never have been renewed.

As an article offered in rebuttal and opposed to the gallery talks of "attacks on individuals" the defamation committee, consisting of Patrick Mahoney, chairman; Leon Wiener, Henry Phillips, Abe Hyman, Moses H. Touvim, clerk, showed that the inclination of the above "highly intelligent gentlemen" to "use their talent" to "attack individuals" was quite early developed, so early, in fact, that it is found in the third paragraph of the first column of their grave "considerations," and is a direct personal "attack" upon one of the arbitrators, and should have been beneath the "talent" of these men of "gentlemanly conduct."

Another quality of these "gentlemen" is boastfulness, for they then proceed to tell of the things they have done in the past, told in the spirit of believe-us-we-beseech-thee-because-of-our-past. They tell of how they were organized and the hardships and pleasures gone through, of how much money they spent and gave away, how long the strike committee had belonged to the organization. A sadly drawn abstract of boastfulness, for nearly all of the older locals have gone through the same trials, and have never yet publicly boasted of it.

Incidental to this spirit of boastfulness I mention the fact that when the Boston strippers were on strike and the Boston cigarmakers out of work, they sent begging committees to sister unions to solicit funds to support their idle members, even into the cheap districts of Pennsylvania!

Other locals in not unlike circumstances have created immense deficiencies for the support of the needy, paid it back with assessments running into dollars, and sister locals have never heard of it.

Truly has the banner (?) union unfolded her flag, with the ego centered field, in undiscovered places. The begging committee we heard in this part of the country, now the writer of articles of alleged deep import, was listened to by an audience composed of men, who in direct contrast to the boastfulness of the speaker, sat in their modesty and listened, unconscious of the capital they might have made of the fact that they had just paid up a $7,000 deficiency for the very purpose which Union 97's committee was begging—namely, to care for the needy.

It leaves a bad taste to remember that the former graduates and defenders of the Chicago scab shop system are now among the leaders of Boston Union 97! That now they are deeply concerned as to the future of our International Union, when before they were the advocates and actual workers in Chicago's "rat shops"! We allow that a man may reform, but it is poor ethics that allow such to become leaders or even near-leaders. The cussedness of these men is to blame for most of 97's conditions.

This digging into history to find material for a fault-finding-feast is beneath the interest of a vast majority of our members, for their faces are turned towards the near future where grave problems are lined up in front of us demanding the attention of the brains of the organization. If every member of the out of work brigade in Union 97 were asked what effect the action of the strike committee in the Boston strike of '06 have upon their present conditions, each and every man and woman would answer honestly: "Our troubles are before us and around us." And each heavily assessed member in aid of these would most probably say, "Amen," and add that they and their out of work brothers and sisters were not as deeply concerned in the reconstruction of "Section 94" as Mose H. Touvim et al, formerly of Chicago "open shop" fame, would have the general membership believe.

These near-leaders have plenty of gall, and their friends mistake it for talent. Touvim had talent enough in 1896 to join Bunch Makers' and Rollers' Union No. 384 of Chicago to get a free ticket to the coming convention. Talent is always used in creating, not tearing down. The cigarmaker of the moment is not caring a rap as to what "Section 94" means or does not mean. What does interest him, painfully so, is how he may get work and keep it. If these swash-bucklers have unionism at heart, why not use their wind to advance instead of retard? Fraternally,

Willard S. Best.

Jackson, Mich., March 15, 1909.

Mr. G. W. Perkins, Int. President,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir: We have a small manufacturer here, Claude Piper, initiated May 12, 1906, by Union 314, Jackson, Mich., who took a non-beneficiary retiring card August 15, 1908. Mr. Piper laid off the journeymen who were working for him a short time ago, so I informed him (Piper) that it would be necessary for him to become a thirty-cent member again.

Also regarding the amendment to Sections 76 and 77. He protests against losing his two years and three months time on the ground that he had not been notified that such an amendment had been passed. I believe that he is honest in the matter, as he is perfectly willing to pay back dues from the time the amendment took effect.

He has requested me to state his case to you, as he thinks it an injustice to force him to join as a new member when he would have been willing to become a thirty-cent member before the amendment took effect if he had known it.

I will state that I did not inform him and I do not know of anyone else who did.

C. F. Stoeckle, Secy. Union 314.

Chicago, Ill., March 17, 1909.

Mr. C. F. Stoeckle,
Secretary Union 314,
Jackson, Mich.

Dear Sir: Replying to yours of the 15th inst. concerning the case of Claude Piper, let me say: There seems to be considerable confusion in the minds of some secretaries concerning the operation of what is known as the Chicago amendment to Sections 76 and 77 of the constitution.

In this particular case, Mr. Piper, having withdrawn August 15, 1908, which was before the Chicago amendment was adopted and became operative, not having paid dues for three years, could not go on the twenty cent beneficiary list. As a consequence of that, when he came back to the thirty cent list, even after the adoption of the Chicago amendment which took effect October, 1908, he does not lose the two years and three months, or the time he paid prior to the taking of his retiring card. HE SIMPLY LOSES THE TIME THAT HE WAS OUT ON RETIRING CARD AND PAID NO DUES.

He, having retired before the adoption of the Chicago amendment, was not entitled to pay the twenty cent dues for the time he was out on retiring card.

The Chicago amendment makes no difference in the standing of those who retired prior to October, 1908. It does not give any member who was out on retiring card prior to that date the right to go on the twenty cent list and pay twenty cent dues.

All retiring card holders who retired prior to the adoption of the Chicago amendment who were not paying dues cannot now be placed on the twenty cent list. They, however, can at any time they return to the trade deposit their retiring cards and receive credit for all the time they actually paid dues before the card was issued.

Yours fraternally,
George W. Perkins, Int. Pres.

Boston, March 16, 1909.

Fellow Craftsmen:—Is it not high time that we should obliterate our political opinion and direct our intelligence to a discussion for the perpetual existence of the International Union?

I have read the discussion of a number of our fellow craftsmen, but it seems neither of the writers, offers any solution whereby the evil now existing can be remedied. If their minds were directed in a channel which would solve a movement which would be beneficial to the labor movement I would willingly concur in their endeavors.

But the arguments used in the Official Journal is such that it will breed discontent and should be stopped and the better energy should be devoted to eliminate the influx of foreign workmen under false encouragement given to them by those on these shores and encouraged by padrones of all foreign nations in order to overflow the market of the unemployed now existing in the United States and in the interest of the employing class.

I was present at a meeting of Union 97 when a copy of a postal which Union 10 of Providence, R. I., received through the firm of Hunton and Gorman to the effect that an agent in Belgium would supply him with all mould and hand workmen that he desired and if they suited in workmanship, he would expect a remuneration for all persons employed through his agency.

It seems to me our energy should be devoted to stop this foreign emigration and that the attention of organized labor in foreign lands should be called in order that the foreign working people should not be misled by padrones or agents of a foreign steamship company, and, if I am informed correctly, emanates from the White Star Line plying from Belgium to the United States.

Therefore I call attention that we should devote our energy to better the condition of organized labor in general and cast aside our political opinions.

Fraternally,
Mark Courant.

McSherrystown, Pa., April 7, 1909.

The amendment as offered by Local Union No. 316 and published in the March issue of the Official Journal, should have your support, for this amendment is calculated to benefit all our locals. Union No. 316 recognizes the fact that in these days of adverse court decisions, our only hope is in our label, and if successful agitation is to be accomplished, present-day methods must be employed. We believe the moving picture show will at least temporarily fill this want. Besides this is not an experiment in trade label agitation, for at least one sister union is at present using this method very successfully.

All trade-unionists must admit that a large percentage of the organized workers are sometimes lax in their demand for the label, and that constant "hammering" at all times has a beneficial effect in the demand for the label. If this is true of organized labor, it is certainly true of the friends of organized labor outside our ranks. That it is desirable and necessary for our good, to "reach" that vast army of consumers outside our unions cannot be denied, and while we may properly differ on the method to be used, we must just as readily agree that some system having this object in view will be beneficial to us.

Many of us can trace our first interest in organized labor to some time in the past when some local "got busy" and held a parade, a picnic, or some sort of labor demonstration. If that was true then, why cannot we confidently expect it to work out the same way now. This amendment we believe will be the means of creating the necessary amount of interest in our labels, and if we can get the consuming public—organized as well as unorganized—to a meeting, it will not be a hard matter to show them the benefit of purchasing only such articles as bear a trade-union label. The method of financing this amendment is, we believe, the best one possible in the present trade depression. The amendment does not carry an assessment to create finances, but simply provides for the centralization of twenty-five per cent of our one dollar per capita allowance for label agitation purposes. Under this system a greater amount of good can be done with a minimum of expense.

We request you to support the amendment.

Cincinnati, O., April 5, 1909.

Fellow Craftsmen: I believe a word about prohibition (?) at this time is not altogether out of place. For, in my humble judgment, this so-called reform will very seriously effect our trade.

It is not my intention to give in detail the places that have been placed on "the dry list" nor of those places which evidently will be voted or otherwise made dry." Neither shall I here attempt to explain the underlying causes of this prohibition (?) wave, which is manifested in most every state in the Union, suffice to say, that the condition is here, and demands our immediate attention.

Why, and how does prohibition effect the Union Made Cigar industry? First, by closing the saloon, and secondly, by the closing down of the industries which are dependent on the saloon, such as distilleries, breweries and places that make machinery and bar fixtures.

Now, I do not mean to say that the saloon is the only place where union made cigars are sold, but I do claim that 75 per cent of our goods are sold in saloons. It has cost us thousands of hard earned dollars to build up this trade, and I think we should get a move on ourselves, if possible, so we can hold our trade, which has cost us so much. This prohibition move in my opinion is the result of religious fanaticism, and if permitted to continue, will end very disastrously to our union.

If these people are permitted to tell you what you should drink, it is but a short step for them to say what we should eat, wear and smoke, and where we should spend our time. Some of the people at the present time do not allow their ministers to either chew or smoke. I have heard them proudly boast, that their next fight will be waged on the "obnoxious weed," (tobacco).

All anyone needs to do, is to just turn back a few pages of history, they have written their records in blood, and religious fanaticism will do it again. Read of the reformation, Spanish inquisition and the murder of the Huguenots on Saint Bartholomew day in France; religious fanaticism has immersed the world in human blood.

I am not defending the saloon which is run in violation of the law, neither am I opposed to reform, I am heartily in favor of such reform that will benefit all concerned, but am most strenuously opposed to the attempt these people are making in trying to lead the American working people up the "dark alley of prohibition."

What action can the union man, also the union take to meet this condition and retain our trade? I believe that every union man in the localities that are affected should make himself a committee on one, begin agitating where he deals, also among his neighbors and friends.

Secondly, for the union to select a committee to call on and address all central bodies, and local unions, and thirdly, to advertise the blue label in every possible way.

I am informed that the American Cigar Co. is encouraging prohibition legislation, which is evidently correct, for the saloon has ever been a thorn in the side of the trust; however, when the saloon is no more, it will be an easy matter for the trust to get control of the trade, for they at present control nearly all trade outside of the saloon.

This seems to me a most serious proposition, and I hope that it will appeal to all union men, and receive serious consideration.

Boys, if the demand for the blue label is lost, we are gone; arise, ye union men, go ye forth into the troubled land, preach the blue label to all men, and ye shall certainly be emancipated.

O. A. Blair.

To the Committee of the International Cigar makers' Society of America.

Antwerp, March 1909.

Dear Comrades:

So as you are learned out of the reports, an International Congress shall be held in the month of August in 1910 in Copenhagen (Denmark).

We sincerely hope that our comrades of America will understand the time, being there to be represented.

Many good regulations ought to be taken there, for the benefit of our friends of America themselves. We are more or less united in an international manner, but this is not sufficient.

The time is passed away that we could do self-dependent work, that is not only the case for America but for every country. We want assistance from one another. When in Europe, for instance, or in one of the other countries, as Germany, a depression exists in the industrial proportion of our trade, just as it is this very same moment with the new tariff of duties. Circa 50,000 tobacco and cigar makers will be out of work, and the worst of it will be that they are obliged to wander out, and whereto shall they take their recourse the best, it will be whether and always America.

The consequence of it will be that on certain moments there shall be an overproduction; the wages lowered on account of having not a good regulation and our comrades of America will look cross for a situation which they have created themselves by their indifference on international points.

Dear comrades, put aside your indifference against our International Organization, convince yourself that the time is here to take conclusions for what there can be done for the welfare of the poor slaves of the tobacco workers.

Give us the certitude that we might reckon upon you that you will be represented at the aforesaid International Congress, and that you will join us in all our deliberations, and you shall have done good and useful work.

For all information and adhesions address yourself to the International Secretary of the Cigar and Tobaccoworkers,

Henry Jugters,
rue des Images, 98, Anvers, Belgium.

Denver, Colo., April 7, 1909

While the good intentions of 102, Kansas City, in offering an amendment for five cents assessment for assisting and caring for sick members who come here is appreciated, this union hopes that it will not pass, as the amount raised would not be sufficient to care for those already here, to say nothing about others that would be attracted here by such an assessment. A national home is the only remedy, and it should not be located in a cigar center like Denver, either, for several reasons.

J. W. Sanford, Sec'y.

Notice.

Binghamton, N. Y., April 4, 1909.

On Feb. 12th, 1909, the firm of F. B. Richards and Company locked out their 106 union members, refusing to pay the bill of prices. Since then this shop is a strike shop. Traveling members and others take notice.

J. D. Palmer, Sec'y J. A. B.

Twenty-five thousand dollars for the erection of a hospital for the advanced cases of tuberculosis was appropriated by the board of supervisors of Rensselaer county at a meeting held in Troy on July 17. The institution will accommodate 65 patients and will be modern and up to date in every respect.

Because of the great prevalence of this scourge among the masses and the too frequent impossibility of the tuberculosis poor being cared for in their own homes under conditions affording safety to the other members of the household, and their inability to pay for their maintenance in hospitals and sanatoria, authorities upon matters of health and sanitation have come to recognize that a free hospital for the advanced cases of tuberculosis is fundamentally necessary to secure an effective control of the disease.

An institution of this character should and doubtless will be erected ultimately in every county of this state. In every county there are cases of tuberculosis living in lodging houses where there are no facilities for their care, and there are cases which are almost necessarily sources of danger to the other members of their family by reason of extraordinary unfavorable sanitary conditions, great poverty and overcrowding. Provision should be and must be made for these people, if not for a humane reason, then for a selfish one.

UNION NOTES

Members of C. M. I. U.: We desire to call your attention to our amendment to Section 48, especially to members drawing loans and financial secretaries.

Mistakes have occurred and do yet occur in the collection of loans and the reporting of same on monthly reports.

Often members and shop collectors are to blame for such carelessness or oversight.

This amendment will put it up to the member or collector to see that a proper record is made of payments, the secretaries then cannot go amiss, for they will then have an accurate record and the finance committee's examination of carbon copies and the entries on monthly reports will do the rest.

There will be no more time occupied by secretaries in writing the personal receipt, for he will write the carbon copy at the same time.

If Union No. 217's amendment is carried, there will be no difference as to the method of receipting for collections, which is not the desire of 304, Racine.

However, it would be just as well to vote 217's so it would include in the completely amended article covering all payments made by members to the International not otherwise provided for by stamps.

Local 304, Racine.

129, Denver, Colo., gave notice in March Journal that all members owing private loans to this union for six months or longer would have their names published in the April issue. We regret to say that out of 75 of the traveling members who owe this union from 50c up to $25.00, amounting to over $500.00, that we have received a response from only two of these members asking further time to make good. We know that some of these members perhaps may not be working, but we have reason to believe that some of them are working and could pay. This union is called on every week, and several times in a week, for financial assistance by sick and traveling members, and the members of this union, who are not working under the best conditions or making best wages, have to assess themselves to keep up this constant drain. Secretaries are in some instances to blame for members not paying. Instead of waiting for voluntary payments, they should call members' attention to it as soon as they go to work. The member would be better off by having his loan paid and the union better off by having their money back. Pay up, you may want a loan again some time.

N. M. Murphy, financial secretary of Union 89, Schenectady, N. Y., will grant no loans during working hours. Will grant loans before 8 a. m. or between 12 and 1 p. m., or any time after 5 p. m. The same applies to signing out-of-work certificates.

Union 49, Springfield, Mass., writes: "Geo. Lenox is requested to communicate with the secretary of Union 49, Springfield, Mass., regarding something he forgot."

Union 32, Louisville, Ky., requests all traveling members to steer clear of Louisville, as all factories are laid off and there is nothing doing at present.

Patrick Kennedy (103,935) is requested to correspond with the secretary of Union 125, Norwich, N. Y.

Union 379, Rochester, Ind., writes "Union 379 requests Ed Kelsey (97976) to settle board bill at Plymouth by May 4, 1909, or appear at our meeting and show cause why he should not be fined."

Union 61, La Crosse, Wis., requests the secretary holding the card of James Murphy (80511) to please collect $4 board bill and remit to secretary of above named union.

Union 122, Warren, Pa., writes: "The secretary of Union 122, Warren, Pa., would like to hear from George Haley regarding transaction he had with J. McGovern; union being interested. If we don't hear from you by May 1 we will publish nature of case. Also request secretaries to intercept one C. A. Lewis who left his blue card and left an unpaid board bill, which the union had to pay. He no doubt joined elsewhere since September, 1908. He also beat merchants to the tune of $60."

Union 453, Nevada City, Cal., writes: "Union 453 requests N. Duplessis (40694) to settle that board bill of $10.95 before our next regular meeting or the union will take action."

Any secretary knowing the whereabouts of Jas. J. Pollard (86880) please notify the secretary of Union 211, Victoria, B. C.

Union 103, Ansonia, Conn., writes: "Would like to hear from Thos. Sylvia in regard to board bill owed to this union."

The secretary of Union 198, Roanoke, Va., would like to hear from Chas. W. Morris (87392) and L. Berkley (9229) before the next issue of the Journal.

Notes by Union 97, Boston: San Felice and J. H. P. cigars are unfair.—Hatters' strike must be won.—97 is giving $75 a week.—Label committee are giving moving picture shows to advertise our label. We have had exhibits in Hyde Park, Stoneham and Waltham to crowded houses.—The following incident may be of interest as showing tact: A certain store not over one thousand miles from Cambridge has his store filled with trust goods; a member of the craft spoke to him about it; the proprietor said, "They pay me for the space; if you can get any one else to take the space I will remove the goods." Our fellow craftsman now went to a friendly vendor and told him he knew of a good location and brought both parties together. Space was hired by friendly dealer, and all parties are happy. This is tact.—Massachusetts Liquor Dealers' Association have voted on and after April 1 to only buy Massachusetts goods. This work was done by the label committee.—Label committee have taken the initiative in endeavor to federate label trades of Boston.—The efforts of leading citizens to develop Boston industries has not been lost sight of, and their attention has been drawn to home products.—The movement to stamp out consumption is going to make far better sanitary conditions in the factory and the home. It means the uplifting of the race.—Label committee are visiting all second-class hotels and will make an effort to get them to buy union goods.—After the label exhibit a committee calls on all the dealers in the town.—In order that immigration may be checked from Europe during times of depression we should be represented at the European Congress of the tobacco workers in 1910.—If it is fair to place a commodity on the unfair list in a building built under non-union conditions, would it be reciprocity to ask that union men should not erect a structure or make repairs on a building when they sell non-union commodities?—Up to date we have assessed ourselves $14.50 each to relieve the needy. This is fraternity.—Have you written to your congressman or senators on the Philippine question?—There are too many Porto Rican cigars without a label sold in the east.—Organize.—Boom the label.—Raise the school age and reduce the hours of labor.

LOST CARDS

Section 11. Any member losing or destroying his loan book shall not be entitled to receive any benefits or a duplicate loan book before the expiration of two months, and financial secretaries of local unions must notify the International President of such loss or destruction immediately, the same to be published in the official Journal by the International President. The International President shall be the only person to issue a duplicate.

Members having lost their traveling cards take notice:

No duplicate card will be issued for lost card unless the full name of member, the card number, the date of initiation and the union where the card was last deposited are given. Members who lose cards are not entitled to benefits until they secure duplicates. No duplicate cards are issued except upon application through some secretary, when the time limit of two months has expired.

Month after month unscrupulous men impose upon secretaries and members under the plea of lost cards. The constitution provides a punishment for lost cards. Its purpose is to stop the carelessness and the traffic made with full cards by permitting them to be held as security.

Don't issue letters to any member claiming lost card unless you know his actual standing.

Secretaries have no right to issue certificates in place of lost cards. Members who secure employment should be entered as admitted to the union.

Secretaries should be careful and enter all loans granted and repaid and all balances carried from one card to another in letters and figures. The issue of duplicates will be delayed in all cases where information is not complete.

Secretaries should examine due books where claim of lost card is made. Report full name, number, date and place of initiation and when and where card was last deposited.

Private loans will be entered on duplicates issued upon request of unions.

Enter all loans granted in figures and letters. Secretaries will please notify this office as to whether any private loans are due on cards reported lost, otherwise they are issued with only the International loan account. This does not release members from their just obligations to the unions. The absence of the private loans, however, quite often cause members to overlook these loans and suspensions follow.

Small unions receiving private loans in stamps soon have nothing left but the stamps, and those are not very welcome to a traveler if you intend to charge him with a private loan. REPORT OF INTERNATIONAL FINANCIER.

Chicago, Ill., March 8, 1909.

Since last report, have examined the accounts of the following Unions, viz.:

Union 105, Maysville, Ky.
The books and accounts here, are, at present in good order; for a year or so previous to Jan. 1, 1909, not nearly so good. However, the old secretary is back in office now, so smooth sailing is assured. Lincoln's birthday banks were closed (the day the examination was made). However, the courtesy of the cashier in the bank where the Union's funds are deposited, permitted the account to be verified. Statement as follows:
Balance on hand March 1, 1904 $ 761.43
Receipts to Feb. 1, 1909 3,986.40
Due Int'l Union on examination45

Expense to Feb. 1, 1909 $3,917.49

Union 134, La Porte, Ind.
If the ledger was properly indexed and the year given in the members' dues accounts the books, etc., here would be in fine order. Benefit cards and vouchers signed by whoever receives the money (nearly so, anyway), on file for all expense. Dues accounts are balanced with every credit given. Some members slow in paying dues, which accounts for the $55.00 due International Union on examination "Illegal Sick Benefit." Statement as follows:

Balance on hand July 1, 1903 $ 339.16

Receipts to Feb. 1, 1909 3,303.35

Union 249, Findlay, Ohio.
The books and accounts here are in good order, except for an awful poor system of filing vouchers for expense and benefit cards, interest to Jan. 2, 1909, entered in February receipts as it was not entered in bank book until account was verified at time of examination. Statement as follows:

Cash and stamp accounts correct—good, very good. Statement as follows:

Union 350, Lexington, Ky.
The books and accounts here are only in fair order. No regular system of endorsed vouchers for expense. Corrected the cash and stamp accounts. Explained to the secretary-treasurer how to balance cash and stamp accounts at the end of every month. Also how to balance each member's dues account with every credit given. These instructions will no doubt be followed, as the secretary seemed pleased to receive them. The balances given in this statement do not include amount expended over percentage during 1908. There is also a question reference $15.00 sick benefit paid in October, 1908, which may have to be returned to International funds. Statement as follows:
Balance on hand March 1, 1904	$175.20
Receipts to Feb. 1, 1909	787.20

	$101.65
Deficiency of Union Feb. 1, 1909	$40.96
Union 352, Brookville, Ind.
The books and accounts here are generally in good order. The unpleasant feature of error in making up cash accounts at the end of the month was experienced here. One of the men who made an error was here, so the money was returned during time of examination. The other party had left town so he still owes his, leaving the deficiency at time of examination $10.00. Went over the system of balancing cash with secretary and treasurer until they seemed to understand it thoroughly also with the secretary of how to balance every member's dues account with every credit given. Benefit cards and vouchers on file for expense. Stamp account correct. Statement as follows:
Balance on hand Dec. 1, 1904	$ 209.04

Union 360, Delaware, Ohio.
The books and accounts here are in good order. Benefit cards and vouchers signed by whoever receives the money on file in rotation for every item of expense—"fine." Corrected error in number of Dues stamps claimed on hand; also explained to the secretary how to balance each member's dues account with every credit given. The treasurer deposited in bank Feb. 2, $15.00. The secretary had an unusual amount of money on hand for sick benefit. Statement as follows:

Balance on hand Dec. 1, 1904	$ 207.78

Considering the fact that this union has never had a day book nor vouchers for expense, it is a wonder how they have kept their accounts so near correct. Left a copy of day book pages for receipts and expenses. Also how to balance every member's dues account with each credit given; also reference vouchers for expense to be signed by whoever receives the money. Corrected a small error in the 20c dues account. Statement as follows:

The books and accounts here are in good order except the failure to have vouchers. "Vouchers" signed by whoever receives the money on file for all expense. Part of the original bills are on file, not many. Benefit cards are all right. Cash and stamp accounts correct. Ledger promptly and correctly posted. The members here are slow in paying dues. The accounts of the present secretary are fine, except that recently vouchers for expense are not complete—not endorsed by whoever received the money—but will be in the future. The former secretary, J. A. Miller, did not do right. The manner in which he left the labels was not ignorance, but criminal. It is too bad the matter was allowed to go as it was. This label matter was not all. Such as this harms the union and disgraces all interested. Statement as follows:

285, Fort Worth, Texas.

The books and accounts here are not in as good order as this report would indicate. Some sick benefit cards missing. Recently O. O. W. benefit cards have not been made out. Trade poor here. Local trouble the big cause for this. Some ginger and a get-together spirit if continued for a time will put Fort Worth back where she belongs. It can and should be done. "Requested" to have members reporting O. O. W. and not drawing benefit entered in ledger so they or others might know who was entitled to the 16 weeks' limit in dues. Simply enter on the line with the Saturday on which the week ends for which they report O. O. W. That will tell the story and avoid considerable trouble, especially in dull times like the present. 344, Atlanta, Ga.

The books and accounts of this union are in about as poor condition as possible. The secretary, Mr. Cone, drew salary during 1908, causing the union to expend over percentage more than $40.00, and he did not even pay dues to keep himself inside the 90-day limit. Pretty rotten. Am in hopes the new secretary will do better, anyway, he promised to, and I think with the help he will have that No. 344 will see better days, an active membership, and Atlanta could be made a good town for cigar making. Statement as follows:

The books and accounts here have sure had a rough time. At present the secretary is doing nicely. Got a real bank account started before I left the city. UNIVERSITY GETS VALUABLE LIBRARY.

The University of Wisconsin has just received a valuable addition to its large library for the study of the labor movement by the gift of the extensive library collected during a life-time by Henry Demarest Lloyd, noted writer and reformer. The collection is given to the university by the heirs of Mr. Lloyd who are interested in the work of the American Bureau of Industrial Research which has its headquarters in this city. The Lloyd collection is particularly rich in material on trade unions, co-operation, socialism, municipal ownership and monopolies. It includes also thousands of books, pamphlets, papers, manuscript letters and boxes of special clippings dealing with allied topics, and will strengthen materially the historical and university libraries in economics, political science and history, which are recognized as the best in the country for the study of public utilities and the labor movement.

RAPPORT ANNUEL DES FINANCES.

En présentant à nos lecteurs le rapport annuel des finances, qui a été compilé des rapports mensuels des secrétaires des finances, nous pensons qu'il est de notre devoir de faire quelques remarques de circonstance.

L'année 1908 à cause de la panique financière du 1907 et la dépression industrielle qui s'en suivit, mettant hors de travail des milliers de nos membres, a retardé l'augmentation ordinaire dans notre caisse de réserve.

Une forte somme en caisse n'est pas seulement nécessaire pour donner la protection due aux veuves et aux orphelins de nos membres; elle est nécessaire pour faire les paiements sur les bénéfices en cas de grève ou de clôture, ainsi que pour les autres bénéfices pourvues par la Constitution.

Une union des corps des métiers sans une forte somme en caisse est semblable à une armée sans vivres ni munitions, en danger de périr de faim, la victoire en main. Elle est impuissante à commander le respect des patrons et incapable à maintenir les ateliers dans des conditions saines.

Les revenus de toutes les sources s'élèvent durant 1908 à $828,498.87. Le total des dépenses fut de $897,843.97. Ce qui montre que nos dépenses ont excédé nos revenus de $69,345.10. Les sources principales de nos revenus sont somees suit:

Droits d'admission.....	$ 12,623.00
Taxes—30, 20 et 15.....	676,425.15
Intérêts.....	17,831.96
Amendes.....	2,963.89

Nous avons payé en bénéfices comme suit:

Prêts aux membres voyageurs.....	$ 46,613.44
Bénéfices de maladie.....	184,755.69
Bénéfices de mort.....	220,979.71
Bénéfices de chômage forcé.....	101,483.50
Bénéfices de grève.....	32,423.39

La balance en main le premier Janvier 1909, était de $705,960.75.

Le total des bénéfices payés dans vingt-neuf ans et deux mois $8,372,783.60.

Nous pouvons être fiers des résultats accomplis. Nos traits de bienfaisance et de protection sont un monument aux efforts coopératifs des ouvriers pour la protection des membres dans leurs gages et dans les heures de travail, et en obtenant des ateliers en bonne condition. Ils ont aidé les veuves et les orphelins dans un besoin pressant après la perte du mari et du père. Ils ont mis les hors-d'emploi à même de garder honorablement leur place dans l'union. Ils ont supporté les malades et les voyageurs.

Pour maintenir ces bénéfices à l'avenir, il faut pratiquer l'économie et éviter les dépenses inutiles. Il faut éviter les bénéfices illicites et exciter les membres à payer promptement les impôts et les taxes. Avec ce but bien en vue, nous espérons pourvoir établir pour nos membres de meilleures conditions commerciales dans l'avenir.

EL INFORME FINANCIERO ANUAL.

Al presentar á nuestros lectores el informe financiero anual, que se ha compilado de los informes mensuales de los secretarios financieros, nos parece que es nuestro deber hacer algunas observaciones particulares.

El año de 1908, á cuenta del pánico comercial de 1907 y la paralización industrial que lo siguió, quitando á millares el trabajo, ha retardado el aumento ordinario de nuestro fondo de reserva.

Un fuerte fondo de reserva es necesario no solamente para dar la protección menester para las viudas y los huerfanos de nuestro miembros; se necesita tambien para hacer los pago de beneficios prontamente en el caso de huelgas y cierres, y los otros beneficios provistos en la constitución.

Un gremio de oficios sin un fuerte fondo de reserva es semejante á un ejército sin municiones y víveres, puesto en peligro de morir de hambre al ilegal al punto de triunfo. Es sin poder de exigir el debido respeto á los empleadores y no puede mantener las buenas condiciones en los talleres.

Las entradas de todos principios durante el año de 1908 importaron $828,498.87. El total de las salidas fué $897,843.97. Esto demuestra que desembolsamos $69,345.10 más que recibimos. El origen principal de nuestras entradas fué como sigue:

Derechos de iniciación	$ 12,623.00
Cuotas—30, 20 y 15	676,425.15
Intereses	17,831.96
Multas	2,963.89

Pagamos por beneficios como sigue:
Prestamos á los miembros viajeros	$ 46,613.44
Socorros á los enfermos	184,755.69
Socorros á muerte	220,979.71
Socorros á falta de trabajo	101,483.50
Socorros á huelgas	32,423.39

El balance á nuestro crédito el 1 de Enero de 1909 importó $705,960.75.

El importe total de los beneficios pagados en veinti-nueve años y dos meses fué $8,372,783.60.

Podemos quedar contentos de los resultados que hemos obtenido. Nuestro sistema de benevolencia y protección son un monumento á los esfuerzos cooperativos de los jornaleros para proteger á los miembros en sus sueldos y en las horas de trabajo, y en el obtener buenas condiciones de talleres. Este sistema ha ayudado á las viudas y á los huérfanos en los días de urgencia inmediata después de la pérdida del marido y padre; ha ayudado á las personas faltando el trabajo para retener sus nombres en la lista de miembros regulares, y ha sostenido á los enfermos y los viajeros.

Para mantener estos beneficios en lo futuro, es menester practicar la economía evitar las gastos que no sean necesarios; es necesario evitar el pago de beneficios ilegales, y urgir á los miembros para que paguen con prontitud sus cuotas y contribuciones. Con este motivo, tenemos buenas esperanzas para lo futuro en el establecimiento de mejores condiciones para nuestros miembros.

Výroční finanční zpráva.

Předkládáme našim členům výroční finanční zprávu, jež byla sestavena z měsíčních zpráv účetníků, pokládáme to za svoji povinnost učinit o ní několik vhodných poznámek.

Rok 1908 následkem finanční paniky z roku 1907 a průmyslové tísně, jež následovala, a vysadila tisíce našich členů z práce, zastavil poněkud obvyklý vzrůst našeho rezervního fondu.

Pevný rezervní fond jest nutný nejen ku ochraně vdov a sirotků po našich členech, nýbrž i ku vyplácení podpory v pádu stávků neb výhostu, a jiných podpor, jak stanoví ukládají.

Kremeslná unie bez náležitého rezervního fondu jest jako armáda bez náboje a potravin, v nebezpečí vyhladovění na samém prahu vítězství. Jest bezmocnou, aby si vynutila respekt zaměstnavatelů a udržela slušné poměry v dílnách.

Příjmy ze všech pramenů během roku 1908 obnášely $828,498.87. Celkové výlohy obnášely $897,843.97. To ukazuje, že jsme vydali o $69,345.10 více nežli jsme přijmuli. Hlavní zdroj příjmů byl následující:

Vstupné	$ 12,623.00
Poplatky—30, 20 a 15	676,425.15
Úrok	17,831.96
Pokuty	2,963.89

Vyplatili jsme podporu jak následuje:
Půjčky cestujícím členům	$ 46,613.44
Nemocnění podpora	184,755.69
Úmrtí podpora	220,979.71
Podpora nezaměstnaným	101,483.50
Stávkovní podpora	32,423.39

Zbytek na ruce dne 1. ledna 1909 obnášel $705,960.75.

Celkový obnos podpory vyplacené za dvacet devět roků a dva měsíce obnášel $8,372,783.60.

Můžeme být hrdi na výsledky, jakých jsme dosáhli. Naše dobročinné a ochranné účely jsou pomníkem kooperativních zájmů námezdních dělníků, v chránění členů v jich námezdním a hodinovém boji a v zabezpečení slušných poměrů v dílnách. Ony odpomohly vdovám a sirotkům od bídy a nouze když ztratili manžela a otce; ony pomáhaly nezaměstnaným k udržení si členství a podporovaly nemocné a cestující.

K udržení si této podpory i v budoucnosti jest zapotřebí aby se provozovala spořivost a zamezily zbytečné výlohy; jest nutno, abychom se vyhnuli placení nezákonitých podpor a přiměli členy, aby správně odváděli své příspěvky a asesmenty. S těmito zásadami na zřeteli doufáme v zavedení lepších řemeslných poměrů pro naše členstvo.

Der Jahresbericht über die Finanzen.

Wenn wir heute unseren Lesern den Jahresbericht über die Finanzen unterbreiten, welcher aus den Monatsberichten der Finanzsekretäre aufammengestellt ist, so halten wir es für unsere Pflicht, dazu einige passende Bemerkungen zu machen.

Das Jahr 1908 hat, wegen der Finanzpanik des vorhergehenden Jahres 1907 und der in deren Gefolge kommenden Geschäftsdpression, durch welche Tausende von unseren Mitgliedern aus ihren Stellen vertrieben wurden, die sonst regelmäßig eintretende Zunahme bei unserem Reservefonds verzögert.

Ein starker Reservefonds ist aber nicht allein deshalb nötig, weil dadurch den Wittwen und Waisen unserer Mitglieder der notwendige Schutz gewährleistet wird; er ist auch für die rechtzeitige Zahlung von Unterstützungsgeldern bei Ausständen und Aussperrungen, sowie für die Zahlung der sonst in unserer Verfassung vorgesehenen Unterstützung notwendig.

Eine Gewerkschaft ohne starken Reservefonds gleicht einem Heere ohne Munition und Versorgungsvorräte; gleich diesem steht sie in der Gefahr, direkt an der Schwelle zum Siege zu verhungern. Sie ist nicht in Stande, sich bei den Arbeitgebern in Respekt zu setzen, und ist machtlos, wenn es sich darum handelt, in den Werkstätten erträgliche Verhältnisse zu schaffen.

Unsere Einnahmen aus allen Quellen während des Jahres 1908 betrugen $828,498.87. Die gesamten Ausgaben beliefen sich auf $897,843.97. Daraus läßt sich erkennen, daß wir um $69,345.10 mehr verausgabten, als wir einnahmen. Die Hauptquellen für unsere Einnahmen waren die folgenden:

Eintrittsgebühren	$ 12,623.00
Beiträge 30, 20 und 15	676,425.15
Zinsen	17,831.96
Estrafen	2,963.89

An Unterstützungen bezahlten wir die nachstehenden Posten aus:

Darlehen an reisende Mitglieder	$ 46,613.44
Krankenunterstützungen	184,755.69
Esterbegelber	220,979.71
Arbeitslosenunterstützungen	101,483.50
Ereignisgelber	32,423.39

An Vermögen hatten wir am 1. Januar 1909 an Hand $705,960.75. Die Gesamtsumme der in neunundzwanzig Jahren und zwei Monaten ausbezahlten Unterstützungen belief sich auf $8,372,783.60.

Auf die erzielten Resultate können wir mit Recht stolz sein. Unsere Bestimmungen über Unterstützung und Beschützung der Mitglieder sind ein Denkmal für die kooperativen Bestrebungen der Lohnarbeiter, indem sie den Mitgliedern ihre Löhne und ihre Arbeitszeit sicher stellen, und zugleich auch annehmbare Verhältnisse in den Werkstätten schaffen. Sie haben dazu beigetragen, daß Wittwen und Waisen wenigstens vor der unmittelbaren nach dem Verluste des Gatten und Vaters sonst leicht eintretenden Noth bewahrt waren; sie haben den Arbeitslosen dazu verholfen, daß sie sich in ihrer Mitgliedschaft behaupten konnten, und sie haben die Kranken und wandernden Mitglieder unterstützt.

Damit wir diese Unterstützungen auch in Zukunft durchführen können, ist es absolut notwendig, daß wir parsam vorgehen und alle unnötigen Ausgaben vermeiden; es ist notwendig, daß gesegmüdrige Unterstützungen verweigert werden, und daß wir es unseren Mitgliedern dringend an's Herz legen, ihre Beiträge und Umlagen pünktlich zu bezahlen. Wenn wir diese Politik im Auge behalten, dann können wir hoffen, daß wir in Zukunft unseren Mitgliedern noch bessere Arbeitsverhältnisse verschaffen können.

The foregoing table is one of the most complete historical resumes of the financial transactions of the International Union ever issued. It presents a bird's-eye view of the benefits paid, the cost per member per year and the cost per member for the given number of years, and the balance on hand at the end of each fiscal year. For instance, in the payment of Out-of-Work Benefit $39.20 in 1908, the cost per member fluctuates according to the state of trade. The highest cost per member per year for Out-of-Work Benefit was $6.43-4-10 in 1886, and the lowest cost per member per year was $39.20 in 1908.

This is instructive information, as the ten years in question were about equally divided between periods of normal trade condition and industrial stagnation. The average cost per member per year for the nineteen years in which this benefit has been in operation, was $2.13-5-10. The 20-cent-retiring-card holders receive sick and death benefit, hence both are included in the 15-cent-dues-paying members receive strike, and not more than $50.00 death benefit. The 20-cent-retiring-card holders receive sick and death benefit, hence both are included when figuring the cost per member per year in the payment of benefits in which they participate, although in the tables they are given separate columns of membership and annihilation.

NOTE.—The following explains the different kinds, periods and amount of benefits paid to the nearest union in whatever direction he or she desires to travel; but in no wise shall the loans exceed in the loans $20.

Strike Benefit: For the first sixteen weeks, $5 per week is paid, and $3 per week until the strike or lockout shall have terminated.

Sick Benefit: $5 per week, provided such sickness or inability shall have been for at least one week or seven days, but no member shall be entitled to any sick benefit for a longer period than thirteen weeks in any one year.

Death and Disability Benefits: These benefits are graduated, and are as follows: A member who shall have been such for two years, the sum of $50 is paid toward defraying funeral expenses, including the said $50 funeral expenses, the International Union pays upon the death of a member the following sum: First—If the member has been such for at least five consecutive years, a sum of $300. Second—If the member shall have been such for at least ten years, $350. Third—If the member has been such for at least fifteen consecutive years, $550. The total disability benefit was adopted in 1901. This benefit is paid direct to the applicant or guardian, and is the same amount as in case of death, less $50.00, which is retained and paid towards defraying funeral expenses at time of death. A benefit of $40.00 is paid in the event of the death of a wife or widowed mother of a member.

Out of Work Benefit: Any member having paid weekly dues for a period of two years is entitled to an out-of-work benefit of $3 per week, and 50 cents for each additional day. No benefit is paid for the first one week after a member was discharged from employment or laid off. Any member receiving benefit for six weeks is not entitled to any benefit for seven weeks thereafter, and no member shall receive more than $64 during the period of one year.

TRUSTS SELL HAY AND ARSENIC. And Call it Tobacco, Such is the Finding of the Pure Food Bureau.

The above is the government official analysis of one of the most popular brands of smoking tobacco manufactured by the trust. It was made by the chemist of the Pure Food Bureau, of the Agricultural Department.

This shows one of the beneficial effects of the new law. The tobacco in question is smoked by hundreds of people in San Antonio. There is hardly a dead wall in the city which does not contain an advertising poster of the tobacco, asserting it is the only genuine smoking tobacco.

Whole walls of houses are covered with a large picture advertising its virtues. It is one of the oldest brands on the market. Many smokers when they go into a tobacco store and are offered some other brand of tobacco, will shove it back and call for the brand analyzed and say, "Throw that stuff away. I want some real tobacco."

The neat little sack containing sixty-three per cent alfalfa, six per cent arsenic, one per cent opium, three per cent of fluid and actually twenty-seven per cent of tobacco is handed out to them. They roll it in a paper doped with more opium and brag on the fine brand of tobacco they are receiving.

"Smoking fodder" has long been a term of contempt applied to some of the cheap grades of tobacco, but now it can also be applied to some which are supposed to be the "real thing." For when we find out that in buying a much-advertised article we are really getting sixty-three per cent alfalfa, that comes pretty close to making the article "fodder" in the strict sense of the word.

The farmers of this locality need no longer despair at not being able to compete in the tobacco market with those of Kentucky and other states. For alfalfa grows plentifully hereabouts, and as long as this grass furnishes the principal ingredient in "first-class" tobacco, there ought to be a ready sale for it to the tobacco trust.

The injurious effects of any such doped-up trash as this is easy to understand. The arsenic exercises a very depressing influence on the system, while the opium forms a habit, very hard to break. It is on the formation of this habit that the trust depends for continued and increasing sales.

In closing we make bold to mention the fact that the tobacco in question is Bull Durham.

How may the layman often recognize the early symptoms of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption)?

Any of the following symptoms should lead one to consult his physician and have his lungs examined and sputum (spit) tested:

1. A cough lasting a month, except whooping cough.
2. Poor appetite (especially in the morning), and indigestion, loss of weight and strength, and pallor (generally run down).
3. Hoarseness, lasting several weeks.
4. Spitting, especially in the morning.
5. Night sweats.
6. Spitting blood.
7. Fever in the afternoon, shown by flushed face and tired feeling.

Any, several, or all of these symptoms coming after a severe cold, grippe, bronchitis, whooping cough, measles, typhoid fever, or any other acute disease, may indicate tuberculosis.

NOTICE.

June 19 the following monthly report blanks were mailed to all local unions:

- 12 fin. report blks.
- 12 label report blks.
- 6 O. O. W. and Loan report blks.
- 6 State of trade report blks.
- 15 supply order blks.
- 1 officer's report blk.

These will be addressed to the newly elected officers as far as possible. All old officers receiving same will immediately turn them over to the proper ones to receive them.

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES.

The amendment adopted to Sections 76 and 77 does away with the issuance of retiring cards to all who continue to pay dues as beneficiary members.

Retiring cards are only for those who pay up and actually terminate their connection with the union, in so far as the payment of dues is concerned.

Members who transfer from the 30-cent list to the 20-cent beneficiary membership list are simply changed from one class to another and deducted from one and added to the other.

Members who have not paid 30-cent dues for three years and quitting the trade under Section 76 and wishing to qualify for Section 77 as a beneficiary member should not be kept on without any other change than to make a note of the intention on the ledger page. If such member desires to travel to another jurisdiction he should be given a transfer card and his intention to qualify as a 20-cent beneficiary member written on the transfer card. Such beneficiary members are not entitled to any benefits except sick benefits after one year's membership and whatever death benefits their term of membership entitles them to.

NOTICE TO OFFICERS AND MEMBERS.

In printing the nineteenth edition of the Constitution, an omission occurs in Section 77, on line 7. A comma and the words "and local assessments" should follow "International assessments." The sentence to read: "All International assessments, and local assessments levied for label agitation purposes." This amendment as published in another place is correct.

To Financial Secretaries.

NOTICE.

If you hold any loan cards of no further use send them to this office.

Before granting or accepting retiring cards secretaries and members should consult Sections 76 and 77 of the Constitution.

NOTICE.—How to duplicate Loan Cards.

It frequently occurs that new secretaries through error or lack of knowledge, transfer the amount a member "has coming" instead of what he owes. In duplicating a card, figure up all the member has borrowed and subtract all he has paid, and if there is a balance against the member transfer to new card in red ink in figures and letters the amount due the International Union. Also enter on new card all that may be essential that you find on the old, then sign and seal it. Send the old card to the International office.

MEMBERS OUT OF WORK ARE NOT ENTITLED TO THE SIXTEEN WEEKS' PRIVILEGE IN DUES UNLESS THEY NOTIFY THE SECRETARY WEEKLY BEFORE THE EIGHTH WEEK. THIS INCLUDES TRAVELING MEMBERS, WHO SHOULD ALWAYS CARRY A CERTIFICATE AND HAVE SAME SIGNED WEEKLY.

Items for the Journal should be placed on separate slips of paper—not the backs of reports, etc.—in order to insure prompt publication, and should reach this office not later than the 10th of each month if intended for current publication.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address, if possible, so as to obviate delays, mistakes, etc.

In reporting deaths, kindly comply with the following and you will save time and unnecessary work: Give full name, number, date and place of initiation of member. Has member held retiring card? If so, did he pay his dues? This information relates only to such as you can obtain from the records of your own union. If admitted by card, state when and where from, and in addition send in such card, but place on your letter the information necessary, as the latter is filed as a matter of record. Before paying death benefits study Sections 145 and 151, inclusive. Send in a death blank properly filled out for all death benefits paid.

If secretaries when ordering supplies will place the order on the regular blank, it will greatly simplify the work here and avoid unnecessary delay for those who order the supplies. We receive an average of 300 pieces of mail in the office daily. Sometimes an order is sandwiched into a two or three-page letter containing three or more different subjects, and there is danger in such cases of an order being overlooked. Hence we ask that in order to save unnecessary delay and annoyance you order on the regular blank, giving your name and address.

DECISIONS OF EXECUTIVE BOARD

Washington, D. C., June 1, 1909.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., of G. Taubman, of Union 149 of Brooklyn, N. Y., against a decision rendered by the International president, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Tracy, Gariepy, Conrad Weber, Roberts, Fitzgerald, Cronin and Gompers.

The basis of the appeal was: Union 149 and the Joint Label Committee of Brooklyn found this member guilty of drawing labels for his own factory while working in another union factory, and imposed a fine of $25. Mr. Taubman says that he has been using the label for 16 years, and only recently went to work at half time in a factory, and that it was the business of the Joint Label Committee to stop his labels when he went to work in another factory. The International president sustained the action of the union; Mr. Taubman thereupon appealed to the Executive Board.

The International president bases his decision upon the following grounds: That section 163 says in part that "But no label committee shall grant labels to members who have a license and work in factories at the same time." That section 158 provides how violations of the laws governing the use of the label shall be punished. That this fine is in accordance with the latter section. That the member states that he was guilty of the offense charged, but endeavors to put the blame on the Joint Label Committee. That this member was found guilty by both his own union and by the Joint Label Board. That there is no apparent reason to reverse their action.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International president is sustained.

SAM'L GOMPERS,
First Vice-President.

Washington, D. C., June 2, 1909.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., by Mr. H. Schrader, of Union No. 9, of Troy, N. Y., against a decision rendered by the International president, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Tracy, Gariepy, Conrad Weber, Roberts, Fitzgerald, Cronin and Gompers.

The basis of the appeal was: Union No. 9 levied a local assessment collectable in weekly installments. Mr. Schrader deposited his card with this union four weeks after the assessment had been in operation. He claims that he should not be forced to pay any amount on that assessment, as he was not in the union when was levied. The union decided that he must pay his proportionate share for the number of weeks he had been a member of the local. He appealed to the international president against the action of the local, who sustained such action. The member thereupon appealed to the Executive Board against the decision of the international president.

The international president bases his decision upon substantially the following grounds: That the assessment complained of is absolutely legitimate, and that the member must pay his proportionate share of it. That this method of paying running assessments is the most equitable way, and if a member leaves the union before the assessment is completed, he only pays his share for the number of weeks he was a member of the local; also if a member deposits his card in the local while such an assessment is running, he pays his share for the number of weeks he is a member until its completion. This method is almost universal, and is regarded by nearly all members as the most just and equal distribution of the burdens of an assessment.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded the decision of the international president is sustained.

Fraternally yours,

SAM'L GOMPERS,
First Vice-President.

DECISIONS OF PRESIDENT

D. M. Peebles appealed against 105 Maysville for not enforcing the int. constitution concerning apprentices. The appeal was sustained.

T. Billinghamer, secretary, appealed against 132 Brooklyn for paying sick benefit to a member who was on the 90 days' list. The appeal was sustained.

N. E. Goldsmith appealed against 97 Boston for suspending him. Owing to extenuating circumstances the appeal was sustained.

P. Thomy appealed against 54 Evansville for levying a 50c asst. The appeal was not sustained.

Geo. Knoblock appealed against 3 Paterson for annulling his card and fining him $110. The appeal was sustained.

W. Nold appealed against 322 Joplin for refusing him the use of the labels. The union replied that Nold has an ex-officer of the union in his employ who refuses to pay per centage on a deficiency he owes the union and that it had refused to grant further labels until the member paid weekly percentage of his indebtedness. The appeal was not sustained.

S. L. Geleerd, a 20c member, appealed against being compelled to pay a 25c asst. on the ground that he had not been notified and given a change to vote on same as the constitution permits. The appeal was not sustained, although he must be given the right to vote even after the union has acted.

W. Cappel appealed against 102 Kansas City for suspending him for non-payment of a private loan. The decision is that he be given two weeks from the receipt of this decision to pay the loan; failing therein, the action of the union stands.

J. Reamy appealed against 188 Seattle for establishing an entirely new job and placing a special price on same. The appeal was not sustained.

W. Kuhlenskamp appealed against 266 Memphis for charging him with a donation of $25 instead of giving it to him outright. The appeal was not sustained.

J. J. Farrell appealed against 296 Wilmington for suspending him for being over the limit in dues. Appellant shows that he was out of work and that payment for dues was delayed one day. The appeal was sustained.

E. A. Feltman appealed against 62 Richmond for suspending and fining him $50 and closing his shop for selling nonunion cigars in his retail store. The appeal was sustained. The constitution shows just what can be done in such cases.

Ely Gattleson appealed against 22 Detroit for suspending him for nonpayment of dues. The appeal was not sustained.

J. Derger, West & Waltersdorf, appealed against 85 Eau Claire for refusing to allow them to handle nonunion goods. The constitution covers this case. The appeal was not sustained.

INTERNATIONAL FINES

The International Executive Board approved the application of Union 32, Louisville, Ky., to impose a fine of $50 and suspension on Dan Davis (28931) for going to work in the strike shop of J. A. Lancaster. Following is the vote: Affirmative—Eight. Note—One member votes no on suspension.

Approved the application of Union 61, La Crosse, Wis., to impose a fine of $25 on Wm. Brown (106327) for working in the unfair shop of the Sparta Cigar Company, at Sparta, Wis. Following is the vote: Affirmative—Eight.

CORRESPONDENCE

Chicago, Ill., June 2, 1909.

I see by the May Journal that Touvin, late of Chicago "open shop" fame, now of Boston, has burned his dictionary. The speculation naturally arises as to what he did while the dictionary was burning. Was he appalled at the consumption by fire of the great work he did not understand? Or did he, like Nero of Roman notoriety, fiddle while the dictionary burned? In a prior article I used the phrase "ulterior motive," not as a figure of speech, but as a pre-pavement to proving the fact that something ulterior usually is behind the Touvin doings. This I shall demonstrate by a reply to the following:

"Do you remember that meeting in West Twelfth street Turner hall, where Union 384 was organized? Do you remember who took the most active part in arranging that meeting?"

"No man worked harder than M. H. Touvin in arranging that meeting."

The covert boast in the second sentence of the first paragraph of the above quotation is not complete without the name M. H. Touvin as the "most active," and the lines of the latter might be paraphrased thus: "No man worked as hard," etc., "so as to thoroughly agree and harmonize with the first." Readers will see by the above that the implication that I desired to rob him of his reward of merit is unfounded. In fact, when I mentioned in my last letter: "Bunch Makers and Rollers Union 384," I intended to give him full credit for organizing it, and if he denied himself the credit, I intended to thrust it upon him; but I decided that he should claim the credit first, so that there would be no wiggling afterwards, and he very obligingly did so. The reason for the hard work of Touvin is apparent in the fact that a convention would be held the latter part of September, that he (Touvin) desired to be a delegate and that he could not hope to be elected from Union 14. Hence the hard work to organize a new union where he could be elected.

On April 14, 1896, Bunch Makers and Rollers Union 384 of Chicago started with 37 charter members. The following table will show part of the transaction as to membership:

	YEAR 1896.
Month—	Initiated.....	Admitted by Card.....	Withdrawn.....	Suspended.....
April (Charter 37).....	6	1	1	43
May.....	11	1	1	55
June.....	11	2	1	60
July.....	11	1	1	42
August.....	11	1	1	45
September.....	11	12	1	49
October.....	1	3	1	53
November.....	1	1	1	41
December.....	1	1	1	13
Totals.....	34	10	5	63

In June Touvin withdrew from Union 14 and deposited his card in Union 384. In September he became financial secretary. In July, 22 members were suspended by the old secretary, and from that time until after the convention was over and Touvin had been a delegate not one member was suspended. A few weeks after the convention Touvin suspended 41 members who had been held on the ragged edge to entitle Touvin to a seat in the convention. It would be quite interesting to know just how much money it took and whose it was? At the end of August they had a total membership of 45, while at the end of September, the month Touvin became secretary, he had entered a total membership of 70, after initiating two and admitting two by card, which should have made a total of only 53! Seems like talent wasted to upbuild by stuffing membership roll. Then, again, proper figuring shows they should have had 13 members at the end of November, but when the charter was returned only eight members are reported; the other five are unaccounted for.

The following is a list of those who stuck to No. 384 to the finish. The five on top are all that are left of Touvin's talented effort at union (?) building, and only one of them having been a charter member. They are:

97315—H. Olswang.
79345—M. D. Lewis.
79301—S. Levin.
79302—A. Buckowsky.
79338—H. Auerbach, charter member.
15010—Wolf Leviton.
22907—J. Jesky.
43544—M. Touvin.

They returned the charter and deposited their cards in Union 14. No. 384 had lasted through a part of nine months.

Just how much upbuilding Touvin had performed and for what purpose has been seen, let us see about the talent to represent. His name is mentioned in the convention proceedings about 34 times; so was every other delegate. Once he is mentioned in the list of delegates and once in the pay roll, he introduced a couple of short amendments which were lost and he is on record as having voted about 32 times. Most glaring of which is where he and a few others asked to be placed on record as having voted against a motion to lay on table a thirty minute privilege of the floor to Daniel DeLeon, union wrecker and dual union builder! Dan didn't get the floor, but Touvin placed himself on record as a DeLeonite in favor of allowing trades union time to a Socialistic lawyer who wanted to tell us how to vote. This was the extent of his boasted talent to represent.

Let us hear more about "Section 94," Mose, but don't handle the truth so carelessly as you have.

If your story can stand on its own merits you don't have to lie about it.

WILLARD S. BEST.

Reno, Nev., June 3, 1909.

Please publish the following in the next issue of the Journal, viz.: Union No. 307, of Reno, Nevada, wishes to announce hereby, that it can not grant any more private loans (however much it would like to), as its local fund is and has been for some time, entirely depleted. Owing to the fact that of all who have drawn it, have never (with the exception of three in as many years), paid back a cent. Although they were very prompt in drawing it. And now, unless they pay up, the union is compelled to use drastic measures against them. It seems the sole and only reason why many belong to a union, is the privilege and their ability to draw, all the pecuniary benefits (money), attached, too, and to be derived from the organization. For it is obvious, that of principle they know absolutely nothing; of course, we feel sorry for the deserving ones, who come this way, but we can't help anybody when we are "on the rocks" ourselves, though we are not to blame. The guilt belongs to the unscrupulous ones.

EMIL LORKE, Sec'y.

New York, May 27, 1909.

In the May issue of our Journal Mr. Goldstein asks me to reply to his so-called points and not on personal slander.

Point 1. I am accused of saying that the proposal of Jas. F. Carey to have the trade or calling of the candidates for the national executive board on the ballot at the S. P. elections was prompted by jealousy. Answer. I defy you or any other living being to produce your evidence that I at any time made that statement either oral or in writing. The fact of the matter is, that I favor the above proposition; but to put you right, I will state that my reference to Jas. T. Carey was in relation to him saying. It is too humorous to have a N. E. C. composed of two lawyers, two professional writers, one millionaire, one minister and one business man and then claim to be a workmen's party, that this statement was prompted by jealousy. I further stated that any man who subscribes to the principles of the Socialist party can become a member of it, and is entitled to run for any office in the gift of the party, and that the members elect the same, and therefore no one has a just cause to complain. And permit me to add at this time that Victor Berger, a member of the N. C. E., is a member of the Typographical Union and was one of its delegates to a number of the conventions of the A. F. of L., and if he is not legally entitled to represent said union, he is not legally entitled to be a member of it, and therefore your statement that the trade unions of this country are the only ones that can claim the title to being workmen's organizations falls to the ground.

Point 2. I am charged with saying that the leading trade unionists of Massachusetts did everything in an underhand way to bring about Mr. Carey's defeat as candidate for re-election to the House of Representatives.

Answer. I plead guilty of making said statement. Mr. Carey made this statement public at a dinner given recently by the Progressive Club at New York City, and for further information I would refer Mr. Goldstein to Carey himself in reference to Mr. Carey stating that he would stand neutral in the fight between the Boot and Shoe Workers and the American labor union because it was a family row. I don't know anything about it and cannot answer. And about Carey being the last of the Mohicans in the House of Representatives that is so; but it's no credit to the union men in having defeated a union man, who worked hard in their behalf, and sending an old party politician in his place who serves the capitalist class instead, and the time will come when we shall send more Carey's to the various houses of legislatures of this country, just as the workmen of Europe do.

Point 3. You want an official invitation to appear before the printing trades or the C. F. U. I am sorry I cannot procure the same for you from the printing trades, as I am in no way connected with them; but as I said before that if you can prove that the printing trades are being unfairly dealt with or that they are being fleeced out of their money, I am sure that they would listen to you, and as far as the C. F. U. is concerned, it's the easiest thing in the world to get the floor there. By the way, recently a discussion took place in one of the theaters in New York City in reference to a play called the "Battle." You came all the way from Boston to participate in the same? Did you have an invitation for that discussion? And, if so, by whom? And while you were in the city, it being Sunday, you could have easily come before the C. F. U. in the afternoon and saved any additional expense.

Point 5. You state that nothing that you so far have written warrants the assumption by Mr. Brown that members of the various trade unions have not the courage to oppose giving support to the call, but further on you state that it is not courage but an adequate understanding of the principles for which the paper stands that is lacking.

Answer. I consider this an insult upon the intelligence of the members and don't deserve any further notice, except to say you know it all.

Conclusion. Mr. Goldstein, you have been prating about personal abuse and, etc. When you stop shouting stop thief, in order to divert the attention from yourself, every letter with the exception of this last one was abuse, and then you talk of others. M. BROWN.

Antwerp, June 1, 1909.

As mentioned in my last letter, I promised to send every month a few words for your honorable journal. I must bring before your notice now that the condition of our trade is very bad in Europe, the number out of work is awful for every country, commonly this situation is also exploited by the employers. In Germany this situation threatens to go on for the worst through a threatening rise on the taxes on tobacco, which I think will be carried and that a tremendous number of thousands of working people will be out of work; also in Sweden threatens a general lockout of the cigarmakers (2,500 will be engaged in this case).

In Belgium, England and Holland it is also extremely bad, only the monopoly countries: France, Austria, Spain, Bulgaria, they don't suffer from this general crisis.

I have read with pleasure in your journal that an amendment came in from Union 97 to send two delegates from America to the Int. Nat. Congress of Cigarmakers and Tobacco Workers next year. It is desirable that all of America should see the usefulness of this measure for themselves, and that the amendment be carried by a big majority. The expenses cannot measure the advantages in attachment to this, as we are working for a better condition, and not so many members should be obliged to wander out to America, if the amendment of Union 97 is adopted, which I hope sincerely it will be. In this case it is time for America to bring forward the points for the Agenda. This ought to be done six months before the opening of the Congress, or by the end of February, 1910.

Fraternally yours,

HENRI JUGTERS.

J. D. PALMER, Sec'y., J. A. B.

Orange, N. J., June 5, 1909.

Being an interested reader of our official Journal for the past eighteen years, I am again reminded by the present controversy now consuming space in our Journal that it, in my opinion could be used to a better purpose. I have reference to Brother Touvin vs. Brother Best and Brother Goldstein vs. Brother Brown in matters that I, as do others, fail to see of what benefit their articles are towards the advancement of our trade or union.

In carefully pursuing the May Journal, I must congratulate my old friend, Brother Mark Courant, as he comes near hitting the nail straight.

Another interesting and what I believe to be a most serious matter is the condition of our finances, as per our annual report, as published in connection with the April issue of the Journal. We have decreased $69,345.10, which is the first decrease since 1897, when the 30 cent dues went into effect.

As the pioneer of trades unions, and to continue to hold that honored title, we must be up and a-doing or else we will get done.

We might today learn a good lesson from the United Hatters and prepare for war by replenishing our treasury and recruiting new material for our ranks, as by perpetuity alone can we exist and meet our promised obligations.

It seems to me that we are fast drifting away from our progressiveness in everything but expenses and in letting the trust get in its work.

When I joined the union, over 18 years ago, working on a $5 a thousand hand job, I read and was told that we were going to have a home for our old and disabled fellow members (We even had a site as well as well as presented to us, or nearly so, as near as I can recall).

And I honestly believe that we are farther away from a home now with 47,120 members than we were in 1891 with 25,178 members. And why?

Let us take a lesson from the Typographical Union—a home, old age pension. And we, the great Cigar Makers International Union, not even holding our own.

Come, brothers, let us wake up and see our talents, limited though they be, to a better purpose than throwing mud and indulging in an endless chain argument over something that is every man's right to choose for himself. Then let his choice be either Republican, Prohibition, Socialism or Democracy (if there is any such party left); but let us organize the yet unorganized, and let us build a home (even though some one will get a fat $18 a week job as manager). And above all, let us not weary of well doing, for we owe it to ourselves to leave this earth better than we found it. And if we all try to do this, we will reach the goal.

If we only purchased union made goods for ourselves and our families, and them from union clerks, we would at least be doing something in the right direction.

Come, brothers, prick yourselves with a union made pin and see if you are awake or if we are in a trance.

This rambling and disconnected letter or whatever you may choose to call it is not written with any malice to any member or members, but for the purpose of trying to create a little more healthy interest in our grand old union; and, if possible, to stir up our dry old bones to a little more activity. And if you doubt my word, just get a copy of one of the other trade journals (Tobacco) and see every week where the United Cigar Stores Co. are opening new stores continually, and once opened it seems to me always opened.

Come, now, let us bury the hatchet (remembering that it is human to err and divine to forgive) and have a good healthy heart to heart, man to man discussion that will lead to the building up of our membership, our treasury and last but not least, a home for sick, aged and disabled members.

JACOB C. TAYLOR.

Washington, D. C., May 14, 1909.

At the Denver convention of the American Federation of Labor a resolution was introduced relative to the matter of the representation of local unions in the State federations and city central bodies. Attention was directed to the fact that these organizations are to a great extent retarded in their efforts by the non-affiliation of some local unions. This resolution offered an amendment to the constitution of the American Federation of Labor requiring the executive officers of all national and international unions to notify their local unions that they must affiliate with the State federations and central bodies.

The action of the convention on this resolution was that the subject-matter should be referred to the executive council to urge affiliated national and international unions to so amend their constitutions as to obtain the desired end. At the last meeting of the executive council, the instructions of the convention upon this resolution were taken under consideration, and the undersigned was directed to communicate with the officers of the national and international unions, in line with the recommendation of the convention.

The constitution of the American Federation of Labor already provides that it is the duty of all affiliated national and international unions to instruct their local unions to join chartered central bodies, and this provision is specific as far as the matter of instructions to locals is concerned. The executive officers of the international organizations have always promptly recognized all requests from this office relating to the matter of affiliation of locals in central bodies, and their assistance has been of great value and highly appreciated. In many instances, however, the local unions have the idea that their representation in the central bodies and State federations is entirely optional with them, and the failure of a number of locals to be represented is due to this impression. It is most important that the international unions should adopt as insistent an attitude as possible upon the matter of representation of their locals in the central bodies. It is unnecessary to speak of the advantages and value of a good central body, or of the work of a State federation, but some locals are apt to be remiss if their support of these organizations is not imposed as a requirement.

The expense involved is an item to be considered, and very often circumstances in connection with the conduct and management of a central body are unsatisfactory to locals, but if all local unions would have their delegates in regular attendance and thus see to it that the deliberations of these organizations are confined strictly to the interests of the labor movement, the expense would be the best kind of an investment, and there would be less chance for many of the evils complained of to creep in.

The adoption of the recommendation of the Denver convention by national and international unions to amend their constitutions so that the representation of local unions in city centrals and State federations will be assured, will tend to greatly enhance the efficacy of these organizations in promoting the interests of the labor movement.

Trusting that this matter will receive the best consideration of your organization, and that it will see its way clear to adopt the recommendation of the Denver convention of the American Federation of Labor in this matter, I am,

Yours fraternally,

FRANK MORRISON,
Secretary American Federation of Labor.

Boston, Mass., June, 1909.

Neither "Comrade" F. M. Cassidy's effusive praise of Debs nor "Comrade" W. E. P. French, U. S. Army, who gave himself at "first sight" into the "two generous hands" of the treason monger Debs, can aid Mr. Brown in proving my charges to be false. Mr. Brown admits of having said, some three years ago, "If Debs is an organizer of the I. W. W., I am sorry for it." My muddying the waters Mr. Brown does not make clear the bottom of the pool. His "sorrow" is not active in the interest of his trade organization. But Mr. Brown exerts himself greatly to the benefit of Socialism, by berating union men because they will not vote for "E. Violent" Debs; by raising good trade union dollars to support the standard bearer of his "June Rose," the deadly enemy of the trade union movement. "Comrades" Cassidy and French may be good fellows for crossing the scent, but as for meeting the issue, they are nil. That issue is that Debs is the enemy of unionism. Even Mr. Brown gives up the task, because Debs "needs no defense," and then after attacking our Journal as "unjust," and giving "a little clearing up" to Mr. Goldstein, he contents himself with setting a whole lot of irresponsible words down upon unoffending paper.

I desire with patience and circumspection kindly to draw Mr. Brown's attention back to the issue. Has not Mr. Debs led in the organization of dual unions? Namely the American Railway Union, the Western Labor Union, the American Labor Union, the Industrial Workers of the World? My charge is that no man in the country has done more to destroy bona fide organizations of labor than Eugene V. Debs. As for his "sacrifices," the notoriety of Mr. Debs has returned him more sympathy and more money than any other man in the country who was ever connected with a strike.

Will Mr. Brown and his allies keep to the text? The little data in Mr. Cassidy's letter is out of date. What Mr. Debs did before he became a "red red" is not up for discussion. It is the career of the apostle of dual unions which is under consideration. I said Mr. Debs had done all he could to destroy the influence of trade unions from 1897 up to the last campaign in which he was the thrice standard bearer of the red rag of revolution.

Mr. Brown asserts that Debs "has always given the best that was in him for the uplift of the toilers of our country." Certainly the organization of dual unions is not a demonstration of it; nor is the establishment of dual labels.

About the time that Mr. Brown was expressing his sorrow "if" his darling Debs was an I. W. W. organizer, that self-same I. W. W., upheld by E. V. Debs, brought into being dual Cap Makers' unions, one in New York City, the other in Detroit. The New York opposition union (says the official organ of the United Cloth Hat and Cap Makers' Union of North America, an organization which proclaims officially "its adherence to the principles of International Socialism") "consisted of three union men and 20 contemptible scabs, among them a number of Pinkertons. All these scabs were drafted by the Cap Manufacturers' Association when it took up the fight for the open shop, against which the Cap Makers battled for 14 weeks. . . . Yet the men who during that fight sold themselves to the bosses as scabs, spies and detectives, were organized by the I. W. W. as an opposition union." A committee composed of General Secretary M. Zuckerman and Executive Board Members H. Hinder and M. Holzager, met Eugene V. Debs by appointment and laid before him letters, affidavits, etc., which proved that the I. W. W. Cap Makers were working with the Cap Manufacturers' Association to destroy the U. C. H. and C. M. U. of N. A. "Comrade Debs," so the committee reported, "explained that he will not stand for such action, and that an organization responsible for such misdeeds, should be wiped off the face of the earth."

The Apostle of Dual Unions has not, from that day to this, so far as I have learned, written or said one word against the action of the I. W. W. and its Cap Makers' locals. Must we take this episode as evidence of the best that is "in him for the uplift of the toilers of our country"? Or is this what Mr. Cassidy calls making a sacrifice for organized labor? If not, perhaps it is a specimen of what the army officer calls "bravery and gentleness."

I like very much indeed that my statements should have a "little clearing up." In my letter for the April Journal may be found this paragraph:

"Where, ah where, is the colony which was organized in 1897 which was to solve for all time the question of work, and the questions that afflict mankind? What became of the 175,000 acres of land, the railroad franchise and the money so freely given the Social Democracy, heaven only knows; for suspicion, distrust and dissolution set in. One clique keeping the colonization scheme while E. V. D., leaving the people in the lurch whom he had induced to invest, organized the Social Democratic party. Later, after some historical maneuvering, it became the Socialist party whose candidate Mr. Debs was for the third time."

In the May issue Mr. Brown seeks information. To quote:

"Now what I would like to know is this. You were a member of the Socialist party, and evidently must know that if there was any dishonesty in the colony scheme existing that it was your place as an honest man to come out and show up anything and everything dishonest concerning the matter. . . ."

Let us suppose, for the sake of making plain the point that the Socialist party was in existence at the time of the colony scheme and that I had at that time failed to condemn it. Does that change the fact that Eugene V. Debs induced many poor persons to invest their savings in his project? Does that change the fact that he then quit them to organize a political party? But the fact of the matter is that 12 years ago, when the Social Democracy and its colonization scheme was launched, the Socialist party was not in existence. The Socialist party was organized in 1901, the Social Democracy in 1897. I would suggest that Mr. Brown write to Mr. Debs and ask him what became of the abattoirs, tanneries, shoe, woolen and cotton factories, ice plant, hotels, barns, etc., etc., indicated on the maps issued by the Social Democracy. Ask Debs what became of the railroad franchise, the 175,000 acres of Tennessee land and the moneys which were controlled by Debs, Hinton and Co.? Mr. Brown might suggest to his friend "E. Violent" that he pay back the moneys which the poor dupes lost in the colony which he induced them to join, even at the sacrifice of a beautiful residence in Terre Haute. Some people would meet their moral obligations.

I would not hold Mr. Brown responsible for the fool or fraudulent schemes launched in the name of Socialism 12 years ago. But surely with other prominent Socialists he must share a part of the responsibility of his leader Debs, who has just now launched a "Girard Air Ship Company," capitalized at 50 millions of dollars. The company sells shares of stock for $1 that will be worth their par value, $50, "when the ship flies." With a chance to get fifty for one under the endearing name of "comrade," no "comrade" should be in poverty "when the ship flies."

Dear Sir and Brother:

In organizing the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor it was the intention that not only the organizations using and issuing labels should become a part of the Department, by affiliating therewith, but it was also the intention that those organizations that issue cards and buttons should also become affiliated, so that a better and greater benefit would result in the work of furthering the sale of union-made products, as well as patronizing wherever possible union men who wear the button of their respective organizations.

Article 1, section 2, of the Constitution, is as follows, and is quoted for your information:

"Sec. 2. The term 'union label' wherever used in this Constitution or by Laws is declared to embrace union labels, union buttons, union cards, or any device worn or exhibited to solicit patronage for union establishments or union members, and indorsed as such by the American Federation of Labor."

It is the intention of the Department to begin an active, energetic campaign among the members of organized labor and its friends, as well as endeavoring to interest the members of the organizations of farmers, whose influence and patronage of union products would be of immense value to our movement. It is also intended to reach the vast membership in the various Railroad Brotherhoods, the members of the Women's Union Label Leagues, Women's Auxiliaries, and the general purchasing public, and educate them, not only to the advisability, but the necessity of asking for, and demanding union-made products, which shall be served to them in turn by men or women who wear the respective button of their various crafts.

That there is necessity for the work contemplated by the Department is admitted by all, but what is most essential to success is the united action of all the members of organized labor. The success of this Department rests upon the amount of effective work that may be done by our members and friends, and if we do not receive their undivided support a few individuals can accomplish but little.

Section 9 of Article IV, of the Constitution, provides as follows:

"Sec. 9. Each affiliated organization shall be required to submit a written description of its union label, button, or card, and two copies of such union label, button, or card, and the conditions under which it is issued, as well as the methods employed in label propaganda."

You are therefore requested to forward to the Secretary-Treasurer, at your earliest convenience, the above information so that the data desired will be available.

Let me further request that samples of any advertising matter that you may have on hand be forwarded here, together with a statement as to how much of it may be available for distribution by this office. If your organization publishes an official journal which contains the addresses of your local unions, will you kindly place us on your exchange list?

Hoping that you will give these matters your favorable consideration, I remain,

Yours fraternally,

THOMAS F. TRACY,
Secretary-Treasurer.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 28, 1909.

The Comly counterfeit label case having been placed in my hands to prosecute and manage, I feel obligated to submit a report and give a short history of the case, more especially so as it developed into a very complicated and protracted case, subjected to many delays and drawbacks, which I shall enumerate as I proceed.

First, I will state that the Comly auction house in this city is the dumping ground for all kinds of fake cigars such as bogus label, prison made and the product of learners; in fact, it is the sewer through which all unmarketable cigars get into the hands of unscrupulous dealers of Philadelphia and vicinity.

In the early part of October, 1903, the International President notified Union No. 165, of this city, that it had been reported to him that Comly & Sons' auction house of Philadelphia was handling bogus label cigars and requested said union to investigate the report. At that time William C. Hahn was business agent of No. 165, and at that particular time had more on his hands than he could conveniently attend to. He requested me to take charge of the case, which I consented to do.

On the 26th of October, 1903, I visited Comly & Sons' auction house and found cigars bearing counterfeit labels on sale, and succeeded in buying a box for evidence in the presence of two witnesses. Then, in accordance with instructions from the International President, I personally notified the firm in the presence of witnesses, that there is a law in the State of Pennsylvania that prohibits the sale of cigars bearing counterfeit labels and cautioned the firm against continuing the sale of the same, and also mailed them a registered letter to the same effect, all of which I did. I also furnished the firm with a list published monthly at that time, giving the factory numbers of all legitimate label factories in the State of Pennsylvania and informed them that they could obtain this list monthly if they desired to do so, then if they received a lot of cigars bearing the Cigarmakers' Union label that they could refer to these lists and if they did not find the factory number there they would know that they were counterfeit labels, and to have nothing to do with them, and informed them if they did offer them for sale that the law would be invoked. They promised to be guided by the information, but not feeling assured that they would, I sent a man there on the 14th of January, 1904, and he found that they were still selling bogus label cigars and bought a box as evidence, then under the instruction of the International President I returned with one of the best lawyers in this city, ex-Judge Stevenson, and had the head of the firm arrested and placed under $1,500 bail to appear at court. Then, feeling confident that we had a strong case, I awaited the calling of the case for trial. After waiting about three months and hearing nothing, I called on our attorney and requested him to go with me to see the district attorney, which he did, and to our surprise we were informed that the bill of indictment had been lost. We then had a new bill of indictment formulated and approved by the grand jury, but before the case came up for trial there was a bogus label case in Adams County, Pa., on which an appeal was taken on the constitutionality of the Pennsylvania label law, which was held up in the Superior Court for over two years, consequently the Comly case was held back that length of time. Finally a decision was rendered, declaring the law constitutional. Then we again urged the case to trial, and again went to the office of the district attorney and were given another surprise. We were informed that the bill of indictment had been ignored. Knowing that there must be some crooked work or a grave mistake, Judge Stevenson and I went to the office where the ignored bills are filed and dug up the bill of indictment. We found it marked "Ignored on first count," which related to something that we never claimed. We had it placed on file again. Finally, on February 15th, 1907, the case came up for trial. Then the attorney for the defense presented a doctor's certificate to the court, claiming his client was unable to appear, on account of illness. Consequently, the case was postponed. It came up again on April 18th, 1907. Then the night before, April 17, our attorney, Judge Stevenson, was attacked on the street, beaten and robbed, and the case was again postponed on that account.

The case was called for trial again in February, 1908. Then the counsel for the defense gave us another surprise, stating to the Court that the senior member of the firm had died, which caused another postponement, or was continued and called for trial again in about three months. Then our principal witness was not present, hence another halt. The next time the case was called for trial was on February 26th, 1909. The case had then been pending about six years, but we felt pretty confident that it would be pulled off then, and so it was; but it proved to be the most farcical proceeding to assume the dignity of a trial that I ever witnessed in a court of justice. It took the judge about twenty minutes to dispose of the case.

The International President was the first witness called, and he was asked a few irrelevant questions and relieved with insulting remarks from the judge, who referred to his presumption in coming all the way from Chicago to tell Philadelphia dealers how they should sell cigars. I was the next witness called to the stand. I was asked to state what I knew about the case. I began to make my statement, when the counsel for the defense said they did not want to hear what I did, they wanted to know if I bought that box of cigars. I stated I did. I was then asked who

I bought them of. I pointed out one of the Comlys. Then they asked me if I had any conversation with him. I stated that I did not. The judge then said "That will do; we have had enough of you." The other witnesses were then called to the stand and asked two or three questions. That ended the case. A non-suit was declared by the judge and we were ordered out of the court room. Hence, we were at a loss to know whether we were in America or Russia.

It might be well to state that in Philadelphia county, unlike some other counties in the State of Pennsylvania, the district attorney is counsel for the prosecution, consequently all our attorney could do was to prepare the case for the district attorney; and I want to say that Judge Stevenson handed the district attorney a well-prepared case. I saw the brief, and I must say that it covered the case thoroughly, and if the district attorney had not been a stick and afraid to protest against the unfair treatment we received at the hands of the judge, we would at least have had a run for our money, but owing to the absence of our attorney from the court room when the trial was going on and the silent assent of the district attorney, we were down and out. The judge did not possess the dignity of a gentleman, to say nothing of a judge on the bench.

In conclusion I will say that I did everything possible to have Comly & Son convicted, but a wooden district attorney as counsel and a judge prejudiced against labor organization made it a tough proposition. If our evidence had been heard and gone to the jury and then lost the case would not have been so hard to swallow, but to feel that we had a strong case and the law on our side, and then have our evidence arbitrarily ruled out or ignored is extremely aggravating.

Fraternally yours,

I. W. BISBING.

Cigarmakers Union No. 2, of Buffalo, N. Y., submits an amendment to Section 77 to exempt members who are in the beneficiary class, from paying assessments levied for label agitation.

We find since the adoption of the Chicago amendment that the beneficiary member instead of being our friends and working for the best interests of the (blue label), are becoming our enemies and giving up their cards as they deem it an injustice to be compelled to pay such assessments.

And we earnestly request sister locals to consider our amendment and endorse same as we believe it to be for the best interest of C. M. I. U. of A. and the Blue Label.

CIGARMAKERS UNION NO. 2.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 4, 1909.

The attention of members of the various locals is called to the amendment offered by No. 94, Pawtucket, which, if adopted, will establish a pension system. It seems to be the unanimous opinion of the members that some method of assisting out aged and helpless brothers should be arranged; a start has to be made somewhere and No. 94 suggests that the amendment they offer will furnish the foundation necessary to start with; the amendment is practically the amendment suggested by International President Perkins in an editorial published in the May, 1908, Journal, in his comments on the Belleville amendment.

We have added an assessment of $1 per year, payable quarterly, with the intentions of not interfering with the other work of our union. The pension system, if this amendment is adopted, goes into effect January 1, 1910, and the first payment of pensions occurs March 1, 1910, thus permitting the collection of one quarterly assessment before the payments begin. We do not claim to know whether the 25c per quarter assessment is sufficient to carry on the pension system, but we do claim that the amendment, as whole, should be adopted, and it is hardly necessary to say it can be amended as experience shows the need. If any local thinks that some feature of the amendment should be changed, we suggest the best way to do is to work for the amendment and after it is adopted, then such changes can be made as are necessary to improve the pension system. We have lost the opportunity of leading the Trade Union Movement of United States in the adoption of a pension system, but we can at least avoid being the last among the leading unions of the country in adopting some method of assisting our old and helpless brothers.

The following unions request the collection of private loans from the respective persons, and return of same to union making request.

Notice.—The Joint Advisory Board of Chicago hereby notifies all members who owe private loans to J. A. B., Chicago, to pay the same at once, or their names will be published in the next issue of the Journal, and insist on the enforcement of the constitution. Secretary J. A. B.

Valentine, No. —, 50c.

129 Denver, Colo.: While we have received a few responses from members owing this union private loans, there are quite a number that have owed this union for months, and even years, that do not seem to remember the favor, and will not go to the trouble to drop us a card, offering any kind of an excuse for not paying their loans back. Ingratitude seems to be this union's reward in about 75 per cent of the cases where loans have been granted to help members out of financial troubles. The time is fast approaching when it is going to be hard for any one to get a private loan from this or any other union. Pay up or give some kind of excuse for not doing so. We won't question the excuse too closely, but we would rather have the money.

Union 451, Bushnell, Ill., writes: "Members owing private loans to Union 451, Bushnell, Ill., will please settle same at once or we will make use of our constitutional privileges. This is final."

LOST CARDS

Section 11. Any member losing or destroying his loan book shall not be entitled to receive any benefits or a duplicate loan book before the expiration of two months, and financial secretaries of local unions must notify the International President of such loss or destruction immediately, the same to be published in the official Journal by the International President. The International President shall be the only person to issue a duplicate.

Members having lost their traveling cards take notice:

No duplicate card will be issued for lost card unless the full name of member, the card number, the date of initiation and the union where the card was last deposited are given. Members who lose cards are not entitled to benefits until they secure duplicates. No duplicate cards are issued except upon application through some secretary, when the time limit of two months has expired.

Month after month unscrupulous men impose upon secretaries and members under the plea of lost cards. The constitution provides a punishment for lost cards. Its purpose is to stop the carelessness and the traffic made with full cards by permitting them to be held as security.

Don't issue letters to any member claiming lost card unless you know his actual standing.

Secretaries have no right to issue certificates in place of lost cards. Members who secure employment should be entered as admitted to the union.

Secretaries should be careful and enter all loans granted and repaid and all balances carried from one card to another in letters and figures. The issue of duplicates will be delayed in all cases where information is not complete.

Secretaries should examine due books where claim of lost card is made. Report full name, number, date and place of initiation and when and where card was last deposited.

Private loans will be entered on duplicates issued upon request of unions.

Enter all loans granted in figures and letters.

Secretaries will please notify this office as to whether any private loans are due on cards reported lost, otherwise they are issued with only the International loan account. This does not release members from their just obligations to the unions. The absence of the private loans, however, quite often cause members to overlook these loans and suspensions follow.

54293 Ed Smith, initiated Jan. 3, 1889. Reported lost May 14, by letter.

78402 A. Leonard, initiated Sept. 16, 1895. Reported lost May 22, by 58.

If admitted by card, state when and where from, and in addition send in such cards, but place on your letter the information necessary, as the letter is filed as a matter of record. Before paying death benefits study Sections 145 and 161, inclusive. Send in a death blank properly filled out for all death benefits paid.

Cigar Makers' Official Journal

CHICAGO, JUNE 15, 1909.

An old age pension for the faithful old timer appeals to us as one of the very best and most humane acts that a trade union can place to its credit. The already splendid chain of benefits to the credit of the Cigar Makers' International Union never will look just right until we add thereto an old age pension. In these days of sordid commercialism it's a case of take the young man and let the old fellow look after himself. The old man is just as much entitled to live in comfort and more so than the strong and younger man. He has done his share, and without him it would have been impossible for us to exist. He deserves a better fate than a cold world hands out to him. The trade union is greater than a mere money-making institution; it has blazed the pathway to a better social and economic life for all workers within, and for many without its fold. It must continue to lead the way. If society will not take care of its dependents the trade union must and will.

Women can be of great help in strengthening and building up the trade union movement if their enormous spending capacity was properly organized and confined to strictly union made and union labeled goods.

Organized labor receives at the lowest estimate over one billion three hundred million dollars annually in wages.

Women, the wives and mothers of trade unionists, spend fully 70 per cent or 80 per cent of this enormous amount of the family income for the daily sustenance of the family.

The Women's International Union Label League presents an easy and logical means whereby this helpful assistance can be utilized to the benefit of the trade union movement. The formation of leagues of this organization should be commenced in all places where they do not now exist and in places where they do exist they should be encouraged.

The free trade bill, now before the Senate of the United States, provides that one hundred and fifty million cigars shall be admitted duty free annually into the United States.

The eighth annual report of the Philippine Commission to the Secretary of War, published in 1908, contains the following:

"For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1907, the total number of cigars manufactured amounted to 197,243,119, of which 117,766,660 were exported to foreign countries and 79,476,459 were sold for home consumption." The framers of the Philippine free trade bill in cigars and leaf tobacco have undoubtedly the intention of dumping almost the entire product of cigars into the United States.

The competition in the cigar industry is already keen, and in some instances close to the breaking point. With the addition of the cheapest labor product in the world, the competition, in many instances, will become ruinous.

It is idle to say that 150,000,000 cigars represent but a small percentage of the cigar industry of the United States, and therefore would not be detrimental. The fact remains, and cannot be gainsaid, that the lowest priced product, other conditions being equal, finds a ready market without any solicitation, while crowding out the product of the higher paid labor, it has a tendency to lower the market value and to curtail production, which affects wages in the long run.

Curtailling production means less employment in the year, which is equal to a reduction of wages. The cigar maker working 300 days in a year, receiving three dollars per day, averages $900; the cigar maker working 250 days in a year, receives $750, which equals a reduction of twenty per cent in his earning capacity.

The Philippine free trade bill will have a tendency to increase the ranks of the unemployed cigar makers by over two thousand, without any present or prospective benefit in sight.

It is a vicious bill and deserves defeat. Every cigar maker and manufacturer should immediately mail a protest to the Senators of his State. Don't delay.

When Buck Stove and Range Van Cleave was elected president of the National Manufacturers' Association what he said he was going to do in the nature of slaughtering the trade unions was a plenty. He asked the association to give him $1,500,000 or $500,000 a year, and intimated that if it did, at the end of three years there would be nothing left of the American Federation of Labor and its affiliated unions. Recently Van Cleave quit—it is said God Almighty hates a quitter—and after counting noses it is found that not one legitimate union has been put out of commission by his efforts. On the contrary, he has caused more ill feeling and hatred than any other man in public or private life.

He has succeeded in disgusting many of the fair-minded manufacturers and driven them out of the association. He has also done the trade union movement a positive benefit by calling attention always to the weak spots in our movement, but never slighting any of its virtues, and has thus caused the unions to the more quickly remedy its defects.

Some unions are not perfect nor infallible, and there have been cases when employers were justified in asking for relief. This is true of the best of regulated institutions, be they fraternal, state, militant or what they may. The trade union, however, is here to stay, like all other legitimate institutions, and will stay despite all opposition, a fact intelligent, thoughtful manufacturers and citizens generally have long since recognized despite the fanatics of the Van Cleave type.

The thoughtful, active men of labor, who shape its policies, long ago recognized the "square deal" idea for legitimate, fair-minded union employers, and the day has gone by when hatred and disregard for the rights of others enter into the disposition or settlement of trade disputes. Van Cleave has been succeeded by one Mr. Kirby, Dayton, O., who, it is said, is almost, if not as narrow and bigoted in his views towards labor, as he was. This means that the unions must not go to sleep or tumble into a position of false security. Kirby will undoubtedly "fuss" around and try to be worthy of the name of chief union buster.

Many manufacturers have already changed their ideas concerning the "open shop" and are now making trade agreements with the unions. This new order and dawn of a better feeling and day will continue to develop to the great advantage of all concerned where the unions are, first, just in their demands; and secondly, fair in their dealings with favorably inclined union employers.

The Cuban Census of 1907, compiled by Victor H. Olmstead, chief statistician of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C., contains many valuable and interesting points in reference to the cigar industry in the Island of Cuba.

The census was paid for by the Cuban Government and published in both English and Spanish.

The cigar industry ranks sixth in magnitude of all industries. It employs 27,503 cigar makers. They are classified as follows:

Native white Cubans	14,922
Foreign whites	2,096
Colored, mixed and yellows	10,485

Total

The industry employs 24,161 male cigar makers and 3,342 females. Of the males 12,828 were white Cubans, 1,931 were of foreign extraction, and 9,402 were colored. Of the female cigar makers 2,094 were Cuban whites, 165 foreign whites and 1,083 colored.

The census shows that child labor is one of the features of the industry. The ages of the cigar makers are given as follows:

Male Cigar Makers.

Between 10 and 14 years.....	618
Between 15 and 19 years.....	4,421
Between 20 and 24 years.....	4,160
Between 25 and 34 years.....	6,260
Between 35 and 44 years.....	4,555
Between 45 and 64 years.....	3,623
Over 64 years	524

Female Cigar Makers.

Between 10 and 14 years.....	168
Between 15 and 19 years.....	1,169
Between 20 and 24 years.....	737
Between 25 and 34 years.....	654
Between 35 and 44 years.....	372
Between 45 and 64 years.....	221
Over 64 years	21

Total

The educational statistics show that 3,840 cigar makers were illiterate, which included 3,098 males and 742 females.

Suppose that the provision in the forthcoming tariff act for the free admission of any quantity of Philippine cigars is passed, as it will undoubtedly pass, since the trade has offered itself as a voluntary sacrifice on the altar of broken pledges by the withdrawal of its opposition, who will be its immediate beneficiary? It is no secret that the moment this provision was embodied in the Payne bill officials of the United Cigar Stores Co. left for the Philippine Islands for the purpose of contracting for the entire amount of Philippine cigars that would be permitted to come in free. For all we know these cigars may be already in the bonded warehouses of the Pacific coast and doubtless the day after the tariff bill is signed advertisements will appear in the leading dailies of the country announcing the fact that the long expected Manila cigars will be on sale, and exclusively so, by the United Cigar Stores Co. Hardly another distributing or retail concern in the United States will get a chance to display a single box of Manila cigars under the free admission of the new tariff act. The United is sure to monopolize this trade almost exclusively. And when the public rushes into its stores to get the exceedingly attractive bargains of the Manila cigars, and they will be genuine bargains and they will take like hot cakes, then there will arise one indignant outcry from coast to coast against this new "monopolization" by the Trust. But we warn the trade in advance to beware against whom to direct then its denunciation. It is not the Trust who will be responsible for this new monopolization, for it did not lift a finger to get a chance at the Philippine tobacco and cigar trade. It is our Government who alone is creating this new source of monopoly for a Trust and it is the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association who from sheer cowardice has aided and abetted a faithless administration to give control of a new source of revenue to an affiliation of a Trust at the expense of our domestic cigar industry, at the expense of our domestic leaf growers and at the expense of all of our independent retail cigar stores. That the United should seize upon the splendid opportunity of controlling the profitable Manila cigar trade—and it will prove its most profitable revenue—is but a shrewd business enterprise on its part and it certainly could not be blamed for it. The blame will have to rest with those who created this opportunity, namely, our Administration and the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association.—U. S. Tobacco Journal.

Mr. Charles Stelzel, speaking on the subject of a square deal among, other things said: "The most important thing about the labor question is to give the other fellow a square deal. The average workingman is too close to the labor question to understand it; but what is true of the average workingman, is probably just as true of the average employer. Thousands of men are being deluded by the vain hope that if they can abolish the labor union they will have solved the labor question. These men forget that the labor union is not the labor question. If every labor union in existence were to be abolished to-day, the labor question would still be present.

CALIFORNIA A GOLD MINE FOR ASIATICS.

Senator Perkins, a few years ago, while addressing the United States Senate upon Chinese Exclusion, submitted statistics showing that the Chinese had, in thirty years, sent or carried to China $800,000,000. A prediction made in 1906 indicated that in a like period the money taken or sent out of the United States by the Japanese would exceed that sent out by the Chinese.

That this prediction is in a fair way of realization in California, as per census reports of 1890 and 1900, and from a "Statistical Pamphlet" published by the Asiatic Exclusion League.

In 1890 there were 1,147 Japanese in California; in 1900 there were 10,151, the rate of increase being 900 per cent. Estimating that each Japanese saves and transmits to his home 50 cents per day—and this estimate is possibly far too small—the amount for the decade ending 1900 would exceed $12,000,000. The increase of the Japanese population in California, 1900-1908, approximates 55,000 an increase of nearly 8,000 a year. Figured on the 50 cent basis the total amount including that of the past decade would approximate eighteen years. If we should include in this statement all of the Japanese on the mainland of the United States and in Hawaii—estimated at 200,000—the total amount would exceed $250,000,000. Besides the savings and remittances of those engaged in agricultural and domestic occupations, we have an army of merchants and manufacturers whose profits, derived from business transactions with Americans, run so high as 30 to 35 per cent on the capital invested, and whose remittances to Japan are made through the numerous Japanese banks and mercantile institutions.

Is it any wonder that the Japanese government encourages the migration of its people? If we closed our doors to her as she is doing in Manchuria and Korea, or burdened her trade with rebates and differentials, where would her gold supply come from? Had the enormous amount of gold of which California has been drained by Asiatics been received by white men and women, it would have passed through the natural channels of trade and remained in the State for permanent investment, and our progress, instead of being remarkable, would be little short of marvelous.—Asiatic Exclusion League.

Notes for publication by Union 97, Boston: San Felice, J. H. P., and all trust brands of cigars are still unfair.—Mr. Standcumb and our secretary-treasurer, Mr. Lipp, were the first outsiders to address convention of the R. R. Conductors. They were well received and we believe helped to boom our label.—The agitation to reduce the death rate from consumption will be of benefit to organized labor. The mortality resulting from this dread disease can only be reduced by practical means, such as better homes, more recreation, raising of school age, more play grounds; and all this can only be brought about by a living wage, and a living wage is sufficient to support a wife and family and save sufficient for old age. Anything short of this is not a living wage.—The National Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade turned turtle on the Philippine bill.—Keep up the agitation. Box makers of Boston have protested against it. All branches of our industry should be a unit against this bill.—Label committee will cover city with 24-sheet posters.—They have placed blue label signs in all cigar, drug stores, saloons and barber shops.—New England conference is doing good work.—Men who buy trust made tobacco and cigarettes are not trade unionists, even if they have a paid up due book.—Boys don't forget the Hatters or the A. F. of L. defense fund.—Boston up to date has contributed one thousand and fifty dollars to the Hatters.—Will some local secretary inform us where the Federal Cigar Co. of Ohio is located?—Would it not be a good idea to organize the apprentice boys in union shops?

Mr. Jas. Robinson, financial secretary, failed to account for $228.20; he gave to the trustees of Union 29, Jacksonville, Fla., a note secured by a mortgage on two lots, payable within three years at $8 monthly, with 5 per cent interest. The amount of $30 in his possession was paid over to Jerry Cullinane, treasurer, and deposited in the Atlantic National Bank.

Yours fraternally,

ASTRASER,
International Financier.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 1st, 1909.

Since last report have examined the accounts of the following unions, viz:

No. 14, Chicago, Ill.

The books and accounts here so far as figures are concerned are very fine. Original bills, and vouchers passed upon by the union before being turned over to the Financial Secretary or Treasurer, by the Recording Secretary, who makes out all vouchers. This looks all the safeguard necessary to protect the fund, benefit cards on file except in some hospital cases. When the hospital bill is on file; sick and O. O. W. benefit kept in separate ledgers. During the strike here the committee paid all benefits and collected the dues, etc.; not enough attention paid to how the members stood in dues, etc.; result, some illegal benefit; secretary claims he can't at all times make sure of sick members standing until benefit is paid; a little more bad benefit results; this will be attended to in the future. The secretary promised to keep office receipts day book for future receipts; this will be much more satisfactory all around. The correctness in handling figures here is sure fine; a little more attention given the standing of the members before benefit is paid will make No. 14, Chicago, one of the model unions. Statement as follows:

If the fiscal year dates and benefits drawn were always entered in the ledger, the books and accounts here would be just about the way we want them—fine. All accounts regularly balanced. The Financial Secretary explained why he had a small surplus in stamps. The surplus is now included in number on hand.

The books and accounts of this union show a big improvement since last examination, but there are a few things to change yet. One thing, all Vouchers for expense must be endorsed by whoever receives the money. And a few of the members that owe eight weeks' dues Saturday all the time should get out of the habit. There is so many chances for trouble for such members. Section 73 should be better understood. Read it.

LAS VENTAJAS DE LAS ALTAS CUOTAS.

La última edición del "Carpenters' Journal" (periódico de los carpinteros) contiene lo siguiente tocante á este aspecto importante de los gremios de oficio, y se encomienda á la atención de nuestros miembros:

El efecto de este último abatimiento industrial sobre los gremios de oficio, y le anhelo de los capitalistas de aprovecharse de la ocasión bajando los sueldos, deben convencer á todo miembro inteligente que será menester adoptar un sistema más extensivo y adecuado para la protección de los miembros de los gremios, si quieren mantener su carácter militante en lo futuro, retener su poder de resistencia, tener su organización intasta, y continuar de recibir los sueldos altos. Para hacer esto, no obstante se requieren sacrificios más grandes de parte de los individuos que constituyen los gremios, y la costumbre de sacrificarse les falta mucho. Para mantenernos y nuestra organización en buena condición para vencer durante un abatimiento industrial, el cual nos amenaza de vez en cuando necesariamente bajo nuestro sistema actual financiero é industrial, debemos pagar cuotas más altas. Debemos pagar semanalmente ó mensualmente cuotas bastante altas para que se acumule en nuestras tesorías una suma suficiente para un fondo de defensa para sostener nuestros miembros cuando se metan en las huelgas ó los cierres. Además de los socorros en caso de enfermedad ó de muerte, ya establecidos en la mayor parte de los gremios de oficio, la organización debe proveer raciones semanales á sus miembros que carezcan trabajo, á los viejos, y á los miembros que necesiten el alivio y la protección en otras emergencias.

Se requiere un sacrificio mucho más pequeño, y es mucho más barato, si se contribuye regularmente á un fondo de defensa, un fondo de carencia de trabajo, y un fondo de pensión á los viejos, que se requiere en caso de renovar la guerra para recobrar el terreno que se haya perdido, para restablecer los sueldos, y para reintegrar á los miembros que por causa de su carencia de trabajo y la imposibilidad de pagar sus cuotas, se hayan retirado del gremio, y tal vez hayan aceptado trabajo por un sueldo menos del tipo exigido por el gremio. En tiempo de la paz debemos preparar para la guerra; los vigorosos deben ayudar á los débiles, y los jóvenes á los viejos! Esto es la única hermandad verdadera.

Der deutsche Metallarbeiter-Verband hat ein schweres Jahr hinter sich, das an seine Leistungsfähigkeit außerordentlich hohe Anforderungen stellte. Die Metallindustrie ist besonders schwer von der wirtschaftlichen Krise und damit von der Arbeitslosigkeit wie auch von den ungünstigen Wirkungen der Zollpolitik des Deutschen Reiches betroffen worden.

Der Verband hat im vergangenen Jahre allein für Erwerbslosenunterstützung 6,148,306 Mark (für Krankenunterstützung 8,049,647 M. und für Arbeitslosenunterstützung 8,098,559 M.) ausgegeben.

Boost All the Labels

Die Mitgliederzahl betrug am 31. Dezember 1908: 362,073.

Trotz der Krisis, unter der die große Industriestadt Chemnitz schwer zu leiden hat, ist es den dortigen Gewerkschaften doch gelungen, ihre alte, starke Position zu behaupten und Bedeutendes zu leisten. Während die Stadt Chemnitz rund 120,000 Mark für Nothstandsarbeiten ausgab, zahlten die Chemnitzer Gewerkschaften allein an Arbeitslosen- und Krankenunterstützung 286,557 M., das ist das Doppelte von dem, was im Jahre 1907 für die gleichen Unterstützungsweige ausbezahlt wurde, obgleich die Mitgliederzahl sich 1908 vermindert hatte. Die Ausgaben für alle Unterstützungsweige aber betrug die gewaltige Summe von 341,884 Mark. Wichtig ist, festzustellen, daß der am schwersten durch die Krisis getroffene Verband: der Metallarbeiter-Verband, sogar von 10,986 auf 11,114, also um 128 Mitglieder stieg. Die Erfolge der Gewerkschaften — trotz der Krise — sind: Es erreichten die Bau-, Brauerei- und Holzarbeiter, die Wöttcher und Kupferfurnier-Tarifverträge. Die Bildhauer, Maler, Gutmacher, Steinseger, Schneider, Maurer, Sattler führten in Einzelbetrieben Lohnbewegungen ohne Arbeitseinstellungen mit Erfolg durch. Bei allen anderen Gewerkschaften waren nur drei Lohnbewegungen ohne Erfolg.

Union - Label Trades - Department.

In Ausführung eines Beschlusses der im November 1907 in Norfolk abgehaltenen Convention der American Federation of Labor ernannte Präsident Gompers ein aus fünf Mitgliedern bestehendes Comité, um Mittel und Wege zu berathen, den Gebrauch des Union-Labels und dadurch den Gebrauch von Union-Waaren möglichst zu fördern. Das Comité, in welchem die Schuhmacher, Gutmacher, Kleidermacher, Schriftsetzer und Cigarrenmacher vertreten waren, hielt mehrere Konferenzen ab und empfahl schließlich, eine Convention von Repräsentanten aller mit der A. F. of L. verbundenen Arbeiter-Organisationen, welche ein Label führen, abzuhalten, um ein Union-Label Trades-Department zu bilden, durch welches ein systematisches Zusammenarbeiten zur Förderung des Gebrauchs aller Union-Label herbeigeführt werden kann.

Diese Convention fand am 29. März 1909 in Washington statt. Folgende Organisationen waren durch Delegaten vertreten: Cigarrenmacher, Handschuhmacher, Kleidermacher, Gutmacher, Barbierer, Schuhmacher, Zimmerleute, Drucker und Helfer, Piano- und Orgelbauer, Stahl- und Kupferplatten-Drucker, Gut- und Kappenmacher, Bartender, Hotel- und Restaurant-Angestellte, Schneider, Clerks, Musiker, Lithographen, Schriftsetzer, Brauerei-Arbeiter, Tabak-Arbeiter, Stereotypisten, Hemden- und Blousenmacher, Buchbinder, Photographen und Wäderei-Arbeiter.

Die Convention war zwei Tage in Sitzung und beschloß die von dem Fünfer-Comité empfohlene Gründung eines Label-Trades-Departements. Der von der Convention angenommenen Constitution entnahmen wir die folgenden wichtigsten Bestimmungen:

„Der Zweck dieses Departements soll sein: eine größere Nachfrage nach Waaren mit dem Union-Label und nach Union-Arbeit herbeizuführen; Methoden für eine weitere Bekanntmachung von Union-Label-Produkten zu untersuchen, zu empfehlen und, soweit es in der Autorität des Departements liegt, zur Ausführung zu bringen; die Mitglieder der Gewerkschaften, deren Familien und das Publikum im Allgemeinen zu einem besseren Verständnis des durch die Gewerkschafts-Bewegung bezweckten wirtschaftlichen, sozialen und moralischen Aufstiegs zu erziehen; das Wohler-

gehen der angeschlossenen Organisationen zu fördern und in der Organisations-Arbeit unter allen Arbeitern zum gemeinsamen Besten zu helfen.“

„Der Sekretär-Schatzmeister soll für seine Dienste ein Gehalt von $2000 pro Jahr erhalten.“ Nach Annahme der Constitution erwählte die Convention folgende Beamte: Präsident, John B. Lennon (Schneider); Sekretär - Schatzmeister, Chas. F. Trachy (Cigarrenmacher); 1. Vize-Präsident, John F. Robin (Schuhmacher); 2. Vize-Präsident, L. C. Parsons (Schriftsetzer); 3. Vize-Präsident, Marx Morris (Clerk); 4. Vize-Präsident, Owen Miller (Musiker); 5. Vize-Präsident, John J. Manning (Hemdenmacher).

Výroba doutníků v druhém a třetím distriktu vnitrozemní daně města New Yorku, za něž placena daň v měsíci květnu, obnášela 60,271,220 kusů; kdežto za ten samý měsíc v roce 1908 zaplacená daň ze 65,324,220 doutníků. Toto porovnání ukazuje zmenšení výroby o 5,053,000 doutníků za stejný měsíc v roce 1908.

Za dobu pěti měsíců končící v květnu 1909 obnášela výroba doutníků v druhém a třetím distriktu vnitrozemní daně města New Yorku, za něž placena daň, 279,346,477 kusů; kdežto za těch samých pěti měsíců v roce 1908 zaplacená daň ze 298,496,583 doutníků. Porovnání toto ukazuje zmenšení výroby o 19,150,106 doutníků za stejný čas v roce 1908.

Síla v unii.

Profesor D. A. McCabe z hospodářského oddělení katolické university washingtonské, praví: „Stanovisko ekonomistů vůči hnutí řemeslnických unii pozůstává ze všeobecného uznávání nutnosti organizace a schvalování cílů řemeslnických unii. Ekonomist vidí v řemeslnické unii prostředek k dosažení úhrnné, všestranné smlouvy; a všeobecná propoziice, že úhrnná smlouva jakožto prostředek k dosažení a udržení slušné mzdy, snesitelné doby pracovní a podmínky zaměstnání fyzicky, morálně a společensky zdravé vůbec — jest absolutně za nynějších hospodářských poměrů nutná a připouští velmi slabých pochybností. Jednotlivý dělník, spoléhající se na svou individuální sílu a nežli pouze na své pomocné prameny, nemůže opravdu se zaměstnavatelem v dělnickém trhu úspěšně závoditi.“

Národní sdružení vyrábětelů, jež posledních pět roků se vynasnažovalo vyvrátiti řemeslnický unionismus z kořene, nedobro ve svých snáhách valného úspěchu a jsou příznaky jež nasvědčují že síla tohoto sdružení jest vyčerpána a to následkem odporu proti své vlastní metodě. Její spoludávce, „The Citizen's Alliance“, jež natropila tolika povyku proti uním na západě, nachází se v mručím stavu a její konec jest blížší, pakli se již nenachází ve svém úbohé. Jakožto záptěnické organizace hleděla potlačit sílu pokroku — a v tomto boji oyla poražena. Nebojovala za svobodu a „línka — hledělat“ jeho svobodu obmeziti — a proto ten neslavný konec.

Americké vládě podána zpráva stran Sumatra tabáku za rok 1908 a sice konsulem Morganem v Amsterdamě. Praví, že zásylky Sumatra tabáku (výroby 1908) obnášely 129,749 žoků, z nichž 31,608 žoků prodáno za posledních dvou veřejných prodejs; zbývajících 98,141 žoků ponechano na ruce. Zmíněný konsul byl ze spolehlivého pramene informován, že celá tato úroda předčí daleko úrodu z roku 1907, což se přičítá dostatečné vlaze, kdežto celá úroda z roku 1907 vzrostla za velikého sucha. Mokrý počasí velice pomohlo náležitému uzrání, místem bylo až příliš mokrý, což zavinilo příliš světlé a červené listy, jež se nehodily pro americký trh. Než pouze čtyři tisíce žoků koupeno pro americký trh, praví konsul Morgan, ježto ve veřejných prodejs ke koupi nabízený tabák pozůstával ponejvíce z pískového listu, jehož se velmi málo množství do Spojených Států importuje. On věří, že celá výroba Sumatra tabáku z r. 1908 nebude tak velká jako v předcházejících letech a z toho že se velmi málo hodí pro americký trh.

The amendment of Union 14, Chicago, Ill., levying a 10-cent assessment on all 30 and 15 cent contributing members in favor of the A. F. of L. defense fund, has been adopted by a referendum vote. The assessment takes effect July 17, 1909, and is payable within the limits as provided for in Section 73 of the Constitution.

NOTICE TO SECRETARIES.

The amendment adopted to Sections 76 and 77 does away with the issuance of retiring cards to all who continue to pay dues as beneficiary members.

Retiring cards are only for those who pay up and actually terminate their connection with the union, in so far as the payment of dues is concerned.

Members who transfer from the 30-cent list to the 20-cent beneficiary membership list are simply changed from one class to another and deducted from one and added to the other.

Members who have not paid 30-cent dues for three years and quitting the trade under Section 76 and wishing to qualify for Section 77 as a beneficiary member should not be kept on without any other change than to make a note of the intention on the ledger page. If such member desires to travel to another jurisdiction he should be given a transfer card and his intention to qualify as a 20-cent beneficiary member written on the transfer card. Such beneficiary members are not entitled to any benefits except sick benefits after one year's membership and whatever death benefits their term of membership entitles them to.

NOTICE TO OFFICERS AND MEMBERS.

In printing the nineteenth edition of the Constitution, an omission occurs in Section 77, on line 7. A comma and the words "and local assessments" should follow "International assessments." The sentence to read: "All International assessments, and local assessments levied for label agitation purposes." This amendment as published in another place is correct.

To Financial Secretaries.

NOTICE.

If you hold any loan cards of no further use send them to this office.

Before granting or accepting retiring cards secretaries and members should consult Sections 76 and 77 of the Constitution.

NOTICE.—How to duplicate Loan Cards.

It frequently occurs that new secretaries through error or lack of knowledge, transfer the amount a member "has coming" instead of what he owes. In duplicating a card, figure up all the member has borrowed and subtract all he has paid, and if there is a balance against the member transfer to new card in red ink in figures and letters the amount due the International Union. Also enter on new card all that may be essential that you find on the old, then sign and seal it. Send the old card to the International office.

MEMBERS OUT OF WORK ARE NOT ENTITLED TO THE SIXTEEN WEEKS' PRIVILEGE IN DUES UNLESS THEY NOTIFY THE SECRETARY WEEKLY BEFORE THE EIGHTH WEEK. THIS INCLUDES TRAVELING MEMBERS, WHO SHOULD ALWAYS CARRY A CERTIFICATE AND HAVE SAME SIGNED WEEKLY.

Items for the Journal should be placed on separate slips of paper—not the backs of reports, etc.—in order to insure prompt publication, and should reach this office not later than the 10th of each month if intended for current publication.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address, if possible, so as to obviate delays, mistakes, etc.

In reporting deaths, kindly comply with the following and you will save time and unnecessary work: Give full name, number, date and place of initiation of member. Has member held retiring card? If so, did he pay his dues? This information relates only to such as you can obtain from the records of your own union. If admitted by card, state when and where from, and in addition send in such card, but place on your letter the information necessary, as the latter is filed as a matter of record. Before paying death benefits study Sections 146 and 151, inclusive. Send in a death blank properly filled out for all death benefits paid.

If secretaries when ordering supplies will place their order on the regular blank, it will greatly simplify the work here and avoid unnecessary delay for those who order the supplies. We receive an average of 300 pieces of mail in the office daily. Sometimes an order is sandwiched into a two or three-page letter containing three or more different subjects, and there is danger in such cases of an order being overlooked. Hence we ask that in order to save unnecessary delay and annoyance you order on the regular blank, giving your name and address.

CORRESPONDENCE

New York, N. Y., July 8, 1909.

Kindly publish the following notice in the Official Journal for July (space permitting):

We desire to call to the attention of the members of the various locals the amendment proposed by Union 213, and appearing in the May Journal, namely, to amend section 45 of the constitution by striking out the words "$30 per week," and insert therefor the words "$2,500 per annum." Sentence to read: "He shall receive for his services the sum of $2,500 per annum." In appealing to you to second this amendment, and when presented for the referendum vote of the membership to vote for it, we desire to point out the totally inadequate compensation which the president of the International Union of about 45,000 members receives for the tremendous amount of work performed by him and for the great and manifold responsibilities resting upon his shoulders. There are some officials of local unions, of a membership of a few hundred, receiving a higher salary than the head of one of the greatest international organizations in existence. Compared with the compensation received by the chief officials of other national and international organizations the salary we pay to our president is, to say the least, ludicrous and ridiculously paltry and frequently commented upon by members of other trades. We are trying to better the conditions of our members by securing shorter hours of labor and higher wages, so let us begin at home and pay our chief official a fair salary. We hope the members of the Cigarmakers' International Union will see the justice of our contention and first: second our amendment, and then vote for it.

Chas. Lowy, Sec'y.

New York, June 23, 1909.

It seems next to impossible for Mr. Goldstein to confine himself to arguing a question without continually slinging mud and going out of his way to call men out of their names and make accusations of dishonesty simply because they happen to be Socialists and without being in a position to make good, and while Mr. Goldstein makes a new accusation charging Debs with having made more money than any other man in the country connected with a strike, he fails to make good his slur, and insinuation.

If it were true that Debs was out for the almighty dollar, he could have stayed with the Locomotive Firemen, who were anxious to retain him as editor of their Journal, and when he positively refused to remain they voted him a check for $2,500, which he still keeps but refuses to cash. How many other labor leaders would have done the same thing? We have had lots of men in the trade union movement who have been dishonest but not a word from Mr. Goldstein's pen against them, but here we have a man who remained loyal to the working class and who had he served the capitalist as well as the political powers could have had all the chances to make money, or attain position, is accused of being dishonest because he favored industrial organizations.

And if Debs is such a notorious union wrecker how is it that the Locomotive Firemen requested him again to affiliate with them, and also requested him to attend their last convention to address them? It is not likely, or you don't mean to tell us that they did not know what they were doing when the invitation to Debs to reaffiliate with their organization was issued.

No, Mr. Goldstein, Debs needs no defense against anyone, and particularly against your slanderous accusations, and when the history of the labor movement of our country is written the name of Eugene V. Debs will go down in golden letters into the archives as having done as much as any human being for the entire emancipation of the toilers of our country, in spite of any mistakes that he has been guilty of along industrial lines.

There is no living man, no matter how pure, against whom some one could not frame up a charge against and make it appear that the charge was true, particularly so when the man accused has not the opportunity to reply to them.

You charge me with making an attack on our Journal, as unjust, which you know to be false from its very inception. I simply stated that your attack on Debs in our Journal is unjust and uncalled for because he could not reply to your slanderous statements through our Journal, and thereby give our members the opportunity of hearing both sides, and if that constitutes an attack on our Journal then I stand for the attack, but I deny you the right to act as judge, jury and prosecuting attorney as you are trying to do in this statement.

You also charge me with setting a lot of irresponsible words down upon unoffending paper. Well, that's funny; it sounds like a funeral and it's not mine, and yet there is room for an argument, for it's a matter of opinion. For instance, these same irresponsible words would have tickled your palate while you were a Socialist, but since you have turned a complete somersault and since you are losing a lot of valuable time in slinging mud against your former associates, and since you are denouncing everything you formerly stood for, and accept everything that you formerly denounced, these irresponsible words don't seem to suit you, but they came as a reply to your so-called facts, that the Socialist wanted to destroy the home, the state, and religion, and were based upon the various reports taken from newspapers, trade union journals and magazines and personal experiences and it's up to you to disprove them.

Fellow members, I wish to call your attention to the following editorial that appeared in the New York Sun:

A Sane Writer on Trade Unionism.

In the North American Review for May Mr. Henry White comments on "The Crisis in Unionism." Admitting that this institution has reached one of those periods of necessary adjustment which occur in the history of all important movements, it is doubtful if the situation entirely justifies the use of the term "crisis." Largely, perhaps, because of encouragement from a President of the United States who for a time made trade unionism one of the pawns in his political game.

"The political effacement of organized labor for the time being," says Mr. White, "has weakened it industrially more than at first appears." A series of notable decisions by the courts has still further weakened the organization. These decisions have been generally approved throughout the country, and the repeated and still continuing denunciations of some leaders have made more enemies than friends for the cause. The enthusiasm of a few labor leaders has overthrown their judgment and they have misread the signs of the times. "As an institution," says Mr. White, "the union is approved, but its power is discredited."

The ill advised aggressiveness of some leaders and associates has been seriously detrimental to the interests of unionism. Offense has been given by the attempts to club employers into granting unreasonable demands; and offense has also been given by efforts to club labor into the ranks of unionism and into blind obedience to the mandates of union leaders. Neither of those policies can be successful in this country. Mr. White holds that "deprived of the power to drive into the ranks the unwilling or indifferent workers the union must fall." We do not agree with this conclusion. Compulsion is merely the wrong implement. Probably none will deny that the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is the most successful organization in the country. It stands on a broad platform and wins on its recognized merits. The essential fault of the unionism preached by some leaders is, as expressed by Mr. White, that "the workers, seeking their own ends, are unable to look beyond their own ends; in asserting their own rights it is not easy for them to see where the rights of others begin."

Whether the leaders of the American Federation will learn the lesson clearly written for them in recent experiences remains to be seen. Whether the lesson will be read by their followers also remains for determination. "At all events," says Mr. White, "it is clear that we are nearing the end of unionism by compulsion, and probably the rise of a new unionism—the unionism which will rest exclusively upon merit. Perhaps this situation presages a new order of leadership, the superseding of the agitator by the labor statesman." The great opportunity of unionism lies immediately before it.

After carefully perusing the same, note the great similarity of the charges by a former national secretary against the leading trade unionist and the trade union movement, and the language used in our Journal in the attack upon individual Socialist and the Socialist movement by a former Socialist.

They are like two souls with but one single thought, two hearts that beat as one.

Enough said.

M. Brown.

Decatur, Ill., July 7, 1909.

The local cigarmakers and printers played a benefit ball game June 12, 1909, for a member of No. 20 who had the misfortune to be confined in the hospital undergoing a severe operation. With the co-operation of printers a large number of tickets were sold and $95 was raised for the unfortunate members. The printers were as industrious selling tickets as the members of No. 20. This goes a long way toward showing the close relationship existing in Decatur between these crafts.

REPORT OF ORGANIZER.

St. Catharines, Ont., July 3, 1909.

Having received instructions from the International office to resume agitation work in Ontario, I visited Brampton, Guelph, Berlin, Preston, Galt, Brantford, and Hamilton. Within this radius is located the chief industrial section of Ontario, perhaps of the Dominion, and the conditions obtaining here will pretty fairly indicate the general state of trade in nearly all industries, local causes apart.

Brampton industries are chiefly manned by jurisdiction members of Toronto unions, consequently there is a fair demand for the blue label, the cigar stores making a good display of union goods. Here, too, I found that rarely a hotelkeeper (Graham House) selling nothing but union goods. There should be more of them, for when their interests are attacked, as in reduction of licenses or local option, union cigarmakers are never backward in lending their assistance. I have emphasized this fact to hotelkeepers and have in return received the glad hand and promises that may be likened to the traditional pie crust. There are, of course, a few honorable exceptions.

In Guelph I noticed a good display of union goods and a fair demand for the same. Trade has been dull, but is picking up. Our members here are at work. I attended and addressed a meeting of the central body and promised them a delegate from the local cigarmakers. The Dominion label league should send some advertising matter here.

Berlin is essentially a manufacturing center and has felt keenly the late depression; work, especially in our trade, has been precarious, but things are beginning to brighten and our members expect steady employment for the future. This district is not in the local option belt. Addressed two meetings during my stay. There is a fair demand for the label, which could be increased by more advertising. This is a case of a union with a small membership and a large jurisdiction. A good opportunity for the new label league.

In Preston I called on a number of dealers and presented the claims of the union label for their consideration. They professed sympathy with the cause, which may be genuine in some cases, but the display of union goods on hand did not give me the best impression of their sincerity. However, time will tell.

In Galt our trade is extremely dull. There are two shops; the hands in one were laying off at the time of my visit. There is a fair display of union goods but the local trade seems to be pretty well divided with non-union goods. This should not be, as the place is fairly well organized. There were no meetings during my stay. There is some talk by the temperance people of bringing on a local option contest here.

Brantford is a large manufacturing center. Trade in general seems to be picking up, but slowly. The molders here have been out on strike for a long time and it is impossible to estimate the chances for success. Our trade is dull at present; there is a fair demand for the union label. Should be much better, as there is fairly good organization here. No meetings during my stay.

Hamilton has not lost her preeminence as a union label center. The union men of this city demand the label. If hotels are not fair to labor they are boycotted and that is the spirit that makes sure the continuance of the union label demand. What advertising there is, is good. I was shown something unique in advertising in the shape of a score board of large size set up on one side of the bar in a hotel close by the baseball grounds. The board affords room for a fine advertisement of the label, and is well shown, the bar being oval in construction. I visited the striking molders, who profess to have good chances of success. It being the fifth, or off, week of the month, there were no meetings during my stay.

On this trip I have been met by numerous complaints as to the switching of non-union cigars into union labeled boxes that were emptied of their original contents. I have laid before the president of the label league a scheme which, if adopted, will in my opinion deter dealers from such fraudulent practices in future.

Fraternally yours,

William V. Todd, Org.

Albuquerque, N. M., July 2, 1909.

San Jose, Cal.—Members were all working, and the label well placed, Committee and myself visited and addressed all the meetings, including the central body. San Jose is called the Garden City, and it may be truly said it was properly named. Tropical fruits, especially prunes and olives, grow here in abundance.

Santa Barbara, Cal.—This city is no manufacturing town, and never will be. It is beautifully situated on the Pacific, and is famous as a winter resort. Thousands of tourists come here to spend the winter. There were two makers in the city. No meetings during my stay.

Bakersfield, Cal.—This city is noted for having large oil fields and enormous quantities of the fluid are taken from the earth. It is also an agricultural district. The local cigarmakers were all working and will no doubt have plenty to do the rest of the year. There was some talk about increasing the bill of prices, and, in fact, the local made application, but it was the wrong time of the year to ask for an increase. It is to be hoped that the members will use judgment and not raise themselves out of a job. Label well placed. Committee and myself addressed all the unions that met.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Local No. 225 did a great deal of advertising last year, sending out circulars, giving away novelties and visiting the labor organizations. Label committee is active and it is no fault of the local that there are not greater demands for the blue label.

Los Angeles is not considered a manufacturing city and, like Santa Barbara, thousands of people come to the city in the winter months for health and pleasure. The city itself is beautiful, and Southern California has an ideal climate the year around.

The Los Angeles Labor Temple is no doubt the most costly building of its kind in the United States, and is a monument to organized labor. Each evening there are from six to ten meetings being conducted in the building. The label committee and myself were out each night, and addressed nearly all of the labor organizations of Los Angeles.

There is a great field for work boosting label goods in this city, as most every eastern non-union cigar is for sale, either at the stands.

or the saloons. Trade in Los Angeles is and has been dull.

San Diego, Cal.—Business was good and all at work. There is one large shop here that employs 44 makers, and there is not a better factory in the country to work in. Standing tables, shop properly ventilated and lighted; steady work the year around; labels are in demand, and a good union town.

City building up rapidly and when the new railroad is finished, of which Yuma, Arizona, will be the terminal, connecting with the Southern Pacific Ry., one may look for San Diego to be a city of great importance, and the proper gateway to the Orient.

Arizona Territory.—In diversity of resources, in aggregate of wealth, in modernity of life, the territory of Arizona is not a laggard, not a supplicant for favors, but proud of her present and the future which is predicated upon them. A scant 122,000 in 1900, when the last federal census was taken, has grown into a figure that is conservatively estimated at 225,000. Already within the confines, there are several modern cities, such as Bisbee, with a population estimated at 22,000 to 25,000; Tucson and Phoenix, each with 18,000 to 20,000; Douglas with 12,000 to 14,000, and Prescott, Globe and others following immediately behind. Conditions have not condemned Arizona to submit to the domination of one industry, or one product as King. No allegiance is here sworn of necessity to corn, or to cotton, or to steel, or to copper. Nature, primarily has endowed Arizona with manifold riches in her gold, silver, copper and lead, and untold wealth lies buried in her mountain ranges. No producer has ever reached the end of his production. From the Utah line on the north to the Mexican boundary on the south, across the territory graze thousands of pasturing herds. The cultivation of the soil is practicable in every county in Arizona, through the medium of irrigation. Two gigantic irrigation projects have been launched; the Laguna Dam in Yuma county, and the Tonto Reservoir in Gila county. The Laguna dam is already completed and the Roosevelt dam at Gila county will be completed next year.

With the extension of facilities for the saving of the rainfall and the husbanding of the river water, Arizona is sure to make a great agricultural state. The scenery of Arizona is vast in expanse, and majestic in type. In an educational way the territory is dotted with the common schools, the backbone of American independence and progress. The schools are reinforced by high schools, by normals, and a university. Everywhere, from Yuma to Bisbee, from Nogales to the north, there are schools for boys and girls. Indian mission schools are maintained and there is a high standard of education among the adolescent Indians.

The capital of the territory is located in the city of Phoenix. Unionism in Arizona is at a low ebb. There are no union men in Yuma, save two cigarmakers and one printer. Labels are unknown.

It is claimed by many that Tucson is the oldest city in the United States, and it would seem that there is some basis for such a claim. From 1530 to 1542 several expeditions were made into Arizona by Spanish explorers, and prior to the latter date several settlements were made in the Santa Cruz Valley, that near the present location of Tucson being known as Bac or Bacopa.

There is little record of the doings of the Spaniards in Arizona for the next century. About 1690 San Xavier Mission was built. This building is still standing near the more modern and impressive edifice completed in 1797. It is generally believed that from about 1690 dates the permanent settlement of Tucson and vicinity by the Spanish. They established the Fort of Tucson in 1694, to protect the Catholic missions of San Xavier del Bac and San Augustin from the murderous Apaches. It was a walled town, its inhabitants ever on the alert to resist the attacks of the Apaches.

One will not find any union men here except those that are on some job and sent in by some contractor from the neighboring states. Found Denver, Los Angeles and San Francisco label goods on sale.

In Bisbee there are two cigarmakers. The miners are not organized, or any of the trades. No demand for the label. Why can't we have several good shops in Arizona? We once had. This question is one that I will leave for the reader to answer. Does it pay to have a high bill of prices hanging on the wall and nobody working? Does it pay to raise the bill so high that it raises a fellow out of a job and out of the country?

Can a manufacturer pay $12 or $13 per thousand for a 5c cigar?

Owl cigars and all other 5c goods are sold all through this western country and I was informed that the retailer could buy direct in 5,000 lots for $30 per thousand.

Something has got to be done to make it an inducement for a manufacturer to do business out west.

One thing is certain and that is we are losing ground out here.

El Paso, Texas.

The Rio Grande river is the boundary line between Texas and Mexico here at El Paso.

El Paso and the Mexico City Jaurez are connected by street cars, the distance being about one-half mile.

There are two shops here that employ both union and non-union men. Nearly every cigarmaker is a Mexican. It will take years of hard labor to educate the Mexican to our ways. Yes, the Mexican when he learns the principles of the trade union movement becomes a good union man. Much has been said of the Mexican, to his disfavor, but it is purely lack of him not having a chance. In Mexico education has not dawned upon the race. These poor fellows who are held down by the captains of industry in Mexico are worse off than the negro was before that great unpleasantness of 1860.

One has little idea how some of the Mexicans are treated in Mexico if he tries to stand up for his rights. He is punished and called a revolutionist and thrust in jail and sometimes they are put to death, hence when he comes to the United States he is in fear.

No demand for the label in El Paso. General Organizer Walker of the A. F. of L. is here and accomplishing much. He organized a central body in the city and has two other locals nearly organized. I assisted Mr. Walker in his work, and addressed the organizations.

Albuquerque, New Mexico.

This little city has eleven cigarmakers at work. The local has done remarkably well in advertising and creating a demand for the blue label.

There are about seven labor unions outside of the railroad lodges.

I addressed a large meeting of the carpenters and their friends.

GEO. R. FRENCH,
International Organizer.

Trenton, N. J., July 7, 1909.

Washington, D. C., is frequently referred to as the nation's pride, and in many ways it is a model city. Its broad, well kept avenues, and many spacious and beautiful parks, together with the unbounded hospitality of its cosmopolitan populace, and many other fascinating comforts, and historical environments, make it a desirable place to live. But, in whatever other respect Washington may offer superior advantages over other cities, so far as cigarmakers are concerned the capital city is far from being up to date. It is what in the vernacular of the craft we term a "Buckeye" town, and the disadvantages, from a union standpoint, arising from such a situation, are present here in a most pronounced form.

Washington is a great cigar market, and while the trust and other advertised non-union brands are largely in evidence, there is a fair demand for union made cigars, most of which, however, come from outside the city. This is due chiefly, I believe, to the antiquated shapes and sizes of cigars put out by the local manufacturers.

While in Washington, in company with Bro. Hueter, one active member of our union that I found there, I visited a number of unions of other crafts, also the Central Labor Union, in the interest of our label, and stirred up considerable enthusiasm in its behalf. The C. L. U. at its next regular meeting following my visit passed a strong resolution urging all affiliated unions to render all possible help in the movement to restore Union 110 to its erstwhile degree of prosperity and influence in the trade union movement of the city.

Baltimore, although having a much larger membership than Washington, has many very similar ailments. It is largely a "Buckeye" town, and their product is sold chiefly in saloons. Business is somewhat dull and many cigarmakers are working short time. The liquor license question no doubt has much to do with the uncertainty of trade for many of the small manufacturers in Baltimore. The cost of liquor licenses was raised last year from $350 to $500 and this year to $750 and next year it will go to $1,000, and each raise puts a larger number of places out of business, several hundred having already closed out.

There are several good sized non-union shops in Baltimore, but I was unable to reach them, although it may be possible to do so a little later on.

I attended the regular meeting of Union No. 1 while in the city, and urged them to greater activity in label agitation. For, like in too many other places, it seems the members of Union 1 have grown weary of the game and are not keeping abreast of the times, while the trust and other big non-union concerns are on the job every hour in the twenty-four and are finding trade that never would come their way if proper steps were taken locally to prevent them from capturing the market that naturally belongs to the local home producer.

I also visited the Central Labor Union of Baltimore and have the assurance of the delegates to that body that they will lend every assistance in their power to help the cigarmakers promote the sale of union made cigars.

Secretary Mechau kindly gave me much of his valuable time and assistance in familiarizing myself with the situation in Baltimore, which I believe can be improved upon during the fall and winter.

Wilmington, Del., presents the most complex situation that I believe cigarmakers anywhere have ever been placed in. As is pretty generally known, the little diamond state has been severely agitated by the local option proposition, and very early in the campaign the Central Labor Union imprudently allowed itself to be drawn into the game, and declared in favor of the "wets." This action angered the "dry" element among the unionists and they immediately set to work with determination to even matters, and at the next election of officers routed the "wets" horse, foot and dragoon. This caused a split in the organization and unionism in Wilmington has been on the decline ever since. The cigarmakers who were naturally with the "wets" were thereupon left between two fires, on the one hand the Central Labor Union demanding their active participation in that body, and on the other hand the saloon and hotel keepers and their sympathizers threatening to boycott union-made cigars if they espouse the cause of the now "dry" Central Labor Union. In view of these circumstances the cigarmakers are "sawing wood" until matters are again thoroughly calm, when the Central Labor Union will be rebuilt, and the mistakes of the past, let us hope, will serve as danger signals, and act as an effective check upon hasty, ill advised action for all future time in the trade union affairs of Wilmington.

I called a special meeting of the union while in the city and gave them some good advice, which I have every reason to believe will be heeded, and if it is, chances are that the tide will soon turn in our favor, whereas now things seem to be going in the other direction.

Secretary Dupont was unsparing in his time and efforts to enable me to secure fullest details concerning the very unusual state of affairs in that city, and after carefully going over the ground with him, I am convinced that the opportune moment has not yet arrived for rebuilding our movement in that community.

REPORT OF SPECIAL ORGANIZER.

Hamilton, O., July 3, 1909.

My first stop, Indianapolis, Ind. Spent two days looking over the town and cannot say that the label is overly advertised. Could not find it much in demand. Attended meeting, but got no chance to speak.

Brookville, Ind., a splendid home industry town, but surrounding country dry, so it has cut down the working forces of the town.

Connorsville, Ind., is a dead one. Country went dry and there is no one working to amount to anything. No push in the boys. One cigar store gives a purse of $50 in gold every three months. No union goods in the place. Coupon with every purchase.

Richmond, Ind., voted wet at their election and will be a good town. Boys had me visit all merchants to boost the label, with good results. The president of the Bartenders' union went with me and was of great service to us.

Hamilton, Ohio.—A hot bed for San Felice and "Zarrey Owen" cigars. The boys have been asleep, so when I had a meeting with them they voted to visit all merchants, with good results. The financial secretary accompanied me on my visit to merchants. Visited all unions during my stay, also trades council. Organizer Young of the Carpenters, was here; also Swartz of the Garment Workers.

Thomas Dermody,
Special Organizer.

Antwerp, Belgium, May 8, 1909.

Mr. G. W. Perkins, President,
820 Monon Building,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir and Brother: We notice with pleasure that the circular I forwarded to you appeared in the Cigar Makers' Official Journal. If you could spare us a few lines in your Journal, we will send you hereafter a brief report each month of labor conditions as they exist in Europe. This would not only be interesting but very useful to our American brothers.

Owing to the fact that a great many secretaries of labor organizations in America are not aware of the fact that there exists such an organization as the International Federation of Cigarmakers and Tobacco Workers, we wish you to bring the following to the attention of your membership through the columns of your Official Journal: We have had an organization, known as the International Federation of Cigarmakers and Tobacco Workers in Europe since 1890. This federation has affiliations in Belgium, Germany, England, Denmark, Sweden and Holland. A convention is held every three years and the convention in 1910 will be held in the city of Copenhagen, Denmark.

We have invited America to join our congress, but up to this time such invitation has not been accepted, but we sincerely hope that it will be in the near future.

What we wish most of all is that only members of the International Federation of Cigarmakers and Tobacco Workers, numbering at this time 52,000 members, be recognized by labor organizations in America of a like industry. We do not believe it is right that a cigarmaker or tobacco worker, who after leaving America has only to show a union card and they are entitled to all consideration due such card, should be taken into full membership after his return to America when, perhaps, he has "scabbed" it for years in Europe. This card should be forfeited in America if he cannot show a certificate from the International Federation of Cigarmakers and Tobacco Workers showing that he has not violated the principles of unionism while in that country. We, for instance, give return cards, but when these members return and deposit their return cards without a certificate from the labor organizations of a like industry in America, or any other country, where they have been employed, they are not entitled to membership in our organization. This is a very good idea and should be taken into consideration by our American brothers.

We also beg of you to give a partial report of the convention in your estimable Journal when it appears, in order that the cigarmakers and tobacco workers will know that there is such an organization as the International Federation of Cigarmakers and Tobacco Workers in Europe.

Fraternally yours,

Henry Jugters.

Hot onions, according to a French physician, are said to be a cure for pneumonia. The remedy is as follows: Take six or ten onions, according to size, and chop fine, put in a large pan over a fire, then add the same quantity of rye meal and vinegar, enough to make a thick paste. In the meantime stir it thoroughly, letting it simmer for five or ten minutes. Then put in a cotton bag large enough to cover the lungs and apply to the chest as hot as the patient can bear. In about ten minutes apply another, and thus continue by reheating the poultices, and in a few hours the patient will be out of danger.

a. The District of Porto Rico shall embrace the entire Island and all the Local Unions in the Island, who shall elect a Joint Advisory Board to serve for two years.

b. The Joint Advisory Board shall adopt rules of procedure calculated for the best welfare of the unions in Porto Rico, but not conflicting with the International Constitution.

3. The basis of representation shall be decided by the unions in Porto Rico, but shall be not more than one delegate for each local union and may be less whenever the nearest sister unions desire to combine.

d. Whenever an application to strike shall be made by any local union in the Island, the same shall be done through the medium of the Joint Advisory Board, which shall also report separately to the International President concerning the matter, stating the facts as they are; and at the same time expressing its views whether the time to strike is opportune or not, thus giving all members the full facts before voting on application.

e. Whenever any local union in Porto Rico wishes to submit any grievance or enter a protest, or take an appeal to the International President, or International Executive Board, or to a referendum vote, the same shall be done through the Joint Advisory Board.

f. The Joint Advisory Board shall be the distributing office for all supplies for the unions in Porto Rico, excepting stamps, so that the unions may get their supplies without inconvenience or loss of time. For this purpose it shall open an account direct with the International office.

Union 228, San Francisco, Cal., writes: "Members owing private loans to Union 228, San Francisco, Cal., are requested to write and let us know their whereabouts and repay the loans as soon as possible, as there are others coming through that want a private loan and we cannot grant any more until the old ones have been repaid."

129 Denver, Colo.: While we have received a few responses from members owing this union private loans, there are quite a number that have owed this union for months, and even years, that do not seem to remember the favor, and will not go to the trouble to drop us a card, offering any kind of an excuse for not paying their loans back. Ingratitude seems to be this union's reward in about 75 per cent of the cases where loans have been granted to help members out of financial troubles. The time is fast approaching when it is going to be hard for any one to get a private loan from this or any other union. Pay up or give some kind of excuse for not doing so. We won't question the excuse too closely, but we would rather have the money.

129 Denver, Colo., requests secretary to collect private loans from the following members: D. Harvey, granted July, 1898, $5.00; H. Malonin, granted 1899, $9.00; (43488) F. R. Notes from Union 97, Boston, Mass.—San Felice, and all trust brands of cigars, are unfair—Label Committee have covered Boston and vicinity with 24 sheet posters—Have all our steel signs repainted—Persistent advertising has contributed to our success. We need an old age pension.—The first section ought to be modified; the only limitation should be, as he is in good standing and the age limit, but rather than see the proposition defeated I would vote for it; the principle is correct.—What are wages? And from what source are they derived?—England has no written constitution, and the government often depends on a few votes for its existence, hence will make concession to labor for votes. The situation is different here.—There ought to be an inheritance tax.

CHICAGO, JULY 15, 1909.

Union 336, Tampa, Fla., offered an amendment to the constitution; it reads:

EXPENSE ALLOWED LOCAL UNIONS. Amend section 177 by adding after the words "20 per cent," the interest on all money deposited in bank for local expenses.

The section as amended reads as follows:

Sec. 177. No union shall be permitted to expend in any fiscal year for officers' salaries, committees' expenses, hall rent, meeting room, furnishings, printing, stationery, postage, fuel and light, picketing strike shops, taxes to trade assemblies that are recognized by the American Federation of Labor; but nothing in this shall prevent the representation and payment of taxes to trades assembly in such localities where no such affiliation with the American Federation of Labor exists (provided, such trades assemblies do not admit as delegates professional politicians or men who are not actively employed at their trade, or a member of a bona fide trades union), delegates to the same, etc., more than the following percentage of its gross receipts: Unions numbering thirty members or less, 30 per cent; from thirty to fifty members, 25 per cent; from fifty members and upwards, 20 per cent, and the interest on all money deposited in bank for local expenses. Should the union expend for the fore-named purpose less than the herein fixed percentage, then it shall have the privilege to spend it locally for the advancement of union matters. This shall in no wise be construed so as to allow local unions percentage on money received for equalization or in aid of strikes, nor shall this be construed so as to include local assessments or local fines.

The income on interest for the last ten years was as follows:

1899	$ 2,982.53
1900	4,550.64
1901	4,915.08
1902	5,087.38
1903	6,448.30
1904	9,115.79
1905	11,649.50
1906	13,702.00
1907	15,584.42
1908	17,831.96

$91,867.90

The last annual financial report, published in the April Journal, gives the number of unions expending over percentage as 198, while the majority had ample money for the purpose. Some unions did not use the full amount allowed by the constitution.

In this connection we desire to call the attention of our members, who take more than an ordinary interest in the stability of our financial system, to the rapid growth of our expenses for "Death and Total Disability Benefits."

Ten years ago we expended for this benefit

$98,993.83; last year, $220,979.71; increase, $121,985.88.

For the above reasons we are opposed to reducing the income of the International Union. It would weaken our financial resources, and necessitate the levying of international assessments, to which all should be opposed unless absolutely necessary.

From a recent report published by the Registrar of Friendly Societies, we obtain among other interesting facts, the amount of money held in the treasuries of the leading trades unions of Great Britain.

The condition of their funds is known to the government and to the public; there is no secret about it. They are not afraid of publicity. The oldest union, which established a chain of benefits and a strong reserve fund, is the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, composed of machinists, blacksmiths, millwrights, patternmakers, borers, etc. Its general fund dates back to 1851, while it has the largest amount of cash on hand, the Amalgamated Society of Cotton Spinners holds a per capita tax of over $120 in its general fund, which is almost three times as large as that of the Amalgamated Engineers. The figures speak for themselves:

Name.	Members.	Funds.
Amalgamated Society of Engineers	110,084	$ 3,934,801.80
Amalgamated Society of Cotton Spinners	22,506	2,694,116.70
Miners of South Wales	135,765	944,468.10
Miners of Durham, etc.	105,612	2,058,425.90
Lancashire Miners	75,393	309,494.52
Railway Servants	97,561	1,930,241.34
Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners	68,735	543,386.88
Boilermakers, etc.	52,776	1,412,170.20
Cardroom Workers	40,834	270,186.84
Shoe Operatives	30,512	532,524.78
Clerks	20,218	107,906.84
Gasworkers and laborers	39,805	33,018.84
Total	799,801	$14,770,732.74

The above represents a constructive force and a power for good, worthy of emulation by the trades unions of America.

Idle gossip and shop jealousy often cause more trouble than any other things in the union. A controversy of a small and insignificant nature crops up and the idle tongue of insinuation immediately starts a ravaging mischief making campaign, and the difficulty grows into a momentous question, which often rends the union into factions, causes hasty strikes and much loss of ground, and bad feeling which it takes years to overcome. The jealousy and rivalry of competing employers are often the instigators of trouble. They tell a half truth and before it is very old it becomes a whole lie. Journeymen usually have enough to do to care for their own interests without going into hysterics over the rival interests of competing employers. Because one employer finds fault with and starts insinuating rumors against another shop, there is no good reason why one member should immediately start calling other members names, and casting up insinuations concerning which they really know nothing about.

A friendly and fraternal spirit should be cultivated and maintained among the membership on all strictly union matters. We may differ manfully and in a tolerant manner on union questions, and still be friendly in the meeting rooms. Differ all you like on all matters aside from the union and its rightful sphere, but for your own good and the good of the unions it is necessary to act harmoniously on all union matters. When it becomes necessary to discuss union matters the PLACE to do so is in the meeting room of the union, and not on street corners or other public places. If one member slanders another behind his back, say to him come with me and say it to the member's face, if he refuses to go brand the story as false. Put yourself in the other fellow's place, and do unto others as you would have others do unto you.

To the International Typographical Union of North America belongs the credit of being the pioneer in the inauguration of old-age pensions. We intend to give honor where honor is due, believing that in due course of time other trades unions will follow. It is simply a question of paying assessments or regular dues for the payment of the benefit. Whenever the members of any union are ready for the same, the pension system, subject to the necessary restrictions, can be adopted.

The International Typographical Union collects one-half of one per cent of the earnings of members, being based on the percentage plan. The first financial statement published contains the following items:

Receipts.

1908, March to Dec. 31	$155,670.78
Interest	265.30
Pension returned	8.00

Total $155,944.08

Expenditures.

Paid to pensioners	$38,344.00
Clerical work	987.25
Books and printing	496.85
Expressage	13.75

$39,841.85

Balance Jan. 31, 1909 $116,102.23

Total $155,944.08

The assessments collected average $4.17 for each member annually. It was paid on an average by 44,720 members.

Applications for the pension to the number of 566 had been received and acted upon up to January 31, 1909. Of this number 44 petitions were disapproved, one was withdrawn and 521 were approved. Death invaded the ranks of the pensioners on seventeen occasions, leaving 504 pensioners on all the roll. The average age of the applicants was 68.5; ranging from 60 to 93 years.

Any member 60 years of age, who has held twenty years' continuous membership in the union, is entitled to receive $4 a week. A careful comparison of the pension system of the International Typographical Union with the pension laws of the German government reveals the fact that the members of the International Typographical Union of North America receive $4, compared with $1 paid by the German government, the assessments being nearly equal with the fifth class.

The age limit of the applicants, under the German government plan, is 70 years. The age limit of the applicants under the International Typographical plan is 60 years. Under the German government plan the applicant has to pay assessments for 1,200 weeks, which is almost 24 years. Under the International Typographical Union plan it is only 20 years. The German government plan represents "State Socialism."

The International Typographical Union plan represents "pure and simple" trades unionism.

The internal revenue reports for eleven months ended May 31, 1909, contain much valuable information; they indicate the rise and fall in the production of cigars and cheroots in several parts of the country. The total production amounted to 5,343,065,327; 1908 ended May 31, 5,487,240,246; decrease in eleven months, 144,174,919. In comparing the production of cigars in the various revenue districts, the fact is apparent that, while some union and non-union districts lost heavily, others show a continuous growth. The largest increase is in the second Virginia district, which is almost wholly controlled by the American Cigar Company, in the city of Richmond and other places. It shows an increase of 29,159,641. The next largest increase is in the first district of Michigan, which is controlled chiefly by non-union and trust factories. In these factories the labor of females and young persons is predominant. The increase amounts to 23,964,717. Then comes the tenth Ohio district, where the non-union cigar "San Felice," is manufactured, showing the phenomenal growth of 13,904,230. This factory was once a union shop, and used the union label, but shop jealousies and "Buckeye" fights allowed it to depart into other channels. The next on the list is the seventh Indiana district. It shows an increase of 10,599,349.

The largest percentage of loss is in the first district of Wisconsin, showing a decrease of 12,349,973. Then comes the second internal revenue district of New York City, which shows a decrease of 37,716,343, caused to some extent by the removal of factories to Tampa, Fla. The next in order is the revenue district of Massachusetts, with a loss of 25,434,930. This decrease affected mostly the nickel cigars made in Boston, Mass.

For more complete details we publish the reports of all revenue districts. Decrease is marked by the star *:

The reports from Porto Rico, South Carolina, North and South Dakota are missing.

Some of the labor papers have recently devoted much space to the old age pension system of the German government. The facts and figures were published without further investigation and comment. The information so far published is valuable, both to the economist and to the student of social problems. There can be no reasonable dispute about the beneficence of an old age pension system. Where we differ, however, is in the administration and execution of the plan. The rate of pensions paid corresponds with the assessments collected from the insured. The scale is as follows:

Class 1	$27.50 a year
Class 2	35.00 a year
Class 3	42.50 a year
Class 4	52.60 a year
Class 5	57.60 a year

The assessments paid by the insured, which are compulsory by law, and cannot be changed except by an act of parliament, are as follows:

Class 1	$1.82 a year
Class 2	2.60 a year
Class 3	3.12 a year
Class 4	3.90 a year
Class 5	4.68 a year

No applicant for pension is recognized before he has reached the age of 70 years. Neither can he apply for a pension before he has paid assessments, which are collected weekly, for at least 1,200 weeks.

The weekly assessments are payable in proportion to the wages earned per annum.

Table of Earnings.

Class 1	$ 87.50 a year
Class 2	137.50 a year
Class 3	212.50 a year
Class 4	287.50 a year
Class 5	500.00 a year

Citizens receiving salaries or wages over $500 per annum do not come within the provisions of the law.

We hold that the Cigarmakers' International Union, or any other established trades union, can pay the same rate of pensions, as the German government does, for about half of the assessments paid by the laboring classes of Germany.

In the event of the assessment remaining the same, we could easily double the rate of pensions paid by the German government. At the same time we make our own laws, and amend them when necessary, without the interference of Congress or any other legislative body.

To the above we challenge contradiction.

The books and accounts here are in very good order. The day book here was not made for our use, and is not really convenient on that account. Ledger well posted. Had the vouchers for expense been endorsed by whoever the money was turned over to and Section 175 reference the depositing of funds in banks better followed, I should have said books and accounts were in good order. Ledger fairly posted. Cash and stamp accounts practically correct and balanced at the end of each month. Benefit cards in good order. This union has been in the habit of entering in the May expense each year label agitation to the amount of their per capita allowance ($1.00 on each member) no matter if money was expended for label agitation or not. Must be stopped. Report label agitation when the money is expended—a little each month or all at once if you spend the money that way. Statement as follows:

The books and accounts are just now in good order, just getting settled after Ex-Sec. C. J. Roop had got things all muddled up and left for parts unknown with $36.85 Intl. money, and all the local money in sight; beside going after a few business men, one for $75.00. No. 420, St. Thomas, Ont.

Affairs here simply awful. No dates in day book to show when dues, etc., were paid. Ledger hardly posted since last examination. No vouchers for expense. Made up June report on the 24th; any further business will be included with July. Included in June receipts stamp shortage and amounts not entered in day book. Deposited all but $5.37 in bank June 24th. Deficiency this date is amounts expended over percentage in 1906-7 and 1908, $56.28, and a balance on illegal O. O. W. benefit from last examination, $5.00, making deficiency to-day, $61.28. Have good reason to believe the work will be really done right in the future. It better be. Statement as follows:

LOST CARDS

Section 11. Any member losing or destroying his loan book shall not be entitled to receive any benefits or a duplicate loan book before the expiration of two months, and financial secretaries of local unions must notify the International President of such loss or destruction immediately, the same to be published in the official Journal by the International President. The International President shall be the only person to issue a duplicate.

Members having lost their traveling cards take notice:

No duplicate card will be issued for lost card unless the full name of member, the card number, the date of initiation and the union where the card was last deposited are given. Members who lose cards are not entitled to benefits until they secure duplicates. No duplicate cards are issued except upon application through some secretary, when the time limit of two months has expired.

Month after month unscrupulous men impose upon secretaries and members under the plea of lost cards. The constitution provides a punishment for lost cards. Its purpose is to stop the carelessness and the traffic made with full cards by permitting them to be held as security.

Don't issue letters to any member claiming lost card unless you know his actual standing. Secretaries have no right to issue certificates in place of lost cards. Members who secure employment should be entered as admitted to the union.

Secretaries should be careful and enter all loans granted and repaid and all balances carried from one card to another in letters and figures. The issue of duplicates will be delayed in all cases where information is not complete.

Secretaries should examine due books where claim of lost card is made. Report full name, number, date and place of initiation and when and where card was last deposited.

Private loans will be entered on duplicates issued upon request of unions.

Enter all loans granted in figures and letters. Secretaries will please notify this office as to whether any private loans are due on cards reported lost, otherwise they are issued with only the International loan account. This does not release members from their just obligations to the unions. The absence of the private loans, however, quite often cause members to overlook these loans and suspensions follow.

Notice.—In the June Journal $100.00 tax from 482 Wausaw, was omitted in the printed statement, although the amount is included in the total receipts.

The home labor paper is a true exponent of trade union principles, plans, policies and laws. It is here fifty-two weeks in the year voicing the demands and supporting the cause of organized labor in season and out. It is the only means of conveying the right kind of information the union members want disseminated to the people of our city, state and country.

The home labor paper has to contend with the slings and shafts hurled at it by the unscrupulous, uneducated and unfair individual of every class, calling or profession. It has to contend with the young and ignorant member who does not understand the principles and policy of the trade union movement of our day and time. It has to be the pioneer in educating the foreigners to our customs, standards and way of doing business.

The home labor paper has to convey the news of the doings of the unions, their members and friends, in its home town. It must mention the marriages, births and deaths or accidents of members. It must tell of the financial benefits paid (sick, disability, death, out-of-work, old age pensions and insurance) by every labor organization in existence.

The home labor paper goes on and on doing all of these things and many others, week after week, without a whimper or complaint, often without the support or co-operation it is justly entitled to. It does it from a matter of principle and honest, religious conviction that the labor union is carrying out the teaching of the Divine Nazarene to a greater extent than any other human institution upon the face of the earth.

The home labor paper will continue to do so. It is entitled to and should have the unanimous support and subscription of every union member.—H. M. Walker.

Las siguientes deformas se han sometido a votación popular des los miembros:

Por la Unión, 144 de Nueva York, N. Y.

Enmiéndese la Sección 187:

En la línea décima después de la palabra "provided:" todas las uniones que pidan ayuda financiera a las uniones relacionadas con la "C. M. I. U. de A." para cualquier objeto, deben publicar en el periódico oficial de la "C. M. I. U. de A." dentro de los noventa días siguientes, el importe que cada unión haya donado, y el número de la unión que lo haya donado.

Todos los secretarios deben enviar un recibo a la unión local por el importe que dicha unión haya donado.

Por la falta de hacer esto se impondrá una multa de $25.00 a la unión interesada.

Por la Unión, 500 de Tampa, Fla.

Sección 67. Después de las palabras Porto Rico y el Estado de Florida, la sección debe decir: "Todas las personas que quieren hacerse miembros se pueden elegir en vista de supropia declaración al pago del derecho de iniciación de tres dólares ($3.00) excepto en Porto Rico y en el Estado de Florida, en donde el derecho de iniciación será dólar ($1.00), pagadero de antemano o por dos pagos semanales; esta enmienda quedará en vigor por tres meses desde la fecha de su adopción, excepto en Porto Rico, en donde se ha adoptado para un año.

Los votos para las enmiendas mencionadas arriba se deben devolver para que lleguen a la oficina de la Unión Internacional de los Tabaqueros antes del 7 de Agosto, 1909.

La resolución de la Unión 14 de Chicago, Ill., imponiendo una derrama de 10 centavos a todos los miembros que paguen regularmente 30 centavos y 15 centavos, en favor de los fondos para la defensa de Gompers, Morrison y Mitchell, se ha adoptado por votación popular de los miembros. La derrama entra en vigor el 17 de Julio, 1909, y debe pagarse dentro de ocho semanas. Los miembros que carezcan empleo tienen que pagarla dentro del límite de diez y seis semanas, según la sección 73 de la Constitución.

Definición De Un "Scab."

A un juicio de conspiración en Inglaterra, el abogado para la prosecución dió la siguiente definición de "scab:" "Un scab tiene la misma relación a su oficio que tiene un traidor a su país, y aunque se puede servir de ambos durante tiempo de guerra, todos los desprecian cuando vuelva la paz. Así es que al necesitarse la ayuda el scab es el último que la ofrece, y el primero que ase el beneficio que nunca trató de lograr por medio del trabajo. Se interesa para sí mismo solamente; no puede prever lo futuro, y por una aprobación momentánea él vendería a sus amigos, su familia y su país; en suma es un verdadero traidor, que vende primero al jornalero, y después se vende sí mismo por su empleante, hasta que, al fin, ambos le desprecian y todos le abandonan. Es el enemigo de sí, del siglo presente, y de toda la posteridad.

La prosperidad de una nación depende enteramente sobre la condición de sus clases industriales. Si son ignorantes, fatigadas de demasiado trabajo, y mal nutridas, seguramente la nación irá en decadencia; pero si son educadas e inteligentes, si trabajan con moderación si se alimentan bien, de consiguiente la nación debe prosperar. Los hombres libres, y no los esclavos, constituyen la fuerza y la defensa de un Estado.

El gremio de oficios representa los días de trabajo más cortos, los sueldos más altos, y las condiciones mejores. Trata de dar al trabajador la oportunidad de ser un hombre en vez de una máquina; trata de darle oportunidades de estar desocupado para poder pensar seriamente. Los individuos que se oponen a las organizaciones de oficios deben explicar qué clase de protección piensan proporcionar en lugar de la unión. Antes de desear la maquinaria que ha producido tan buenos resultados, deben indicarnos a lo menos algo que puedo reemplazarla.

La producción de cigarros en el Distrito de Renta Interna de Florida, por los cuales se pagaron impuestos en el mes de Mayo de 1909, importó 26,411,453; por el mes correspondiente de 1908 se pagaron impuestos por 25,958,563. Estas cifras demuestran un aumento de 452,890 cigarros en comparación con la producción del mismo mes del año anterior.

La producción de cigarros en el Distrito de Renta Interna de Florida por los once meses terminando el 31 de Mayo de 1909, importó 292,141,952; por los once meses correspondientes de 1908 se pagaron impuestos por 304,555,314. Estas cifras demuestran una disminución de 12,413,362 en la producción de cigarros y cherotes, por los cuales se pagaron impuestos.

Por los once meses terminando el 31 de Mayo de 1909, la producción de cigarros y cherotes, por los cuales se pagaron impuestos, en el país entero, importó 5,343,065,327; por los once meses terminando el 31 de Mayo de 1908 se pagaron impuestos por 5,487,240,246. Estas cifras demuestran una disminución de 144,174,919, en comparación con el mismo período del año anterior.

Los amendements siguientes a la constitución ont été soumis au vote populaire des membres.

Par l'union 144, New York, N. Y.:

Amendez le paragraphe 187:

Ajoutez sur la dixième ligne, après le mot "pourvu," toutes les unions faisant appel, dans n'importe quel but, pour assistance financière aux unions locales affiliées avec le C. M. I. U. de A. publieront dans le journal officiel de C. M. I. U. de A. dans les 90 jours après, le montant donné par chaque union, et le numéro de l'union faisant la donation.

Tous les secrétaires devront envoyer un reçu à l'union locale pour la donation de l'union.

Toute négligeant de faire cela payera une amende de $25.00.

Par l'union 500, Tampa, Fla.:

Paragraphe 67. Après les mots Porto Rico et l'état de la Florida, le paragraphe devra lire: "Tous les postulants pour l'union pourront être élus à leur seule assertion en payant les trois dollars ($3.00) honoraire de l'initiation, excepté à Porto Rico et dans l'état de la Florida où l'honoraire d'initiation sera un dollar ($1.00), payable d'avance ou en deux paiements hebdomadaires. Cet amendement sera en vigueur pendant trois mois après son adoption excepté Porto Rico, où il a été adopté pour unan.

Les billets blancs du scrutin sur l'amendement devront être envoyés et reçus au bureau du C. M. I. Union le 7 août, 1909.

La résolution de l'union 14, Chicago, Ill.,

imposant une levée de 10 cents sur tous les membres qui contribueraient 30 et 15 cents en faveur de la somme pour la défense de Gompers, Morrison et Mitchell, a été adoptée par un vote populaire des membres. La taxe sera en vigueur le 17 juillet 1909, et devra être payée dans les huit semaines suivant. Les membres sans place auront la limite de six semaines comme il est pourvu au paragraphe de la constitution.

—The Wage Worker.

Le travail n'attend rien du non-unionisme que maigres gages et des conditions serviles. Le non-unionisme est sans but, et n'est possible que par l'espoir, trop souvent destiné à être déçu, que la nécessité forçant l'ouvrage sur l'ouvrier sera transitoire. Le travail n'attend rien comme amélioration et protection des conditions du travail du non-unionisme. Il est impuissant par la nature même de son non-unionisme quelque bonnes soient ses intentions. Je déclare comme point capital qu'il incombe au labour organisé de chercher le remède aux conditions politiques qui menacent si sérieusement les intérêts de l'ouvrier ainsi que d'autres influences affligeantes qui entravent sa prospérité et de mettre le remède en rigueur.

Discours récent du Juge Phelan, Detroit.

Následující změny stanov budou předloženy členstvu k hlasování.

Oprava Odstavce 187:

Unie č. 144, New York, N. Y., navrhuje:

Přidej na řádek desátý za slovem—s tou podmínkou—všechny unie činící apell o finanční podporu na lokální unie zastoupené v C. M. I. U. of A., pro jakýkoliv účel, musí uveřejniti v oficiálním žurnálu C. H. I. U. of A. za 90 dní obnos, který každá unie daruje a číslu dočasně unie.

Všichni tajemníci musí zaslati stvrzenku na lokální unie, na obnos, který dotýká unie darovala.

Každá unie, která se usnesení nepodřídí, bude pokutována $25.00.

Unie č. 500, Tampa, Fla.

Článek 67. Za slovy Porto Rico a stát Florida se čte: Všichni žadatelé o členství mohou být přijati dle jejich vlastního udání na splátky za uváděcí poplatek tři dollarů ($3.00) vyjímaje v Porto Rico a státu Florida, kde uváděcí poplatek jest jeden dollar ($1.00) splatný předem aneb ve dvou týdnech splátkách. Tyto změny nabudou platnosti za tři měsíce po jich přijetí, vyjímaje Porto Rico, kde byly přijaty za jeden rok.

Hlasovací listek s případnými změnami musí být každou úřednou vrácen C. M. I. U. nejdéle do 7. srpna 1909.

Resoluce unie č. 14, Chicago, Ill. Vybírání 10 centového assessmentu na všech 30 a 15 centů přispívajících členech ve prospěch obhajovacího fandu Gompers, Morrisona a Mitchella, byla přijata členským hlasováním.

Assessment nabyl platnost 17. července 1909 a jest splatným za osm týdnů. Ti členové, kteří jsou bez práce, mají jej míti zaplacený do šestnácti týdnů jak označeno ve stanovách, v článku 73.

Výroba doutníků v druhém a třetím vnitřním celním distriktu města New Yorku, dle daní, které byly zaplacený za 6 měsíců končí 30. červnem 1909, obnáší pouze 340,017,624 doutníků oproti výrobě 365,802,913 doutníků za tu samou dobu v roce 1908. To ukazuje klesnutí výroby o 25,785,289 doutníků u porovnání s účetní periodou z roku 1908.

Za fiskální rok 1908—1909 končící 30. června 1909 v druhém a třetím vnitřním celním distriktu města New Yorku bylo zaplacené daně z doutníků pouze ze 726,581,678 doutníků, kdežto za uplynulý fiskální rok 1907—1908 bylo vyrobeno 827,853,479 doutníků. To ukazuje úbytek ve výrobě o 101,271,801 doutníků v metropolitním distriktu.

Mr. J. R. Trigs, smírčí komisař na Novém Zeelandu praví, že tamější komisaři mají v úmyslu zasáhnouti do každého pracovního sporu, hned v jeho počátcích tak, aby předešli roztrpčení, které se dostavuje v každém sporu, který dlouho trvá. Tímto způsobem, jakož i tím, že zaměstnavatel a dělník sejdou se k přátelskému rozhovoru o svých nehodách, doufají předejiti tomu, aby spory se zbytečně nepřirostly.

Piketování není nezákonné.

Není nezákonným jednáním, když dělnická unie piketuje závod, který byl prohlášen za nespravedlivý "unfair" vůči dělnictvu, děje-li se piketování pokojným způsobem. Tak rozhodnul soudce Ellsworth v Oakland, Cal., o žalobě restaurátora Josefa Davise proti organizaci kuchářů a čističů. Poněvadž unie vyslala před jeho restaurant dvě pikety, tvrdil restaurátor, že prý utrpěl $250.00 ztráty. Soudce uznal, že žalobce třeba ztrátu utrpěl, ale že mu nemůže být přisouzena náhrada, protože ztráta nebyla unií způsobena prostředky nezákonnými.

Die nachstehenden Veränderungen und Zusätze sind der Urabstimmung der Mitglieder unterbreitet worden:

Gingerecht von Gewerkschaft No. 144 in New York.

Abänderung von Section 187:

Auf Zeile zehn, nach dem Wort „Vorausgesetzt“, ist zuzufügen: Alle Gewerkschaften, welche ein Geschäft um finanziellen Beistand an die mit der C. M. I. U. von A. affiliirten Lokalgewerkschaften für irgend einen nur denkbaren Zweck stellen, müssen in dem amtlichen Blatte der C. M. I. U. von A. den von jeder Gewerkschaft gestifteten Betrag, sowie die Nummer der diesen Betrag schenkenden Gewerkschaft, veröffentlichten.

Alle Sekretäre müssen der Lokalgewerkschaft eine Quittung für den von der betreffenden Lokalgewerkschaft geschenkten Betrag ausgeben.

Jede Gewerkschaft, welche dies unterläßt, wird mit $25.00 bestraft.

Gingerecht von Gewerkschaft No. 500, Tampa, Fla.

Section 67. Nach den Worten „Porto Rico und der Staat Florida“ soll die Section lauten, wie folgt: „Alle diejenigen, welche ein Aufnahmegeruch einreichen, können auf ihre eigenen Ausfagen hin nach Zahlung einer Aufnahmgebühr von drei Dollars ($3.00) aufgenommen werden, ausgenommen auf Porto Rico und im Staate Florida, wo die Aufnahmgebühr einen Dollar ($1.00) betragen soll, zahlbar im Voraus oder in zweimonatlichen Raten, und diese Abänderung soll drei Monate lang, vom Tage ihrer Annahme an, in Kraft sein, abgesehen von Porto Rico, welches sie bereits für ein Jahr angenommen hat.“

Das Abstimmungsformular für die obigen Abänderungen sollte in dem Bureau der C. M. Internationalen Union vor oder am 7. August 1909 eintreffen.

Das Amendement, welches von der Union No. 14 in Chicago, Ill., eingereicht worden ist, und welches eine Umlage von 10 Cents auf alle besteuernden Mitglieder für den Gompers, Morrison und Wohlfeil-Vertheidigungs-Fonds legt, ist durch eine Urabstimmung der Mitglieder angenommen worden. Diese Umlage ist binnen acht Wochen Frist zu bezahlen, wie es in der Section 73 der Verfassung vorgeschrieben ist.

Die Unionsbäckerei in San Jose, Cal.

Die „Bäder-Zeitung“ schreibt:

Vor drei Jahren wurde diese Bäckerei von den streikenden Bäckereiarbeitern in San Jose etabliert. Die Arbeitgeber verweigerten ihren Arbeitern damals die verlangte Lohnerhöhung und Verkürzung der Arbeitszeit. Auch weigerten sie sich, sanitäre Zustände in den Bäckereien einzuführen oder Schutzvorrichtungen für die Sicherheit des Lebens der Arbeiter. Um nicht die Vorschläge der Arbeitgeber, die ihre Leute ausgeschlossen hatten, annehmen zu müssen, eröffneten unsere Mitglieder ihre eigene Bäckerei. Unter dem Plane der kooperativen Unternehmen und unter den größten Schwierigkeiten befaßte man sich mit dem Projekt und schließlich, als die Bäckerei zur Thatfache geworden war, stellten sich weitere bedenkliche Schwierigkeiten ein, sodaß fast alle unsere Lokal-Unions an der Pacific-Küste finanzielle Unterstützung gemähren mußten. Die lokale Unterfütigung seitens der übrigen organisirten Arbeiter vom Santa Cruz-Thale hat schließlich das Unternehmen zu dem gemacht, was es heute ist.

Die Bäckerei hat eine Produktionskapazität von 7000 Laib Brod pro Tag und die Gesamt-Jahreserinnahme beläuft sich in runder Summe auf $90,000. Noch vor zwei Jahren war kein Engros- oder Detailgeschäft zu finden, welches der Bäckerei Rohmaterialien verkaufen wollte. Heute aber ist es anders; nur zu gerne will man Lieferant des Unternehmens sein. Der Ruf des Geschäftes und sein Credit sind heute bei Weitem besser als die irgend einer der anderen altetablierten Unternehmen in der Nachbarschaft.

Momentan beschäftigt die Bäckerei vierundzwanzig Mann und die monatliche Lohnliste beläuft sich über $450. Das Grundeigenthum und das Geschäft gehören der San Franciscoer Lokal-Union No. 2, und die in der Bäckerei beschäftigten Genossen sind Mitglieder dieser Lokal-Union. Seitens der organisirten Arbeiterschaft, speziell aber seitens der Lokal-Union No. 24 sind über $30,000 verausgabt worden, um dieses großartige Etablissement zu einem der besten seiner Art an der Pacific-Küste zu machen. Diese ungeheure Summe wurde nothwendig, um das Geschäft richtig auf die Füße zu bringen, während des letzten Jahres jedoch hat sich das Geschäft als eine sehr profitable Kapitalanlage für die Organisation erwiesen.

Vor etwa zehn Monaten wurde die Bäckerei vergrößert und schon wieder deuten alle Anzeichen darauf hin, daß die gegenwärtigen Facilitäten nicht hinreichend sein werden, um alle Rohmaterialien, die während eines Monats verbraucht wurden, aufbewahren zu können. Ehe die Erhöhung in den Mehlpreisen eintrat, kaufte die Geschäftsleitung der Bäckerei 2500 Faß Mehl zu den alten Preisen ein, wodurch sie in den Stand gesetzt wurde, das Geschäft in der alten Weise fortzuführen, ohne das Brod verkleinern zu müssen.

Noch vor zehn Jahren erhielten die Bäckereiarbeiter an der Pacific-Küste kaum $35 bis $40 pro Monat. Die San Jose Baking Company bezahlte heute ihren Angestellten zwischen $20 und $30 pro Woche und gewährt ihnen außerdem die sanitärsten Zustände, sowie den best ventilirten Shop, der zu finden ist. Die Bäckerei verdient ohne Frage die ungetheilte Unterstützung der organisirten Arbeiterschaft.

TEN MEN CONTROL TRUSTS.

Assertion of Commissioner Smith in Exhaustive Analysis of Tobacco Trust Details—Second Installment of His Report on Tobacco Industry Gives Details of Combination.

The second division of Part I of the summary in the report of the Commissioner of Corporations was distributed for publication last week and it goes exhaustively into the present organization and business of the Tobacco combination as well as the development of the combination's control of the tobacco industry.

Perhaps the most important excerpt from the report is that under the sub-title "Centralization of Control in a Few Hands." The section reads as follows:

"The American Tobacco Co., therefore, stands in a controlling position over the entire Tobacco Combination with its 86 companies operating in the United States, Porto Rico and Cuba. The control of the American Tobacco Company itself rests in a very few hands. That company had at the end of 1906 a total capitalization of a little over 235 millions, including bonds, but of this capitalization only about one-sixth—namely, the common stock, amounting to a little over 40 millions—has voting power for the election of directors or for the ordinary management of the business. The great bulk of the common stock is held by members of the directorate of the American Tobacco Co. and their intimate associates. The 28 directors and 4 other stockholders together own 77 per cent of this stock. Indeed, the 10 largest stockholders, 7 of whom are directors, together hold over 60 per cent, and these 10 alone can, therefore, readily dominate the entire combination. They are J. B. Duke, president of the company; A. N. Brady, O. H. Payne, P. A. B. Widener, Thomas F. Ryan, B. N. Duke, G. B. Schley, the banking and brokerage firm of Moore & Schley (chiefly as agents for clients), and the estates of W. C. Whitney and W. L. Elkins."

The report unravels in detail the numerous ramifications of the Tobacco Combination and classifies the various companies under "The Snuff Group," the Cigar Group, the British American Tobacco Co., etc.

A later division is devoted to the development of the Combination's control of the tobacco industry and the Combination's present proportion of the business. It also gives the changes in the Combination's proportion of the cigarette output. The table of changes shows that the total production of cigarettes and little cigars in the United States has much more than doubled since 1891. There was a rapid increase from 1891 to 1897. From then until 1900, largely because of the increase in the tax on cigarettes during the Spanish war, production fell off materially, but since that time it has increased with greater rapidity than ever before. A large part of the increase during the past few years has been due to the development of the consumption of Turkish cigarettes, the report truthfully recites.

The report goes into the growth of the proportion of the combination on the output of snuff and manufactured tobacco; then it takes up plug tobacco and smoking tobacco.

A tabulated list of the various companies that go to make up the tobacco combination is given, and arranged in columns alongside the name is the total outstanding capitalization and the amount of stock held by the American Tobacco Co.

The following is said concerning secretly controlled companies:

"The most important motive, however, for the continuance of separate corporate existence in the case of many concerns has been the desire of the combination to keep its control secret. There is a strong feeling among many dealers and consumers against 'trusts' in general and the 'Tobacco Trust' in particular. Independent manufacturers have extensively taken advantage of this feeling and have advertised their goods as 'Independent,' 'Not made by a trust,' and so forth. The attitude of the American Tobacco company and its openly affiliated concerns in refusing to deal with labor organizations has also caused hostility among union laboring men, many of whom insist on buying 'union label' goods. Many Independent manufacturers have availed themselves of the union label sentiment to build up a trade.

"In order to overcome the effects of the anti-trust sentiment and the union label sentiment, and even to take advantage of them, the tobacco combination, particularly during 1903 and 1904, secretly acquired a controlling interest in numerous concerns which had been catering to customers who held those sentiments."

Other parts of the report follow:

"The history of the tobacco combination has made it clear that the American Tobacco Co. has throughout been the principal factor, and this is still more true since the reorganization of 1904, which united the Consolidated, American and Continental companies under the new corporation with the old name, American Tobacco Co. There are three other corporations still, however, whose position in the tobacco combination distinguishes them from the great majority of the subsidiary companies. These are the American Snuff company, the American Cigar company and the British-American Tobacco company.

"The American Tobacco Co. not only controls the other three principal companies named, but is itself a great manufacturing concern, and it also directly controls a large number of other subsidiary companies. The field of the American Tobacco Co. and these subsidiary companies includes the manufacture of chewing and smoking tobacco, of cigarettes for domestic consumption, and of so-called little cigars, together with enterprises contributory to these branches of tobacco manufacture.

"The American Snuff Co., with its subsidiary companies, is exclusively concerned with the manufacture of snuff.

"The American Cigar Co., with its subsidiaries, handles the cigar business of the combination, including the manufacture of ordinary cigars, cheroots and stogies in the United States and the manufacture of cigars and cigarettes in Cuba and Porto Rico.

"The British-American Tobacco Co. is distinguished from the others by being confined to export business and to the manufacture and sale of tobacco in foreign countries.

"The American Tobacco Co. holds considerably more than a majority of the capital stock of the American Cigar and British-American companies and over 40 per cent of the stock of the American Snuff Co. By reason of the fact that certain large individual stockholders of the American Tobacco Co. are also stockholders in the American Snuff Co., and by reason of the identity of purpose, the American Snuff Co. may properly be considered as controlled by the American Tobacco Co.

The Subsidiary Companies.

"Aside from these four principal companies, there are 82 other companies in the combination which do business in the United States, Porto Rico and Cuba, besides a considerable number controlled by the British-American Tobacco Co., which do business in other countries. In practically every one of these 82 companies a majority of the stock is held either by one of the four principal companies or by some company subsidiary to them. In a large number of cases the entire stock of these subsidiary companies is thus held. The combination in buying stock has apparently sought control even more than investment.

"The American Tobacco Co. itself controls directly or indirectly 47 of these subsidiary companies, aside from controlling the three principal subsidiary combinations. The American Snuff Co. controls six other companies, the American Cigar Co. 26 and the British-American Tobacco Co. three (these three companies buy leaf and manufacture tobacco in the United States for export); the British-American also controls many subsidiary companies operating in other countries."

The report winds up by saying:

"These facts emphasize the conclusion already drawn from the history of the organization of the tobacco combination, that its primary object has been to secure a dominant position in the tobacco business of the United States with the result that it has a nearly complete control of it, save only in the manufacture of cigars."

"The combination has superior advantages over competitors, from the great size of its plants and from the control of more efficient machinery, but these alone have not been sufficient to enable it to increase its degree of control while at the same time charging high prices for the greater part of its product, particularly in view of the fact that many consumers prefer to patronize independent concerns. Despite enormous expenditures for advertising and in 'schemes' and despite frequent price cutting by means of its so-called 'fighting brands' and its bogus independent concerns, there has been, in several branches of the industry, a constant tendency for competitors to gain business more rapidly than the combination and thus to reduce its proportion of the output. This tendency has been overcome only by continued buying up of competitive concerns. Many weaker concerns have been virtually driven out of business or forced to sell out to the combination, either by reason of the direct competition of the latter, or as an indirect result of the vigorous competition between the combination and larger independent concerns. In the case of the larger and more powerful concerns, which it acquired, however, the combination has usually secured control only by paying a high price. The immense profits of the combination have enabled it to keep up this policy."—Tobacco.

NOTICE.

The amendment of Union 14, Chicago, levying a 10 cent assessment on all 30 and 15 cent contributing members, in favor of Gompers, Morrison and Mitchell defense fund was adopted by a referendum vote.

This assessment took effect July 17, 1909, and is payable within the prescribed limits, as set forth in section 73 of the constitution.

Financial secretaries when granting loans should, as required by section 104, enter loans in figures and letters. It is not necessary to punch cards.

The amendment adopted to Sections 76 and 77 does away with the issuance of retiring cards to all who continue to pay dues as beneficiary members.

Retiring cards are only for those who pay up and actually terminate all connection with the union in so far as the payment of dues is concerned.

Members who transfer from the 30-cent list to the 20-cent beneficiary membership list are simply changed from one class to another and deducted from one and added to the other.

Members who have not paid 30-cent dues for three years and quitting the trade under Section 76 and wishing to qualify for Section 77 as a beneficiary member should be kept on without any other change than to make a note of the intention on the ledger page. If such member desires to travel to another jurisdiction he should be given a transfer card and his intention to qualify as a 20-cent beneficiary member written on the transfer card. Such beneficiary members are not entitled to any benefits except sick benefits after one year's membership and whatever death benefits their term of membership entitles them to.

NOTICE TO OFFICERS AND MEMBERS.

In printing the nineteenth edition of the Constitution, an omission occurs in Section 77, on line 7. A comma and the words "and local assessments" should follow "International assessments." The sentence to read: "All International assessments, and local assessments levied for label agitation purposes." This amendment as published in another place is correct.

If you hold any loan cards of no further use send them to this office.

Before granting or accepting retiring cards secretaries and members should consult Sections 76 and 77 of the Constitution.

NOTICE.—How to duplicate Loan Cards.

It frequently occurs that new secretaries through error or lack of knowledge, transfer the amount a member "has coming" instead of what he owes. In duplicating a card, figure up all the member has borrowed and subtract all he has paid, and if there is a balance against the member transfer to new card in red ink in figures and letters the amount due the International Union. Also enter on new card all that may be essential that you find on the old, then sign and seal it. Send the old card to the International office.

MEMBERS OUT OF WORK ARE NOT ENTITLED TO THE SIXTEEN WEEKS' PRIVILEGE IN DUES UNLESS THEY NOTIFY THE SECRETARY WEEKLY BEFORE THE EIGHTH WEEK. THIS INCLUDES TRAVELING MEMBERS, WHO SHOULD ALWAYS CARRY A CERTIFICATE AND HAVE SAME SIGNED WEEKLY.

Items for the Journal should be placed on separate slips of paper—not the backs of reports, etc.—in order to insure prompt publication, and should reach this office not later than the 10th of each month if intended for current publication.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address, if possible, so as to obviate delays, mistakes, etc.

In reporting deaths, kindly comply with the following and you will save time and unnecessary work: Give full name, number, date and place of initiation of member. Has member held retiring card? If so, did he pay his dues? This information relates only to such as you can obtain from the records of your own union. If admitted by card, state when and where from, and in addition send in such card, but place on your letter the information necessary as the latter is filed as a matter of record. Before paying death benefits study Sections 145 and 151, inclusive. Send in a death blank properly filled out for all death benefits paid.

If secretaries when ordering supplies will place the order on the regular blank, it will greatly simplify the work here and avoid unnecessary delay for those who order the supplies. We receive an average of 300 pieces of mail in the office daily. Sometimes an order is sandwiched into a two or three-page letter containing three or more different subjects, and there is danger in such cases of an order being overlooked. Hence we ask that in order to save unnecessary delay and annoyance you order on the regular blank, giving your name and address.

DECISIONS OF EXECUTIVE BOARD

Washington, July 27, 1909.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board of the C. M. I. U. of A., by A. Pregnane of Union 138, Newark, N. J., against a decision of the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Gompers, Tracy, Gariepy, Conrad Weber, Roberts, Fitzgerald and Cronin.

The basis of the appeal was: that the local union compelled him to refund moneys granted him from an assessment that was levied for the purposes of helping the need. The local union had granted Pregnane sums of money, but on learning that he had shares in a building and loan association, they stopped granting him any more, and voted that he return the amounts granted.

The International President bases his decision on the facts as presented by the local union who were on the ground, and who were in a position to know all the facts, together with the statement that Pregnane agreed to return the money, and did return part of it, showing that he was not actually in need.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International President is sustained.

Samuel Gompers,
First Vice-President.

Washington, July 27, 1909.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board of the C. M. I. U. of A., by James Brown vs. Union 224, Salt Lake City, Utah, against a decision of the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Gompers, Tracy, Gariepy, Conrad Weber, Roberts, Fitzgerald and Cronin.

The basis of the appeal was: that Brown claimed sick benefit of the union, who upon investigation learned from Brown, that while he was able to work, he had no money to "rough it," and wanted to be placed on the sick list.

The International President bases his decision on the fact that the local union investigated the case, and being on the ground were in a position to decide whether Brown was entitled to such benefit, and after a fair trial they decided that he was not entitled to benefits.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International President is sustained.

Samuel Gompers,
First Vice-President.

Washington, July 27, 1909.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., of J. J. Alexander, of Union No. 92 of Boston, Mass., against a decision rendered by the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Gompers, Tracy, Gariepy, Conrad Weber, Roberts, Fitzgerald and Cronin.

The basis of the appeal was: that while Alexander was a member of Union 97, Boston, Mass., he went to Worcester, Mass., under the jurisdiction of Union 92, and went to work in a window for a firm that was declared unfair by both the Worcester, Springfield and Holyoke unions at that time. Despite the efforts of Union 92, Alexander continued to work for, and tried to obtain labels on his work made for this unfair firm.

Union 92 fined him $100, which amount was reduced to $35 by the International President.

The International President bases his decisions on the following grounds: That Alexander was deliberately trying to help out an unfair firm, and to do so allowed his card to remain in Union 97; that the union had the right to fine him for his acts, and while the fine of $100 was reduced, the one most in interest, i. e., the union, accepted the decision of the reduced fine, without appealing, and that the fine is not only just but reasonable.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International President is sustained.

Samuel Gompers,
First Vice-President.

Washington, July 27, 1909.

In the case of the appeal of the Executive Board of the C. M. I. U. of A., of L. C. Johnson against a decision rendered by the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Gompers, Tracy, Garlepy, Conrad, Weber, Roberts, Fitzgerald and Cronin.

The basis of the appeal was: that Union 172, Davenport, Iowa, retained as a member one who had been elected to the legislature of that state.

The International President bases his decision on Section 78 of the Constitution, as well as on the fact that it is the policy of the A. F. of L., and the labor movement generally, to elect to office members from their own ranks. In this instance the president of the union was elected to the legislature, in conformity with the aforesaid policy, and because of this, he should not be compelled to forfeit his active membership.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International President is sustained.

Samuel Gompers,
First Vice-President.

Washington, July 27, 1909.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board of the C. M. I. U. of A., by W. Horn of Union 138, Newark, N. J., against a decision of the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Gompers, Tracy, Garlepy, Conrad, Weber, Roberts, Fitzgerald and Cronin.

The basis of the appeal was: to compel Union 138 to refund assessments levied on the percentage plan, that was declared illegal, to the members, by the levying of another assessment.

The International President bases his decision on the fact that the union was now levying assessments in accordance with the law; that the money contributed by the former assessments had been expended for the purpose for which it was levied; and that to levy another assessment now would not only be confusing but illogical, for the members after having paid it would have it returned to them, thus making unnecessary work, with nothing gained in the end.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International President is sustained.

Samuel Gompers,
First Vice-President.

Washington, July 27, 1909.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board of the C. M. I. U. of A., by Max Strauss of Union 73, Alton, Ill., against a decision of the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Gompers, Tracy, Garlepy, Conrad, Weber, Roberts, Fitzgerald and Cronin.

The basis of the appeal was: that Union 75 refused to grant sick benefit to said Strauss, because of the fact that he admitted that said sickness was brought about through a fight with a shopmate, and because of Strauss working overtime, etc.

The International President bases his decision on the fact that the local union had investigated all the facts in connection with this case, and as they were on the ground they were better able to judge whether the sickness was real or not, and after full investigation by the local, they decided that Strauss was not entitled to benefit.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International President is sustained.

Samuel Gompers,
First Vice-President.

CORRESPONDENCE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9, 1909.

To the Officers and Members of the Cigar-makers' International Union:

Greeting—In pursuance with the instructions of the international president, I proceeded to this city to take up the work assigned in connection with the free importation of cigars from the Philippine Islands, as proposed in the then pending tariff bill.

The bill having passed the House of Representatives, with practically no debate, and under rules specially adopted, that denied the right of amending the bill, and with the majority of the Committee on Ways and Means, pledged to its provisions, it then became necessary to give all our attention to the members of the Senate to have the obnoxious provisions stricken out.

Immediately on our arrival here a conference was held of those in interest at which there were representatives of the Tobacco Growers of Pennsylvania and Connecticut, Cigar Manufacturers of Pennsylvania, the representative of the National Leaf Tobacco Dealers and President Perkins, Vice President Tracy and your committee. We also had the advice and counsel of Vice President Gompers.

At this conference the matter was gone into carefully and briefs were prepared by all those in interest, which were submitted to the Senate Finance Committee on the following morning when a hearing was given on the tobacco schedule.

When the Senate Finance Committee reported the bill it contained almost exactly the same provisions that were in the House bill, especially as to the provisions for the importation of cigars from the Philippines. When this schedule was under consideration in the Senate an amendment was offered by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, reducing the amount of cigars that were to come in free of duty to 75,000,000 and after some discussion this amendment was referred to the Senate Finance Committee, who subsequently reported an amendment making the amount 70,000,000 which was adopted by the Senate.

When the bill went to conference, the original amount as provided by the House bill, and as recommended by the President of the United States, who has been an ardent advocate of this measure for the last eight years, was restored.

Every effort was made to have this provision stricken out of the bill and when it was seen that this could not be accomplished, to have the amount reduced to the lowest possible, but on account of the persistency of the president, assisted by the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, Sen. E. Payne of New York, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts and others, this was impossible.

Despite all the statements and promises made, it is beyond question that the Senate would in the first instance, have agreed with the provisions of the House bill, had it not been for the alertness and activity of Senator La Follette, who gave valuable assistance in the effort to defeat this provision in the bill. Others who were active in our interest, and who worked and spoke against the passage of this nefarious provision were Senator Clapp of Minnesota, and Senator Dick of Ohio. It was evident that the president was bound to have this provision enacted into the bill, and had the whole force of the insular bureau of the government at work to defeat our efforts, even going so far as to have the collector of Internal revenue of the Philippines here in Washington during all the time that the tariff bill was under discussion. Among those who rendered active assistance to your committee, who were members of the House were Congressman Greist of Pennsylvania, who was ably assisted by his secretary, John Groff.

In fact Congressman Greist worked night and day so earnestly in his efforts to defeat this provision of the bill, that eventually he worked himself into a sick bed, and has not entirely recovered as yet.

Too much cannot be said of the efforts of Mr. Groff, who was also untiring in his efforts in our behalf, and who rendered valuable assistance to your representative in obtaining data, documents, etc., that was desired. Valuable information and services were rendered by Congressman Nichols of Pennsylvania and his secretary, Richard Rowland; Cary of Wisconsin, who succeeded in having placed in the Congressional Record an extract from a letter written by a union cigarmaker, who exposed the unsanitary and disease-breeding conditions under which cigars are made there, from his own observation; McDermott of Illinois, La Fean and Wilson of Pennsylvania.

For the information of our members we will state that Messrs. Nichols and Wilson are members in good standing in the Mine Workers' Union, and Cary and McDermott are members of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union.

Every effort was made, both in written, printed and oral communications to show the awful amount of injury that would result in permitting 150,000,000 cigars to be annually admitted free of duty from these islands who, with their Chinese cheap labor, are the poorest paid in the whole world, together with the 125,000,000 cigars that are now annually coming into the United States free of duty from Porto Rico, and all will be under the control and domination of the American Tobacco Company, the trust, but the friends of the administration would not agree to our statements that these cigars would materially reduce the opportunity for American cigarmakers to obtain employment, and that the amount specified would not be brought here.

That our statements were true is now being borne out by the fact that hardly had the ink on the bill got dry before the American Cigar Stores Company began advertising all over the country that "they had in their possession at the port of New York, 1,000,000 hand-made Manila cigars, that as soon as they were released from bond they would be sold at the rate of three for ten cents, thus proving that this notorious combination had already gained control of the industry of the Philippine Islands and would exploit their Chinese labor against us.

When the bill was in conference I received much support from the various unions who both wrote and telegraphed their representatives and the president, protesting against the passage of this provision.

During the consideration of the bill, an amendment was offered that raised the internal revenue on cigars that would retail at ten cents apiece, from $3 to $4.50 per thousand, but after your committee had an interview with the proposer of this amendment, he agreed to make this provision apply to cigars that sold at wholesale for $75 per thousand. This matter was referred to a sub-committee of the Senate Finance Committee, who reported an increase of sixty cents a thousand.

Your committee and others obtained a hearing before the full committee, and protested against this increase, and were successful in having the internal tax remain where it was.

When the bill was about to be sent to the Conference Committee I wired President Perkins, asking him to come to Washington, believing that his presence was necessary. President Perkins came here at once, and we also had the assistance of Mr. Daniel Harris of New York, and together we interviewed the members of the conference committee in the direction of having the provision stricken from the bill, as well as interviewing a large number of senators and representatives.

For the purpose of killing the Income Tax amendment the president had introduced into the Senate what is known as the Corporation Tax Bill, and labor organizations were not mentioned with the organizations to be exempted from taxation. I had an interview with Senator La Follette about the time a vote was to be taken and, through his efforts labor organizations are now exempt from taxation.

Jerry Cronin,
Legislative Committee.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 1909

This is as it should be, because Mr. Brown and myself stand together in the belief that trade union principles are sound; and that their action is of benefit not only to unionists but to the whole country as well, we should be equally willing to discuss freely questions of great moment to the A. F. of L. To this end I submit with pleasure the following correspondence:

Cigarmakers' Union No. 144.

New York, July 26, 1909.

Mr. David Goldstein.

Dear Sir:—I understand that Eugene V. Debs is going to address a public mass meeting in the city of Boston on August 22, 1909.

You have made statements against him, which, if they were true, ought to put shame upon him, and if they were not true you had no right to make them, particularly through our Journal.

I believe that if you possess the facts as you claim you do, you ought to meet Debs like a man and prove to the world that he is not the man that a great many working people think he is, and if you refuse to meet him, I shall certainly make mention of it in the columns of our Journal.

Awaiting an early reply,

Fraternally yours,

(Signed) M. Brown.

Boston, Mass., July 29, 1909.

Mr. M. Brown, New York City.

My Dear Sir:—I am in receipt of your personal favor of July 26, 1909. Waiving all our correspondences heretofore, I desire to express my sincere appreciation of your willingness to have openly thrashed out a matter of such great moment to all American workingmen. Kindly allow me to signify my assent to a debate by replying in the words of a letter of mine which was published in The Daily Evening Item, Lynn, Mass., Tuesday, October 25, 1904, to which, unhappily, I have as yet received no response, neither from the Massachusetts Socialist Party officials nor from their three times standard bearer, Mr. Debs. To quote:

"Boston, Mass., Oct. 25, 1904.

"Socialist Party, State Committee, Squire E. Putney, Secretary, Somerville, Mass.:

"Dear Sir—Your appeal for the suffrages of the working class, in the coming elections, on the ground that you alone represent their interests, I stand ready to contest. You fail to make good, in argument, your claim to the support of the wage-workers in general and the trade unionists in particular. It is my conviction that open discussion of the vital questions which you raise upon trade union ground would be of moral, educational and political value, at this time. Hence this letter to you requesting to share the time in debate upon the rostrum with your Presidential candidate, Eugene V. Debs, in his itinerary throughout the Commonwealth."

Hoping that your interest and efforts will lead to a debate between Mr. Debs and myself, I have the honor to remain,

Yours in the interest of the labor cause,

David Goldstein.

Cigarmakers' Union No. 144.

Mr. David Goldstein, Boston, Mass.:

My Dear Sir—Yours of the 29th ultimo to hand, and contents noted, and in reply will say that I am going to forward your statement to Mr. E. V. Debs this very day, and I shall also notify you of the result.

Hoping this may be satisfactory,

Yours Fraternally,

(Signed) M. Brown.

If Mr. Debs should not see his way clear to accept my long standing challenge, the date which I here present, and my argument, will give him some of the grounds for my conviction.

tion that his activity within the labor world is not to the workmen's advantage, but very greatly to their detriment. If, however, the Socialist boycott is to be maintained, why, then my fellowcraftsmen will have some additional information as to the Socialist leaders' efforts to disrupt the bona fide trade union movement. Knowing Mr. Debs' attempt to break down our unions, loyal unionists will regard him not as their friend, but as their foe. Here in the open is the issue, this, happily, Mr. Brown accepts and generously pledges himself to work to the end of general enlightenment as to Mr. Debs' real influence upon the trade union movement.

My attack is not upon the sincerity of Mr. Debs; not upon his intention to be of benefit to the working class. No, not so, my quarrel is directed against his actual work and against the influence of his addresses.

Thus the question faces us as trade unionists, are we logically forced to the conclusion that the attempts of Mr. Debs to give organized expression to his ideals has been disruptive? While unity has been his battle-cry, has disunity been his work? I say it has, and the historical evidences of the fact are the American Railway Union, the Western Labor Union, the American Labor Union and the Industrial Workers of the World.

To confine these few words to the last named organization: no one would have the temerity to deny that Mr. Debs was the most potent factor in organizing the I. W. W. His eloquent tongue, his facile pen, his popularity and his influence were all directed toward the disruption of the A. F. of L. and its affiliated unions in the interest of establishing the I. W. W. I am free to say that this Socialist trade union was founded upon principles destructive to the economic, the civic and the moral welfare of the toiling masses.

It is a well known fact that the I. W. W. organized dozens of locals in dozens of trades in opposition to our locals: that it issued "union" labels in opposition to our labels. Namely, that cigarmakers, printers, shoe workers and other labels were put out by the I. W. W. But it is not so well known among cigarmakers that some locals of the I. W. W. have ventured so far in their attempt to disrupt our organization, the so-called "funeral society," as to furnish the money with which to open a factory to make cigars bearing the label of the I. W. W. is it?

In the June issue of our Journal I presented some data to prove that the I. W. W., with the aid of Mr. Debs, tried to disrupt the Cap Makers' Union, affiliated with the A. F. of L., despite the fact that it was then officered by Socialists. This action led the Cap Makers' Union in convention assembled (New York City, May 1-6, 1906), to pass a set of resolutions in condemnation of the organization, which Mr. Debs fathered. I quote in part:

"Whereas, The tactics of the I. W. W. led it, for reasons that are obvious, to pick out our own organization for its first target, as is exemplified by the organization in New York City of a rival Cap Makers' local, which has repeatedly attempted and is attempting this very day to destroy our union, by the use of methods which are mean and contemptible, traitorous and despicable.

"Resolved, That we do hereby denounce and condemn the I. W. W. as an organization which, by its actions and professions, has made itself, consciously or unconsciously, an auxiliary of the various associations of employers, injuring directly and indirectly the interests of all labor, organized and unorganized. * * *

The writer has the testimony to support his belief that Mr. Debs was well acquainted with the Cap Makers' controversy. He was shown copies of court records, affidavits, due cards, communications, etc, printed copies of which I have before me, which to the candid friend prove beyond a shadow of doubt that the Cap Makers' locals of the I. W. W. were organized in a manner and for a purpose hostile to the A. F. of L. interests. Mr. Debs had promised his "comrades," the officials of the Cap Makers' Union, that he would not "stand for such misdeeds" as the I. W. W. had committed in New York City in its attempt to disrupt an A. F. of L. union. Yet from that day to this the eloquent tongue and the redhot pen of the great Socialist leader has given us silence as his defense of dishonest action. The Cap Makers' Union officials, thinking Mr. Debs "a sincere man," thinking he would "live up to his own words," cried out bitterly in their official organ. To quote:

"No Answer from Comrade Debs."

"We have not received any reply from Comrade Eugene V. Debs to our challenge that he should live up to his own words.

"He said in New York City that if the Industrial Workers of the World is organizing scabs it deserves to be wiped off the face of the earth.

"In our last issue (Jan., 1906), we proved beyond a shadow of a doubt that organizers of the Industrial Workers did organize scabs; furthermore, that some of these organizers played the role of Farley, in so far as they supplied strike-breakers to places where bona fide union people were on strike.

"On the strength of this proof, backed by sworn affidavits of some of the strike-breakers themselves, we asked Comrade Debs to live up to his own words, to begin the smashing of the I. W. W. We give Comrade Debs another chance. We are his friends and well wishers. We still believe he is a sincere man and means no harm to the labor movement. We therefore hope he will not dodge the issue.

"We once again pause for a reply."

But the "reply" is still waited for. Defeat gives some men pause, and they learn the reason of their failure. But Mr. Debs seems to have learned nothing from the defeat of the American Railway Union save that it gave notoriety to its founder in chief. And that more notoriety comes from a like defeat is proved now, that the Western Labor Union and the American Labor Union are no more but a name with a bad spirit hiding behind it.

Mr. Debs' latest attempt at national organization is yet alive, but in a sorry plight. The I. W. W. is split into two factions, snarling at each other's heels, the Bush Templeites and the Shermanites. Mr. Debs is king pin of neither, though he is not cured of his folly, which divides the working class. It was reported a few days ago in the Chicago Daily Socialist (July 10, 1909), that the great Socialist leader is "simply awaiting the right opportunity to throw all (his) strength into the movement for industrial unionism." He pleads with his Socialist following not to be discouraged by the failures of the past." He says the fact that first attempts to organize on that basis have failed counts for nothing." Mr. Debs says he will throw his whole strength against the existing trade unions, they are too "fat and flabby" to be of longer service. Mr. Debs can indeed excite to action, but his action results in destruction. He is for The Revolution, not for honest hard work that tells. Not for work that builds up the power of our unions and so secure to us the benefits of modern industry in due measure.

Trade union work is too "fat," too "flabby."

It is easier to talk, to arouse thoughts of rebellion in the hearts of men of ill-will. To agitate for a right opportunity to organize a brand-new-up-to-date-no-failure—this time I. W. W. against the A. F. of L. and its affiliated unions. David Goldstine.

Los Angeles, July 4, 1909.

To the Members of Cigarmakers' International Union: In looking for the cause of the success of the large manufacturing concerns of the U. S. we find that extensive advertising is responsible for it, take the largest and most extensively known firms, despite their popularity, still keep up advertising, and we must conclude from that that advertising is the only element that makes them successful. Watch the billboards, the fences, barns, awnings, roofs, rocks and even the landscape and atmosphere and you'll see their wares and brands in strong letters, that impresses itself on the eye and brain. You'll meet these ads at every turn of the eye. If such is true of their success, why should we not follow their example? We do immense advertising all over the country, expend more money than perhaps any of our competitors, and still the result is far from satisfactory. We advance a label that covers many thousands of brands sold for the same one price, 5c and 10c, which in itself is confusing to the smoker and made up of many grades of material differing vastly in quality, that the consistent caller for label goods will often, when in a new place, or even at home, find himself with a firecracker between his teeth that discourages him, and he will drift to our competitors. Our patronage is not strong with the general public, as the most of them care nothing for a union label. What they want is the goods and they call for the goods whose name they continually are reminded of by the large ads. Now, can not the International Union become a factor in the market, work their way into the industrial world and become a producer and seller of its wares, at the same time encourage our manufacturers to further efforts to spread their wares and we as cigarmakers place the International Union in a more permanent and safer sphere, and all of us become boosters for a cigar that can be called by name and no injustice done to any one. I have visited organizations for years boosting the label and my experience was that every listener wanted some brand to be advocated and not the label, and that could be recommended by us. We know it can not be done as it would be a rank injustice to the manufacturers, and our talk would not have the desired effect, and it is also known that a uniform advertising matter is discarded, also that our agents be supplied with such matter making it easier and more comprehensive to the consumer to get value for his money.

While thinking over these conditions a plan suggested itself to me and is as follows:

The International Union shall have copyrighted in the U. S. one brand for 5c and one brand for 10c cigars. The International Union shall be sole owner of these brands, it shall furnish local unions with all inside and outside brands or labels at cost, the local union to sell same to manufacturers at a stated price, the cigar to be of uniform length and thickness and a specified grade of material to be used, the selling price to be established for small and large lots, and the price of making the cigars be the same all over the U. S.; not extremely high as on some bills, nor so low that our $7.00 low $7.00 high district would furnish all the goods. We must admit that there is a limit to the making price of a good 5c cigar of generous proportions such as our competitors are placing on the market.

The provisions under which the manufacturers are to receive the use of the labels or brands will be exacting as to length, size and quality of tobacco, also selling price, and for any violation of the articles the penalty will be the loss of the use of the brands for a stated period of months or years according to the severity of the offense, the local union to be judge in the event of a contest, with an appeal system as is in vogue at present. The brands to be so arranged that a space be left blank on which the manufacturer must have his name and city printed so the goods can be identified at a glance.

The International Union to do the advertising. This will be the point that will require statistics furnished by International President. I am unable to quote figures, but taking the $1.00 per capita allowance to unions and expending it in the proper channels with our agents and agitators in the field using the same methods as our competitors, we would in a year have a standing next to none in the cigar business and smokers by the hundreds that would not smoke a label cigar now would be using this brand unsuspectingly, and perhaps become boosters for it, and we would not be in fear of some dry wave, that is so disastrous to us now, for wherever it is in force our trade is cut in two or worse, as is the case in eastern states.

Just now our competitors do not fear the effect of the dry wave, and again should one of our large firms with a continental reputation for its cigar sell out to the trust or in some manner bring about a strike and the factory is lost to us, we would be obliged to go to quite some expense of informing our friends that the cigar is no longer union made, as they had become accustomed to the brand and not our label, as was the case some years ago with a large New York union shop. Those fears will be wiped out if my plan is adopted. I have discussed this plan with many, but found very little substantial opposition. Unscrupulous manufacturers taking advantage of our advertising and violating their agreement, with subsequent loss of the use of the brand, would be an object lesson to the next one; this plan will no doubt appear aggressive and far-reaching to many, but if at all practical let us give it a trial, no one manufacturer nor member will be injured by its adoption, so why should there be any substantial opposition?

We must progress some, as everything you may take, commerce, industry, science, it's all moving in new channels, so jump out of the old rut we have traveled since our inception. The objects and aims of our union will not be disturbed, nor the potency of our union label shrink, for the label must be used in conjunction with brands and every manufacturer will have his private brands just as he has them now. It will bring about a better feeling between employer and employee from the fact that we will be actually selling his brands. What it will save us in strike and out-of-work benefit can not be computed, but it will be a substantial amount.

If this plan is acceptable to the members the International president by an amendment proposed by this union (No. 225, Los Angeles) will be requested to appoint a committee of five—one from the east, north, south, middle and western parts of the United States—to confer by mail with one another until they have formulated a plan that will cover this plan and surround it with safeguards that will allow no destructive element to enter into its composition.

H. E. Martens,
Secretary 225.

Antwerp, Belgium, July 12, 1909.

It is with deep regret that we read in your June issue of the Cigar Makers' Official Journal that the amendment of Union 97, Boston, had not received the required number of endorsements to be submitted to popular vote. We still hope, however, that the committee of Union 97, Boston, will find means to send two delegates from the Cigar Makers' International Union of America to the International Congress, which will be held in Copenhagen, Denmark, in 1910.

It seems incomprehensible that our American friends take such a lax interest in a real international co-operation of cigar makers and tobacco workers.

We understand that the great majority of our American friends do not fully understand the difficulties under which we labor to secure better living conditions, but they will recognize that every amelioration which we realize is also indirectly a benefit for the members of a like organization in America, and as a well organized craft, they realize that the organization of the trade in Europe is the best plan for better conditions.

We would also like to tell you, dear comrades, that we always have conflicts. At this writing, we have two big strikes in our trade in Belgium, one for the maintenance of wages in Severen and one for an increase in wages in Turnhout, involving seventy-nine men, which is a large number for Belgium. To illustrate the strike conditions here: We pay twenty-five cents (American money) a week dues and pay a strike and lockout benefit of $3 per week, and with these dues the income is not sufficient to meet the expenses of strikes and lockouts. Happily for us, however, we have a great many of our countrymen working in Boston, who are giving us assistance and we wish to take this means of expressing our greatest gratitude to them for such assistance.

We fully understand that Union 97, Boston, proposed the amendment because they are better acquainted with the conditions of labor as they exist in Europe in our craft, and we regret extremely that the amendment was not carried.

In Germany at the present time there are seven strikes in our trade, the principal one of which is in Hamburg, where 700 men are on strike on account of the apprentice system and for a better regulation of wages for female laborers. This, we judge, will become a very serious strike if the employers refuse their demands, as there are a very large number employed at our trade in that city.

If the increase in duty on tobacco is voted by Parliament in Germany, there will be 20,000 tobacco workers thrown out of work. Notice has been given to me that the English government increased the duties on tobacco and a great many cigar makers will lose employment on this account.

Henry Jugters.

Richmond, Va., July 12, 1909.

Union 133, Richmond, Va., now has the exclusive right and control of the sale of cigars, tobaccos and cigarettes in Idlewood Park in our city. It is true, I am sorry to say, that it is not a success from a monetary standpoint, but we handle nothing but strictly blue label goods on the grounds, and we believe that we can safely say that there is not another pleasure ground in the United States where all cigars, tobaccos and cigarettes sold therein bear the union label.

M. F. Fisher.

Springfield, Mass., July 13, 1909.

Being very much impressed by your article on the Philippine Tariff Bill, I wish to call your attention to a phase of the question, which so far as I have seen, has been entirely overlooked. Namely: health. And if it becomes a law, which seems to be a foregone conclusion at the present time, the trade has offered itself as a sacrifice.

I would like to have the following published in our Journal, hoping it may be of some use to our locals in fighting these goods.

I served two years in the Philippines in the army, mostly around Manila, and out of curiosity I visited a number of shops there. Now every soldier knows the uncleanness of the average Filipino, and if you ask him he will tell you that many a poor fellow came home in a box by too close association with them as they are poison to the white man. They are all afflicted with a skin disease and a large majority of them are covered with open sores and scars. Leprosy, beri-beri, cholera, bubonic plague and other infectious diseases, are as everyone knows, prevalent there. They sit half-naked and work and scratch, while the air is rank with the smell of decayed fish and rank coconut oil, which the women use on their hair. Now imagine one of these natives, whose teeth have rotted black by the constant chewing of the betel-nut, biting out heads, which I took particular notice to see if they did, and using their spittle to help paste the heads on their work, and you can form some idea of what the American smoker will get when the trust dumps these far-famed Manila cigars on the market. The United States government spends thousands of dollars to quarantine against the Asiatic diseases, and when one leaves the islands for this country, himself and effects are thoroughly disinfected and in the face of all this our law makers propose to put their seal of approval on this bill which will put into the mouths of thousands of our citizens, a most prolific means of contagion, and if as I firmly believe, it will be the means of infecting those filthy Asiatic diseases into the blood of the American people, the present administration can thank itself for it. I believe that even the trust smoker, if he has these things brought forcibly upon him, will think twice before purchasing these goods.

I also think that we should use more up-to-date means of advertising our label. If it is good economic business methods for our locals to form state label leagues for the purchasing of label advertising matter, why in the name of common sense don't we have an international league or bureau, which would have many times the purchasing power of state leagues?

I was also very much pleased with Mr. Taylor's article, and with him deplore these mud-slinging articles that are appearing in the Journal, and if these gentlemen could see the look of disgust on the faces of their fellow members when they receive their Journal every month, they would choke off. If they want to scrap, let them fight it out by mail among themselves, and not bore others by their hot air. Our paper is read little enough, more is the pity, so give us something that is interesting and good for our trade.

Hoping that this does not use up too much of your space, I am

REPORT OF ORGANIZERS.

Camden, N. J., Aug. 5, 1909.

Trenton, N. J., a city of nearly one hundred thousand population, is capable of supporting many more cigarmakers on union jobs than we find there at the present time. Union 428 with its handful of members has not been as active in label agitation as they all admit they might have been.

The heavily advertised brands from the big non-union factories in eastern Pennsylvania find a ready market here, and a trust store on a prominent street corner does a thriving business with its cut rate prices and coupons.

I visited every union that held a meeting during my stay in the city and have the assurance of our fellow-unionists that will give more attention to promoting the sale of union made cigars than they have in the past. The bartenders particularly, who have a strong local union, passed a resolution as a result of my talk to them, pledging that henceforward they will do everything in their power behind the bar and elsewhere, to advance the sale of cigars bearing our label. In canvassing the city I found a tendency on the part of the saloon and hotelkeepers to beat down the price on union label cigars. I urged a change in this attitude, and at a meeting of the union it was decided to begin an active campaign of label agitation, the first step in which will be a circular letter to every retailer of cigars in the city. This to be followed by committees and personal solicitation. If the plans now laid are faithfully carried out I am sure Trenton will soon be a more desirable place for cigarmakers to live in. Brother T. H. Thompson, treasurer of Union 428, accompanied me in my canvass, and through his kindness and many courtesies my work was greatly expedited.

New Brunswick has a hustling little union and blue label cigars are in evidence all over the city. The members of the retail liquor dealers' association are giving our label a square deal and the members of Union 146 are steadily employed. A small non-union factory recently opened here, and are trying to get a hold for trade, but with the strong agitation continuously carried on for union label goods, it is not likely that they will make much progress.

In company with committee from our local union, I canvassed the city and attended meeting of the Central Labor Union.

Rahway, N. J., presents a unique situation. There are five small shops, and hotels and saloons are handling union label cigars, but buy many of them outside the city, because the local manufacturers are disinclined to extend their present output. Owing to this unusual state of affairs the members of Union 427 are disinclined to spend any money for label agitation. While in the city I attended an executive board meeting of the union, and addressed them briefly.

Newark is the largest city in the state of New Jersey, and Union 138 is by far the strongest and most influential body of cigarmakers in the state. Other crafts in the city are well organized, and aside from the Hatmakers, who are idle on account of the strike, labor conditions are fair in Newark.

There are fourteen hundred licensed saloons in the city, and the retail liquor dealers have a strong organization, whose members are giving cigars bearing our label the preference over all others and only carry such non-union brands as are persistently call for by a certain class of customers.

Secretary and Business Agent Henry F. Hilfers is on the job early and late. The moment his daily duties in the office are completed he is on the street doing a hustle for the label, and the satisfactory conditions in Newark are unquestionably due in a large measure to the intelligent manner in which he handles the business end of the organization.

I attended meetings of Union 138 and the Essex Trades Council, and called their attention to the fight the trust is making to control the cigar industry and assured them that the Cigarmakers' International Union never has and never will surrender to the trust or any other combination of employers aiming at the destruction of individual liberty or the pauperization of American labor; but can be relied upon to continue its work of agitation, organization and education until such time as equal and exact justice and a living wage gauged by the higher standards of advancing civilization shall be permanently established for the humblest among us.

Elizabeth, a city of 60,000 population, has only a few cigarmakers, and is under the jurisdiction of Union 138. Union label cigars are not enjoying as large a patronage in this city as they should, but it is gratifying to note that output of label cigars is on the increase in the city, and with the constant hammering the dealers are subjected to the outlook is encouraging.

I accompanied Secretary Hilfers on several agitation trips in Newark and Elizabeth and found no unfriendliness among the parties visited.

Orange is somewhat in the dumps at present owing to the hatters' strike. Yet withal the members of Union 117 are pretty steadily employed, and in canvassing the city found union made cigars in evidence everywhere. I attended a meeting of our union there and encouraged the boys to redouble their efforts in behalf of the label.

Paterson, N. J., is one of the cities where labor has a home. Its headquarters is located in a splendidly arranged building in a magnificent residential neighborhood, and is the property of organized labor, and by a decree of the Court of Chancery, I am told, it cannot be sold, and must remain in perpetuity the property of organized labor.

I attended the meeting of the Central Labor Union and addressed them on the usual lines. The central body is quite active in label agitation and have adopted the button plan of agitation which makes each wearer of a button, and they have distributed thousands of them, a label agitator.

Our members are working steady, now and then a few jobs are open.

Jersey City and Hoboken are not in as good shape as some of the cities above referred to, but their environment is altogether different and that perhaps accounts for many of the unfavorable conditions that a canvass of the cities reveals.

In some of the trust factories in these New Jersey cities the system of making cigars is being gradually changed. A certain number of girls are transferred from the suction tables and taught to roll bunches by hand. As soon as one lot acquire the art of rolling by hand another batch is similarly transferred. Thus in time they will develop into genuine bunch-makers and rollers, and perhaps after learning the increased value this additional knowledge gives to their labor they may be willing to listen to a proposition to organize. For the immediate present, however, it seems impossible to reach them.

Columbus, Ohio, July 31, 1909.

Dayton, Ohio—Wet. This is the home of Mr. Kirby, president of the Manufacturers' Association, and from what I could see he has the union men buffaloed. The cigar industry is rotten, union men only working 223 days a year. Could not see secretary; was up to his office, but he had been there at 6:30 in the morning.

Springfield, Ohio—Dry. When I visited the town every man was at work, but a change has taken place so that the boys are up against it. There is a live bunch and if there is any way to make things good the boys will be there.

Piquia, Ohio—Dry. Found all at work. A new shop with eight men looked good. Had a meeting with local. Voted to have me visit merchants and jurisdiction towns with good results. Organized the shop of S. E. Schurr at Sidney, Ohio.

Wapakoneta, Ohio—Wet. Conditions awful bad for the union, as there is a branch of the San Felice shop there; also a shop called the Green Tax Buckeys, are open shops. Got three new members during my stay. Called on saloon men and asked them to ask for label goods, with a promise from them all.

Lima, Ohio—Wet. The home of San Felice, with two big shops and a claim of 1,600 at work. The shops are open to union men. There are a number of suspended members owing International and private loans. I put a week in the town visiting saloons in interest of label, but it is a very bad town; in March of this year the firms were fined ($950) nine hundred and fifty dollars for 28 cases of child labor.

Findlay, Ohio, dry, and well it can be said over 50 empty store buildings and people moving out of town. Only 7 men working. Could do nothing to help the boys. Oil is played out.

Kenton, Ohio, dry, and when I say that, that is all. Only one small Buckeye, a fine-looking little town. Lots of empty store rooms. No business.

Urbana, Ohio, dry, and it certainly has put the cigar business to the bad. Visited all the shops, but the boys are not working steady. There are three good union retail stores and the merchants seem to want to push home goods.

Columbus, Ohio, wet. I visited merchants and saloons. I have been in this town for twelve days and have been busy all the time. This is a stogy town union. Men, merchants and a lot more smoke them. I visited all labor organizations and central body; had a committee appointed to visit Liberal Legion and demand of them to handle union made cigars. I also visited them. Over 450 saloons here. The boys have been too busy with personal matters, but think that every one will feel better now.

Thomas Dermody.

Chatham, Ont., Aug. 3, 1909.

The Niagara peninsula on account of its situation as a great highway of travel is an excellent market for cigars.

Union 140, St. Catharines, has jurisdiction over all of this large district, and it is a matter for self-congratulation to them that the demand for the blue label is steadily increasing. Union made goods are well displayed, and with the assistance of the newly constituted Canadian Label League it will soon be a more difficult matter than it is at present to sell a non-union cigar.

In company with Mr. Leo. T. Coyle, secretary of Union 140, and vice-president of the Canadian Label League, I visited Niagara Falls, Ont., inspected the locality for space for label advertising, and recommended to the C. L. L. a space directly opposite the entrance to the steel arch bridge, the center of traffic to and from the Canadian side.

Trade is reported good here, with local goods in demand. Distributed some advertising placards here.

I also visited and distributed advertising matter in Welland and Humbustone, in this jurisdiction. In Welland there is a fair display of label goods, but a poor demand is reported, which may be accounted for in part by the large number of unorganized foreigners working and living in this locality. Humbustone, where we have two small factories, reports good trade and increasing demand for the label.

During my stay at St. Catharines I attended and addressed meetings of the Central Labor Council—tailors, barbers, bricklayers, plumbers, molders, and our own union.

Dunnville, Ont., has the distinction of possessing the only non-union shop in the district, a buckeye, employing two hands. Had an interview with the proprietor, who, although his trade is evidently on the down grade, informed me that he was not yet ready to unionize his factory. After leaving him I thoroughly advertised the town, placing placards in cigar stores and pool rooms, and presenting every man I met with on the streets with a sticking plaster advertisement of the label. I hope that this treatment will do the aforesaid proprietor some good.

From here I visited Cayuga, a country town; found a fair display of label goods, but no demand; distributed advertising matter. In Simcoe there is but one cigar factory employing four members. Trade is reported to be picking up in this locality. There is a good showing of label goods, with poor demand. Advertising would greatly help here in creating a better demand for union goods. Distributed some advertising and made arrangements for further supply of same.

In Paris, Ont., there are some large woolen mills, of which nearly all of the operatives are of the female persuasion. The union label is a surprise to the inhabitants. I handed a sample advertisement to every man I met. There were not many. Some union goods on show, but little demand for same.

Trade is slow in Woodstock, only three working at time of my visit. The other factory closed down some time ago. This place used to be fairly well organized, and had a central labor council, but they have all disappeared, and with them most of the demand for union label goods. Distributed advertising placards here and in Ingersoll, which does not now boast of a cigar factory among its other industries.

Trade is only fair in London, Ont., but the label committee of 278 is fully alive to the necessity of advertising the label to achieve the best results. They are advertising by means of large signboards, 10 feet by 8 feet placed, some in the city, others along the traction railway running from London to St. Thomas and Port Stanley and in other places. Another method is in excursions run by the label committee whereon label advertisement in the shape of fans, mirrors, program and other souvenirs are distributed among the passengers and the people at stations along the route. Such activity in label advertising cannot fail to be productive of good results. And results are in evidence, for it is not so many years ago that the label was a scarce article in London. Now it looks you in the eye everywhere from the show cases and from behind the bar in the hotels. From the trade union point of view, and particularly where our own trade is concerned, we are making good progress in London. The factories here that are doing the business are the ones employing union labor. One firm are about building a factory, an up-to-date one, so as to enable them to enlarge their production. Wise, conservative action as the policy of the Local Union in dealing with the situation in London will undoubtedly result in great advances in the improvement of the conditions affecting the members of our craft and union there. This being the fifth week in the month, there were no meetings during my stay.

I could not find any improvement in the conditions as affecting our craft in St. Thomas. At the best it is at a standstill. There is little demand for the label, and seemingly no work done by our people to assist in creating a demand. There are some railroad organizations here, but they do not act as if they were in sympathy with the union label idea. Their attitude might change if they were appealed to oftener. Distributed some advertising matter here and at Port Stanley. Advised our people here to hold more meetings and get busy if they want results. Also advised them to join the Canadian Label League, so as to get advertising supplies. Trade is reported dull here. The advertising matter used by me this trip was donated by the label committee of Union 27, Toronto.

Yours fraternally,
W. V. Todd, Organizer.

CHICAGO, AUGUST 15, 1909.

Reviewing the Philippine tariff legislation, as affecting the cigar industry, by the special session of Congress, the cowardice and perfidy displayed by some of our representatives is both humiliating and disgusting. A number of representatives, both in the lower house of Congress and the Senate endeavored to shift the responsibility upon President Taft, knowing full well the legislation to be of pernicious nature. It was continuously charged the bill was his pet measure, which he was determined to pass regardless of the interests opposed to it. Events have verified the charge.

Rumors have been circulated in Washington, prior to the last election, by the sugar beet and tobacco interests, and maps displayed, showing the investments of the wealthy alleged friends of the president in railroads and in lands adapted to the cultivation of beet sugar and tobacco. The extremely cheap labor of the Islands is another source of profitable investment.

The house bill, as submitted to the Senate, contained the free importation of a quantity of wrapper and filler tobacco and one hundred and fifty million cigars. Due to the efforts of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, and a few others, it was reduced to seventy-five million cigars. When both houses of Congress disagree on any sections of a tariff bill, the usual course is to submit it to a conference committee. These meetings are held in secret; the discussions are not published. Sections are stricken out and others are substituted; quantities are reduced and increased and the juggling of figures and valuations are not uncommon. Thus the most important legislation is the outcome of a "star chamber" performance.

The following is the text of the amended bill:

"That there shall be levied, collected and paid upon all articles coming into the United States from the Philippine Islands, the rates of duty which are required to be levied, collected and paid upon like articles imported from foreign countries; provided that, except as otherwise hereinafter provided, all articles, the growth or product of the Philippine Islands or of the United States, or of both, of which do not contain foreign materials to the value of more than twenty per centum of their total value, upon which no drawback of custom duties has been allowed therein, coming into the United States from the Philippine Islands shall hereafter be admitted free of duty, except wrapper tobacco and filler tobacco when mixed or packed with more than fifteen per centum of wrapper tobacco in excess of three hundred thousand pounds, filler tobacco in excess of one million pounds, and cigars in excess of one hundred and fifty million cigars, which quantities shall be ascertained by the Secretary of the Treasury under such rules and regulations as he shall prescribe."

The last annual report of the Philippine commission shows that in 1908, the production of cigars in the Islands amounted to 198,754,787, of which were exported 117,564,000 at an average price of $9.31 per 1,000. The price per thousand cigars sold for ten years averaged $8.78; for 1907, $9.01; for 1908, $9.31.

Adding to the above the internal revenue tax of $3 per 1,000, these cigars can be sold in the United States for $15 per 1,000, giving the dealer a handsome margin of profit.

The champions of "industrial unionism" have proclaimed a new slogan: "A free field for labor." The significance of this phrase is clouded; it is hard to penetrate into the mysteries by which it is surrounded. It places "industrial unionism" in a new light; it means the privilege of taking the job of another man in any trade, be he on strike or not.

The Western Federation of Miners clamors for a free field in the breweries in Montana; for equal rights with the members of the United Brewery Workers, and for an interchange of working cards. We quote from the Brewery Workers' Official Journal: "In the convention just held by the Western Federation of Miners, our request that they withdraw their members serving as 'strike breakers' in Butte, from the breweries, was not granted. The same is the case with the scabs employed in Great Falls and Anaconda, Mont. Brother Proebstle also reports in a telegram that he was not able to reach a satisfactory settlement in Great Falls, after holding several conferences, and recommends that strike benefits be sent direct to Brother Herbst at Great Falls."

Henceforth the battle-cry of the "industrial unionists" will be "a free field for labor" in the copper mines, in the gold mines, in the silver mines, in the zinc mines and in the coal mines, and, last but not least, in the breweries. The development of "industrial unionism" appears not to have any boundary lines; in its grandeur and magnitude it approximates the landscape known in Nevada as the "funeral range."

The Supreme Courts of the States of Montana and California differ materially with the decision rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States, and with the assertions made by President Taft in his inaugural address relative to the "Secondary Boycott." The latest decision has been rendered by the Supreme Court of California. In defining the legality of the boycott, the court says:

"After striking, the employe may engage in a boycott, as that word is here employed. As here employed it means not only the right to the concerted withdrawal of social and business intercourse, but the right by all legitimate means—of fair publication, and fair oral or written persuasion, to induce others interested in or sympathetic with their cause, to withdraw their social intercourse and business patronage from the employer. They may go even further than this, and request of another that he withdraw his patronage from the employer, and may use the moral intimidation and coercion of threatening a like boycott against him if he refuse so to do. This last proposition necessarily involves the bringing into a labor dispute between A and B, C who has no difference with either. It contemplates that C, upon the request of B, and under the moral intimidation lest B boycott him, may thus be constrained to withdraw his patronage from A, with whom he has no controversy. This is the 'secondary boycott,' the legality of which is vigorously denied by the English courts, the Federal courts and by the courts of many of the States of this Nation."

In defining the legality of the "secondary boycott," the Supreme Court sees no distinction. The court says:

"In this respect this court recognizes no substantial distinction between the so-called primary and secondary boycott. Each rests upon the right of the union to withdraw its patronage from its employer and to induce by fair means any and all other persons to do the same, and in exercise of those means, as the unions would have the unquestioned right to withhold their patronage from a third person who continued to deal with their employer, so they have the unquestioned right to notify such third person that they will withdraw their patronage if he continues so to deal."

The decisions rendered by the Supreme Courts of Montana and California are a step in the right direction. They grant organizations the same legal rights as enjoyed by a single member. They will be cited as authorities in boycott cases in other States.

In a recent discussion an inquisitive gentleman asked us who invented the term "closed shop," and much to his surprise, we informed him that, in so far as we know, it was first used by the Cigarmakers' International Union.

The term "closed shop," is generally misused and misunderstood. As originally used by union cigarmakers and still understood, it applied to a shop closed against union men.

When a shop is declared unfair for insubstantial or other reasons, application is made to the international executive board to have the shop closed and if approved by the board the shop is officially closed to all union men.

The Parry, Post, Van Cleave, Kirby bunch of would-be union disrupters have misapplied the term and used it to discredit the labor movement by trying to make it appear to non-unionists and the general public that we close shops against non-unionists.

A strictly union shop, but miscalled closed shop, is a factory, mill or other place where only members of the union work, but in which the employer has a right without question to hire and discharge anybody, including non-unionists. All we ask or expect is that in shops where the union has secured through its efforts fair conditions, such as good wages and short hours of labor, that all shall be members of the union and equally share the burdens and responsibility of maintaining the union and fair conditions, as well as sharing in its benefits.

No fairly inclined man or woman with a normal mind and unselfish heart can object to this plan. Don't parrotlike, repeat like Van Cleave and Kirby "closed shop" when you really mean a union shop. Say "union shop" and not "closed shop."

The fiscal year of the Internal Revenue Department ended on June 30, 1909. This enables us to make comparisons with the total production of cigars and cheroots, for which taxes were paid, with the corresponding fiscal year ended June 30, 1908. While there are gains in some districts, there are losses in others, showing a decrease of production of over two per cent.

TRADE STATISTICS.

The increase in Porto Rico is phenomenal, having almost doubled in one single year; it shows an average increase of eighty per cent.

The total production of the United States and Porto Rico for the fiscal year ended June, 1908, and 1909, was as follows:

1908	6,154,772,559
1909	6,031,446,717
Decrease	123,325,842

For further comparison we publish the reports from the Revenue Districts, as far as obtainable; a few are missing.

The decrease in production is marked by a star *.

It is hard to estimate in advance, which districts are going to be the losers, by the importation of one hundred and fifty million cigars, free of duty, from the Philippine Islands.

Numerous cigarmakers, with no experience in manufacturing, hope and expect one of these days to become

THE "BUCKEYE." They save a few hundred dollars, sometimes less than fifty dollars, and start in business. The failures are many, and the successful ones in every hundred failures can be counted on the fingers. There is a vast difference between running a "Buckeye" and a regular cigar factory employing twenty or more cigar makers. The "Buckeye" boss is constantly watching the few cigar makers he employs; he is near them when stripping and packing, and works with them at the bench. He quickly detects any shortcomings or shirking, and at the first opportunity the undesirable workman gets his walking papers.

The "Buckeye" boss is always on the lookout to make both ends meet. Rent becomes due, wages have to be paid, tobacco, boxes and revenue stamps have to be purchased, and other items of expenses cannot be avoided. With a few exceptions, he is, so to speak, in hot water all the time.

He is handicapped in the purchase of tobacco; he can only purchase small quantities at a time, and is compelled to pay a higher price than the larger manufacturer. In the selection and blending of tobaccos he is handicapped; he may be a good mechanic, but not necessarily a good business man. The "Buckeye" usually caters to the trade, which is the poorest to handle and where the cost of selling (which includes loss of time and cash expenses) is the highest. His average annual income is lower and his hours of labor much longer and harder than that of the journeyman in the factory. He is a hard-working man, working under no standard bill of prices, because he does not include in the cost of selling, every item of labor performed and time lost in the purchase of raw material, and in making and selling the product. He gives the extra labor for nothing, and is satisfied with what he terms "fair wages."

The policy should be to encourage and maintain as many fair union employers as possible, thus giving our members an opportunity to work as journeymen under fair conditions if they so desire.

The relentless warfare waged against labor organizations by the big interests backed by the Manufacturers' Association has not abated in the slightest. The big hatters' and sailors' strikes were soon followed by the attack upon the workers in the iron and steel industry by the United States steel trust and the fight goes merrily on. The hostile attitude of certain employers, coupled with the still unsettled and lax condition of trade and consequent scarcity of employment make it imperatively necessary for all unions and all members to carefully avoid any unnecessary friction. Cool headed leadership and a little patience, coupled with good judgment will prevent hasty strikes and the possible loss of union shops.

Frank K. Foster, who recently died in Boston was a unique, promising and prominent character in the trade union movement. Possessed of unusual and extraordinary ability he devoted his entire life to the trade union movement in which he had abiding faith. There is no question as to F. K. Foster's ability which, if applied in other directions would have brought him fame and riches. Under the circumstances his devotion and lifelong adherence to the labor movement deserves commendation and more than passing notice.

The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, which recently dedicated its new building at Indianapolis, Ind., is the first international union, we believe to erect a headquarters devoted exclusively to headquarters for labor organizations. Delegates from many carpenters' unions were present and several representatives of other organizations were present at the dedication, which was followed by a banquet in the evening. We congratulate the carpenters on their enterprise in this particular and general all-round success.

LOST CARDS

Section 11. Any member losing or destroying his loan book shall not be entitled to receive any benefits or a duplicate loan book before the expiration of two months, and financial secretaries of local unions must notify the International President of such loss or destruction immediately, the same to be published in the official Journal by the International President. The International President shall be the only person to issue a duplicate.

Members having lost their traveling cards take notice:

No duplicate card will be issued for lost card unless the full name of members, the card number, the date of initiation and the union where the card was last deposited are given. Members who lose cards are not entitled to benefits until they secure duplicates. No duplicate cards are issued except upon application through some secretary, when the time limit of two months has expired.

Month after month unscrupulous men impose upon secretaries and members under the plea of lost cards. The constitution provides a punishment for lost cards. Its purpose is to stop the carelessness and the traffic made with full cards by permitting them to be held as security.

Don't issue letters to any member claiming lost card unless you know his actual standing.

Secretaries have no right to issue certificates in place of lost cards. Members who secure employment should be entered as admitted to the union.

Secretaries should be careful and enter all loans granted and repaid and all balances carried from one card to another in letters and figures. The issue of duplicates will be delayed in all cases where information is not complete.

Secretaries should examine due books where claim of lost card is made. Report full name, number, date and place of initiation and when and where card was last deposited.

Private loans will be entered on duplicates issued upon request of unions.

Enter all loans granted in figures and letters.

Secretaries will please notify this office as to whether any private loans are due on cards reported lost, otherwise they are issued with only the International loan account. This does not release members from their just obligations to the unions. The absence of the private loans, however, quite often cause members to overlook these loans and suspensions follow.

Union 299, Middletown, Conn., requests that any member owing private loan will please settle up and give some of the other members that are out of work a chance for a private loan. Our local fund is nearly exhausted and it will be your fault if the private loan of this union is abolished. It is a well-known fact that some of the members who owe private loans to this local are working steady and if not heard from, all names will be published in the next issue of the Journal.

Union 5, Rochester, N. Y., writes, "Members owing Union 5, Rochester, private loans will please pay or other members cannot be accommodated."

The appeal of Union 39, New Haven, to members delinquent on private loans has met with little response. We are, therefore, compelled to publish the names of all members owing prior to Jan. 1, 1909, beginning with the September issue of the Official Journal. 129, Denver, Colo.: While we have received a few responses from members owing this union private loans, there are quite a number that have owed this union for months, and even years, that do not seem to remember the favor, and will not go to the trouble to drop us a card, offering any kind of an excuse for not paying their loans back. Ingratitude seems to be this union's reward in about 75 per cent of the cases where loans have been granted to help members out of financial troubles. The time is fast approaching when it is going to be hard for any one to get a private loan from this or any other union. Pay up or give some kind of an excuse for not doing so. We won't question the excuse too closely, but we would rather have the money.

This union granted several hundred dollars in private loans to members to leave the city last March and April, and some of them are known to be working steady, but very few of them have sent in any money.

If we do not hear from them this month their names will be published in next month's Journal. Then if we do not hear from them the Constitution will be enforced. We mean business.

Will secretaries holding cards of the following members please collect private loans and remit to Union 436, New Westminster, B. C.: Geo. Sehn (65893), $2; C. O. Foster (113633), $2; H. UNION NOTES BY NO. 97.

San Felice and all trust brands are unfair. Have donated $1,650 to hatters.

Gave $10 for free home for consumptives. It has been recommended that all local unions give from ten to fifteen minutes each meeting to the discussion of labels. If each of the trade journals would advocate this it would go a good ways towards organizing the worker.

Child labor must go.

No one believes that the present system of society will last forever, but it will last a long time yet.

Why do we want an eight hour day? What will it do for the wage earner?

Our label committee has visited every dealer in cigars in our jurisdiction.

Beware of refilling.

Look out for counterfeit labels.

Union men who buy trust cigarettes are making a rod for their own back.

Congress has adjourned; let us give thanks.

If the wage earner would spend his wage for union products we would soon see the dawn of a new era.

The trust doesn't sell its smoking and chewing tobacco or nickel cigars to the millionaire.

One of the proprietors of an academy is looking for a job, another will go out of business, and a third is on his last legs.

Executive board and label committee work like clock work. Both are tireless.

Every apprentice in the city registered.

Add an old age pension to our chain of benefits. The pattern makers, the granite cutters, and the typists have it. Who will be next?

Engineers pay 50 cents a week dues.

When trades unionists pay one dollar a week into their organization then we will be in sight of the goal, though it requires more than a due stamp to make a trade unionist.

We ought to have a convention, now that the panic is over.

We want better food, better clothes, and better homes, and we don't want to pay one-fourth of our wage for rent.

Why not organize the apprentices?

What does the label stand for?

Nový celní zákon, jež se dotýká doutníkářské výroby tím, že sem možno importovat ročně stopadesát milionů doutníků z Filipinských ostrovů beze cla, zní následovně: Aby uloženo a vybráno bylo clo na všechny předměty, které přijdou do Spoj. Států z Filipinských Ostrovů, tak jako se vybírá na podobné předměty z cizích zemí, s podmínkou, že, vyjma jak později uvedeno, veškeré předměty vypěstované neb vyrobené na Filipinských ostrovech z látek vypěstovaných neb vyrobených na Filipinských ostrovech neb Spojených Státech neb v obou zemích, neb jež neobsahují cizí látky v obnosu více jak dvacet procent jich celé hodnoty, na nichž žádné clo nebylo sleveno, jež přijdou do Spojených Států z Filipinských Ostrovů, mají být nadále připuštěny beze cla, vyjma obalového a filler tabáku, když jest smíchán neb zabalen s více než patnácti procenty obalového tabáku v obnosu přes tři sta tisíc liber, filler tabáku v obnosu přes jeden milion liber a doutníků v obnosu přes jedno sto a padesát milionů kusů, kteréžto množství budiž zjištěno tajemníkem pokladny pod takovými pravidly jaké on ustanoví.

Von den reichsdeutschen Tabakarbeitern und Arbeiterinnen.

Während in Oesterreich die Tabakfabrikation ein Monopol des Staates ist und niemand außer diesem die Verarbeitung des Tabaks vornehmen darf, ist sie in Deutschland eine Industrie wie alle anderen, die von großen und kleinen Fabrikanten betrieben wird. Zu einem großen Teil werden die Fabrikate durch Heimarbeiter erzeugt, die teilweise sehr schlecht bezahlt werden. Doch finden wir auch 15 große zentralisierte Fabriken, denen sich noch eine große Zahl kleinerer anfügt.

1895 zählte man in Deutschland 153,080 Tabakarbeiter, also fünfmal so viel als in Oesterreich. In der Heimarbeit finden wir auch die Beschäftigung der Kinder und namentlich alter und krüppelhafter Leute. So wurden in einer Werkstätte unter vier Arbeitern drei beschäftigt, die Holzfische hatten.

Wie die Art der Fabrikation sehr verschieden ist, so sind auch die Löhne außerordentlich verschieden. Es wurden im Jahre 1878 durchschnittlich Mk. 18.75 (Fr. 22.50) wöchentlich verdient. Doch schwankten die Löhne zwischen 14 und 40 Mk. (Fr. 16.80 und 48.—) per 1000 Stüd. Da in Deutschland nur wenig Tabak gebaut wird, muß der größte Teil des Rohmaterials eingeführt werden und 1879 wurde der Tabakzoll um ein bedeutendes erhöht. Die Fabrikanten wälzten nun natürlich diese Zollerhöhungen auf den Rücken der Arbeiterschaft und brühten die Löhne. Um dies leichter thun zu können, verlegten sie die Fabriken und Werkstätten aus dem nördlichen Deutschland, Schleswig-Holstein, Hannover, Bremen, Hamburg, Mecklenburg und Oldenburg nach Westfalen und Baden, wo sie bedeutend niedrigere Löhne zahlten. Während aber die Zollerhöhung bei 1000 Stüd Zigarren nur Mk. 4.88 betrug, betrug die Lohnreduzierung 5 bis 12 Mk. Abwehrkreiß waren nicht möglich, da das Sozialistengezetz jede freie Bewegung unter der Tabakarbeiterschaft unterbrückt hatte. Die Durchschnittslöhne sind deshalb noch immer niedriger als die der anderen Arbeiter Deutschlands, doch schwankt das Einkommen je nach den Sorten, die die Arbeiter erzeugen. Durchschnittlich verdienen die Tabakarbeiter und Arbeiterinnen 2 Mk. täglich (Fr. 2.40), der durchschnittliche Jahresverdienst betrug 1907 681 Mk. (720 Fr.), in Oesterreich betrug er nur 615 Fr. Die Löhne sind in Deutschland also immer noch um ein bedeutendes höher als in Oesterreich und die Generaldiktation darf auf ihre Lohnziffern nicht stolz sein.

Die Bestrebungen der Arbeiterschaft um eine Verbesserung ihrer Lage wird durch die Zersplitterung der Betriebe und durch die große Zahl der Heimarbeiter sehr erschwert. Raum aber beginnen die Arbeiter diese Schwierigkeiten zu überwinden, plant die Regierung schon wieder einen neuen Streich. (Der Tabak-Arbeiter, Wien.)

Die folgenden Zusätze zur Konstitution, werden, da sie die erforderliche Zahl von Zustimmung erhalten haben, einer Massenabstimmung der Mitglieder unterbreitet werden.

Von der Union 97, Boston, Mass.:

(A) Ein aus dem Auslande kommender Zigarrenmacher oder Pader, der wenigstens drei Jahre ununterbrochen gutstehendes Mitglied einer nach Gewerkschaftsprinzipien organisierten Zigarrenmacher- oder Pader-Union gewesen sein muß, soll ohne Eintrittsgebühr aufgenommen werden. Daß Aufnahmegefeuch soll nicht später als vier Wochen nach Ankunft in der Gerichtsbarkeit dieser Organisation gestellt werden. Ausländische Reisefahrten, ausgeführt von Unions, die mit einer nationalen Organisation des Handwerkes verbunden sind, sollen von dem National-Sekretär der Organisation gegengezeichnet sein. Die Vorschriften sollen nur auf Unions Anwendung finden, welche Mitgliedsarten der C. M. I. U. of A. annehmen.

(B) Ein Zigarrenmacher oder Pader, der aus

unem Pläze im Auslande kommt, wo eine Handwerks-Union ohne Unionkarte besteht, oder der weniger als drei Jahre alte Unionkarte hat, soll von keiner örtlichen Union zur Mitgliedschaft zugelassen werden, bis genügender Beweis erbracht ist, daß eine dreijährige Lehrlingszeit an einer Wank in einer Union-Werksstätte durchgemacht worden ist.

(C) Ein Zigarrenmacher oder Bader, der aus einem Pläze im Auslande kommt, wo keine Handwerks-Union besteht, soll, bevor er zur Mitgliedschaft zugelassen wird, genügenden Beweis beibringen, daß er wenigstens drei Jahre an der Wank gearbeitet hat.

(D) Die Internationale Exekutiv-Behörde soll entscheiden, was eine nach Gewerkschafts-Prinzipien organisierte Handwerks-Union bildet.

Von Union 336, Tampa, Fla.

Abchnitt 177 abändern durch Einschaltung von, die Zinsen auf alles in der Wank deponierte Geld für örtliche Ausgaben hinter den Worten „20 Prozent“.

Der Abchnitt lautet in veränderter Form wie folgt:

Abchnitt 177. Keiner Union soll es erlaubt sein, in einem Fiskaljahre mehr auszugeben für Beamtengehälter, Komiteeausgaben, Hallenmiete, Versammlungs-Lokal, Ausstattung, Drucksachen, Schreibmaterial, Porto, Heizung und Licht, Beobachtung von Streikplätzen, Steuern an Gewerkschafts-Versammlungen, die von der American Federation of Labor anerkannt werden — doch soll hierin die Vertretung in und die Zahlung von Steuern an Gewerkschafts-Versammlungen, Delegaten zu denselben etc., in solchen Gegenden verhindern; wo kein Anschluß an die American Federation of Labor besteht (vorausgesetzt, daß solche Gewerkschafts-Versammlungen nicht berufsmäßige Politiker oder Leute, die nicht praktisch in ihrem Handwerke beschäftigt, noch Mitglieder einer echten Handwerker-Union sind, als Delegaten zulassen) — als den folgenden Prozentsatz ihrer Brutto-Einnahmen: Unions von dreißig oder weniger Mitgliedern, 30 Prozent; von dreißig bis fünfzig Mitgliedern, 25 Prozent; und die Zinsen auf alles in der Wank deponierte Geld für örtliche Ausgaben. Sollte die Union weniger als den hierin festgesetzten Prozentsatz für die vorgenannten Zwecke ausgeben, so soll sie das Recht haben, örtlich zur Förderung von Unionzwecken Ausgaben zu machen. Dies soll keineswegs so ausgelegt werden, daß örtliche Unions-Prozente von Geld ziehen können, die zur Ausgleichung oder als Streikunterstützung empfangen werden, noch soll dies dafür ausgelegt werden, daß örtliche Kopfsteuern oder örtliche Strafgebühren eingeschlossen sind.

Les amendements suivants à la constitution ayant reçu le nombre requis d'endorsements seront soumis au vote populaire des membres: Par l'Union 97, Boston, Mass.

(A) Un fabricant de cigares ou un emballleur, venant d'un pays étranger, qui aura été membre en bon ordre, pendant au moins trois années successives, d'une union de fabricants de cigares ou d'emballleurs, organisée d'après les principes du l'union des corps de métier, seront admis sans frais d'initiation. Demande d'admission devra être présentée pas plus de quatre semaines après l'arrivée dans la juridiction de cette organisation. Des cartes de voyage à l'étranger, émises par les unions affiliées avec une organisation locale du métier seront contresignées par le secrétaire national de l'organisation. Ces dispositions ont rapport seulement aux unions qui acceptent les cartes des membres de C. M. I. U. de A.

(B) Un fabricant de cigares ou emballleur venant d'un endroit dans un pays étranger où une union des corps de métier existe sans carte d'union de moins de trois ans ne sera pas admis membre par aucune union locale avant qu'il ait donné preuve satisfaisante d'un apprentissage à l'établissement de trois ans, fait dans une fabrique dans l'union.

(C) Un fabricant de cigares ou emballleur venant d'un pays étranger où il n'y pas une union des corps de métier donnera, avant d'être admis, une preuve satisfaisante qu'il a travaillé à l'établissement au moins trois ans.

(D) Le conseil exécutif international décidera ce qui constitue un corps de métier organisé d'après les principes de l'union des corps de métier.

Par l'union 336, Tampa, Fla.

Amendez le paragraphe 177 en y adjoutant après les mots „20 pour cent“ l'intérêt de tout argent déposé à la banque pour les dépenses locales.

Le paragraphes ainsi amendé lit comme suit:

Paragraphe 177. Il ne sera permis à aucune union de dépenser dans aucune année fiscale, pour les salaires des officiers, des dépenses de comités, loyer de salle, chambre de réunion, mobilier, imprimerie, papeterie, timbre, chauffage et éclairage, piquet pour les fabriques en grève, taxes aux assemblées des métiers reconnues par la Fédération Américaine du labeur; mais rien en ceci n'empêchera la représentation et le payement des taxes aux assemblées de métier dans telles localités où il n'existe pas une affiliation avec la Fédération Américaine du Labeur (pourvu, que ces assemblées n'admettant pas, comme délégués, des politiciens de profession, ou des hommes qui ne sont pas activement engagés dans leur métier, ou un membre d'une union de bonne foi des corps de métier), délégués au même, etc. plus que le pour cent suivant de ses recettes en gros: Les unions ayant trente membres et moins, 30 pour cent; de trente à cinquante membres, 25 pour cent; cinquante membres et au-dessus, 20 pour cent et l'intérêt sur tout argent placé en banque pour les dépenses locales. Si l'union dépense pour l'usage ci-dessus spécifié moins que le pour cent ici fixé, elle aura alors le privilège de dépenser le surplus pour: l'avancement local des affaires de l'union. Ceci ne sera d'aucune manière interprété comme permettant aux unions locales un pour cent sur l'argent reçu pour l'égalisation ou pour aide dans les grèves, ni el sera interprété d'une manière à comprendre les taxes locales ou les amendes locales.

Les besoin d'instruire les ouvriers de ce pays dans l'achat des marchandises marquées de l'étiquette de l'union est seulement second en importance au travail d'organiser, et la mesure de temps, d'énergie et de pensée, dépensée dans l'effort de mettre ce fait plus forcément dans l'esprit du public-acheteur est digne de la grande considération de tout membre du labeur organisé. Comme organisateur, l'étiquette de l'union fait beaucoup pour éliminer ces maus industriels—le travail de l'enfant, le propriétaire de l'atelier—etuve et l'emploi du focat—en enrôlant des milliers qui, par la nature de leur travail, ne sont pas enrôlés sous cette bannière, mais qui, par l'usage de l'étiquette et l'agitation faite en sa faveur, comprennent mieux les buts de l'union.

Dans la cour de district des Etats-Unis, le 22 Juin, Norman Thackarey, chef d'atelier du Arnold Print Works à North Adams, Mass., a été trouvé coupable d'avoir violé la loi du travail par contrat à l'étranger. Il fut condamné à une amende de $200. Il a été chargé qu'il avait engagé Clifford Galdard et Bernard Tugéell, deux Anglais, ouvriers de filature, à venir dans ce pays et travailler dans l'établissement où il est chef d'atelier.

Un extrait d'un rapport sur le gain du travail en Russie par le Gouvernement Russe a été fait par le bureau du travail. Il couvre l'année 1897 et démontre qu'il y avait alors 27,994 personnes dans le commerce de tabac dont la majorité, 17,374, étaient des femmes; 10,620 étaient hommes. Du grand total dans la fabrication du tabac, 1795 étaient des enfants au-dessous de 15 ans, dont 1170 étaient des filles et 625 garçons.

Les directeurs de la compagnie américaine des fabricants de cigares ont déclaré un dividende régulier de un pour cent sur les actions préférées de la compagnie, payable le 15 Juillet aux actionnaires sur le registre le 30 Juin.

Le Juge J. V. Boulard de la cour de la chancellerie de l'Etat de l'Arkansas en nommant, récemment, un percepteur pour la compagnie Hiaëatha Coal, Coaldale, Ark., commanda que le percepteur n'emploierait que des hommes de l'union dans la mine et pour la vente. Cet ordre est en harmonie avec une déclaration du Juge Boulard dans un banquet de la Fédération du Labeur de l'Etat de Arkansas, il y a quelques mois; qu'il n'accorderait jamais une injonction contre une union de labeur dans l'intérêt d'une corporation.

A Lima, une des villes de l'Ohio les plus acharnés contre les unions, Monsier J. M. Morgan, Inspecteur des Ateliers et Manufactures avec deux députés-femmes, déposa 43 affidavits contre Delsel Wemmer et William Tigner, fabricants de cigares, les chargeant d'infraction à la loi sur le travail de l'enfant. Les deux commerçants ont avoué leur faute, donnant pour excuse qu'ils avaient employé les enfants sur le supplication des parents plaçant l'indigence. Ils ont à payer une amende de $25. pour chacune des causes, ce qui compta à $1,075. Cela devra les restreindre pour quelque temps.

NOTICE.

Financial secretaries when granting loans should, as required by section 104, enter loans in figures and letters. It is not necessary to punch cards.

The amendment adopted to Sections 76 and 77 does away with the issuance of retiring cards to all who continue to pay dues as beneficiary members.

Retiring cards are only for those who pay up and actually terminate all connection with the union in so far as the payment of dues is concerned.

Members who transfer from the 30-cent list to the 20-cent beneficiary membership list are simply changed from one class to another and deducted from one and added to the other.

Members who have not paid 30-cent dues for three years and quitting the trade under Section 76 and wishing to qualify for Section 77 as a beneficiary member should be kept on without any other change than to make a note of the intention on the ledger page. If such member desires to travel to another jurisdiction he should be given a transfer card and his intention to qualify as a 20-cent beneficiary member written on the transfer card. Such beneficiary members are not entitled to any benefits except sick benefits after one year's membership and whatever death benefits their term of membership entitles them to.

NOTICE TO OFFICERS AND MEMBERS.

In printing the nineteenth edition of the Constitution, an omission occurs in Section 77, on line 7. A comma and the words "and local assessments"

should follow "International assessments." The sentence to read: "All International assessments, and local assessments levied for label agitation purposes." This amendment as published in another place is correct.

If you hold any loan cards of no further use send them to this office.

Before granting or accepting retiring cards secretaries and members should consult Sections 76 and 77 of the Constitution.

NOTICE.—How to duplicate Loan Cards.

It frequently occurs that new secretaries through error or lack of knowledge, transfer the amount a member "has coming" instead of what he owes. In duplicating a card, figure up all the member has borrowed and subtract all he has paid, and if there is a balance against the member transfer to new card in red ink in figures and letters the amount due the International Union. Also enter on new card all that may be essential that you find on the old, then sign and seal it. Send the old card to the International office.

MEMBERS OUT OF WORK ARE NOT ENTITLED TO THE SIXTEEN WEEKS' PRIVILEGE IN DUES UNLESS THEY NOTIFY THE SECRETARY WEEKLY BEFORE THE EIGHTH WEEK. THIS INCLUDES TRAVELING MEMBERS, WHO SHOULD ALWAYS CARRY A CERTIFICATE AND HAVE SAME SIGNED WEEKLY.

Items for the Journal should be placed on separate slips of paper—not the backs of reports, etc.—in order to insure prompt publication, and should reach this office not later than the 10th of each month if intended for current publication.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address, if possible, so as to obviate delays, mistakes, etc.

In reporting deaths, kindly comply with the following and you will save time and unnecessary work: Give full name, number, date and place of initiation of member. Has member held retiring card? If so, did he pay his dues? This information relates only to such as you can obtain from the records of your own union. If admitted by card, state when and where from, and in addition send in such card, but place on your letter the information necessary as the latter is filed as a matter of record. Before paying death benefits study Sections 145 and 151, inclusive. Send in a death blank properly filled out for all death benefits paid.

If secretaries when ordering supplies will place the order on the regular blank, it will greatly simplify the work here and avoid unnecessary delay for those who order the supplies. We receive an average of 300 pieces of mail in the office daily. Sometimes an order is sandwiched into a two or three-page letter containing three or more different subjects, and there is danger in such cases of an order being overlooked. Hence we ask that in order to save unnecessary delay and annoyance you order on the regular blank, giving your name and address.

DECISIONS OF EXECUTIVE BOARD

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1, 1909.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., of Edgar L. Mills of Union No. 440 of Tampa, Fla., against a decision rendered by the International president, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Gompers, Tracy, Gariepy, Conrad Weber, Roberts, Fitzgerald and Cronin.

The basis of the appeal was Union 440 suspended Mr. Mills for conduct unbecoming a union man, in paying below the bill of prices for cigar packing and for other acts. Mr. Mills claims that he was not guilty and that the union acted through prejudice. He appealed to the International president, who sustained the action of the union; he thereupon appealed to the Executive Board.

The International president bases his decision upon substantially the following grounds: That the member, manager of a cigar factory, had a hearing and a trial; that he refused as such manager to pay the scale to a certain member of the union; that Mr. Mills applied for his retiring card while under charges in the union; that he, while a member of the union, employed non-union cigar-makers; that the evidence seems to show the member guilty of the charges preferred by the union, whose action should be sustained.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International president is sustained.

Fraternally yours,

Samuel Gompers,
First Vice President.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1, 1909.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., of Union No. 295, of Scranton, Pa., against the decision rendered by the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Gompers, Tracy, Gariepy, Conrad Weber, Robert, Fitzgerald and Cronin.

The basis of the appeal was a certain cigar manufacturer quit manufacturing cigars in Scranton, became a jobber, having his cigars made in a union shop in Binghamton, N. Y. Union No. 295 of Scranton, insisted that the joint label board of Binghamton refuse labels to the manufacturer making these cigars, claiming that the bill of prices was lower in Binghamton than it was at Scranton. The Binghamton joint advisory board refused to stop the label, as this was a union manufacturer, who was complying with all the requirements of the union, and they claim he had the right to make cigars for any one who was a jobber and not on the unfair list. Union No. 295 appealed to the International President against the action of the joint advisory board of Binghamton. The International President sustained the action of the Binghamton advisory board. Union No. 295 thereupon appeals to the Executive Board.

The International President bases his decision upon substantially the following grounds: That there is no provision in the constitution which prohibits a manufacturer for reasons of his own from quitting the manufacture of cigars. Neither does it prohibit any manufacturer from becoming a jobber in cigars and having the right to purchase his stock from any union manufacturer in the country, regardless of where located; that Section 161 of the constitution prohibits a manufacturer operating two shops, using the union label unless both are strictly union. It also prohibits a manufacturer from operating a union shop in another locality at a lower scale of prices. That the facts in connection with this case submitted by both parties prove conclusively that the gentleman is a jobber in cigars and not a manufacturer, and is entitled to get his cigars from any union manufacturer, so long as the bill of prices of the locality is complied with.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International President is sustained.

Fraternally yours,
Samuel Gompers,
First Vice President.

DECISIONS OF PRESIDENT

W. Gunlock appealed against 60, Keokuk, for excusing a manufacturer member from attending meetings. The appeal was not sustained.

T. M. Carroll appealed against 97, Boston, for refusing to comply with the decision of the International President in reference to the payment of the local relief benefit. The union replied that it had complied with the decision as soon as it was rendered and published, and that it supposed that the decision was operative when rendered and published. The appeal was not sustained.

W. Gordon appealed against 97, Boston, for placing him on the 90 days list. Appellant shows that he was placed there by the negligence of the shop collector. The appeal was sustained.

D. E. Fisk appealed against 184, Bay City, for refusing his claim for sick benefit. The appeal was not sustained.

L. V. Salvage appealed against 331, Crookston, for refusing to allow him to serve as an apprentice. The union replied that he had a regular job as a United States Railway clerk and that he was attempting to learn the trade while regularly employed at another occupation. The appeal was not sustained.

A. Sears appealed against 414, Winnipeg, for refusing his claim for strike benefit. The union replied that he did not have his card with him. The appeal was not sustained.

Sam Bengelsdorf appealed against fine of $25, imposed by Union 14, Chicago, for working in a strike shop. The appeal cannot be recognized because of having failed to appeal within the limit.

Chas. Roche appealed against 298, Glen Falls, for fining him $5 for being suspended. Appellant shows that he was out of work for over six months and that he rejoined as soon as he secured work. The appeal was sustained.

L. R. Cohen appealed against 11, St. Albans, for fining him for not paying a board bill. Appellant shows that he made every effort possible to pay same and had paid more than half of it and that he would have paid it all were it not for sickness in his family. The appeal was sustained.

W. Shakespeare appealed against 165, Philadelphia, for removing him from the office of member of finance committee for alleged misconduct. He was said to have been intoxicated in and about the office. Appellant emphatically denies that he did anything to warrant the severe punishment imposed. The appeal was sustained.

J. Jeronimus appealed against 294, Duluth, for refusing his claim for sick benefit. The appeal was not sustained.

F. Wescott appealed against 228, San Francisco, for fining him $10 for alleged obtaining of a worthless warrant for a member, and compelling him to return $6.40, lost time and expenses. Appellant claims that he obtained the warrant in good faith on order of the union but that he was buncoed by a shyster lawyer. The appeal was sustained.

A. J. Avery, No. 86111, appealed against Union 280, Owego, for suspending him for failure to pay a local assessment and drawing illegal sick benefit. The evidence shows member was sick and out of work during collection of assessment and the sick benefit was overpaid by secretary and apparently not secured by false pretenses. The appeal is sustained.

The solicitude of the Taft Administration that the American public should get the genuine Malayan cigar product, that is Philippine cigars bearing the stamp of having been actually manufactured on the Islands, is really touching. Apprehending evidently that some American manufacturer might be tempted to palm off a domestic brand under a Spanish name and title as a Manila product, the Taft Administration has given notice that the Philippine cigars to be shipped to this country to enter a free market here, will have to have the Internal Revenue stamp affixed to their boxes before shipment and these revenue stamps for the Philippine cigar will bear the government imprint "P. I." (Philippine Islands) so as to acquaint the public in advance with the official insignia of the genuine Manila made cigar and as a warning against all designs at substitution and faking here. There seems to be no limit to the favoritism and privileges which the Taft Administration stands ready to extend to its Malayan idols at the expense and to the disparagement of the American cigar interests.—U. S. Tobacco Journal.

Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor, through a strong letter sent to the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, was at least helpful, if not chiefly instrumental, in forcing the government to investigate conditions prevailing in the barricaded works of the Pressed Steel Car Company during the recent strike.

CORRESPONDENCE

Albany, August, 1909.

We take this opportunity to call your attention to the fact that the firm of Vanslyke & Horton, who left this city about two years ago to operate a cigar factory in Kingston, N. Y., with women and girls, are now putting these goods upon the market under two firm names—Vanslyke & Horton and Lopeze, Graw Company.

The latter name upon cigars is represented to the dealers and consumers as a clear Havana house and in some cases as a Key West cigar where, in fact, all cigars with the above firm names on the boxes are made in the same factory, No. 160, District 14, Kingston, N. Y. The brands are Duke de Orman, Mi Vigla, Vul-ta-Seal, Peter Schuyler, Moon Spot, Not Left, Wisdom and others. Union 68 calls upon all sister unions where these goods are sold to inform the dealers, also the consumers of the fact that they are not Key West or union-made, and are the product of non-union women and girls, from factory 160, District 14, Kingston, N. Y.

Label Committee,
Union 68, Albany, N. Y.

Huron, S. D.

Look out for Walter Nelson. This man says that he has been a member of the International Union but has lost his card by the following methods:

First, that he lost it during the big fire in San Francisco, Cal.

Second, that the secretary in Nevada City, Cal., took it away from him and refused to give it back.

Third, that he was suspended and had a $25 fine against him. He did not say what union suspended him.

This man refused to take an accommodation job here in Huron, saying that he wanted a steady job, but he went to one of our jurisdiction towns and took an accommodation job. The first week he got in four days, making $10. When the town collector asked him to join he told him that he had hardly had time enough so the following week the town collector insisted that he join and pay the entire initiation fee. But Walter quietly left town neglecting to even thank the boys for allowing him to work 9 days without becoming a member.

Walter Nelson, we believe, run a buckeye somewhere in Wisconsin for a couple of years and it seems that even that was not time enough for him to make up his mind to join.

The members of Union 491 believe that this man has had plenty of time to get right, and that it was about time that such people were advertised for. There are good men with cards, on the road that we think are more entitled to the jobs in a union shop than a man of Walter Nelson's caliber.—Union 491, Huron, S. D.

Logansport, Ind., August 30, 1909.

To the Officers and Members of all Local Unions of Indiana.

Fellow Craftsmen—As you are aware of the unsatisfactory condition of the cigar industry of the state of Indiana, we need not go into details on the subject. We are all cognizant of the fact that our trade is on the decline, as the evidence is plain to every one. That something must be done to save our craft from utter extinction in the state of Indiana is apparent to every one. And all who have the interests of our trade at heart and are desirous of extending the influence of our international union and maintaining the standard of living among the cigarmakers of our state are expected to co-operate in a movement looking to a closer organization of the Cigarmakers' Unions of Indiana. Union No. 215 of Logansport, at our last regular meeting decided to send out a circular letter to every local union in the state for the purpose of ascertaining the feeling of our sister unions on the subject. Union No. 215 suggests something along the lines of the "Blue Label League" that exist in other states.

Union No. 215, however, is not insistent on the plan to be adopted. That can be determined at the state meeting if one can be arranged. We are only anxious that something be done to relieve the deplorable condition that exists in our state at the present time in our craft.

Fellow cigarmakers, act on this matter without delay. There is work to be done in Indiana. Suggest some feasible plan whereby we can get together. Some union set a time and place for a state meeting and Union No. 215 will gladly co-operate. We would suggest that cigarmakers' local unions sending delegates to the South Bend convention of the Indiana Federation of Labor instruct their delegates to arrange a meeting of the cigarmakers' delegates for the purpose of discussing this important matter.

Yours fraternally,
John Voss, President,
Chester P. Horn, Secretary.

Orange, N. J., August, 1909.

In my little article in the June journal I touched on several points which I believed should be of interest to every member of our international union, and I shall at this time take up the subject of organizing the unorganized cigarmakers, principally those of the First and Ninth District of Pennsylvania. Being a native of that state and of those districts up to eight years ago, I know something of the conditions and can, I believe, speak, or rather write, intelligently on the subject. The question is: How can we organize Pennsylvania?

One of the conditions that confronts us is the Belt Line, or what is now commonly called the Klondike, where the large Philadelphia independent factories have what are commonly called annexes which, for conveniences cannot be equalled in any place I have ever been, and I have been in one or two, including Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Buffalo and others. I state these facts only to give the membership at large a faint idea of what an organizer is up against in these districts.

Then take the cigarmaker. He is not housed up in a suffocating flat or in a tenement house, but he has (at least 90 per cent of them) a single, or at least a two family (the latter being scarce) house to live in, with a garden and a chicken run where he is able to raise all his vegetables and poultry, and in many instances, his own hogs for his meats and lard.

This may not be interesting to the member, but to get at the facts it seems that we must go to the bottom and work up. These conditions do not exist in the cities in these districts, such as Reading, Lancaster, Lebanon, Harrisburgh, York, Norristown, but in the rural districts.

In giving these ideas at this time in organizing these people, I am only quoting I. Bisbing's ideas, that is, send fifty, or if need be, 100 picked union men into these districts and have them take jobs quietly in these shops. Say, take one of the chain of shops and have them work quietly and organize one man's, or firm's shops simultaneously, and as to pay, pay the men the difference of what they earn up to the union standard, and I believe this is the only method that will be successful.

I do not want to be understood as an advocate of low dues, as in my opinion the dues are not high enough until they will enable us to build and maintain a home, but here is another proposition and a difficult one, that is the $3 initiation fee and the 30 cents a week dues, for this is the answer you get when you approach a man to join. "Oh, I can join the P. O. S. of A., the Jr. O. U. A. M., and the Odd-fellows, or the Knights of Malta, or the Red Men, or the Knights of the Golden Eagle, or a dozen other fraternal organizations for 30 cents, or at the most, 35 cents a week will pay my dues in three lodges, and they will pay me $4 each a week sick benefits for from 26 to 52 weeks, and then reduce it from one to 2, as long as I am sick, and also pay me $40 to $50 in case my wife dies, and $100 apiece to my wife if I die, and now show me why I should join the union and pay 30 cents a week, and only get $5 a week for 13 weeks in case of sickness.

These, brothers, are some of the conditions as they exist, so I would say that as we have made concessions to other districts, make concessions for these districts, even though we must cut the initiation fee down to 50 cents, and then get your men in the field and work it up and strengthen our union, as our weakest point lies in the unorganized cigarmaker.

Get this question, which is of vital importance to every member.

Jacob C. Taylor.

Lancaster, Aug. 30, 1909.

In the August Journal I noticed an article written by Secretary H. E. Marten of Los Angeles, suggesting a new plan of advertising union-made cigars. His proposition seems to be a fair and logical idea after considering as he says, the wonderful growth of sales by the unfair cigar firms in comparison with the union cigar firms.

Just because the one does extensive advertising and the other fails to compete in the same way. Advertising is the best salesman. Hear what Mr. Hugh Chalmers, president of the Chalmers-Detroit Motor company, said in his talk on "The Relation of Salesmanship to Advertising":

"Every ad is a salesman; every salesman is an ad. Advertising is salesmanship plus publicity. Salesmanship is advertising plus getting the order signed.

"The whole business world rests on a foundation of confidence. Now the greatest builder of confidence is publicity—advertising. Lack of confidence is usually due to ignorance. Unless you know a man well, you haven't confidence in him. The greatest foe of ignorance is publicity. The saying that 'publicity corrects all abuses' is a true one.

"Advertising makes you acquainted with the public. It gives people knowledge about you and your goods, and knowledge is absolutely essential to confidence. Big advertising looks like big sales; it makes people familiar with you; it unconsciously creates confidence. Without a doubt, the greatest force to-day in the interest of confidence—in the interest of credit, if you will—is advertising.

"Advertising and salesmanship are identical in their object. What is their object? The distribution of goods at a profit.

"How can this be done? It is done by teaching. That is what advertising is—teaching; teaching great numbers of people to believe in your goods. And that is what salesmanship is, too. But advertising conducts a public school, while salesmanship gives individual lessons.

"The object of advertising is to teach people to believe in you and in your goods; to teach them to think that they have a need for your goods and to teach them to buy your goods."

There can be no doubt but that advertising is intended to establish knowledge and create confidence. With all due respect for our label I must say all that it has done was to establish knowledge. There are few people that do not know the C. M. I. U. label and what it stands for and what benefits are derived from it. On the other hand, how many are there that have the confidence they should have in union-made cigars.

By having private brands belonging to the union it would give the unions a better chance and more authority to control the quality of materials to be used, the selling price, and also the kind of work. This latter seems to be cutting as big a figure in the quality of union-made cigars as anything, especially the five-cent work. Simply because all the big advertising firms have adopted hand work, while our unions have kept a premium on mould work by making such a vast difference in their bill of prices between the two kinds.

Here is where the opposition is taking to a certain degree. Mould work will never sell with hand work, though it is made with better material.

Another great advantage that would be brought about is a uniform selling price which is much needed. Much is due to the retailers for the condemnation of our label on account of their placing the very cheapest grades of union-made cigars on a par with advertised goods, which they pay again as much for, depending entirely upon the label to sell the cigars.

What we should have is regulation—a system whereby all the people concerned, the maker, the seller and the buyer, get an equal benefit, not like the handle on a crock, all on one side.

Four of these monster advertising cigar firms have located here in this city, who employ hundreds of working people. Two of them employ no one but girls. I venture to say that two-thirds of them are apprentices.

Few of these cigars are sold in this locality; they are shipped to all parts of the country and many of them sold in the best of organized districts. The only possible hope we have here is that some day there may be such a great demand for union-made cigars where these unscrupulous firms sell their product that they will be obliged to use the label or go out of business. Then—and not till then—will the cigarmakers in these parts be able to exist as other tradesmen do.

For the above reasons I, for one, indorse the private labels in addition to the blue label.

The following list is a complete record of all moneys received. We herewith extend our thanks for the kind assistance given by the members of the C. M. I. U. in behalf of Bro. Conrad Weber. Mr. Weber having been operated upon successfully is now convalescing and we hope will soon regain his health.

Bangor, Me., Sept. 8, 1909.

Cigarmakers, awaken! Endorse and vote for amendment proposed by Union No. 179, Bangor, to Section 67, of International Constitution, and remove an old-time, moth-eaten law of sentimental origin, which has proved to be an injustice and cause of hardship to many of our members, and in its stead adopt a law which will give to the members of the C. M. I. U. of A., to ourselves, the protection which years of agitation, energetic labor and financial contributions render us justly entitled. Speaking plainly and in truth, caring not whom we may offend, we will say that the manner in which, and the number of cigarmakers from Belgium who have come to New England during the past ten years has become a greater menace to our trade and to our members as the years advance, and on all sides we hear the query: "How can it be stopped?" In that endeavor two amendments, as to the age of foreign cards, have been passed by popular vote, within six years, without effect, a third proposed by No. 97, is now pending which, if adopted will not accomplish the desired result. We are convinced that the high cash initiation, as embodied in the amendment submitted by No. 179, is the one and only method by which this evil can be corrected. Some will say, "This is discrimination." The writer replies: "It is only self-defense—the essential of self-preservation." The present law of the C. M. I. U. discriminates against its own members. For instance, a strict apprentice law reduces the opportunity of the American boy to learn the trade to a minimum. After "lumping" around the shop as chore boys, in some cases from one to five years, he then must serve three years at the bench, and then is compelled to pay an initiation fee of $3 for admission into the union. During all this time he is talking "blue label," and among his friends and acquaintances adding his mite to the increased consumption of union-made cigars. In Belgium there is no union apprentice law. A boy or girl can join the union immediately upon beginning at work at the trade, and when they come over here if they present a card marked three years or upward they are accepted into the C. M. I. U. without the payment of any initiation fee, and no questions asked, and we are reliably informed that the business of certain Belgian shops is not to manufacture cigars only, but to make cigarmakers. Witness communication from a Belgian boss to Mr. Huntoon, of Huntoon & Gorhan, Providence, R. I. (as published in a recent issue of the Journal), offering to supply the said firm with any number of cigarmakers they wanted. Several years ago Union 97 was sustained in refusing to accept as a member any one from the "academies" of Chelsea (scab shops). We maintain that the product of the foreign "academies" should be treated in like manner. The large manufacturers in eastern New England who have been aided in the building up of their trade by the use of the blue label, and the agitation for that label by our members, and whose fortunes have been made by the sale of their goods to the American smoking public, seemingly oblivious to that fact and blind to justice, or for some ulterior motive constantly discriminate against the American in favor of the latest importation. It is no benefit to our members throughout the country if a Boston firm is able to run a large union shop, or if any other New England firm succeeds in filling a big shop with hands, if the American is not given an equal chance of obtaining employment. If the firms in the East had to depend upon the friends of the Belgians to consume their output they would have to close their shops. This phase of the question affects the members all over the country, men who are discharged to make room for new arrivals are compelled to look elsewhere for work, while the eastern firms ship their product to different parts of the country in competition with the firms who do employ Americans, thus the man who talks label creates a job for the foreigner and reduces his own chance of getting work. And there is not ten per cent of those newcomers who ever learn enough English to hold conversation, but they do belong to their own organization within the C. M. I. U., and pay weekly a due which is claimed to be sent to Belgium to aid the union over there. And the Belgian union pays an immigration benefit of from twenty-five to one hundred francs ($5 to $20) to those who come to this country. We contend that alone is sufficient cause for the adoption of new section No. 67½. During the past spring when about 500 members were out of work in Boston, and those working were paying 50 cents per week to support the needy, a notice requesting cigarmakers to stay away from Boston was inserted in the Journal. Within the week following that issue of the Journal several women and two men, who had never been in this country before, arrived and went to work, and in the two months following about 20 were accepted by Belgian card in No. 97, not including those who had their cards exchanged in New York and Philadelphia before coming to Boston. We submit the opinion that if the true spirit of fellowship and co-operation, spoken of by Mr. Henri Rutgers, the Belgian national secretary, in the August Journal, had existed, they would not have issued cards for their members to come here when they knew that large numbers of our members were idle, and had been idle for months. The present law relating to the free exchange of cards injected into our constitution in the long ago, is ridiculously one-sided. We do not know of a single instance of one of our members who learned the trade in this country applying for admission to a foreign union, but we know personally of upwards of 1,000 cases where we have accepted free of initiation cards issued by foreign unions. There is not and never has been any international contract, as some of our members believe exists, and we can change Section 67 without breaking faith with any foreign union. We have full respect for the old school of Belgians, especially those who came here years ago from Brussels and Antwerp and entered into the spirit of the times. There are many fine fellows and staunch trade unionists amongst them, but the latter day importation is of a different class, coming principally from the "Klondyke" of Belgium, being morally and mentally deficient. We believe that as these people get the benefit of high wages, short hours, etc., it is only just that they pay a high initiation fee, and from our point of view the sums named in new Section 67½ are not excessive when we consider the number of married women who come here and make from $20 to $25 per week, while their husbands make as much or more. If the initiation fee was made payable in installments, it is plain that it would not check the influx into this country, and the payable in cash method will do so. Bear in mind that there has been very few in recent years, coming from other European countries and, at that, England has a five pound ($25) immigrant benefit. Conditions in New England are critical, and while we admit this to be a drastic measure, it is only meeting the conditions. It is not prohibitive, for if foreign unions and friends can pay transportation and other things, let them also pay an initiation fee to the C. M. I. U. This amendment will be rebuked by some for obvious reasons, but the entire membership is asked to consider the logic of our reasoning, viz. If it is right and just to curtail the American boy's chance to learn the trade by close apprentice laws it must be right and just to restrict immigration by charging a high cash initiation fee. If correct to debar from membership the graduates of Chelsea "academies," it is lencency to accept the foreign academy pupils under any conditions. When capable workmen who for years have paid assessments and dues into the C. M. I. U. are "turned down" and employment given at once to new arrivals, it is but justice that the newcomers who get an immediate benefit in high wages, should be required to pay something for the privileges they receive. The position of our members is critical, flanked on one side by the steady influx of Belgians, and the evident discrimination of the "boss" on the other they must needs look for protection from their own organization, and succor can only come to them by the enactment of a law such as the one proposed by No. 179. Don't be misled by cries of race prejudice or other sentimental buncombe; this is a business proposition which affects directly a great many, and indirectly a vast majority of our members, for the evil referred to is more far-reaching than many of our members realize. Space forbids touching upon other various phases of this question. Casting aside diplomacy, the writer has endeavored to point out some reasons why new Section 67½ should be endorsed and adopted, or at least discussed and fully considered by that portion of our members who believe in and practice the habit of plain talk.

Plain Talk.

Washington, D. C., July 22, 1909.

Mr. George W. Perkins, President.

Dear Sir and Brother: For some time past the American Federation of Labor has had an arrangement with the National Surety Company of New York City, whereby we have assisted the local unions to transact their bonding business in a simplified manner, as well as securing a special rate for them. This was arranged as a result of continual requests from local unions for information and assistance in this matter. The New Orleans Convention of the A. F. of L. (1904), upon considering the report of President Gompers covering this, directed that the fiduciary officers of all local trade and federal labor unions should be bonded in this Company, under the arrangement made with the A. F. of L. This was not only for the purpose of affording the local unions the benefit of the special rate, but in order that there would be a system whereby it could be seen to that the local unions were properly protecting their funds.

The rate which was originally agreed upon was fifty cents per hundred dollars, and a special bond of $250 was executed. This was an advantage to newly organized unions with small treasuries, in that they could protect their funds at the low rate of $1.25 per annum. Lately, however, we were notified by the Company that they could not continue that rate, and since July 1, 1909, it has been raised to sixty cents per hundred, and no bond for less than $500 will be executed. This brings the minimum premium up to $3.00 per year, which makes it more expensive to unions that want to bond for less than $500. It is not sufficiently high, however, to feel that the requirement is imposing any hardship on them, because of the wisdom and necessity of arranging for such protection to their funds.

In addition to arranging bonds for the A. F. of L. locals, we have transacted the business for a great number of the locals of international unions, as well as for some of the international officers, and from this I judge that a number of the international unions have no special arrangement covering this matter. It is for this reason that I am bringing this matter to your attention, so that in the event your International Union does not provide for the bonding of the locals in a special way, the matter of recommending that they avail themselves of the advantages of our arrangement may be considered. If you have arrangements with a bonding company, please give me this information, as well as the rate per hundred you are paying.

Certificate of bond is not issued to each union, but there is a schedule bond issued for the American Federation of Labor, under which each individual bond, as it is executed, is registered. The receipt for the amount of the premium, furnished by this office, is all evidence of the bond that is necessary for the union to hold.

In addition, I desire to say that throughout the period of our relations with the National Surety Company, it has given the very highest satisfaction in the adjustment of all claims of the local unions, and in making my recommendation in this matter, I feel that I am insuring this advantage to your local unions.

Hoping to hear from you, I am,

Fraternally yours,

Frank Morrison,

Secretary American Federation of Labor.

Puerta de tierra, San Juan, P. R., Aug. 15, 1909.

I thank you for inserting the following communication in next journal.

The amendment offered by No. 481, Bayamon, P. R., is a very bad one. We wish J. A. Boards as in the United States. We have an J. A. board, as the one offered by 481, and we, Porto Rican union, can't afford the expenses of the same. We must have constitutional J. A. boards, no special ones made only for Porto Rico, and never seen in the United States. We want to follow, to learn and to do what American workmen do. They haven't made an J. A. board for one state. We want no one for Porto Rico.

Every secretary in Porto Rico may address directly to the international president for union matter, we are not in want of any distributing office. This office should have expenses paid by unions and by what means? Brothers, American workmen, do not vote for 481 amendment. We thank you in advance for it. Do not vote!

Juan G. Garcia, Sec'y.

UNION LABEL TRADES DEPARTMENT OF THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Washington, D. C.

Among the various labels that are in existence, and are worthy of greater support than they have received in the past, are the ones issued by the Tobacco Workers' International Union, and the Cigarmakers' International Union. The product on which these labels appear are within the reach of every workingman, and are used by them every day of their lives.

In a document published lately by a department of the government, the astonishing fact is recorded that about 90 per cent of all the smoking and chewing tobacco and cigarettes manufactured in the United States, are the output of the American Tobacco Company, more familiarly known as the Trust.

In none of the factories operated by this gigantic corporation are there employed a union man or woman; in fact, to be known to have membership in a union means instant discharge. Nor is the output of the other 10 per cent, to any great degree, the product of union workers.

What then, we may ask, is the amount of union-made tobacco and cigarettes that are consumed, and the answer is readily made: very small.

The Tobacco Workers' International Union is making a gallant fight against tremendous odds, but that support that they are entitled to and should receive, from the reports at hand is for some unexplainable reason lacking. Surely the hundreds of thousands of workingmen and their friends who use tobacco every day can be of immense assistance to this organization if they will give their patronage to only that class of goods that bears the label of the tobacco workers.

There is nothing to be gained by purchasing the product of the trust, because you receive a coupon, or certificate that after numerous purchases they will entitle the purchaser to some gaudy article, oftentimes of no value, for these so-called premiums cost money, and the cost of them is taken out of the value of the article purchased, so after all the customer gets nothing but an inferior article for his money; in fact, the results of the government investigation shows that a large percentage of the material that goes into the manufacture of the fine cut and granulated tobacco made by this trust, is not tobacco at all, but alfalfa, a species of hay.

This same corporation is also endeavoring to control the cigarmaking industry, and is operating factories all over this country, in which the great majority of their employees are little children, who receive but scanty wages and are compelled to work long hours in poorly lighted and badly ventilated shops. Together with this the cigarmakers are confronted with a large number of non-union shops, in which practically the same conditions apply. The subsidiary branches of the American Tobacco Company are also in control of the cigarmaking industry in Porto Rico, and before many weeks have passed will be in control of a large portion of the industry in the Philippines.

At the present time, and for several years past, there have been arriving at the several ports along the Atlantic coast, from Porto Rico an average of ten million cigars a month, and the number is increasing.

Before the year has expired there will be dumped on the Pacific coast another one hundred and fifty million cigars from the Philippine Islands, and this amount is to be admitted free of duty every year, making the total amount of cigars that will come to this country from both places amount to about three hundred millions a year. The production of cigars in the United States has been materially reduced in the past two years, and with these amounts above mentioned, it means loss of employment to over six thousand cigarmakers in this country.

The following extract from a letter written by a cigarmaker who served in the army in the Philippines, and who observed closely the conditions under which cigars are made, should be interesting to our readers. The letter says in part: "They are all affected with a skin disease and a large majority are covered with open sores or scars. Leprosy, beri-beri, cholera, bubonic plague and other infectious diseases are, as every one knows, prevalent there. They sit half naked and work and scratch, while the air is rank with the smell of decayed fish and rank coconut oil which the women use on their hair. Imagine one of these natives, whose teeth have rotted black by the constant chewing of the betel-nut, biting out heads, which I took particular notice to see if they did, and using their spittle to paste the heads on their work."

This is expert testimony from one who was there and observed for himself. Beside this those who are employed at the industry are the cheapest workers in the world—orientals—and it is against this class of labor that we are asked to compete.

There is another mistake that is sometimes made by some of our friends, and that is they are made to believe that cigars made in Tampa and Key West, Florida, are imported. This idea should be dispelled. The Cigarmakers' International Union has unions in both these places, and is endeavoring to organize these places to the best of their ability. You can assist them in this work, as well as assist them in all other directions by refusing to purchase ANY cigar unless the label of that union appears on the box in which the cigar is contained.

Insist on having this label. Insist on having the label of the Tobacco Workers' International Union on all plug and fine cut tobacco and cigarettes. Insist on having the union label on ALL articles that you purchase.

T. F. Tracy, Secy.

The joint resolution of the Tobacco Workers' Union and the Cigarmakers' International Union of America was unanimously adopted by the Birmingham Convention of Farmers.

Whereas, Tobacco Workers' International Union and the Cigarmakers' International Union of America for years have been striving to gain better conditions, shorter hours and living wages, for the people employed in the tobacco industry; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Farmers' Educational Co-Operative Union in convention assembled in the City of Birmingham, Ala., September, 1909, endorse the blue labels of the Tobacco Workers' International Union and the Cigarmakers' International Union of America; and be it further

Resolved, That we pledge our membership not to purchase any tobacco, cigars, snuff or cigarettes that do not bear the blue label of the two respective unions, thereby helping them with our moral support in gaining the workers better wages and fair conditions.

State of Trade for September 1909.

LOST CARDS

Section 11. Any member losing or destroying his loan book shall not be entitled to receive any benefits or a duplicate loan book before the expiration of two months, and financial secretaries of local unions must notify the International President of such loss or destruction immediately, the same to be published in the official Journal by the International President. The International President shall be the only person to issue a duplicate. Members having lost their traveling cards take notice:

No duplicate card will be issued for lost card unless the full name of members, the card number, the date of initiation and the union where the card was last deposited are given. Members who lose cards are not entitled to benefits until they secure duplicates. No duplicate cards are issued except upon application through some secretary, when the time limit of two months has expired.

Month after month unscrupulous men impose upon secretaries and members under the plea of lost cards. The constitution provides a punishment for lost cards. Its purpose is to stop the carelessness and the traffic made with full cards by permitting them to be held as security.

Don't issue letters to any member claiming lost card unless you know his actual standing.

Secretaries have no right to issue certificates in place of lost cards. Members who secure employment should be entered as admitted to the union.

Secretaries should be careful and enter all loans granted and repaid and all balances carried from one card to another in letters and figures. The issue of duplicates will be delayed in all cases where information is not complete.

Secretaries should examine due books where claim of lost card is made. Report full name, number, date and place of initiation and when and where card was last deposited.

Private loans will be entered on duplicates issued upon request of unions.

Enter all loans granted in figures and letters. Secretaries will please notify this office as to whether any private loans are due on cards reported lost, otherwise they are issued with only the International loan account. This does not release members from their just obligations to the unions. The absence of the private loans, however, quite often cause members to overlook these loans and suspensions follow.

NOTES BY UNION 97, BOSTON.

Mr. Benjamin, who formerly ran an academy with 10 boys, has none.—Mr. Prochtenberg, who ran an academy, has given it up.—Others on the decline, result of work done by the Executive Board and the Label Committee. Agitation pays.

We are to have an industrial exhibit in Boston, where the trades unions through charts will have an opportunity to place on exhibition their labels and the amount of sick, death, out of work benefits, also old age pensions paid. All national unions should see that advantage is taken of this opportunity; it will show their growth and what they have accomplished in shortening the hours of labor.—We gave $2,000 to the Hatters.—Watt and Arknight did much to free the people; the Steam Engine was no small factor.—We have moved some since the Lancashire Mill owners made 1,000 per cent.—We want better homes at a lesser rental.—This is the transition period.—We need an old age pension.—Boom the label. What else is left in these day of injunctions.—Industrial education is upon us; the only question is, shall the public own it or who?—New England conference doing good work.—Help the Bakers.—Our president will address the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association.—Label committee active in booming union products. We lead in label agitation and propose to continue in the lead.—The first step necessary to improve conditions is the economic organization of the worker; what church and state has failed to do has been accomplished by the trades union, the organization of men and women irrespective of creed, color or race.—It has reduced their hours, giving time for thought.—Increased their wage equivalent to better clothes and food.—Better sanitary conditions, which means a better home.—Keep your children at school, don't put them in the factory.

Cigar Makers' Official Journal

ISSUED MONTHLY.

G. W. PERKINS, Editor and Publisher.

CHICAGO, SEPTEMBER 15, 1909.

The growth and stability of a trades union depends upon the protection and benevolent chain of benefits guaranteed to members. The average workingman does not contribute dues and assessments for any length of time, especially, during seasons of dull trade, unless some protection is guaranteed to him.

While the regulation of wages and hours and working conditions are important, they are not sufficiently attractive to him when there is scarcity of or no work.

We have to take the average workingman as he is, and not as he ought to be. If properly guided and instructed, he will consent to pay high dues and assessments, but the benefits provided ought to be in proportion to the contributions.

Trades unions should pay strike benefits, insurance money or death benefits, sick benefits, out of work benefits, traveling benefits and old age pensions.

The safest way to inaugurate the system is with the payment of small benefits; at the same time establishing a general reserve fund, which would guarantee prompt payment.

It is far better to promise little and pay promptly, than to make promises of big benefits which cannot be met. A trades union which promises more than it can pay is a fraud; it obtains money under false pretenses, and cannot maintain the confidence of the members in its integrity and honesty of purpose.

The payment of $3.00 a week strike benefit and $4.00 sick benefit for a limited number of weeks, will create a more permanent and loyal membership than the promise of $7.00 strike benefit and $5.00 sick benefit for an indefinite time, which cannot be paid.

No trades union can have a permanent membership without inspiring confidence in its solvency and the faithful performance of its obligations, and an adequate return in benefits for the moneys contributed. At the same time an economical and honest administration are essential features.

The trades unions which have embodied in their laws, both protective and benevolent features, have the most loyal membership willing to make many sacrifices. They take a pride in the union and its achievement, and are amenable to unity of action and discipline.

A trades union, with a chain of benefits, is a saving bank, a life insurance policy, and a friend in need, of much value and assistance to a member and his family.

Parry, Post, Van Cleave, and Kirby, would be union busters and all round advocates of the alleged beauties and adequacy of the so called open shop system, have very little to say concerning the numerous strikes which have recently taken place in these open and non-union shops.

These advocates of the open shop system have long preached that the application of their theories and policies would bring about peace, tranquillity, and everlasting happiness both for the workers and the manufacturers.

The awful bumps their theories and policies in the open shop direction have been recently getting warrant the assertion that their statesmanship is faulty, their seriousness and intelligence questionable, and that in their own estimation only they are good doctrinaires, as the logic of events proves that they are highly impracticable.

In the last six months a large number of serious strikes have occurred in the pet non-union and open shop plants, the beauties of which we have heard so much and seen so little. This is chiefly so commencing with the United States Steel Company, which attempted to completely non-unionize a large number of its open shop mills, with the result that both the unionists and non-unionists employed in these mills went on a strike.

Another striking incident was the recent strike in the Pressed Steel Car Company's plant at McKees Rocks, Pa. The workmen employed in this plant were nearly, if not all, non-union. Even the casual reader is familiar with the fact that more discord, strife, and destruction of life and property occurred in this strike than has occurred in any one of the union strikes in a number of years.

We venture the assertion that there have been more strikes in open shops and non-union mills—that is, more people involved—in the last six months than there has been in strictly union mills and factories.

There is today and perhaps always will be a certain amount of discontent and unrest in the ranks of the workers, and the logic of passing events points to the undisputed fact that the Van Cleaves, Kirbys, Parrys, and Posts will ultimately be forced to admit that the trade union movement is here to stay and that the application of its principles is better calculated to bring tranquillity and a reasonable amount of security against hasty, ill advised, and destructive strikes.

The general condition of the cigar trade is not up to date; the volume of the business is still on the decline. There is an improvement, however, in some isolated spots. Looking through optimistic spectacles the indications are for an improvement in the fall trade. The production for the month of July shows a decrease.

The Connecticut Internal Revenue District includes the state of Rhode Island; the New Hampshire Revenue District includes the states of Maine and Vermont.

The Connecticut Internal Revenue District includes the state of Rhode Island; the New Hampshire Revenue District includes the states of Maine and Vermont.

The general press of the country recently proclaimed the astounding information that the Taft administration was going to give the Philippine cigars, which under recent legislation can be imported into this country duty free, a free bill of health or a sort of certificate of cleanliness, etc. In so far as our knowledge goes, no administration or government official has heretofore attempted to give such recognition to any article of consumption made in this country, or such distinction. If what the daily press of the country says concerning this matter is true, it shows to what length the Taft administration is prepared to go in its determination to make the Philippine cigar a success in this country, regardless of the injury such policy may inflict upon American industries.

Trades unions have outlived their usefulness is the parrot-like cry of some cigarmakers. Impregnated with a species of mania and mental incapacity, they cannot see any progress in civilization, neither can they see the advancement made in the reduction of the hours of labor within one single generation. They are infatuated with the doctrine of revolution, bloodshed and destruction; that instinct of the prehistoric man; the savage with the hickory club, has not been effaced entirely by centuries of progress.

The production of cigars in the ninth district, Pennsylvania, is steadily falling off since 1900. The product for that district for August, 1900, was 79,454,223, while the product for August, 1909, was 59,323,343, showing the falling off in the product for one month to be in the years specified 20,130,880 cigars.

Experts who have given the subject of tobacco a life study hold that the merits of the wrapper cannot be judged by the color of the ash. The average smoker—yes, nine-tenths of them—believes that if the ash is white that it is a good or fine wrapper, while as a matter of fact the gray or even dark ash is produced from some of the very finest and choicest of wrapper leaf, and on the other hand sometimes the poorest quality of wrapper will turn out a fine, white ash.

The day of the four flusher and bull dozer has gone by and those who employ those tactics in the regulation of trade affairs and trade disputes are rapidly passing off the stage of trade union activity. Intelligent application of the principle of the square deal, with the desire to see that equal justice may be done to all concerned, is taking the place of braggadocio and the club, and what is better still and more noteworthy is the fact that they are accomplishing greater results.

From a spasmodic attempt of a little more than a generation ago to restrict and to prohibit the employment of children of tender years in workshops, factories and mines, a gigantic movement has developed. The sympathies of the educated and of the professional classes have been enlisted in this agitation. The progress in this direction, which includes compulsory school education, is primarily due to the work of the pioneers—the trades unions.

In settling differences with employees the use of courteous language is absolutely necessary. Where the employer is right, it should be acknowledged without hesitation; where he is in error, it should be communicated to him in careful and well chosen language. Nothing is gained by hurting the feelings of anybody when a strike is pending.

New York, following the lead of Illinois, has recently enacted a law permitting counties to establish hospitals for the treatment and cure of tuberculosis. The earnest advocates of this law predict that in ten years every county in the state of New York will have a well equipped, up to date institution of this kind.

Following the lead of Albany, N. Y., the trade unions of Rome, N. Y., have raised money with which to build a tuberculosis pavilion for the treatment and care of members suffering from this disease.

In McKees Rock, Pa., the ideal conditions of an ideal open shop became so oppressive that the full force of non-unionists went out bodily on strike.

The Stove Mounters' and Steel Range Workers' International Union has a union label used on its product which it asks all members and friends of labor to call for and insist upon having when purchasing stoves and ranges.

To our mind the essential points which go to make trade unions strong, useful, permanent, and successful are high dues, a chain of benefits, discipline, a label where practicable, and, last but not least, wise and conservative leadership.

During the banner year of 1907 the annual output of cigars was about 8,000,000,000, the wholesale value of which was said to be about $350,000,000. The same authority says that the wages of cigar makers for the year was about $75,000,000.

The cigarmaker, with a union card in his pocket, who constantly belittles the efforts and achievements of the trades union movement, is an enemy within the ranks. In his attempt to retard the progress and stability of the organization of labor, he is knowingly or unknowingly assisting the cheap non-union manufacturers and cigar trusts in extending their fields of operation.

"See, hear, and speak no evil" is one of the first lessons implanted in the mind of the child of a certain nationality which lays no pretensions to the high ideal state of civilization supposed to exist with many other countries.

The following is a fac simile of the farmers' union label, which is used by the farmers to designate their products from those of the non-union farmers' products:

The advocates of the short hour work day, especially the pioneers, were often scoffed at and ridiculed when they made claims that shortening the hours of labor not only increased the efficiency of the workers, but what was of greater importance, increased the length of their lives and vastly improved their physical condition and general health. The Cigarmakers' International Union has long ago furnished proof through its vital statistics, which have been accepted as absolutely correct, that the inauguration of the eight-hour working day, May 1, 1888, has brought about wonderful improvements in the length of lives of the members and in their general health, having increased the length of life from 31 years to 46 years—an increase of 15 years, and reduced the number of those who die of tuberculosis from 51 per cent to 24 per cent, a decrease of 27 per cent.

The Federal government has just printed a report by Professor Fisher of Yale University, who insists and clearly proves that the short hour work day gives the best industrial results, and clearly proves the further claim of the pioneers of the short-hour movement, that reducing the hours of labor to eight per day has also increased the general productive capacity and efficiency of the workers, showing as he does that in all cases investigated, the workers produce more in eight hours than they did formerly in the nine, ten and even twelve hour working day. According to the government report, Professor Fisher says:

"The present working day is a striking example of the failure to conserve national vitality. In order to keep labor power unimpaired, the working day should be physiological—i. e., it should be such as would enable the average individual to completely recuperate over night. Otherwise, instead of a simple daily cycle there is a progressive deterioration. A reduction in the length of the work day would be a chief means of improving the vitality of workmen, as well as the worth of life to them.

The fatigue of workmen is largely traceable to their long work day and serves to start a vicious circle. Fatigue puts the workman in an abnormal frame of mind. He seeks to deaden his fatigue by alcohol, tobacco, exciting amusements and excesses of various kinds. The momentary relief which he thereby obtains is purchased at the expense of an increasing susceptibility to fatigue, resulting sooner or later in complete depletion of his vital energies and in the contraction of tuberculosis or other fatal disease. The decrease in the length of the working day has not diminished the total output.

An instance in which the eight-hour day superseded the nine-hour day with entire success is the case of the Salford Iron Works of Mather & Platt, at Manchester, England, which changed to the eight-hour day in 1895. As the firm's products were subject to keen competition in both home and foreign markets, it was obliged to look carefully after the labor cost, and its conclusion that such cost did not increase in consequence of the reduction in working hours was reached after extremely accurate comparison by accountants, who of course took into consideration the saving in consumables, wear and tear, fuel, etc. The Bureau of Labor inquired of Messrs. Mather & Platt if they were still on the eight-hour basis, and received a reply dated May 24, 1904, in which they stated that: "Our experience since the first year in which it (the eight-hour system was tried has fully borne out the conclusions then arrived at, and we are fully satisfied that as regards the comparison between eight and nine hours per day, the balance of advantages is in favor of the shorter period. In 1894, the hours of labor of about 43,000 workmen in British government factories and workshops were reduced to forty-eight hours per week. Of this number 19,600 received a reduction of five and three-fourths hours a week, and 24,300 had their time reduced two and one-half hours a week. With no change in piece rates the men were able to earn as much as formerly. Day workers received an increased hourly rate of pay to make their earnings per week of forty-eight hours equal to those per week of fifty hours. It was not found necessary to increase the number of day workers."

In 1899 the owners of the great Zeiss optical goods factory at Jena, Germany, introduced the eight-hour day and then made careful records of the results. In 1905 it was announced that although the aggregate number of hours had decreased 15 per cent the output per hour had increased 16.2 per cent.

At Liege it was found in a sulphuric acid establishment similar to a foundry that shortening the working day from eleven hours to ten, from ten to nine, and so on gradually down to seven and one-half, resulted, in each case, in an increase of the output.

The Solvay Process Company of Syracuse, installed in 1892, a system of three eight-hour shifts in place of the two previous shifts of eleven and thirteen hours respectively. It was stated by the assistant general manager in 1905 that the change had considerably lessened the wear and tear on the men, and that they could be called on to do their work at their highest state of efficiency, which had not been possible on the two-shift basis. President Hazard of the company writes:

"In general, I can say that the results of the change from a twelve-hour to an eight-hour shift were very satisfactory and have continued to be so. While the immediate result was to considerably increase the cost per unit of production, the efficiency of the men gradually increased, so that at the end of about one year the first increase had been overcome and the cost per unit of product fell to a point even lower than had been obtained under the twelve-hour shift, and further the time consumed per unit of product has since been so reduced that we are to-day and for some time have been operating with a smaller number of hours per unit of product than we had under the twelve-hour shift."

Further proof of the benefits of the change to the three-shift day is furnished by the records of the Solvay Mutual Benefit Association for 1891 and 1904. The days lost per man by sickness each year fell from seven and one-half days in 1891 to five and one-half days in 1904.

It is not maintained that in all cases productivity will be as great in eight hours as in nine. Cases to the contrary could also be cited. The point to be insisted upon is not that it is profitable to an employer to make the work day shorter, for often it is not, but to show that it is profitable to the nation and the race. Continual fatigue is inimical to national vitality, and however it may affect the commercial value of the individual it will in the end deplete the vital resources on which national efficiency depends.

In the interests of this efficiency, a longer time at noon for lunch is usually necessary. The present economy of lunch time is shortsighted, tends to food bolting, indigestion, a drowsy and tired afternoon and inferior work. This has been shown by actual experience.

The accident bulletins of the Interstate Commerce Commission contain frequent records of disasters caused by the long hours of railway employes. In a recent bulletin, No. 27, two collisions are attributed to the mistakes of employes who have been on duty much longer than the instinct of safety should allow. Collision No. 3, which killed two and injured fifteen, was due to the mistake of a station operator who had been on duty from 7 a. m. to 3:30 p. m., and who had returned to duty at 8 p. m. The collision took place at 12:30 a. m., the next morning."

The report of the Tuberculosis Pavilion of the Central Federation of Labor of Albany, N. Y., just published, indicates that the cause is a worthy one. It covers the history of the pavilion since its inception at the close of the rousing campaign conducted by the State Charities Aid Association in Albany, early in 1908, including the five months of actual operation. In the five months 29 patients have been treated, including 10 incipient or early cases, 10 moderately advanced cases, and nine far advanced cases. In the first group seven, or nearly three-fourths, have shown improvement; of the second, five, or one-half the total have improved; in the last far advanced cases, marked improvement is not to be expected, but the patients have received care and attentions, and their sufferings have been considerably relieved. Three have shown some improvement.

Of the patients discharged four are now at Ray Brook, total recovery almost assured. At the time of their admission to the pavilion it is probable that some of them would have been unable to pass the examination for admission to that institution. After their stay at the pavilion they improve sufficiently so that they were admitted as strictly incipient cases.

The money to support the pavilion is raised by contributions of a penny a week from each member of the labor unions in Albany.

New York City, Sept. 12, 1909.

To the members of organized labor and friends: Greeting: On Jan. 14, 1909, the National Association of Hat Manufacturers decreed by a unanimous vote that no member of their organization should use the union label of the United Hatters of North America, under penalty of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000). Realizing that this was the beginning of a movement to do away with all union labels, and although it involved our entire membership, the United Hatters of North America decided that none of its members should work for any member of the National Association of Hat Manufacturers until it was agreed that the union label should be used on the product of their labor, and we have stood firmly by that position ever since. Of the fifty-eight manufacturers who entered into this combination nearly forty have since resigned from the hat manufacturers' association and are now operating union factories and using our union label, and we feel grateful to the members of organized labor whose loyal support made it possible to bring about this victory. There are yet about twenty large manufacturers who still refuse to use the union label and whose product is sold in every city in the United States. We have yet over five thousand of our members on strike, and are sadly in need of funds, but the greatest service that can be rendered us now is to create a demand for the union label, and we would urgently request that you take this matter up in your meeting and appoint a committee to wait on the merchants in your city and request them to handle only union made hats. With over three-quarters of the hat manufacturers of the United States now operating union factories and using the union label, there is no reason why a merchant should insist on dealing with the few manufacturers who are now fighting our organization. With your support we are determined to continue the fight until all manufacturers who rebelled against our organization last January will again agree to use the union label.

Hoping you will give this matter your immediate attention, and thanking you for this, as well as the many past favors rendered our organization in its present struggle, we are,

Respectfully,

UNITED HATTERS OF NORTH AMERICA.

Martin Lawlor, Secretary.

John A. Moffitt, President.

P. S.—We would appreciate it very much if you would kindly let us know the results of the action of your committee.

AMENDMENTS PROPOSED

Union No. 89, Schenectady, N. Y., offers the following amendment to the International Constitution: To amend Section 146, by adding after the words "$50.00 death benefit," on line 46, the following:

That an assessment of three (3) cents be levied on all 80 and 15-cent members for the benefit of Mr. Thomas P. Henry (69758), who has been and is afflicted with locomotor ataxia, and under a doctor's care continually for more than 5 years, and if this amendment is carried said member be granted a non-beneficiary retiring card.

Union 179, of Bangor, submits the following amendment to the International Constitution of the C. M. I. U.:

Amend Section 67 by inserting after the word "membership," on first line, the words, "who have served apprenticeship within the jurisdiction of the C. M. I. U. of A." First paragraph to read as follows: "All applicants for membership who have served apprenticeship within the jurisdiction of the C. M. I. U. of A. may be elected, on their own statement, upon payment of an initiation fee of three ($3) dollars." And strike out all after the word "initiation," on line 21, and insert in lieu thereof new Section 67½, to read as follows: "Cigarmakers or packers coming from a foreign country who shall furnish proof that they (at the time they left such country) were good standing members for at least five years of a cigarmakers' or packers' organization, organized on the trades union principle, shall be admitted as new members, only upon payment of an initiation fee of one hundred ($100) dollars, payable in full at time of their acceptance into the C. M. I. U. All persons coming from foreign countries without a union card at least five years old shall not be admitted to membership, by any local union, until they have furnished satisfactory proofs that they have served an apprenticeship of three years in a union shop and shall be required to pay an initiation fee of two hundred dollars ($200.00), payable in full at time of their admission into the C. M. I. U. of A.

To the Liquor Dealers of Massachusetts:

Gentlemen—We desire to draw to your attention a matter which we believe to be of mutual interest.

A number of cigar pedlars are going through the state with one or more boxes of cigars having an imitation label on the box with the words in Spanish: "La Union De Los Cubanos Libres" or "Union Cubana."

These men endeavor to sell these as Union made or imported.

They are all frauds and should be treated as such.

Your only safeguard lies in buying from legitimate manufacturers, who will give you one dollar's value for one hundred cents.

Beware of pedlars; as a matter of fact these men are purveyors of trash.

Respectfully,
Leon Wiener, President.

Attest,
Henry Abrahams, Secretary.

This is only a few of the members that owe this union. We gave notice in the August Journal that we would publish names of those that did not respond either by sending in some of their loans or give some reason for not doing so, that their names would be published in the September Journal, then if they are not heard from this union would take some other action. We do not expect members that are out of work to pay, but we do expect them to drop us a card saying that they have not forgotten the loan.

Secretaries are instructed to collect the following private loans of $1.00 each and remit to Union 39, New Haven, Conn. This is only a partial list and dates from 1902 to 1907, inclusive. REPORT OF ORGANIZERS.

Kingston, Ont., Sept. 1, 1909.

Chatham, Ont., is a manufacturing center, and has two cigar factories, union and non-union. It is under the jurisdiction of Union No. 278, London. The present non-union factory at one time used the union label and its cigars dominated the local trade, but they misused the label and it was taken from them.

It is interesting to note that this factory has all but lost the local trade, and that the union factory reports a continued and satisfactory increase in trade. The label is well shown here and appears to be in some demand, which more advertising would undoubtedly increase. Distributed some advertising here. Organization that had quite a boom here a few years ago is now a dead letter. Organization for revenue only will prove a failure anywhere.

It was old home week when I reached Windsor, Ont., and the most of our people were keeping holiday. One of the two factories, however, was working, for the very satisfactory reason that they were away behind in their orders. The union label is well displayed here, and seems to have the call over the other goods.

Union No. 278, whose jurisdiction this is, has done some advertising here, notably a large sign near the ferry docks. Distributed some advertising hangers here.

Organization is a thing of the past, as far as Sarnia, Ont., is concerned. The only one I could find left was a small union of the tailors. This may account for the fact that the union label is also a dead letter here, for the invariable reply of the dealer is, "There is no demand."

Advertising of some kind between here and Stratford would have a marked effect on the demand for union label goods, as it is now, there is nothing to dispute the way of non-union goods and, by the way, they (the union manufacturers) are great advertisers. Here is more work for the new label league.

Trade has been dull in Stratford and district, but there are signs of returning prosperity. Our people are all at work and the outlook is hopeful for the future.

Organization is not so good here as formerly, but there is still a fair demand for union label goods, local goods in some lines having the call.

I have recommended to the Canadian Label League that a large sign be placed here at the Grand Trunk R. R. station, as it is a junction depot for many lines of travel.

I am a firm believer in advertising as a means to an end in promoting the demand for and sale of union label goods, and welcome the establishment of label leagues or any other legitimate means having that end in view, being persuaded from experience that money so expended brings larger and altogether satisfactory returns. This leads me to remark for the benefit of the new label league that from Stratford to Berlin, and thence to Toronto, along the line of the G. T. R. R. there is an immense opening to oust non-union goods by advertising the union label.

The recent reduction of forty hotel licenses in a total of one hundred and fifty, has not as yet materially affected the local cigar trade in Toronto. Trade seems to be in its average normal condition. The union has its average membership, and all hands at work.

That the reduction in licenses has not so far worked to the detriment of trade and consequently in the matter of employment of our members, may be attributed to a variety of causes, the chief of which, in my opinion, lies in the fact that Union No. 27 of Toronto, has for many years built up an insurance against any disturbance in trade of that nature, by a generous expenditure of time and money in bringing the union label prominently before their fellow workers of other organizations and the public generally.

The policy of the local label committee has been that of permanent advertising on a large scale, and nowhere else have I seen it carried out so conclusively and at so little cost, and in my opinion, with such large returns. Advertising experts have time and again congratulated the local committee on being in possession of advertising space worth in their estimation hundreds of dollars, and not costing the committee that many cents.

This policy, supplemented by other advertising agencies more or less successful, and aided by the generous sympathy always manifested by the local union, has built up a wall of protection for the union label which, while not altogether perfect, at least prevents Toronto from being a slaughter market for non-union goods.

But the good work must go on. There is no other form of insurance yields so good returns, and it is up to the future label committee, as in the past, to devise and effect forms of advertising that will make the blue label supreme in the local market.

Speaking generally of the situation in western Ontario, and judging of the whole by the districts visited, it is my opinion that a time of general prosperity is at hand. New enterprises are being projected, and on every hand extensive improvements are being made, while the agricultural interests are happy in the surety of a good crop that is saleable at long prices.

Altogether it does not seem difficult to predict fairly good times for our craft in this end of Ontario, despite certain drawbacks which may affect us and for which our ultra-temperance friends are responsible.

Fraternally yours,
W. V. Todd,
Organizer.

Delaware, Ohio (dry)—One of the few towns where the trust can not boast of having no trust goods in town. Business quiet on account of surrounding country being dry. The mayor of the town is a cigar manufacturer—Mr. Hass. A splendid home trade town.

Zanesville, Ohio (dry)—A stogie town; no good for cigars, the boys working only a few days once in a while; could do nothing to better their condition; lots of empty store buildings; some of the men working in stogie factories.

Newark, Ohio (dry)—Had a meeting with local and they had me make a visit to the merchants, which will result in bettering their condition. This is also a stogie country, some of the boys working in stogie shops.

Mansfield, Ohio (wet)—This is certainly a Buckeye town, only three men and nine shops. There are three scab shops, the trust has about 650, and the other two about 100 girls. The boys are asleep, doing nothing.

Massillon, Ohio (wet)—This is a lively little town, but the boys have been asleep, doing nothing. Had a meeting with them; they had me make a visit to all the merchants with good success.

Canton, Ohio (wet)—This town has 70,000 population, but the cigarmakers have been asleep, only 22 working. I made a visit to some of the saloons. This town has the stogie habit bad, but if the cigarmakers would wake up and hustle they would be in better shape.

Akron, Ohio (wet)—This is a town of 70,000 people, and only five cigarmakers. It is without doubt the worst scab town in Ohio. They have got the stogie habit bad. One scab shop from Chicago here, but is not doing anything.

Kent, Ohio (dry)—Jurisdiction town of Akron; has five men working. Only a small town, but good for home trade. It has as many men at work as Akron.

Youngstown, Ohio (wet)—A city of mills; iron mills and a big strike on. Made a visit to most of the saloons with good results; had the business agent of the bartenders accompany me, and I want to say he was a big help.

Cleveland, Ohio—Put in two days with their business agent and found the saloon people fair to the label. Mr. Cannon told me that things were looking up; all hands at work.

Chicago Junction, Ohio (wet)—A town of 4,000, and only one man at work. A railroad town and a strike on of the machinists, and they ask people not to sell to the scabs, but they go in and buy scab goods. How is that for union men, asking the financial support of cigarmakers?

Norwalk, Ohio (wet)—A live bunch; had a meeting and visited all the saloons with good results. They gave a smoker to the different crafts on Monday night. I spoke to them on Labels, and why they should buy union products.

Sandusky, Ohio—Called the secretary down from his work and he told me that there was no use of waiting to have a meeting, as they did not think it would do any good.

Toledo, Ohio—I want to say that there is a big change for the better in this town. They have a business agent that is a crackerjack; a hard, consistent worker. Visited two scab shops, but we could do nothing with them. A Mr. Young, from New York, is at the head of one of the scab shops.

Thomas Dermody.

Lancaster, Pa., Sept. 4, 1909.

Since my last report in the Official Journal, I have concluded my campaign of label agitation in New Jersey, and am back again on Pennsylvania soil doing what I can to instill the spirit of unionism into our non-union fellow craftsmen who abound so plentifully in this state.

After concluding my work in Newark, I proceeded to Camden, N. J., and visited the Central Labor Union, and all of the local unions that held meetings during the week I spent in the city. There are several hundred cigarmakers living in Camden, most of them however, are employed in Philadelphia factories. The union cigarmakers working in Camden have been doing some effective label agitation, and the demand for union made cigars seems to be growing. One shop employing ten to fifteen cigarmakers, and making a hand made five cent cigar, has its goods on sale in one hundred and seventy stores in the city of Camden alone.

The various local unions in the city have been holding their own during the dull times and are now preparing to press forward when business becomes normal again. The fraternal visits I paid them were highly appreciated, and I am sure will help to promote the sale of union made cigars in Camden.

Atlantic City, altho it may truthfully be called the play ground of America's well to do citizens, there is nevertheless a resident population of some forty thousand odd souls who are compelled to hustle for a living the same as the rest of us. The city is not nearly so well organized as it should be, altho there are unions of Printers, Printing Pressmen, two unions of Electrical Workers, Steam Engineers, three local unions of Carpenters, comprising about seven hundred and fifty men, Painters and Decorators, Bartenders, Bricklayers and Central Labor Union. Besides these the Hack Drivers were organized while I was in the city, and a preliminary meeting held for the purpose of reorganizing the Plumbers.

I visited all who had meetings while I was there, and it is gratifying to be able to report that as a result of my talks to the union meetings some of the retailers called upon the business agent of the District Council of Carpenters and Joiners, and complained that some of their customers would no longer accept the cigars they had been accustomed to smoking but demand the kind with the union label on the box. And they, the dealers, desired to know where these union made brands could be secured. This information was conveyed to them thru Secretary Fielder of Union 199.

There are only a few cigarmakers in Atlantic City, but with a proper display of energy in systematic label agitation, there is no good reason why we should not have a union of from fifty to a hundred members there.

Since returning to Pennsylvania I have visited Reading, Womelsdorf, Ephrata, Denver, Akron and Rothsville. In all of these towns business is still more or less uncertain, and our non-union fellow craftsmen are apparently still content to bear their burden of poverty without any outward show of discontent. Some of the unions in the Ninth District however, are preparing for an organizing campaign this fall and winter, and we hope to awaken a spirit that will lead to material results.

Le Boycottage Déclaré Legal.

Les Cours Suprêmes des Etats du Montana et de la Californie diffèrent matériellement avec la décision rendue par la Cour Suprême des Etats-Unis et avec les déclarations prononcées par le Président Taft dans son discours d'inauguration concernant le "Boycottage secondaire." La dernière décision a été rendue par la Cour Suprême de Californie. En définissant la légalité du boycottage, la Cour a dit:

"Après s'être mis en grève, l'employé peut se livrer au boycottage, de la façon que ce mot est entendu ici. Comme il est employé ici, ce mot ne signifie pas seulement le droit qu'a l'intéressé à se retirer des affaires sociales et commerciales, mais aussi le droit pour lui, par tous les moyens légitimes, publications d'un caractère légitime et persuasion également légitime, soit orale, soit écrite, de déterminer les autres intéressés ou sympathisants, de retirer à leur patron leurs relations sociales ou commerciales. Il peut aller même plus loin et réquerir d'un tiers qu'il retire sa clientèle à un patron et il peut faire usage de l'intimidation morale et moyens coercitifs pour menacer le tiers d'un semblable boycottage contre lui-même, s'il refuse d'obéir. Cette dernière proposition implique nécessairement C dans le différent de travail existant entre A et B, bien qu'il n'ait lui-même aucun différent avec aucun d'entre eux. Il a en vue que C, sur la réquisition de B, et sous l'intimidation morale de celui-ci, de crainte que le même B ne le boycotte à son tour, soit de la sorte contraint à retirer sa clientèle à A, avec lequel cependant il n'a aucun différent personnel. Ceci s'appelle "Boycottage secondaire," et sa légalité est énergiquement déniée par les Cours anglaises, les Cours fédérales et les Cours de beaucoup d'entre les Etats de cette nation."

Dans la définition du "Boycottage secondaire," la Cour Suprême ne fait aucune distinction. La Cour dit en effet:

"A cet égard, cette Cour ne reconnaît aucune distinction réelle entre ce qu'on appelle boycottages primaire et secondaire. Chacun se repose sur le droit de l'union de retirer sa clientèle à son patron et d'induire par tous moyens légitimes à toutes autres personnes de faire de même, et dans l'application de ces moyens, comme les unions auraient l'incontestable droit de retirer à un tiers leur clientèle si celui-ci continuait à traiter avec leur patron de même elles auraient l'incontestable droit de notifier le tiers en question qu'elles auront à lui retirer leur clientèle s'il continue à agir de la sorte."

Les arrêts rendus par les Cours Suprêmes du Montana et de la Californie sont un pas fait dans la bonne direction. Ils concèdent aux organisations les mêmes droits légaux dont jouit le membre isolé. Ils sont cités comme des autorités en la matière dans les cas de boycottage qui se produisent dans les autres Etats.

Soi-Disant "Atelier Fermé."

Dans une discussion récente, un monsieur curieux nous demanda qui avait inventé l'expression "closed shop" (atelier fermé) et à sa grande surprise, nous l'informâmes que, à notre connaissance, cette expression avait été d'abord employée par l'Union Internationale des Fabricants de Cigares.

Le terme "atelier fermé" est généralement mal employé et mal interprété. Comme il avait été primitivement employé par l'Union des Fabricants de Cigares, et comme il doit encore être entendu, il s'appliquait aux ateliers fermés aux ouvriers syndiqués.

Quand un atelier est déclaré "unfair," pour des raisons sanitaires ou autres, il est fait une demande formelle au Conseil international exécutif de fermer l'atelier en question et si la demande est approuvée par le conseil, l'atelier est officiellement fermé à tous les membres de l'union.

Les Parry, Post, Van Cleave, Kirby et autres qui voudraient défaire les unions, ont usé de ce terme dans un sens qu'il est loin d'avoir en l'employant à discréditer le mouvement syndical en essayant de fermer l'atelier aux ouvriers non syndiqués et au public en général que nous prétendons fermer les ateliers à tous ouvriers non syndiqués.

Un atelier strictement syndiqué, mais appelé à tort "fermé," est une fabrique, moulin ou autre place de travail où seuls des ouvriers syndiqués peuvent travailler mais où la patron a le droit incontestable d'engager ou de congédier n'importe qui, y compris les ouvriers non syndiqués. Tout ce que nous demandons, ce à quoi nous nous attendons, c'est que dans des ateliers où, grâce à leurs efforts, les unions ont obtenu des conditions de travail honorables, telles que bons salaires et des journées de travail modérées, tous soient membres de l'union et partagent d'une manière égale les fardeaux et les responsabilités à encourir pour maintenir l'union et les conditions de travail honorables, de même qu'ils pourront en partager les bénéfices.

Aucun personne de bonne foi, jouissant d'une mentalité normale et d'un coeur généreux, ne peut réprover ce plan. Ne répétez jamais, à la manière des perroquets, ainsi que font des Van Cleave et les Kirby, "closed shop," alors que ce que vous voulez dire, c'est "union shop." Dites "union shop" et non pas "closed shop."

Uniones Obreras.

Las Uniones Obreras indican el alzamiento ordenado y el desarrollo de las clases produc-tivas de riquezas por medio de una marcha evolucionaria y educadora. Sus métodos y los resultados que ellas alcanzan aparecen en marcado relieve cuando se los comparan con los métodos erróneos y revolucionarios empleados por los entusiastas reaccionarios. Las revoluciones muy bien pueden, y han sin duda, detenido la degeneración de las naciones, pero ellas dejan sin embargo a la mayoría de la población en las mismas condiciones económicas. La gran revolución francesa puede haber detenido la degeneración del gobierno de entonces; pero, a parte de este resultado, ningún otro ha obtenido que sea una mejoración práctica de la situación económica de las masas. Al contrario, la organización de los productores en uniones obreras en Inglaterra no solo ha tenido el resultado de detener la tendencia de degeneración del gobierno, sino que también ha mejorado la situación económica de los trabajadores. En el primer caso, torrentes de sangre fueron vertidos y millares de preciosas vidas humanas fueron inmoladas sobre el altar del patriotismo, sin por eso haber se alcanzado cualquier mejoramiento de la situación económica de las masas; mientras que en el segundo, sin que se haya sacrificado ni una sola gota de sangre, ni una sola vida humana, grandes mejoramientos se han obtenido para el trabajador, sea bajo el punto de vista de una aumentación de los salarios, sea bajo el punto de vista del mejoramiento de los talleres de una manera sanitaria y otros relacionados con el bien estar de los obreros.

Este ejemplo demuestra bien cual es verdaderamente el sistema ordenado de desarrollo de las clases obreras sobre un plan de menor resistencia, menor coste, menor sacrificio y más grandes resultados prácticos.

Unionismo Industrial.

Los defensores del "unionismo industrial" han inventado un nuevo grito de guerra, y es: "Campo libre al trabajo." La significación de esta frase es harto nebulosa; difíciles penetrar en los misterios que la rodean. Ella pone el "unionismo industrial" en una nueva luz; significa, pues, ni más ni menos, el privilegio de usurpar la colocación de cualquier otro hombre en cualquier clase de empleo, que esté en huelga o no.

La Federación de Mineros del Oeste reclama a grandes gritos un campo libre en las cerveceras del estado de Montana; derechos iguales a los que disfrutaban los Trabajadores Unidos de las Cerveceras y el cambio de tarjetas de trabajo. Citamos lo siguiente del Periódico Oficial de los Trabajadores de las Cerveceras: "En la Convención que acaba de celebrar la Federación de Mineros del Oeste nuestra demanda que se retire a sus miembros que sirven actualmente como "rompedores de huelgas" en Butte no ha sido concedida. El caso es el mismo con los "scabs" empleados en Grand Falls y Anaconda, estado de Montana. El hermano Proebst le anuncia también por telegrama que no ha logrado alcanzar un arreglo satisfactorio en Grand Falls, después de haber celebrado varios conferencias, y recomienda que los fondos de huelga sean enviados directamente al hermano Herbst en Grand Falls."

Así pues, el grito de guerra de los "unionistas industriales" será en el futuro "campo libre al trabajo" en las minas de cobre, en las minas de oro, en las minas de plata, en las minas de carbón, en las minas de zinc y, en fin, aunque no sea esto lo menos importante, en las cerveceras. El desarrollo del "unionismo industrial" no parece tener ninguna frontera; en su grandeza y magnitud se aproxima al paisaje que en Nevada es conocido bajo el nombre de "Funeral Range."

Sea Cauto.

La incesante guerra hecha contra las organizaciones obreras por los grandes intereses apoyados por la Asociación de Manufactureros no se ha menguado en lo menor. Las grandes huelgas de los fabricantes de sombreros y de los marineros fueron inmediatamente seguidas por el ataque contra los obreros en las industrias del hierro y del acero ejecutado por el Trust del Acero y la lucha sigue tan activa como siempre. La actitud hostil de ciertos patronos, empeorada por la situación todavía inestable y las condiciones de trabajo laxas, ocasionando escasez de empleos, ha necesitado de la parte de las asociaciones obreras ser muy cautas en evitar toda clase de fricciones. Una dirección de sangre fría y un poco de paciencia con buen juicio prevendrán huelgas prematuras y la pérdida posible de los talleres unionistas.

Der Budehe.

Viele Cigarrenmacher, die in der Fabrikation keine Erfahrung besitzen, rechnen darauf, es eines Tages zum "Budehefabrikanten" zu bringen. Dieselben ersparen sich einige hundert Dollars — manchmal noch keine fünfzig — und fangen damit ein Geschäft an. Wenige haben Erfolg damit, unter Hundert nicht so viele wie man an den fünf Fingern abzählen kann. Zwischen dem Betrieb eines Budehe und einer richtigen Cigarrenfabrik, die zwanzig Arbeitern und darüber Beschäftigung giebt, ist ein himmelweiter Unterschied. Der Budehe-Boss hat seine paar Arbeiter beständig im Auge. Beim Strippen und beim Baden ist er beständig in deren Nähe und er arbeitet neben ihnen auf der Bank. Machen Sie irgend einen Fehler oder arbeiten sie ihm einmal nicht flint genug, so bemerkt er das sofort und ehe sie's wissen, liegen die ihm unliebsamen Arbeiter auf der Straße.

Der Budehe-Boss befindet sich in ewiger Selbstverlegenheit. Heute ist die Miete fällig, morgen ist Zahltag, Tabak muß gekauft werden und Cigarrenstiften und Steuermarken, oder es ist sonst eine notwendige Ausgabe zu machen. Er ist mit wenigen Ausnahmen fast ewig im Trudel drin.

Beim Einkaufen des Tabaks ist er im Nachtheil. Er kann jedesmal nur wenig kaufen und muß deshalb einen theureren Preis bezahlen als der Großfabrikant. Auch bei der Auswahl und dem Mischen des Tabaks ist er im Nachtheil. Man kann ein guter Arbeiter sein und braucht deshalb doch kein guter Geschäftsmann zu sein. Ein "Budehe" bewirbt sich in der Regel um eine Kundschaft, die am wenigsten lohnend und bei der es am theuersten ist, seine Waare abzugeben, wenn man den Zeitverlust und die Warenauslagen in Betracht zieht. Er muß das Jahr durch mehr arbeiten und steht sich durchschnittlich schlechter als der Fabrikarbeiter. Dabei arbeitet er härter als irgend jemand, arbeitet ohne zu wissen, was die Waare ihn eigentlich kostet, weil er die Absatzkosten und den Zeitverlust beim Tabakeinkauf nicht mitrechnet. Das giebt er alles mit zu und ist froh, wenn er einigermaßen das Leben dabei hat.

Man soll deshalb darauf hin arbeiten, recht viele anständige Unions-Arbeitgeber zu haben, weil damit unsere Mitglieder, wenn sie es wünschen, Arbeit zu annehmbaren Bedingungen erhalten können.

Man sei auf der Hut!

Der unerbittliche Kampf, den große Interessen, hinter denen die "Manufacturers' Association" steht, gegen die Arbeiterorganisationen führen, dauert ungeschwächt fort. Dem Streik der Seeleute und der Guttmacher ist der Angriff des "United Steel Trust" auf Arbeiter der amerikanischen Stahl- und Eisenindustrie auf dem Fuße gefolgt und der Kampf geht lustig weiter.

Die feindselige Haltung gewisser Arbeitgeber in Verbindung mit der fortdauernden Ungewißheit der Geschäftslage und des damit zusammenhängenden Mangels an Beschäftigung macht es unbedingt notwendig, daß die Mitglieder und Unionen möglichst wenig Anlaß zu Reibungen geben, wo dieselben sich vermeiden lassen. Eine ruhige Führung und etwas Geduld in Verbindung mit einem gesunden Urtheil werden über-eilte Streiks und vielleicht den Verlust von Union-Shops verhüten.

„Industrial Unionism.“

Vertreter des „Industrial Unionism“ erfan-den das neue Feldgeheim: Ein freies Feld für die Arbeit! Der Sinn jener Redensart ist dunkel. Es ist schwierig, den geheimnißvollen Schleier, von dem sie verhüllt, zu lüften. Der „Industrial Unionism“ wird dadurch in ein neues Licht gerückt. Es ist darunter das Recht zu verstehen, einen Menschen um seine Arbeit zu bringen, ob derselbe streift oder nicht streift.

Die „Western Federation of Miners“ schreit nach freiem Arbeitsfelde in Bierbrauereien, Montanas. Nach gleichem Recht sind Mitglieder der „United Brewery Workers“, dem Austausch der Arbeitsarten. Im Organ der „Brewery Workers“ steht folgendes zu lesen: „Im Convent der „Western Federation of Miners“, der eben stattfand, ist unsere Forderung, daß deren Mitglieder, die in Butte als „Streikbrecher“ dienen, abberufen werden, abgelehnt worden; ein gleiches geschah in Great Falls und in Anaconda, Montana. Auch hat Bruder Bröbille telegraphisch berichtet, es sei ihm nicht möglich gewesen, in Great Falls die Conferenzen zu einem befriedigenden Abschluß zu führen und er empfahl, dem Bruder Gerbst daselbst Streikgelber zu schicken.“

In der Zukunft wird das Feldgeheim der „Industrial Unionists“ lauten: Freies Feld für Arbeit in den Kupfergruben, in Goldminen, in Zinkminen, in Stollengruben und nicht zum Mindesten in Brauereien. Die Entwicklung des „Industrial Unionisms“ scheint unbegrenzt zu sein. An Großartigkeit läßt sie sich mit der Landschaft in Nevada vergleichen, die man dort als „Funeral Range“ kennt.

Femeslné unie.

Kemeslné unie znáti vzrůst a vývin bohatství tvořících tříd evolučním a vzdělávacím postupem. Jich způsob a výsledky liší se velice od revolučních bludných method používaných reakcionářskými entusiasmisty. Revoluce nepochoyb-ně obmezily degeneraci národů, avšak velké massy lidu nechaly v těch samých hospodářských poměrech. Velká francouzská revoluce třeba zastavila degeneraci panující vlády, avšak jinak nezlepšila nijak hospodářské poměry obecného lidu. Na druhé straně však organizace femeslné unie v Anglii nejen že zamezila degenerační tendence panující vlády, avšak značně i zlepšila životní poměry dělnictva. V prvním případě moře krve bylo prolito a myriady draho-cenných lidských životů bylo utraceno na oltáři patriotismu, jež však nemělo žádného výsledku v zlepšení hospodářských poměrů širokých mass; kdežto v druhém případě ani kapka krve nebyla prolita aniž žádný život utracen a vzdor tomu veliké výhody byly získány pro dělníky jak v zvýšení mezd tak i v zlepšení poměrů továr-ních a všeobecných pracovních poměrech.

Předcházející případ znázorňuje postupný vývin hnutí pracujících tříd v mezích nejmenšího odporu, nejmenšího vydání, nejmenších obětí a největších výsledků.

Kemeslné unie jsou přirozené a logické útulky výrobních tříd. Ony vedou přímo k vyplnění tužeb a nadějí. Bylo správně tvrzeno že stálá prosperita a vysoký vývin kteréhokoliv národa záleží na hospodářském blahobytu velkých mass občanstva. Dějiny a naše vlastní zkušenost jasně dokazují, že toho možno dosáhnout skrze hnutí femeslných unie. Výrobní schopnost kterékoliv země vyvine se v poměru schopnosti širokých vrstev spotřebitelstva. Neznám žádných lepších prostředků vypočtených na získání konsumentů v národě nežli když se široké massy spojí v femeslné unie a jich vlivem domáhají se více a více až získají všeho toho co vytvoří.

Tento výsledek bude neodvratně následovat úplnou pracovní unii, jež bude harmonicky pracovat ku dosažení jediného cíle. Tento nepopíratelný hospodářský fakt byl uznán zakladateli uniového hnutí a jest částí základů, na nichž všechny naděje a tužby spočívají.

Dosaň dělnických unie jest nedozrnlý, pakliže zůstane v přirozených mezích, jež jsou tak široké a rozsáhlé jako je sociální a hospodářská arena. Ony budou pokračovat v blahodárném vlivu na celé těleso práce, pokud nedosáhnou úplné spravedlnosti a rovnosti; pomalu ale jistě budou povznášet pracující massy, vždy zlepšující dělnické poměry, zvyšující mzdy, zkracující pracovní hodiny dokud nedosáhnou celého vítězku z práce, a konečně jich blahodárným vlivem založí hospodářské poměry, jež přivedou budou neúnavnou snahou praktických unionistů, ku zlepšení pracovních poměrů všemi poctivými a důslednými prostředky. Ne jako palác postavený na pískových základech, který se ztroskotá při první velké bouři, nýbrž raději system, jenž bude nezdolné státi jako výsledek inteligentní a dobře řízené práce, kde každý bude díliti v hospodářské a sociální rovnosti, a práce odměněna bude v plné své hodnotě.

Očinek průmyslové tiskné na a. n.ické unie.

Nejlepší a nejspolehlivější prameny dokazují, že dělnické organizace trpí úbytkem členstva a snižováním mzdy po dobu průmyslové nečinnosti, ale že oboje se rychle vzpruží jakmile se vrátí normální femeslné poměry. Kdežto členstvo všeobecného dělnického hnutí někdy se třeba zmenší, nespadne nikdy na původní bod, a však v dobrých časech opět vzroste na takový stupeň, jako nikdy před tím. Právě se, že před padesáti lety všechno členstvo organizované práce světa nepřesahovalo číselní 200.000, kdežto ti nejspolehlivější soudcové odhadují dnešní počet všeho členstva na 5.000.000.

NOTICE.

Financial secretaries when granting loans should, as required by section 104, enter loans in figures and letters. It is not necessary to punch cards.

The amendment adopted to Sections 76 and 77 does away with the issuance of retiring cards to all who continue to pay dues as beneficiary members.

Retiring cards are only for those who pay up and actually terminate all connection with the union in so far as the payment of dues is concerned.

Members who transfer from the 30-cent list to the 20-cent beneficiary membership list are simply changed from one class to another and deducted from one and added to the other.

Members who have not paid 30-cent dues for three years and quitting the trade under Section 76 and wishing to qualify for Section 77 as a beneficiary member should be kept on without any other change than to make a note of the intention on the ledger page. If such member desires to travel to another jurisdiction he should be given a transfer card and his intention to qualify as a 20-cent beneficiary member written on the transfer card. Such beneficiary members are not entitled to any benefits except sick benefits after one year's membership and whatever death benefits their term of membership entitles them to.

NOTICE TO OFFICERS AND MEMBERS.

In printing the nineteenth edition of the Constitution, an omission occurs in Section 77, on line 7. A comma and the words "and local assessments" should follow "International assessments." The sentence to read: "All International assessments, and local, assessments levied for label agitation purposes." This amendment as published in another place is correct.

If you hold any loan cards of no further use send them to this office.

Before granting or accepting retiring cards secretaries and members should consult Sections 76 and 77 of the Constitution.

NOTICE.—How to duplicate Loan Cards.

It frequently occurs that new secretaries through error or lack of knowledge, transfer the amount a member "has coming" instead of what he owes. In duplicating a card, figure up all the member has borrowed and subtract all he has paid, and if there is a balance against the member transfer to new card in red ink in figures and letters the amount due the International Union. Also enter on new card all that may be essential that you find on the old, then sign and seal it. Send the old card to the International office.

MEMBERS OUT OF WORK ARE NOT ENTITLED TO THE SIXTEEN WEEKS' PRIVILEGE IN DUES UNLESS THEY NOTIFY THE SECRETARY WEEKLY BEFORE THE EIGHTH WEEK. THIS INCLUDES TRAVELING MEMBERS, WHO SHOULD ALWAYS CARRY A CERTIFICATE AND HAVE SAME SIGNED WEEKLY.

Items for the Journal should be placed on separate slips of paper—not the backs of reports, etc.—in order to insure prompt publication, and should reach this office not later than the 10th of each month if intended for current publication.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address, if possible, so as to obviate delays, mistakes, etc.

In reporting deaths, kindly comply with the following and you will save time and unnecessary work: Give full name, number, date and place of initiation of member. Has member held retiring card? If so, did he pay his dues? This information relates only to such as you can obtain from the records of your own union. If admitted by card, state when and where from, and in addition send in such card, but place on your letter the information necessary as the latter is filed as a matter of record. Before paying death benefits study Sections 145 and 151, inclusive. Send in a death blank properly filled out for all death benefits paid.

If secretaries when ordering supplies will place the order on the regular blank, it will greatly simplify the work here and avoid unnecessary delay for those who order the supplies. We receive an average of 300 pieces of mail in the office daily. Sometimes an order is sandwiched into a two or three-page letter containing three or more different subjects, and there is danger in such cases of an order being overlooked. Hence we ask that in order to save unnecessary delay and annoyance you order on the regular blank, giving your name and address.

DECISIONS OF EXECUTIVE BOARD

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4 1909.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., by Union No. 455 of Galena, Ill., against the decision rendered by the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Tracy, Gariepy, Conrad Weber, Fitzgerald, Cronin and Gompers.

The basis of the appeal was Union No. 455 refused the label to a manufacturer because of alleged violation of the apprentice law. The appeal was taken to the International President, who reversed the action of the union. The union thereupon appealed to the Executive Board against the decision of the International President. The union claims that the manufacturer violated the apprentice law by putting a stripper to pack.

The International President bases his decision upon substantially the following grounds: That the evidence submitted by both sides shows that this manufacturer employed three journeymen and had no apprentice but the one in question. The constitution recognizes the right of employers to use apprentices provided they comply with Section 217, which states that employers shall at least employ one journeyman for full time before taking on an apprentice. That a manufacturer had a right to take on a packer apprentice instead of a cigarmaker if he so wills. That the manufacturer has complied with the constitution and is entitled to protection, and under the law the International President could not, in justice to all, render any other decision.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International President is sustained.

Fraternally,

Samuel Gompers,
First Vice-President.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4, 1909.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., by Union No. 307 of Reno, Nev., against the decision rendered by the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Tracy, Gariepy, Conrad Weber, Fitzgerald, Cronin and Gompers.

The basis of the appeal was Union No. 307 refused to pay out-of-work benefit to a member on the grounds that he refused to accept a position in another town. He appealed to the International President and his appeal was sustained. (Published in April, 1909, Journal.) The union thereupon appealed to the Executive Board against the decision of the International President.

The International President bases his decision upon substantially the following grounds: That the member was clearly within his rights when he refused to go after a job on insufficient information at a distance of one hundred miles or more from the union. That Section 128 of the constitution reads as follows in part:

"Any member refusing to work in a shop where work is offered him, or who neglects to apply for work in a shop if directed by the Financial Secretary or any officer of the union, or shop collector, shall not be entitled to any benefit until he has secured employment for at least one week. This will apply to jurisdiction towns within a radius of ten miles."

It will be seen that while the constitution provides that members shall always seek for employment, it places certain limits as to distance, etc. That if this member had returned the full amount of his loan and did not leave town, he had a right to register and receive out-of-work benefit.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International President is sustained.

Fraternally,
Samuel Gompers,
First Vice-President.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4, 1909.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., by Union No. 307, of Reno, Nev., against the decision rendered by the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Tracy, Gariepy, Conrad Weber, Fitzgerald, Cronin and Gompers.

The basis of the appeal was, as explained in the following clipping from the official Journal:

"E. M. Turner appealed against Union 307, of Reno, for fining him $25 and suspended him for dealing in non-union cigars. The member is a stockholder in a company wholesaling and retailing cigars and tobacco. He denies the implication of working against the interests of the union. The decision is that he be restored to membership and fine rescinded, and he be furnished with a copy of the by-laws for his future guidance."

The union claims that Mr. Turner was acting against the interests of the union and violating the by-laws. It appealed against the decision of the International President to the Executive Board.

The International President bases his decision upon substantially the following grounds: That the member, who carries a 25-year card, was not engaged in manufacturing cigars, but was a partner in a jobbing business, engaging in the wholesaling and retailing of cigars. That the laws do not prohibit a member of the union from being a jobber and handling all classes of goods. That were he a manufacturer, he would be violating the constitution by handling non-union goods. That the decision simply restores the member to his former standing and directs that he be furnished with a copy of the by-laws for his future guidance.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded, the decision of the International President is sustained.

Fraternally,
Samuel Gompers,
First Vice-President.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4, 1909.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board of C. M. I. U. of A., by Carl Nold, against the decision of the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Tracy, Gariepy, Conrad Weber, Fitzgerald, Cronin and Gompers.

The basis of the appeal was that Nold, who was financial secretary of the Union 480, Pittsburg, Kansas, and upon examination of his accounts a shortage was discovered which Nold denied existed in full, but admitted the portion of said shortage.

The International President based the decision on substantially the following grounds: That the evidence submitted by the union, together with the monthly financial statements, showed conclusively that the amount of the shortage charged against Nold was absolutely correct.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded the decision of the International President is sustained.

Fraternally,
Samuel Gompers,
First Vice-President.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20, 1909.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., by Union 47, of Quincy, Ill., against a decision rendered by the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Gompers, Tracy, Gariepy, Conrad Weber, Fitzgerald and Cronin.

The basis of the appeal was: Union 47 denied the use of the label to a certain manufacturer for alleged violation of the rules governing its use. An appeal was taken to the International President against the action of the union. The International President decided that the union had no good grounds to deny the label to this factory. The union thereupon appealed to the Executive Board against the decision of the International President.

The International President bases his decision on substantially the following grounds: That this manufacturer had complied with every rule governing the use of the label, and that the contract with a certain union paying a royalty for the use of its name was in no way against the law governing the use of the label. That it was not a violation of the section prohibiting the giving of presents, as no presents of any kind were given. That it is a common thing for manufacturers to pay for the use of a name for certain brands of cigars, and it would be a serious handicap to prohibit union manufacturers from doing so. That every honorable means should be used to encourage the sale of union made cigars, and this means complained of is in no way contrary to law.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded the decision of the International President is sustained.

Fraternally,
Samuel Gompers,
First Vice-President.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20, 1909.

In the case of the appeal to the Executive Board, C. M. I. U. of A., by William Mullen, cigar manufacturer of Tacoma, Wash., against a decision rendered by the International President, the vote was as follows:

Affirmative—None.

Negative—Gompers, Tracy, Gariepy, Conrad Weber, Fitzgerald, and Cronin.

The basis of the appeal was: Union 113 of Tacoma, Wash., demanded that a certain apprentice in the employ of Mr. Mullen be initiated, as her term of apprenticeship had expired. Mr. Mullen claims that the record of the union in this case is not correct and that said apprentice still had seven months to serve. The International President sustained the action of the union. Mr. Mullen thereupon appealed to the Executive Board against the decision of the International President.

The International President bases his decision upon substantially the following grounds: That the evidence submitted by the union shows that this apprentice had served the limit of three years. That said evidence is signed by the officers of the union. That the International President can see no good reason to reverse the action of the union.

In accordance with the vote cast and above recorded the decision of the International President is sustained.

Fraternally,
Samuel Gompers,
First Vice-President.

CORRESPONDENCE

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 12, 1909.

To State Federations, Central Bodies and the Labor Press—Greeting:

The tenth convention of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers convened in Chicago Sept. 20, 1909, and adjourned Oct. 2, 1909. This convention was the most important in the history of the organization, and one of the most representative ever held by the I. B. E. W.

At this convention legislation was enacted of great benefit to the Electrical Workers of the United States and Canada and of benefit to the general labor movement.

The report of the auditors of the I. B. E. W. and the Certified Audit Company of Springfield, Ill., show the financial affairs of the Brotherhood to be in excellent condition though hampered by injunctions secured against the I. B. E. W. by the seceders, and the books of the Brotherhood balance to the cent. This report was presented and read to the convention by the auditors and unanimously adopted and concurred in, as was the report of the Grand President, F. J. McNulty, and Grand Secretary Peter W. Collins.

Every insinuation and misrepresentation made by the seceders against the officers of the Brotherhood was brought before the convention in detail and disproved by the officers, and the convention emphasized the confidence of the I. B. E. W. in these officers by re-electing them without opposition.

Copies of the reports and proceedings of the convention will be forwarded to the State Federations, Central Bodies and the Labor Press.

At this convention provision was made giving the men misled by the secession movement headed by J. J. Reid and others an opportunity to return to the fold of the I. B. E. W. without hardship being imposed upon them, they being allowed to return upon payment of the current month's per capita tax.

The fight which the I. B. E. W. has made against secession during the past twelve months has been made for the preservation of the ideals and progress of labor against the forces of disruption. In this fight the I. B. E. W. has been loyally sustained by the American Federation of Labor and affiliated organizations.

As officers of the I. B. E. W., we would, therefore, ask the continuance of that co-operation and assistance to the end that the progress of our Brotherhood may go on apace so that all electrical workers can be brought into the fold of the Brotherhood and under the banner of the American Federation of Labor.

Fraternally,

Peter W. Collins,
Grand Secretary.

F. J. McNulty,
Grand President.

S. A. Knauss, Sec'y.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 9, 1909.

Please publish this letter in this month's Journal:

It has been reported throughout the country that there are all kinds of jobs open in Memphis, Tenn. This report is false and it has brought a great many cigar makers here who were unable to catch on. We advise cigarmakers to steer clear of Memphis, for there are no jobs open here at present, and furthermore the state officers are enforcing the prohibition laws which will make business bad for the cigar manufactory. I remain,

A. H. Johnson, Sec'y.

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 6, 1909.

In the September Journal you will notice Union No. 89 of Schenectady, N. Y. has submitted an amendment to the International constitution. For the benefit of Thos. P. Henry, who has been suffering with locomotor ataxia for the past five years, and constantly under the doctor's care. The doctors claim if he can get into a little business of some kind he will improve with treatment and plenty of exercise. While Union 89 does not advocate assessments in general, it believes in protecting the funds of the International Union for possible and probable conditions that may arise in the future, owing to the existing and constant growth of the American Tobacco Co. trust. A third or fifth assessment in extreme cases of disability of the applicant would save the International Union $550 (five hundred and fifty dollars), death benefit from $65 to $100 (sixty-five to one hundred dollars), sick and out of work benefit yearly for numberless years; while at the same time it would be more beneficial to the applicant and family. Hoping you will second and vote for our amendment, we remain

Cigarmakers' Union No. 89.

New York, Oct. 8, 1909.

We desire to call your attention to an amendment proposed by Union 144, and which we kindly ask you to give your earnest consideration and approval. Our reason for proposing this amendment is that for eighteen long years we have made applications to strike through the Joint Advisory Board, after a shop or shops have by secret ballot decided to make application for strike, and in every instance the application was submitted without a word of protest from either any individual member or from the International President, until the application to strike Feifer's shop was made, when some unknown protest was made, and the International President decided that we would have to submit the application to a referendum vote of the members according to the Constitution before the application would be submitted to the Local Unions.

It at this time takes from fourteen to sixteen days before the application for strike is sustained, and in under the ruling of the International President it will take one full month before an application from Greater New York can be sustained, therefore you can readily see at what disadvantage the New York Unions are working under for instead of striking a shop in the shortest possible time which would be of advantage to us, we are compelled to wait a full month and give the manufacturer plenty of opportunity to manufacture a large stock of cigars, and place him in a position where he can do battle with more determination and longer duration because of his supply.

We also desire to state that in the event of the New York unions being compelled to continue to make our applications for strike according to the decision of the International President in the Feifer application, that it will tend to disorganize instead of organizing the City of New York.

Fraternally yours,
Jacob Sinn,
John C. Hilsdorf,
M. Brown,
Committee of J. A. B.

McSherrytown, Pa., Sept. 8, 1909.

On June the fifth, 1909, there came into existence in Hanover, Pa., a freak, so-called organization, namely The Universal Cigar Makers and Packers Union, Inc.

A few disgruntled, suspended, and expelled members of the C. M. I. U. of A., coupled with the assistance of several unscrupulous manufacturers is what this fake affair is composed of. After temporarily organizing they made application to the Court of Common Pleas of York county, Pa., for a charter, which was granted after the thirty days notice was given.

As a charter is granted for the purpose of making money for the promoters of a corporation, the manufacturers using this label will have easy sailings so far as the securing of the use of this label is concerned. The President, F. J. Sneeringer, is a manufacturer who at one time had the use of the genuine label; but through repeated violations of the laws governing the use of same forfeited it in which the union was justified. Amongst his small number of dreamers whom he is scheming to use are several who were fined and expelled for working under the bill and general crooked work. One object is to sell their output to unfair dealers who will surely purchase for there is no limit to the selling price; neither is there any law covering the amount of hours of labor. This heads up I win and tails up you lose proposition is very small numerically and in a short time will be out of existence.

In adopting their label they not only have a deception but a counterfeit pure and simple. The color and width is the same, in length it is a fractional part longer, the wording is changed slightly with the exception of the signature of the President, and N. C. M. & P. U. instead of C. M. I. U. of America. It is printed on both ends of the label with a red seal on one end and which can be put on the side pasted on the box and not seen and seal would appear on the right hand end of the label no matter which side is outside. One manufacturer has already discontinued the use of this useless illegitimate piece of paper and at present less than twenty-five (25) cigarmakers are employed under its banner. Cigars have at intervals been returned and more will be returned in the future through the energetic work of business agents in the several towns and cities, and what at one time seemed real to these duped individuals will turn out to be a dream or will-o-wisp at which they are grasping with as much success as a drowning man at a straw.

Philip Wagaman.

Los Angeles, Sept. 27, 1909.

In looking over our September Journal for some criticism on my plan of the International Union, creating and copyrighting Brands for 5-cent and 10-cent cigars as proposed in the August issue, I notice one favorable article by Mr. Tillbrook, who sees the value of such plan and I take the silence of the balance as being one of consent. The safeguards that an appointed commission could surround this plan with would make deception impossible. The plan is well understood but there seems to be some objection because we could not force all manufacturers to use the best quality of material. All manufacturers would use it if the men working for them would be held responsible in the same sense as the violation of any of our laws, and we could without doubt have a first-class cigar on the market. Do not let us lose sight of the fact that our organization must be up and doing, and bury this "Isimitis" fight, that has been going on for so long a period, that I feel sorry for wasting so much good paper and printers ink.

Have we not had an experience where sectional legislation was to make our label useless? Do you think they will stop at one check? It will come up again and may be successful. Then what? We will bemoan our fate as we do in the states where the dry wave has forced over one-half the cigarmakers to do something else for a living. By this plan we can avoid this objectionable legislation as was attempted. Now let us go a little farther and see what we can do in this direction. We all know that our manufacturers are facing many obstacles in placing our cigars on the market. In the first place they must invariably pay a very much higher scale of wages than our strong competitors; that no one will deny. Then we have thousands of small factories all over the country that cannot buy the raw material as low as the larger unfair manufacturers and the result is another obstacle. The buying of the raw material is a very essential factor to the success of any factory. The raw material market is open to all that have the necessary cash to do business but our manufacturers are not a unit, as we, the International Union, are. Why could not the International Union step in right here and make itself felt as no union ever has done before in the interests of employee and employer, and the trade in general? If our manufacturers could have the raw material less the leaf dealers' profit laid down at their doors what would it mean to us and them? Now this could be done, and done easily and no one would be the loser. I mean that the International Union by a special act could become the leaf handler for all of our manufacturers by simply levying an assessment of, we will say for example, $10.00 on all members to be paid in twenty weeks. I think we could raise nearly a half million dollars, to be used by experienced men to go into the tobacco fields and corral as much raw material of any class desired by the trade of our manufacturers. We would not have a pound left on our hands at the end of the year and all that cash that was raised by the special assessment would be returned, or left as a fund to do the same trick over again; is there a member that would regret his $10.00 being applied to such use? By this means our manufacturers would be profiting and we would be reaping a restful existence without strikes or lockouts. We could go side by side with the trusts and have as much money to put into the scheme as they have and they would look upon our International Union as a new Richmond in the field. Do not let us say we could not do it, the affairs of our organization are managed better than any other institution of any character; the International officers are capable men able to manage any undertaking with the backing of the membership. All that is needed is a little courage and a few dollars of each member. We could with our Havana Union enter that field for Havana material, which is a difficult matter for our manufacturers to obtain for a reasonable price. I do believe that by the adoption of these plans the International Union would be on a solid foundation not to be shaken by any of the industrial strife that is proving so disastrous in different parts of this United States. Hoping that the members will study these ideas and improve on them and second our amendment which will appear in the next issue.

H. E. Martens, Secretary.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 7, 1909.

In the last issue of the Journal, a gentleman who signs his letter "Plain Talk" tries to show why the members of the C. M. I. U. should vote in favor for an amendment to section 67, as proposed by Union 179. Personally I have nothing to comment on said amendment, but the way Mr. Plain Talk is ripping up the Belgians, in order to gain sympathy for the amendment, is certainly outrageous, and I therefore will show Mr. Plain Talk that he is misinformed, and his slander uncalled for.

To begin with, he claims that "any girl or boy can join the Union immediately upon beginning to work at the trade." That is not so, because more than 80 per cent. of the Belgian cigarmakers start to learn the trade at the age of 7 or 8, and they have to be a perfect cigar maker and at least 16 years of age before they are admitted to membership.

There is no such a thing as academies to make cigar makers either in Antwerp, Brussels or Grammont, the so-called "Klondyke" per Mr. Plain Talk.

Mr. Plain Talk caps the climax with this point: "There is not 10 per cent. of these newcomers who ever learn enough English to hold a conversation." Well, well, if that is a good reason to keep the Belgians out of this country and build a fence around New England cigar shops, then I will certainly vote for the amendment, but I will tell Mr. Plain Talk that last summer and for the last five winters more than 20 per cent. of the Belgians attended evening schools.

You're also misinformed, Mr. Plain Talk, in regard to that communication from a Belgian boss to Mr. Huntoon of Huntoon & Gorman, Providence, R. I. This Belgian boss is no cigar manufacturer, but a steamship ticket agent for the Red Star Line; he also runs a printing shop, and who tried to do business in an illegal way; none of the Belgians approved this action.

I will not touch that part where Plain Talk speaks about an "organization of Belgians within the C. M. I. U. and pay weekly dues," the members of that organization will take care of that, I presume.

Here is a misstatement: "The Belgian Union pays an immigration benefit of from 5 to 20 dollars." The word "immigration" should read "traveling," and add the following: "to members who are in good standing for one year or more $5.00, two years or more $10.00, three years or more $15.00 and four years or more $20.00, and in case members return within 3, 6, 9 or 12 months respectively, all moneys to be paid back." The above section has already been repealed. For the benefit of Plain Talk I wish to say that Mr. Henri Yuchters, National Secretary of Belgium, does not or never did issue foreign cards, but local secretaries do.

Here is a point where Plain Talk makes a distinction: "We have full respect for the old school of Belgians, especially those who came here years ago from Brussels and Antwerp, . . . but the latter day importation is of a different class, coming principally from the 'Klondyke' of Belgium, being morally and mentally deficient." The Belgians of the old school are fine fellows, etc., so Mr. Plain Talk says; he pretends to be in love with them. I know why and so does he, because he's afraid they will answer his attack upon their countrymen; that's why they're fine fellows, according to Plain Talk. The Klondyke gang are no good, they're fools, brutes, ignoramuses, savages, etc.; of course they're not all angels, you will always find some black sheep, and you'll find them amongst all nationalities, Americans included; but if that is a reason Mr. Plain Talk, why you are in favor of the amendment, that you certainly would vote against the amendment if the Klondyke gang were as good fellows as the Belgians of the old school, and your great fight would be nil!

Calamity seems to be your slogan. "Conditions in New England are critical," but those 700 Belgians who are in New England are not to blame for that, the Belgians did not create the panic, and furthermore, conditions all over the country are critical; the Belgians can't help that, but you, Mr. Plain Talk, could help some, if you would only agitate in the right direction. Start right now; state and city elections are right at hand; cast your vote for men who will enact laws beneficial to the workers, and, defeat such men who make laws to allow into this country free of duty 150,000,000 cigars made by Filipinos whose standard of living is far below ours, but nevertheless we're compelled to compete against their product. Yes, Mr. Plain Talk, defeat such men who are continuously downing the trade union movement; that's where the root of the evil exists.

Hoping, Mr. Plain Talk, that I have not hurt your feelings, and that in the future, when you again write letters to say nice things about the Belgians, you will have courage enough to sign your full name under such letters, I am Emile De Bie.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 16, 1909.

I am enclosing card of Miss Melanie Andries issued by the union of Grammont, Belgium, to show you how some of these locals evade our law. Miss Andries has been in Boston for three years and five months. Her statement before the Executive Board of our local is as follows:

MILANIE ANDRIES' STATEMENT.

My name is Milanie Andries. Age 21.
I came to Boston from Belgium, April 15, 1905.

Returned to Belgium, Nov. 3, 1908.
I have been in the United States three years and five months.

I was a member of the Strippers' Union of Boston for nearly three years.

My father taught me the trade before I came to this country. While I attended school I made bunches.

I was at the trade for one year before I joined the union.

I was a member of the Belgium Union for nineteen or twenty months.

My father thought I was too small to go to work when I first came here.

My father works for Mr. Traiser.

This last time I was in Belgium for nine months and worked for my aunt.

My aunt had with me five at work. She runs a union shop. Her address is as follows:

Leontinia Van den Driesschei,

124 Rue de Lassines,

Grammont, Belgium.

Some time ago Mr. Denies, the National President of the Belgian Federation, wrote to us requesting us to refuse all cards from Belgium that do not bear the seal of the Federation as well as the local seal. In compliance with above request we offered an amendment to our constitution which is pending.

Dear Sir: We desire to draw your attention to this card which we enclose, as you will observe that the secretary states she was a member of their society from July 4, 1904, to Aug. 28, 1909, a period of a little over five years, when in point of fact she was in the U. S. from April 15, 1905, to November, 1908, a little over three years, and they cover the period in which the secretary of the union in Grammont says she was a member of their organization.

In reply to a question why she did not get a job at cigarmaking when she came here, she says her father says she was too small to go to work when she came here, but she did go to work stripping in a cigar factory.

She herself states she was only a member of the Belgian Union for nineteen or twenty months.

Mr. Denies, president of the Belgian Federation, asks us to refuse all cards unless they bear the seal of the Federation as well as the seal of the local. This card bears both seals, yet evidently it is a fraudulent card. What is the value of his seal?

Has he any method by which he can verify the period of membership stated on the card? What is his system?

Union No. 97 would like to have you investigate this matter and let us know what your findings are. You may be able to ascertain from them things we cannot.

She says she has been at the trade for six years. I enclose application blank.

She says she is 21 years old. That she is in this country for three years, that she has been six years at the trade, making nine years in all, which would leave her 12 years of age when she first worked at the trade.

Kindly return the card, as she wants it if she cannot work here. Please publish this for the benefit of local unions, especially New York, Philadelphia, Manchester and New Haven.

I have written to the secretary of the Strippers' Union for the date of her membership and withdrawal. Will mail it as soon as I get it.

Fraternally yours,
Henry Abrahams, Sec'y.

THE AMERICAN TOBACCO CO.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 1, 1909.

To the Members of the C. M. I. U. of A.—Fellow-craftsmen: If we would add greatly to the power of our unions we must first study the financial records of the American Tobacco Co. and its kindred organizations, to realize the power "the trust" is gaining over our industry, and we must then act upon the knowledge. An examination of these records should make a cigarmaker sit up and think, for there is no doubt we are "up against a stiff proposition"—a condition which is closing in upon us while we do nothing. We must act now, or lose an opportunity we may hardly regain.

Having only covered the data in small part I am convinced that our relationship as an organization to the American Tobacco Co. to be of so great an import as to urge the holding of a national conference which shall devise ways and means of bringing the employees of the trust factories under our jurisdiction. In this manner we shall not only be able to check their further encroachments upon our present advantages, but what is better still, greatly strengthen our position in the tobacco world.

By an amendment to our constitution our International President, subject to the approval of the Executive Board, could be empowered to bring such a conference into existence. Suppose a committee of some 35 members of our organization together with the president and members of the Executive Board were to come together in a centrally located city to map out a plan which will enable us to cope successfully with the Am. Tob. Co. The conference after due deliberation to suggest the necessary changes in our constitution; devise ways and means of organizing the employees of the trust factories; provide for the establishment of a national label agitation bureau that shall simplify by centralizing our label work; decide upon the establishment of a printing plant and upon such other measures as shall bring to us a greater return from the forces already at our command.

We must move forward or we shall go backward, and it is my conviction that the aggressions of the Am. Tob. Co. not alone justifies the holding of such a conference but makes it necessary. My object is to present some data upon "the trust," hoping that it may lead to a full and intelligent discussion of our present needs and to the action necessary to secure our greater advancement. This data I have culled from the most reliable sources, namely: Moodys (1909) and Poors (1909) Manual, The Tobacco Industry in the U. S." by Meyer Jacobstein, Ph. D., certificates of incorporation, court records, etc. I think you will agree with me that the matter herein presented gives a good view of our enemy, who if left unchecked upon the field, will some day determine whether the C. M. I. U. of A. is to be or not to be a power for good to those who earn their bread and butter making cigars, to the trade itself, and to our country.

The American Tobacco Company was first chartered in Virginia in 1889, it was at the climax of a fierce competitive struggle between the five leading manufacturers for the control of the cigarette market of the country. These five cigarette manufacturing concerns, when working independently, devised the most startling and expensive advertising methods ever known in the tobacco industry. For instance, in 1884 the firm of W. Duke, Sons & Co. bought 380,000 folding chairs, painted Duke's Cameo cigarette advertisement on the back of each of them and distributed them in all the cigar stores of the country. It is said that out of one year's profit of a million dollars the five members of the firm of W. Duke, Sons & Co. each drew as salary the small sum of $166.66 per month, and spent the balance for advertising. Immediately after the bill of incorporation of the Am. Tob. Co. passed both houses and was signed by the governor of Virginia it was a step regretted and an effort was made to repeal the charter. The reason given was that this trust "will eventually control the industry and squeeze out the little dealers." In the early part of January, 1890, the Virginia charter was annulled.

The five companies then applied to the state of New Jersey, the home of trusts, where they were incorporated on Feb. 21, 1890. This second American Tobacco Co. was capitalized for 25 millions. Its stock was distributed as follows:

	Per cent.
W. Duke, Sons & Co.	$7,500,000 30
Allen & Ginter	7,500,000 30
The Kinney Tob. Co.	5,000,000 20
Wm. S. Kimball & Co.	2,500,000 10
Goodwin & Co.	2,500,000 10

The stockholders of the Am. Tob. Co. met with the stockholders of the Continental and Consolidated Tobacco Companies (manufacturers of smoking and chewing tobaccos) in the year 1904 and adopted a plan which merged these three large concerns into one. It was chartered in New Jersey under the name of the American Tobacco Co. with an authorized capital stock of 300 millions. This third Am. Tob. Co. manufactures cigarettes, little cigars, plug and smoking tobacco in its factories which are located at Richmond and Danville, Va., Middleton, Ohio, Durham, N. C., Louisville, Baltimore, New Orleans, St. Louis, Chicago, Philadelphia and New York.

The actual issue of stocks and bonds of the Am. Tob. Co., according to its latest report, is as follows:

1908.
Preferred (6%)	$ 78,689,100
Common ($100 par)	40,242,400
Gold bonds (6%)	54,277,000
Gold bonds (4%)	53,556,100
Total	$226,764,600

The company pays a regular dividend of 10 per cent on its common stock in addition to which it has distributed an extra dividend as follows: 1905, 10 per cent; 1906, 12 per cent; 1907, 15 per cent; 1908, 22½ per cent. This common stock is never offered to the public; it is owned by the "insiders."

After an intense fight led by James Buchanan Duke of the Am. Tob. Co. against the Imperial Tobacco Co. (an organization of the leading tobacco house of Great Britain) for the control of the British market they "got together." The Imperial Tob. Co. was forced to surrender to its American invader. The stockholders of the American and the Imperial Tobacco Companies formed the British American Tobacco Co., Ltd., with a capital stock of £6,100,000. The American stockholders own two-thirds and the Imperial one-third of the capital stock. Mr. Duke is president of the board of directors which is composed of eighteen members, twelve of whom represent the Am. Tob. Co. The company was incorporated Sept. 27, 1902, under the laws of Great Britain and Ireland. It has a legal right to acquire the export trade of the Imperial, the Ogdens and the American tobacco companies. The British-Am. Tob. Co., Ltd., owns the whole or a majority of the capital stock of each of the following named companies engaged in the manufacture and sale of tobacco and its products.

The British-Am. Tob. Co. owns a majority of the common stock of the Imperial Tobacco Co., Ltd., of Canada. This company was incorporated under the laws of the Dominion of Canada on June 11, 1908. Its capital stock is 11 millions, divided as follows: 1,000,000 shares of 6 per cent preferred (par $5) and 60,000 share of common stock (par $100). The Imperial Tob. Co. of Canada has acquired "as going concerns" the good will and business assets of the following companies: The Empire Tob. Co., Ltd., the Am. Tob. Co. of Canada, 4,220 of the 5,000 shares of stock (par $100) of the B. Honde Co., Ltd., 250 of the 500 shares (par $100) of the National Snuff Co., Ltd. The Imperial also holds the Canadian agency for all the products of the Am. Tob. Co. of the U. S. and its associated concerns.

The Am. Tob. Co. also owns a majority of the capital stock of the P. Lorillard Co., incorporated in New Jersey July 1, 1891, for 5 millions. This business was first established in 1760.

The Am. Tob. Co. owns a majority of the common stock of the American Snuff Co., which was incorporated in New Jersey, March 12, 1900, for 25 millions. The Am. Snuff Co. acquired the business of manufacturing and selling snuff of the American, the Continental and the P. Lorillard tobacco companies. The Am. Snuff Co. produces 95 per cent of the snuff manufactured in the United States. The Am. Snuff Co. controls the following concerns, in fee simple or by ownership of a majority of stock: The Atlantic Snuff Co., Philadelphia; the Geo. W. Helme Co. of Helmetta, N. J.; the Southern Snuff Co., Memphis; the Burton & Condon Co. of Nashville, and the Stewart Snuff Co. of Clarksville, Tenn.; the Helmetta Mercantile Co. of New Jersey; the W. E. Garrett & Sons and the Stewart-Ralph Snuff Co. of Philadelphia, and the Dental Snuff Co. of Lynchburg, Va. The Am. Snuff Co. has paid annual dividends ranging from 10 per cent in 1904 to 14 per cent in 1908 on its 12½ millions of common stock. Its net earnings is reported to be as follows:

1905	2,633,550
1906	2,781,867
1907	2,890,536
1908	3,474,319

About eight years ago the Am. Tob. Co. made its first open move to get control of the entire cigar manufacturing industry by the organization of the American Cigar Co. with a capital stock of 10 millions. Its stock was increased in 1906 to 40 millions, a majority of which the Am. Tob. Co. owns. This company was incorporated in New Jersey, Jan. 12, 1901. It acquired the good will of the following concerns:

Powell, Smith & Co., New York.
S. Levy & Co., New York.
M. W. Mendel & Bro., New York.
Barlow, Rogers & Co., Bingham, N. Y.
Hamburger, Homen & Co.
Roth, Bruner & Felt Co., Cincinnati.
Hummel-Vogt Co., Louisville.
Havana-American Cigar Co.
Brown Bros. Co., Detroit.
The Havana Tobacco Co.
P. Whitlock Cheroot Co.
The American Stogie Co.

It is reported that the Am. Cigar Co. is negotiating for the purchase or absorption of the United Cigar Manufacturers Co., which is said to control the manufacture of 7 per cent of the cigars produced in the United States. The capital stock of the Am. Cigar Co. is divided as follows:

Preferred (6%)	$10,000,000
Common (par $100)	10,000,000
Gold notes (4%)	20,000,000

The next earnings, after deducting all charges and expenses of management, is reported to be as follows:

1906	$2,682,379
1907	1,887,098

The figures for 1908 are not yet made public.

The Am. Tob. Co. owns a majority of the common stock of the American Stogie Co. The Am. Stogie Co. was incorporated in New Jersey Feb. 14, 1903, and acquired the entire stogie and toble making business of the American, the Continental and the Consol tobacco companies and the Am. Cigar Co., capital stock $11,000,000 common and $976,000 7 per cent preferred.

The Am. Tob. Co. owns a majority of the stock of the Havana Tobacco Co. The Hav. Tob. Co. was incorporated in New Jersey, May 28, 1902, for the purpose of manufacturing and dealing in cigars, cigarettes, cheroots, etc. The Hav. Tob. Co. owns a majority of the capital stock of the Havana Commercial Co., the J. S. Murias y Ca., H. de Cubanas y Carbajal, Henry Clay and Bock & Co., Ltd., also a large share of the Havana Cigar and Tobacco Factories Ltd.

Capital Stock.

Common	$30,000,000
5 per cent preferred.....	5,000,000

Total$35,000,000

The financial statements of the Hav. Tob. Co. show an increasing deficit each year. This is thought to be due to the low grade of tobacco and workmanship of the trust made Cuban cigars. Be this true or not, it is a matter of general knowledge that Cuban cigars do not stand as high in the estimation of the American smoking public as they did when the various companies now absorbed by the trust were independent firms.

On May 16, 1901, the United Cigar Stores Co. was incorporated in New Jersey for the purpose of establishing places for retailing cigars, tobacco, etc. The U. C. S. Co. probably owns from five hundred to six hundred stores (I have not learned the exact number). The capital stock of the United Cigar Stores Co. is as follows: $750,000 preferred 7 per cent cumulative, the American Tobacco Co. owns all of this; common stock (par $100) $1,250,000, of this amount only $900,000 is outstanding, the American Tobacco Co. owns $600,000 of this stock; 6 per cent debentures issued by the company amount to $2,850,000, the Am. Tob. Co. owns all these bonds. The first dividend of the U. C. S. Co. was paid in November 1904, amounting to 21 per cent. Since that year a regular annual dividend of 7 per cent has been paid. In face of these facts the United Cigar Stores have the audacity to say that their establishment has nothing to do with the tobacco trust.

Another company was organized to control the retail cigar stand trade. It was incorporated in New Jersey under the name of the National Cigar Stands Co. The capital stock of this company is $500,000. Whether or not this corporation is owned by the Am. Tob. Co. I have not as yet been able to learn with certainty, but it is a somewhat suspicious circumstance that it "pushes" only brands of cigars made in trust factories.

It will interest the members of our union to know that the National Cigar Stands Co. has been forced to give up business in Massachusetts. The company began operating in this state by filing its certificate of incorporation with the Secretary of the Commonwealth July 20, 1905. Filing its certificate is required of all foreign corporations doing business in our commonwealth. On Jan. 18, 1909, the company notified the Secretary of State that it "has ceased to do business in Massachusetts." This is no doubt the result of three causes: the label agitation of the New England Label Conference, the "missionary work" of the label committees of our unions with the consequent demand for brands of cigars made in the state.

The United Cigar Manufacturers Co., which the trust is negotiating to assimilate, was incorporated in New York, April 28, 1906, with a capital stock of 20 millions. Its output is said to be 400,000,000 cigars annually. The combination owns 19 factories in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. It owns the entire $300,000 of capital stock of the Straiton & Storm Co., the $25,000 capital stock of the Lichenstein Bros. Co., $236,000 of the $400,000 capital stock of the Geo. L. Storm Co. The three largest cigar factories in the United States were absorbed by the United Cigar Manufacturers Co., namely, Kerbs, Wertheim & Co., Hirshorn, Mack & Co. and the Straiton & Storm Co. The net earnings of these three concerns for the year before they were merged was $1,262,787.

The bill of complaint of the United States government against the American Tobacco Co. (1907) contains this interesting information, which has no doubt been taken directly from the Internal Revenue reports:

	Total product of the U. S.	Product of the trust.	Controlled by trust.
M'nuff'ct'd tobacco, chewing and smoking (lbs.).....	363,000,000	282,000,000	77 per cent
Snuff	23,666,000	22,500,000	95 per cent
Cigarettes	6,328,000,000	4,900,000,000	77 per cent
Small cigars.....	995,000,000	905,000,000	91 per cent
Cigars, stogies, etc.	7,375,000,000	747,135,000	11 per cent

From the data given it is probably not too much to say that 20% of the cigars manufactured in the United States are produced by the trust. The Am. Tob. Co. controlled the output of 11% of the cigars made in the U. S. two years ago; we must add to this the 7% of the United Cigar Manufacturers Co. and to this 18% must be reckoned the steady advance made in other lines.

Here is a condition, not a theory. And although I am no pessimist, for I am convinced that we shall meet the condition and carry off the victory, I have presented this dry matter, which is for us a vital issue. Now the question is shall we take the common sense method of providing for a conference which will take a vigorous hold of the condition that we are up against? Does it not warrant the holding of a National Conference?

David Goldstein.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 4, 1909.

The result of our special meeting of October 1st at which it was proposed to reconsider the action of our last regular meeting which sustained the Executive Board in refusing to accept a Belgium card of nearly two years standing, and further not to concur in the decision of the Executive Board in refusing to accept all Belgium cards pending an investigation by our International President was a surprise to a considerable number of the members of Union No. 97.

Trusting in common sense and justice we entertain the hope that after both sides of the question are presented to our members, the mistake made at our last regular meeting will immediately be rectified before irreparable injury is inflicted. Who could be other than surprised to see such an unwarranted injustice heaped upon foreigners who constitute at least ninety per cent of the membership.

This action directed against the Belgium people shows clearly that there exists in Union No. 97 an element which for years has carried on an agitation with malicious intent to array ignorance and prejudice against a class of people whose loyalty to trade unionism stands second to none, and whose organization ranks among the very highest in the labor movement of the world.

Let us go into the merits of the controversy.

A few weeks ago a young lady applied for membership in Union 97. This party carried a Belgium card which stated that she was a member of Cigarmakers' and Tobacco Workers' International Union of Belgium for about five years. After being questioned the young woman stated that she had been working in Boston as a tobacco stripper for three and a half years, after which she left for Belgium about one year prior to the application for membership. She further said she had already been a cigarmaker when she first arrived here, and that she had in her possession a union card nearly one year old.

All branches of the tobacco industry have access to the membership of the International Cigarmakers' and Tobacco Workers' Union of any country in Europe. Accordingly, the lady's card of the Boston Strippers' Union was honored by the Belgium International. After being a member for about ten months she came back to this country.

A secretary of any country in Europe when issuing a card, states the exact time such a member belonged to the union, without specifying in which country he or she has previously held a card. All that is required is that a union from which the applicant comes is based upon the same principles as the union first applied to. The Strippers' Union of Boston is certainly recognized in Belgium as a bona fide organization.

The young lady in question presented her union card to the Executive Board of Union 97, and they immediately forwarded it to Chicago, and there it was declared to be a fraud by President Perkins, who in turn suggested to the Boston Executive Board their right to refuse any Belgium card which showed the slightest evidence of fraud, leaving the burden of proof to the applicant.

Shortly after this, a youth arrived here with a Belgium card a little less than two years old, and although the boy had positive proof that he had been in the trade for three years prior to joining the union in his own country he was refused membership by the Executive Board and was obliged to leave his job. An appeal followed at the first regular meeting and was not sustained by the membership of Union 97.

We emphatically assert that there has been no fraud committed whatsoever, not a mistake, not an omission, no neglect on the part either of the local or international secretaries by whom the card was signed.

This affair shows indisputably that there exists a conflict in the International Union of Europe and the C. M. I. U. of America.

Going back to the action taken by 97, I ask all true union men whether the stand taken by that union body is an honest one? For instance, when two or more cigarmakers applied for membership by foreign cards, all in accordance with the laws of the C. M. I. U.

CHICAGO, OCTOBER 15, 1909.

The total product of cigars in the United States for the month of August, 1909, as compared with the same month of 1908 was: August, 1909, 517,154,359; August, 1908, 500,504,437, showing an increase of 16,649,922, and for the two months of this fiscal year ending August 31st, the total production was 1,026,762,041, and for the same two months ending August 31st, 1908, the production was 1,028,643,347, showing a decrease of 1,881,306.

The International Union has just about held its own during the depression, which is remarkable as well as gratifying. There is no reason why we should not forge ahead now and we will with a little renewed activity on the part of all willing workers. Considerable also depends upon the manufacturers who to be successful must adopt modern methods and keep the standard of their goods always up to par. The label alone will not sell cigars, to do this requires energy, pluck and perseverance on the part of the employer and a line of goods always up to the standard of the best. Unions should co-operate with the manufacturers in an earnest effort to beat back the danger of a gigantic trust in our trade. The methods, styles and practices of 25 to 30 years ago will not do in this race and must be discarded by those who expect to stay in the race and be successful.

Trade unionists often declaim against and vigorously assail the judiciary of the country, some of our courts and some of our judges, and in some cases with ample justification. Occasional cases come under our observation which seem to warrant the assertion that a little reform in this direction might be profitable and a credit to the labor movement if inaugurated at home. In some cases unfortunate members are brought before the judiciary or court of the union, tried, condemned and convicted more because they may be generally disliked rather than because of the seriousness of the offense committed. Sometimes a member is tried and convicted and severe sentences imposed without giving the member an opportunity to be heard in his own defense.

We complain because judges take the law into their own hands, issue injunctions, curtail the right to free speech and a free press, and very justly so. Sometimes, however, whole unions, central bodies and state bodies or the majority thereof take the law into their own hands and on some fancied or real grievance withdraw from the parent body or are expelled for deliberate insubordination to plainly written and existing laws, which are usually made by the members themselves. This is evidenced particularly by the Secession movement in the Electrical Workers' Union, which is causing more trouble, discord and contention in the labor movement than anything else of recent occurrence.

Let us by all means continue to protest against unjust and arbitrary action taken contrary to the laws and facts, on the part of some of our courts and some of our judges, but don't let us forget to observe the laws in our own unions, which we have made ourselves. The trade unions, in order to be in a position to justly criticize with effect, should clean its own back yard, and set the pace and example in the matter of handing out even-handed justice and a compliance with and strict adherence to all the trade union laws.

The 29th annual convention of the American Federation of Labor will be held at Toronto, Canada, beginning Monday, November 8th, 1909. Various passenger associations have been requested to grant special rates. Full particulars relative to railroad rates will be sent to each delegate, on application to Mr. Frank Morrison, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor, Ouray Bldg., Washington, D. C. Hotel reservations can be made through Mr. D. A. Carey, 95 Markham St., Toronto, Ont. The headquarters of the Executive Council will be at Prince George Hotel.

The Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor meets at Toronto, Labor Temple, commencing its session two days in advance of the regular convention of the American Federation of Labor, or Friday, November 5th. The regularly elected delegates of our union to the American Federation of Labor will also represent the International Union at the Union Label Trades Department. Thos. F. Tracy, our Second Vice President, is secretary and treasurer of the Union Label Trades Department. His headquarters will be at the Walker Hotel.

C. W. Post of Battle Creek, Mich., called by some "Saw Dust Manufacturer," and maker of alleged breakfast foods, which it is claimed are made of stale bread, cheap molasses, diseased and spoiled grains, peanut shells, etc., recently again broke out in a paid advertisement in the Daily Press with what to his mind was intended to be a mighty blow to trade unions, especially those that have the union label. It is also claimed that this old hypocrite gets the money to pay for these lying, vicious attacks upon labor organization, but in which directly and indirectly and all the time, he is advertising his own wares, from the Manufacturers' Association. We quote the following from Beverage, a trade paper published in Philadelphia. Speaking of these attacks, Beveridge says:

"They serve the purpose of keeping Post before the public, and are not a vain expenditure of time and money, for they advertise indirectly the Post products, in giving publicity to which the manufacturer has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"However, it happens fortunately for him that his patrons are not to any extent workmen, and, therefore, he can take the position he does without injury to his business.

"Post manufactures 'Postum' as a substitute for coffee, and in advertising his decoction he makes most vicious attacks upon coffee, which, as we all know, is one of our most important commercial commodities. His assertions as to the injurious effects of coffee have no scientific value, but they serve the purpose for which they are printed among a certain class of people. He also manufactures various brands of breakfast food, of which Dr. Charles McCormick, a noted medical authority of Chicago, says:

"Throw away the sawdust breakfast foods, for they kill more people in one year than does all the alcohol that was ever manufactured into whisky."

"Of this class of foods are the Post products. They are used mainly in the families of clerks and people employed in sedentary occupations, and are very convenient for lazy housekeepers who desire to avoid the trouble of furnishing their families with properly cooked and nourishing meals.

"'Postum' as a drink is similar to these breakfast foods—a practically tasteless liquid when prepared for the table, which would never be used except for belief in the deceptive advertisements which declare it to be everything that it is not. It serves the purpose only where the imagination has been affected in its favor.

"If we could get a picture of the patrons of his 'Postum' and breakfast foods, and compare it with the users of solid, substantial, nutritious food products, such as are placed on the table of the average farmer and workingman, it might serve to nullify the effect produced upon the imagination by the glowing tribute Post pays to his productions."

It has often been reported that this old hypocrite, who quotes the scriptures on one hand and hands out death-dealing so-called breakfast foods with the other, discarded the wife of his youth who had shared his labors and hardships for an affinity, when he became rich and prosperous from selling fraudulent breakfast foods. One of our exchanges says, "He became averse to ladies on whose brow the hand of time had carved a few wrinkles." Who buys and cooks the product of this insufferable Post!—women! No woman who believes in the square deal, who respects the marriage tie, and who believes that a woman who in her youth was good enough to share the hardships and early struggle and humble home, should still be good enough to share the wealth and mansion in her old age, will buy, cook or serve C. W. Post's products.

The output of cigars for the month of August shows a slight gain in the product of cigars over the corresponding month of 1908. The state of trade as reported by local unions has shown no material improvement. There seems to be no question but what business, generally speaking, has improved and that we will feel the effect in due time.

Our trade is one of the first to feel the effect of industrial stagnation and one of the last to respond with returning industrial and commercial activity.

The trust and non-union manufacturers are making renewed efforts to recover lost ground. Our manufacturers who are active and persistent will share in the slowly improving trade conditions. We can all help in this direction by starting renewed label agitation on a vigorous plan.

Organized labor should be reminded that we have a label and told that if it will do its plain duty by supporting the label it will be of vast benefit to the unions. Interested jobbers have persistently knocked the label and have conned many into the belief that our union manufacturers do make as good cigars as some of the non-union manufacturers. This we all know is done because the dealer in some cases pays less for the non-union stuff. Delegates to central labor unions and committees should visit all unions and agitate this matter to the limit.

Samuel Gompers, our First Vice President and President of the American Federation of Labor, has just returned from a trip abroad, where he was sent by the A. F. of L. as a delegate, loaded down with interesting, instructive and useful information to trade unionists and the general labor movement.

SAMUEL GOMPERS IN EUROPE.

Mr. Gompers has been able to get first hand knowledge and facts concerning the labor movements in other countries, which, coupled with his expert knowledge of the labor movement in general and particularly in our own country, will enable him to show beyond dispute the relative value of the methods and policies of the various movements and what is of vast importance the relative actual results achieved.

From what he has already written we judge that he will say that the so-called conservative movement led by the American Federation of Labor has accomplished vastly more for its membership than has the alleged radical movements of other countries led by so-called radicals.

He will be able to show by facts and figures that the alleged radicals, and intellectuals whose chief stock in trade is general abuse of everything and everybody, and their unions have accomplished little or nothing of real value to the workers when compared with the splendid advancement made by the conservative unions of our own country.

His advance reports show that he will point out the indisputable fact that where the unions of the old countries, especially Germany, have discarded the will of the wisp, rain bow chasing policy and got right down to rock bottom methods of pure and simple trade union tactics and policies, they have made wonderful progress in advancing the material well-being of the membership. He intimates that where the half political action and half trade union movement is still in vogue they live five or six in one room and exist—not live—on a bare pittance and receive frightfully small wages, and that where they have divorced the political action handicap from the movement, rapid progress is being made in the direction of increased wages, shorter hours, better homes and all round generally improved conditions for the workers.

While in Europe Mr. Gompers received marked attention wherever he went and was everywhere accorded a reception, which in warmth, numbers and interested attention, has seldom been accorded to other American travelers.

HOW LABOR FUNDS ARE DISBURSED.

If the public was conversant with many facts connected with the work of labor organizations there would be a great change of thought in regard to the benefits which they confer on those who are affiliated with them.

At an expense of about five cents a day per member, the cost for dues, the Cigarmakers' International Union has been enabled to maintain sick, death, out-of-work and strike benefits. Remember, this great work has all been carried forward for the price of one glass of beer a day.

The out-of-work benefit was established nineteen years ago, while the sick and death benefits have been in force twenty-seven years. Since these have been established a total of $8,372,783 has been paid to members. For death and total disability, $2,128,578.74 has been paid; for sickness, $2,722,433.61; out-of-work, $1,190,758.11. Strike benefits paid during twenty-nine years aggregate $1,910,907.65. In addition the cigarmakers made loans for traveling expenses to members, aggregating $1,139,105.49. The total of the benefits paid by the organization in 1908 was $586,255.73, of which but $32,423.39 was for strike benefits. The balance remaining in the treasury is given as $705,960.75.—Steam Shovel Magazine.

Whenever children are taken from school and the conditions essential to healthful growth and development of body and mind and are confined in mills, factories and shops where they toil for long hours, a double crime is perpetrated—a crime against the young life and a crime against the society of tomorrow. Moreover, whenever society becomes so sordid as to permit this inhumanity the conditions of the little ones become in many respects inexpressibly tragic and the general tendency in their treatment is downward rather than upward.

Some disclosures of the factory inspectors in New York reveal conditions that are well calculated to stir the blood of even our complacent, money worshipping masses, whose optimism is largely the fruit of ignorance. Two instances cited by the inspectors against manufacturers who were haled into court indicate to what extent the crime against the young is being carried in the most opulent and populous city of the new world.

It was shown at this investigation that girls, respectively thirteen and fourteen years of age, had been compelled to work sixty-eight hours a week, or over eleven hours a day, and for this they received but $3. The judge before whom the case was brought characterized such treatment as criminal and as in effect being slavery. In her testimony Miss Foster, the inspector responsible for bringing these outrageous facts to public attention, stated that she also found that the children employed by the firm were fined 10 cents each time they spoke while working and 2 cents for each five minutes they were late.

There is a general movement at the present time looking toward arousing the dormant conscience of our people against this form of slavery, and it should receive the active and earnest support of all friends of human progress.—Labor Herald.

How to keep cigars in stock without their drying out or losing flavor: "This end may be accomplished, it is claimed, with little expense." One authority says: "If the dealer has no vault in which to keep his stock, an air-tight chest may be used with the very best results. Cigars should be kept in vaults or chests for about thirty days after being made, as in that time the water will evaporate and the full bouquet of the tobacco will be brought out. Cigars never lose their flavor or deteriorate with age, if properly kept. They will retain their aroma, even though they get dry. Alternately moistening and drying cigars will cause them to lose flavor, and the flavor of choice cigars is sometimes impaired by their being kept in proximity to inferior grades, artificially flavored. In California the atmosphere is so damp that cigars always remain moist, and even dry cigars become moist in a very short time. In some parts of Europe cigars keep in about the same condition as in California and are only sold after being in stock from two to five years."

The Asiatic Exclusion League say that since 1900 over 50,000 Japanese have come to the mainland from the territory of Hawaii, and that the Japanese population of California has increased over 600 per cent. The same authority further states that during the years 1901 to 1907, inclusive, 109,406 Japanese entered the United States through legal channels.

In the early days when Virginia was a struggling colony, tobacco was the standard of all values for all commodities. It was used to pay taxes of all kinds. Fines for violation of all laws were payable in tobacco. The salary of ministers in the colony were for many years paid in tobacco, ranging from sixteen thousand to twenty thousand pounds yearly.

The number of deaths during the four years of the Civil War was 205,070. During the past four years 800,000 deaths have resulted from tuberculosis alone in the United States, more than half of whom could, should, and would have been saved if rational methods were adopted.

Consumption is caused by the poisonous germs in the consumptive's spit. The poisonous spit dries and goes as dust into other people's lungs. A little poisonous spit when scattered in dust, is enough to infect dozens of people. That is why careless spitting is not only dirty, but dangerous.

The Pattern Makers' League of North America is the latest union to adopt the universal system of high dues. At its recent convention this organization fixed dues at forty cents per week.

MANILA CIGARMAKERS NOW ON STRIKE.

Unless a compromise is reached between the Manila cigar manufacturers and their cigarmakers, there is likely to be a further stoppage of the free Philippines cigars imported into this country. The entire working force of the La Oriente factory at Manila—1,500 in all—went on strike, Tuesday, according to a cablegram received by the New York Sun, and the cigarmakers of the other factories are pledged to follow suit.

Since the passage of the tariff act, there has been a big boom in the industry at Manila and all the factories have been working night and day, trying to fill the orders from American importers. Several of the factories have made considerable additions to their working forces until now every available cigarmaker is employed and the obreros are demanding handsome increases in wages. They have a strong organization, one of the leading bodies in the Union Obrero (or Labor Union), the president of which, Dr. Dominador Gomez, was recently jailed at the instance of the government for endeavoring to put a British concern under boycott. Gomez is, likely enough, at the root of this Philippine cigarmakers' strike.—Exchange.

of America, is it just that the Belgium working man should be denied admission while men from other countries are admitted? Doesn't this show discrimination unworthy of a trade union? Does the record of the Belgium cigarmakers in trade union affairs in this country give any reason for such treatment? Have those who were here in Boston in 1906 not fought as bravely as any one else for the increase for the bill of prices? Have they not suffered the hardships of non-employment during the industrial crisis as keenly as all others and unanimously refused to accept a reduction of fifty cents per thousand after they were closed out with you for about three months by the largest firm in Boston last winter, and could have gone to work immediately if they accepted the reduction? And further, are the local unions outside of our stronghold in open shops not glad to receive them, and why? Because the others know whether "mentally deficient" or not they always are good union men and remain loyal whether in war or peace and as a rule are better agitators for the union label, and buy their clothes in union stores than some of those who are talking too much label and buying in scab places.

The president of Union 97 showed the members that they were going to make a mistake by advising them to be cool headed and not to be carried away by sentiment, telling them that such actions would be declared unconstitutional by President Perkins, but all in vain.

If you want to stop the influx of foreign cigarmakers, why don't you do it in a legal way instead of insulting an international union, whose endeavor and purpose always has been to treat others as they desire to be treated?

Let us show you a few instances of how prejudice against the Belgians is created.

In the communication from Bangor, Maine, in the September issue of our Journal wherein the writer lacks the courage to allow his name to be known, talking about "being reliably informed that the business of certain Belgium shops is not to manufacture cigars only but to make cigarmakers, warrants a communication from a Belgian boss to Mr. Huntoon of Huntoon & Gorhan, Providence, R. I. (as published in a recent issue of the Journal) offering to supply the said firm with any number of cigarmakers they wanted, etc." This so-called boss is a man by the name of B. De Clercq, printer by trade, who has a job on the side selling tickets for a Belgium ship agency who never in his life had anything to do with cigar manufacturing but unaware of the existing emigration laws probably schemed to make a little business which is ridiculous to any one acquainted with conditions here.

There were scores of willful lies made at the special meeting of October 1st, which have no foundation at all and we still wait in vain for proof. The Executive Board of Union 97 has for years made every attempt to find a fraudulent card, even engaging handwriting experts to investigate said cards, but without success. On one occasion there were two card applications from two different locals of Belgium signed by the same hand. This was at least the assumption of all present at the Executive Board one night, all declared them fraudulent. The cards were sent to Chicago. The International President sent them back stating dryly that they were genuine.

We are also of the opinion together with the majority that the influx from Belgium is too large and should be somewhat limited. We are willing to do all we can to bring this state of affairs to a satisfactory adjustment, but we insist that we be treated as we deserve. We think we have the necessary influence with the International Executive Board of Belgium to bring this about.

We realize from this affair that it is necessary on the part of our International Union to send a delegate to the next International convention of Cigarmakers and Tobacco Workers to be held in Europe in order that they may make a satisfactory arrangement on this subject.

Phillip Rasquin.

REPORT OF ORGANIZERS.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 5, 1909.

Evansville, Ind.—Never was there a greater number of persons in Evansville who united in celebration of Labor Day than the twenty thousand men and women who flocked to Garvin's grove to celebrate the twenty-second anniversary of the day for the honor of the man who does the work of the world.

Forty-five hundred men marched in the parade. The Cigarmakers' "Rube" band made the hit of the day. Some twenty of the boys were attired in "down on the farm" costumes and carried instruments that have seen better days. There was class to the music, however. Mr. Theo. Perry, of Indianapolis, delivered an excellent speech and was accorded a hearty welcome.

Labor Day was a success from all points of view. Harmony in the labor movement. Good central body; all labels in demand.

Birmingham, Ala.

The fifth annual convention of the Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union convened at the City Hall, Sept. 7, at 9:30 a. m.

The convention was called to order by Jas. B. Drake, president of the Birmingham Traders' Council, also president of the State Federation of Labor. Fitting speeches of welcome were made by organized labor and responded to by President C. S. Barrett, national president of the Farmers' Union. Between four and five hundred delegates were seated. A notable feature of the convention was the intermingling of the southern with the northern farmer and the eastern with the western farmer. The Farmers' Union had representatives from nearly all the states. It was stated that the cotton crop was the shortest in years, and the total number of bales would not exceed 11,000,000. The minimum price of cotton in 1909 was 15 cents, and it was rumored that this figure will be set as a positive minimum unless changed at a future convention.

It is the purpose of the Farmers' Union to fix minimum prices on grain and other products of the farm; to cut loose from commission men; to stop speculation with the necessities and commodities of life; to sell direct to the consumer, etc.

The Farmers' Union unanimously indorsed the Cigarmakers blue label; also the Tobacco Workers' label. The Farmers use the printers' label.

I addressed the convention and was well received.

Nashville, Tenn.

This city is dry in the sense of prohibition, but it is no effort to get all the liquor a fellow wants, Sunday or any other time. The saloons pay no license, only to sell soft drinks.

Cigarmakers as well as other tradesmen are injured by the law.

The saloons and clubs take chances, and the fellow that sells these places takes a greater chance to get his money. It costs the manufacturer three times as much to do business now as it did prior to the enactment of the state wide prohibition law. Formerly it was five cents a drink; today 15 cents straight, and a manufacturer has to join all the clubs, paying from $5 to $8 membership.

Cigarmakers were not working steady and have been out of work the greater part of the year. The organization is growing smaller.

Addressed the central body.

Geo. R. French,
International Organizer.

Reading, Pa., Oct. 7, 1909.

While the cost of living here as elsewhere has been steadily advancing, cigarmakers are still cheap in southeastern Pennsylvania. Regardless of the fact that it requires more than again as much money to fill the market basket than a few years ago cigarmakers have experienced no advance in wages, but on the contrary their income has been lessened just as steadily as the price of life's necessities have advanced. In some instances this is due to direct reductions on the price of making cigars, as aptly illustrated in the city of Lebanon, where the largest cigar manufacturer in the city reduced wages fifty cents a thousand, and immediately thereafter bought an automobile. And even though he is too selfish to take his cigarmakers joy-riding with him, they continue to worry along on four dollars and a half a thousand for the cigars they formerly received five dollars for.

Most of the manufacturers, however, have adopted a more scientific method of squeezing profits out of their cigarmakers, and perhaps the worst offender in this direction is the big Eisenlohr concern, whose headquarters are in Philadelphia. This firm operates about a dozen big factories in the first and ninth internal revenue districts, and in some mysterious manner have succeeded in establishing a reputation for liberality to their employes, that is far from being borne out when the true facts are uncovered. While it is true that in days gone by picnics were held to which the firm contributed at times quite liberally to meet expenses, and upon one occasion two dollar and a half gold pieces were given to the faithful at Christmas time, it is also true that all the while that the cigarmakers were singing praises for the Eisenlohers, a little change in the method of production was made here, and another there, one little liberty was denied today, and another one a little later on, until finally it was announced that any one quitting a job in an Eisenlohr factory without a permit, could never again have a job in any of their factories. The price paid for making their leading brand of five cent cigars is six dollars and fifty cents a thousand. It formerly was a hand-made cigar, and the makers averaged from three to five hundred a day, sometimes more when working nights. This is all changed now, and although the price for making remains at six dollars and a half a thousand, the system of making has been changed from straight hand work to paper work, the result being that the output of the individual cigar maker is reduced fifty to a hundred a day. The Eisenlohers seem to be looked to by the other manufacturers to set the pace in this locality, and at the pace they have been going of late it means further pauperization for the cigarmakers unless they fall in line and follow the pace set by the Cigarmakers' International Union.

Since last report I held two meetings of cigarmakers at New Cumberland, Pa., but did not succeed in organizing them. They are making 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ and 5 inch hand-made cigars for \$5.50 a thousand. The cigars are sold to the retail trade for \$35.00 a thousand, yet these cigarmakers, while admitting that organization is the only way to secure a proportionate share of this in the shape of wages, they lack the courage to stand for their rights either collectively or individually.

It is indeed a lamentable condition to find men physically strong, yet so benumbed and weak morally that they tremble at the very suggestion of making a bold stand for justice, equality and right, at least so far as it applies to themselves.

Barrie, Ont., Oct. 2, 1909.

Ontario east of Toronto seems to the observer to be possessed of many natural advantages that if properly developed would at least place it on a par with the western part of the province. But whether it be men or things that are at fault the fact remains that in commercial enterprise, in everything that spells progress, this section is far and away behind. To take our own trade for example, in this eastern section we have about eight factories employing in the aggregate less than fifty, while in the western section we have about 85 factories employing in the aggregate about 1,500; and it would seem as though this same proportion is maintained in respect to all or nearly all trades.

One is therefore not to be surprised if organization among the workers in this section is wanting, for the same spirit of lack of energy and enterprise that apparently actuates the business community seems to apply to the workers. Of course there are exceptions in both cases, but truly the exceptions prove the rule.

Belleville is an instance, great natural advantages, and little or no progress, organized in all trades time and again only to fall back in the old ways. At times a fair demand for union goods; at others, no demand at all; neither the business people or the workers seem to have any intelligent idea of the work or ideals of labor organization.

Oshawa, to the east, a very much smaller and far more progressive place, has the label well shown, and in fair demand.

Coburg is more of a summer resort than anything else, and while it is true that union goods are on sale, it is likewise true that advertising would make a demand that is now lacking.

This was my first visit to Picton, situated at the end of a peninsula forming the Bay of Quinte, a busy, thriving place, but little or no manufacturing going on. Some show of label goods, but dealers say no demand; another instance where advertising would be to our benefit.

In Kingston there are two cigar factories, both hopelessly non union; organization has been tried and proven an utter failure, repeated appeals have been made to organized bodies here, including the trade and labor council, with some effect for the moment. A recurring visit finding the same state of affairs. At time of this visit found a fair show of union goods; dealers report poor demand.

In other places called at, such as Deseronto and Napanee, I found that brands having the label had the call, although as far as I could find there is no organization in operation in either place.

In Brockville there is one small factory—union. Our people here have a hard time of it; the shop not having been working for three months, but expected to resume at once. The label is well shown here and in fair demand.

Prescott has all of the appearance of a town gone to seed. It has some historical associations which makes it somewhat of a resort in summer. I could find evidence of only one labor organization, the Longshoremen. Very few label goods on sale, and just as little demand.

If there is one union in Canada that is up against it more than another it is Union No. 58, Montreal, situated and having jurisdiction in the head center of the largest (numerically and otherwise) of the non-union factories, in a market alien to tradeunionism, if we except the labor organizations, on an international basis. They of Union 58 have their hands more than full in the endeavor to make headway against the very worst conditions that can obtain in our trade.

But our members are not discouraged, but, on the contrary, are putting up a splendid fight, and it ought to be a lesson to those of our members elsewhere who, working under infinitely better conditions, and yet grumble at paying label assessments, to see our people here willing to tax themselves to the end that the union made article may be favorably known, above the non-union brands whose name is legion in the Montreal district.

It will be a long and an up-hill fight to gain the victory over the non-union forces there, but with the courage and determination displayed by Union 58, it is only a matter of time until victory will be theirs.

Smith's Falls, once fairly well organized, and the home of considerable industries, has fallen from its former state, and there is very little organization now, but it was encouraging to note a good showing of label goods and to find some demand for same.

Peterboro, where we have one factory (union), is a puzzler in so far as organization is concerned. At one time all or nearly all of the industries here (and there are many of them) were well organized, they understood the value of trade unionism, and they stood then as now in need of it; they had a central labor union, but now, when to an observer, the need of organization is most apparent on account of wages and other conditions, one can hardly find a trace of organization left.

It seems too much to say that one man was the life of the movement here, and that when Mr. Murty took up other interests the movement died, yet it looks very much like it. Local people report trade much as usual. Among the cigar stores the label is fairly well shown, but dealers report little or no demand. There is some talk of trying for local option here; if tried here I have no doubt of its defeat.

At Lindsay I found no difference in conditions occurring since my last visit. There are one or two small organizations here who maintain a desultory demand for union goods, of which many of the principal brands are shown.

The Trades and Labor Congress held its annual session in the city of Quebec in the week beginning Sept. 20, with a good attendance. The features were the addresses delivered by Will Crooks, labor member British Parliament, and the Fraternal delegate A. F. of L., who was later on presented with a gold watch, and his wife with a silver service.

Resolutions were also passed endorsing the United Mine Workers in their strike at Glace Bay, N. S., and pledging support of Congress; also asking Canadian government for a commission of inquiry into the strike; also resolutions protesting against emigration policy of government. Executive officers elected are as follows: President Wm. Glockling, Toronto; vice-president Gustave Franq, Montreal, and P. M. Draper, Ottawa, secretary.

Faternally yours,

Dallas, Texas.—Business was not good in the cigar trade at Dallas, and one reason for the dull times might be attributed to the fact that organized labor does not demand the label.

Many of the eastern unfair cigars are for sale at all of the stands and there seems to be a demand for this cheap trash. Talked very plain to the delegates of the central body concerning the importance of demanding label goods.

Local 262 made an agreement with the secretary of the Texas state fair, that no cigar can be sold at the fair unless it is manufactured in Texas, and it must have the label on every box. This will shut out all of the unfair shops in Texas.

New Orleans, La.

I spent the better part of three weeks in New Orleans and visited and addressed all labor unions that met. The labor movement in the city is in turmoil, and it seems as though some men delight in kicking up trouble and dividing the ranks of organized labor. The central body might be called the "central knockers' union" and it would be properly named. Personal grudges, and all sorts of dirty linen is washed out at the meeting and not one word is said about the label, and in fact many of this bunch care nothing for the labor movement, only to use it for their own political advancement.

I addressed this body of men and scored them hard and indeed many were ashamed of their conduct. It is to be hoped that tranquillity will prevail and that all will unite for the purpose they were organized for. There are many excellent men and women in the labor unions in New Orleans and it is for them to purify the movement and make it as it should be.

Locals 220 and 53 are doing all they can to push the label.

There are good 5c and 10c cigars made in New Orleans, and the label is well placed, but the old story—organized labor does not support us.

Mobile, Ala.

For the first time in eighteen years the big shop has layed off its men, except during the flood caused by the tidal wave a short time ago that deluged a part of Mobile.

The legislature of Alabama recently passed one of the most drastic prohibition laws ever enacted. This law was made by men who desire that the church shall rule the state, as the speaker of the house, Mr. Carmichael, advocated the management of the state by what he calls the people of the church. A question might be asked: What church? Immaterial as it may be, the principle of the thing is the advocacy of any church to manage politics. Such advocacy shows how far the people of Alabama have gone retrogressively along the road whose dangers have been warned against by patriots and statesmen since the foundation of the republic. It has been generally understood that the union of church and state is deprecated, both for the tyranny the church is likely to exercise in the state and the injury the church will suffer by its alliance with politics.

These church politicians are responsible for the idleness of hundreds of honest workmen in the state of Alabama.

There are many men who now have to seek other states for employment, leaving their families behind, leaving bills unpaid, and in some instances losing their homes that they were paying for. This prohibition law separates man from his birthplace, from familiar and loved and cherished and sacred places. In many instances where the child was attending school, sent there by the parent who was able to give his offspring a learning, something the trade union movement has taught him, but alas, now he is forced out of his job and he is compelled to place his child in the cotton mill, the department store or some other child employing concern in order to sustain life to the seemingly satisfaction of the church politician and the sky-pilot politician.

Some of the advocates say, you can get some other job besides tending bar, or working in the brewery, or making cigars. Yes, that is very nicely said. For instance, all skilled mechanics have served an apprenticeship and with the object of following that trade all their life, and when a fellow has worked at his trade ten or twenty years it is next to impossible to earn a living at any other thing save his trade.

How about the sky-pilot politician if he was told he could earn as much doing something else? I would like to see him tackle some other job and do as well. Consistency, thou art a jewel.

The cigarmakers are out of work in Alabama.

No saloons in Alabama. Many vacant houses and stores in Alabama. Taxes have increased in Alabama. Wages are reduced in Alabama. The trust sells the products of child labor in Alabama. A good place to keep away from—Alabama.

Are they a menace to an institution?—The early republics as they grew in wealth became corrupt.—The man who purchases the products of a trust adds another link to the chain that would bind him into servitude.—To-day it is the duty of every worker to demand the union label.—One-fourth of a man's income for rent is exortion.—We want pictures on the wall, books on our shelves, and music in the home.—Clans, Tribes and the patriarchal system of government has gone.—"Educate, agitate and organize."—Know what you want and you will get it; don't strive for too many things at once; "little by little the acorn grew."—You get more for your money in a trade union than any other investment.—The safety of our institutions depends on the trades unions; they are the bulwarks of our republic.—What were our ancestors? The books and accounts of this union have been neglected by both officers and members. "Usual result." The immediate future will no doubt show marked improvement. "It is quite necessary." No. 273, Rockland, Me.

The books and accounts here are generally in poor order. No sick benefit cards on file—not to be found anyway; only the last O. W. benefit cards on file. No system of vouchers for expense. Very few original bills on file. Ledger not indexed. Some of the members worse than slow in paying dues. The new secretary-treasurer, Mr. C. W. Morrill, has just taken hold; will expect some real work from him. All benefits must be entered in the ledger and the slow members hustled some. Illegal benefits are disagreeable. Get right, then stay there. Statement as follows:

Deficiency of union July 1, 1909.....$ 24.50
This deficiency is illegal benefits held against this union at time of present examination.

No. 349, St. John, New Brunswick.

The books and accounts here would be in very nice order, only that since July 1 the secretary has advanced to a retiring card holder $38, for which he took bank paper on which he can realize the cash on August 1 or before if necessary. There is no doubt about the paper being good, but the fact still remains this is all wrong and contrary to the constitution; must never be repeated. Am sure it will not be. Other than this affairs so far as the accounts are concerned are very nice. Statement as follows:

Balance on hand July 1, 1905.....	$ 166.80

No. 465, Quebec, P. Q.

Except that for the last sixteen months the accounts have been kept in a pocket edition of our regular day book (they now have a real day book and will use it) the accounts here are in good order; all benefit cards and a voucher signed by whoever receives the money on file for every item of expense. An honest attempt to have things right has been made. Statement as follows:

The amount expended over percentage in 1905.

Yours fraternally,

W. A. CAMPBELL,

International Financier.

En sus principios fundamentales, el unionismo es claro y simple. Principua por el reconocimiento del hecho que bajo condiciones normales el obrero aislado, sin organización, no puede rivalizar ventajosamente con su patrón por la venta de su labora. Está fondado sobre la base de la idea que el obrero unido se mantiene, y dividido, cae. En un tiempo, el patrón y el obrero estaban virtualmente en términos iguales. El patrón había sido obrero y el obrero esperaba a su vez ser un día patrón. Ahora, al contrario, el caso no es el mismo. Grandes corporaciones han sido organizadas. Estas corporaciones, tomadas individualmente, mantienen en su empleo a miles, aún a dieces de mil hombres. No les importa a ellas si un obrero aislado acepta ó rehusa, conserva ó renuncia a la posición que le ha sido ofrecida, puesto que siempre pueden ellas réemplazar fácilmente a sus operarios. No es lo mismo para el obrero. El no tiene dinero en reserva y debe vender su labor inmediatamente y donde está; el no tiene conocimiento ninguno del mercado y ninguna habilidad en traócar; ónalmente, lo único que tiene él que vender es su propia labor, mientras que el patrón emplea centenares, y hasta millares de hombres y muy fácilmente puede pasarse de los servicios de un individuo. Si el obrero tiene una familia que depende de sus ganancias, especialmente si tiene una casa en la ciudad en la cual vive, no puede ligeramente renunciar a la colocación de que disfruta porque el salario haya sido reducido ó porque las condiciones del trabajo hayan sido hechas más dificultuosas. El obrero aislado queda así a la merced del patrón en lo relativo a su colocación a un grado mayor que el patrón está a la merced de su obrero. Individualmente, el obrero no puede hacer nada; es solo cuando se une que puede exigir y obtener justicia. Cuando viene la cosa, pués, a la reglamentación de los salarios, horas ó condiciones del trabajo, el patrón resulta tener una superioridad muy grande sobre el obrero no organizado que le viene a pedir colocación, los salarios quedando entonces, por la voluntad del patrón, reducidos, las horas de trabajo largas yblas condiciones del trabajo malas.

El unionismo obrero reconoce el hecho que bajo tales circunstancias, el trabajo degenera más y más, porque la labor que vende el obrero no es como las otras comodidades de la vida, una cosa que es su propia vida, alma y esencia. El obrero resulta progresivamente envilecido por no tener salario suficiente para comprar sus alimentos; porque las horas de trabajo son demasiado largas para que obtenga el suficiente descanso; porque las condiciones en las cuales tiene que efectuar su tarea destruyen su salud moral, mental y física y degradan y aniquilan las clases obreras del presente y del futuro y, en fin, a causa del peligro constante de accidente ó de enfermedad, que matan al obrero ó lo envejecen prematuramente.

Para poner remedio a eso, los obreros se unen los unos con los otros. Por medio de las uniones ellos hacen colectivamente lo que ántes hacían separadamente y individualmente. Lo mismo que la fuerza de resistencia de una cadena es la de su eslabón más débil, así sin una unión, la fuerza de una reunión de hombres es la de los menos fuertes y los menos inteligentes de entre ellos. Por medio de una unión, la fuerza de resistencia de todos son puestas en un fondo común; la acción unida hace la organización infinitamente más poderosa que la fuerza de todos sus miembros operando individualmente. En vez que cada obrero haga un contrato desfavorable para sí mismo, todos se unen para obtener un contrato para el bien común; en vez que el obrero renuncie a su colocación solo ara ser remplazado por sus hermanos, todos renuncian a sus colocaciones al mismo tiempo; en vez que los obreros manifiesten su desaprobación comprando individualmente en ciertos almacenes y rehusando de comprar en otros, todos se unen ahora, por medio de la etiqueta de la unión, para ayudar el "fair" y por medio del "boycott" para hacer la guerra a los patrones "unfair." Como resultado de esta acción concertada, la unión es poderosa como todos los miembros juntos que componen a cun ejército son más fuertes que los soldados tomados separadamente.

L'Unionisme Est Un Bienfait.

Le public en général n'a jamais envisagé l'unionisme qu'en spectateur bienveillant et désintéressé de des progrès, comme si le succès de l'unionisme n'était pas vital au même chef pour le public en général que pour l'unionisme lui-même. Le mouvement a médié le soutien du monde des affaires et des professions libérales comme si c'était une faveur qu'on lui devait faire et par cela même, il a maladroitement permis au public de recevoir des applaudissements immérités pour s'être manifesté en faveur du travailleur dans telles occasions qu'il lui a semblé bon faire cause commune—platoniquement—avec celui-ci. L'unionisme a fait des efforts intelligents et soutenus pour présenter l'affaire sous ses véritables couleurs. Il ne s'est intéressé que médiocrement au monde extérieur et celui-ci lui a généreusement rendu la pareille.

Cet état d'affaires, si néfaste aux intérêts bien entendus, non seulement de l'unionisme lui-même, mais aussi du public en général, pourrait être chargé d'une parcelle de l'énergie à présent dépensée en pure perte à essayer de convaincre le public qu'il devrait aider l'unionisme pour amour de la vérité altruiste et regarder dans le blanc des yeux le monde et le démon. Les hommes qui sont capables de courage sans siffler pour cela et de la joie sans avoir à crier pour l'appeler; les hommes en qui le courant de la vie immortelle court encore, et court profond et puissant; les hommes trop grands pour être contenus dans de certaines limites et trop forts pour s'enrégimenter dans les bandes sectaires; les hommes qui connaissent le message et le communiquent; les hommes qui connaissent leur place et s'y mettent d'eux-mêmes; les hommes qui s'occupent de leurs propres affaires; les hommes qui n'ont pas à mourir; les hommes qui ne sont pas trop paresseux pour travailler ni trop fiers pour être pauvres; les hommes de bureau, d'atelier, de banque, qui occupent toutes les places de responsabilité et de confiance, nous pouvons les avoir autour de nous et nous aurons alors une civilisation chrétienne qui sera la plus élevée et la meilleure que le monde ait jamais vue.—Progress.

Toujours La Lutte.

Depuis le commencement des temps, les travailleurs de tous les pays du monde ont dû se battre pour obtenir le droit de s'organiser et de parler à leurs patrons, mais peu à peu, grâce à l'organisation, à l'association des efforts, les travailleurs ont combattu et vaincu leurs adversaires. Dans cette lutte, ils ont eu contre eux les préjugés d'église, parfois ceux de l'état, les cours de justice et trop souvent, leurs patrons. Lorsque le bon droit de notre cause fut mieux connu et mieux compris, un après l'autre, les plus courageux parmi les hommes d'état, les patrons, les ecclésiastiques et les sociologues ont audacieusement proclamé l'existence du mouvement ouvrier organisé et conseillé sans peur la manière raisonnable de s'occuper de lui.

Impulsants Sans Organisation.

Je ne puis oublier que la soi-disante classe ouvrière doit, ainsi que tout autre, se lever pour la défense de ses propres droits ou avoir à se contenter de se voir foulée aux pieds; et que la force qui lui est dévolue par l'organisation, basée sur le nombre, est sa seule protection effective contre la tyrannie du capital, qui serait autrement sans bornes, avide au gain et insouciant du droit des autres. La puissance obtenue au moyen de la combinaison des effectifs, on peut en abuser, il en est de même pour tout autre puissance, mais l'ouvrier n'est qu'une proie facile sans lui et reste sans défense.

Gewissenhafte Arbeiter.

Der Mensch, der einer Organisation angehört, ist im Ganzen genommen ein fähiger Mensch, der rechtshafften, aufrichtig und gewissenhaft ist. Derselbe ist sich seines Wertes bewusst und überschätzt sich selten; obwohl er darauf besteht, für seine Arbeit einen gerechten Lohn zu empfangen, ist er willig und bereit, sich anzustrengen, wie auch der Verband, dem er angehört, willig und bereit ist, dem Arbeitgeber seine besten Kräfte zu widmen. Ein richtiger Unionmann freut sich, wenn seine Tagesarbeit anfängt und wenn Feierabend ist. Ein jeder richtige Unionmann hegt den Wunsch, um angemessenen Tagelohn ein angemessenes Tagewerk zu verrichten, man braucht ihn nicht zur Arbeit zu treiben, ihn anzuregen, wenn man auch manchmal auf Arbeitgeber stößt, die so abgestumpft sind, daß sie den wirklichen Werth und die Tüchtigkeit des guten Unionmannes nicht zu erkennen vermögen. („Journeyman Barber“.)

Der richtige Maßstab.

Das Arbeiterverbandwesen soll man nicht nach jeinen Auswüchsen beurtheilen, sondern nach dem, wie es sich im Allgemeinen giebt. Dasselbe verlangt nicht, daß es nach seinen besten Anzeichen beurtheilt werde. Eine jede Einrichtung hat ihr Gutes und ihr Schlechtes; das Unionswesen besitzt Eigenschaften, die anlässlich sind und doch sind auch die nicht so schlimm, wenn man sie richtig versteht. Der richtige Maßstab zur Beurtheilung einer Einrichtung ist die Hilfe, die sie jenem angedeihen läßt, die hilfsbedürftig sind; die Union tritt dafür ein, daß die schlichten Leute vorwärts kommen. Für sie ist die Persönlichkeit ausschlaggebend. Ihr Zweck ist der, das Niveau der arbeitenden Klasse, Frauen wie Männer, zu heben; sie that vieles und that noch mehr, um die Masse besser und glücklicher zu machen. Sie unter Ausschießung dessen beurtheilen, hieße ihr Unrecht thun. („Chronicle“.)

Man hüte sich!

Man hüte sich vor dem Menschen, der verdächtig und keine direkte Anschuldigung erhebt. Derselbe ist nicht allein unehrlich, sondern in seinem Innersten ein Feigling und von Herzen verderbt. Kirchengemeinschaften, Logen, Arbeiter- und gesellschaftliche Vereine werden oft durch elende Schufte entweiht, der die Beweggründe und den Charakter des Anderen ohne jeden Grund als die Vorschübung der eigenen Person oder aus Geizgierigkeit verdächtigt. Es sind das sittlich Entartete, die Zwietracht zu säen, Streit zu stiften trachten, um Spaltungen hervorzurufen. Zum Glück sind die besseren Elemente der Verbandsleute an jene Buschen gewöhnt, so daß sie nicht viel auszurichten vermögen. Oft aber fagen sich ganz brave Leute von den Verbänden los, weil sie nicht so geartet sind, daß sie die Verleumdungen ertragen können. Die Bewegung bedarf aller Unterstützung, die sie bekommen kann, und vor Allem bedarf sie ehrlicher Beamter. Der Ehrenmann fürchtet nicht den Ehrenmann, der ehrlich und aufrichtig als Anführer gegen ihn auftritt, vor den niederträchtigen, hinterlistigen und verleumderischen Menschen aber ist niemand sicher. Jener sittlich Degenerierte insinuiert, in der Regel ohne jeden Anhaltspunkt, und that mehr, um den Fortschritt aufzuhalten, als alles Andere.

Das Verbandswesen eine Geschäftssache.

Das Gewerkschaftswesen ist mehr als eine Organisation; dasselbe ist Erziehung. Ungenügende Erziehung ist nicht selten am Scheitern organisierter Bemühungen schuld. Die Organisation allein thut's nicht; ein jedes Mitglied soll wissen, weshalb es einer Gewerkschaft angehört. Das Gewerkschaftswesen ist in erster Linie das Kollektivhandeln um die Bedingungen, zu welchen die Arbeit sich verkaufen will; es ist eine reine Geschäftssache. Ein jedes Geschäft bedarf zum Erfolge des Studiums und kein Geschäft bedarf des Studiums dringender, als Kollektivhandeln um Arbeit.

Výsledky docílené dělnickými organizacemi ne-representují práci jednoho dne, nýbrž dlouhou snahu sebezapírání ve prospěch námezdního dělnictva. Není rozumné očekávat okamžitého výsledku v kterémkoliv hnutí, toho dosáhnouti lze pouze neúnávnou snahou bez ohledu na opozici a zklamání.

Osobní svoboda, již se muž zbavuje když vetoupi do dělnické organizace, jest ta samá, které se vzdal, když se rozhodnul žít pod ustálenou formou vládní, to jest, on se podrobil vůli většiny za tím účelem, aby byl pod ochranou většiny. Účelem dělnických organizací není stavěti svoje zákony nad zákony vlády pod kterou žijí, třeba někdo tvrdil opak.

Organisace mezi dělnictvem měla by býti heslem přítomné doby. Všechna řemesla a povolání měla by mít jeden účel před sebou a to jest „Organisace“, a jest to jen potěšující úkaz když vidíme na všech stranách neobyčejnou činnost mezi organizovaným jakož i neorganizovaným dělnictvem, organizovaní hledíce sesílat a budovat svoje postavení kdezto neorganizovaní snaží se dostati do řad organizovaných jich dotýčnych řemesel.

Uniovi dělníci měli by dokázat že jsou schop-nějšími dělníky. Uniovi člověk by měl být lepším řemeslníkem nežli jest sk... On by měl být morálně lepším člověkem, nežli dělník z otevřené dílny.

Látka pro neunionisty.

Víte, že když mzdy jsou sníženy v čase paniky, nejdou nikdy více nahoru mezi neorganizovanými dělníky?

Víte, že každá panika snižila mzdy neorganizovaným dělníkům na nižší stupeň, nežli byly před ní?

Víte, že dlouhé hodiny práce snižují vaši mzdu? Jakým způsobem ji zvýšíte?

Víte, že vzdor všem panikám mzdy organizované práce byly stále zvyšovány a počet hodin práce stále zkracován?

Víte, že kdyby všichni námezdní dělníci byli organizováni, přicházeli by paniky mnohem řidčeji a byly by mnohem mírnější?

Víte, že vaše snížená mzda nebude nikdy zvýšena dokud se nesorganizujete?

Čím více kupujete uniového zboží, tím více uniovéch lidí dostává zaměstnání.

Dělnické hnutí se zrodilo z hladu — z hladu za chléb na začátku. Jest to stále ještě hlad, ale hlad pro zlepšení života, lepší vzdělání, lepší ideje, vyšší vymoženosti a vyšší postavení v řadách civilizace.

Sebedůvěra opravňuje nás k našim vlastním náhledům. V této zemi většina vládne a tak dlouho pokud se nejedná o morální otázky, máme se podrobit volbou většiny a pomáhati ji k provádění zásad. Pakliže myslíte, že vaše zásada jest nejlepší, agitujte pro ni až si získáte pro ni většinu, avšak necht' vaše agitace nepoškozuje zájmy pro něž my všichni pracujeme.

The Constitution, twentieth edition, contains an error. The amendment of Union 97, Boston, reference accepting cards from foreign countries, took the place of the old law. Through mistake both the amendment and the old law are included. The last paragraph, or last twelve lines of Section 67, on page 20, is the old law and doesn't belong in the Constitution.

NOTICE.

Financial secretaries when granting loans should as required by section 104, enter loans in figures and letters. It is not necessary to punch cards.

The amendment adopted to Sections 76 and 7, does away with the issuance of retiring cards to all who continue to pay dues as beneficiary members.

Retiring cards are only for those who pay up and actually terminate all connection with the union in so far as the payment of dues is concerned.

Members who transfer from the 30-cent list to the 20-cent beneficiary membership list are simply changed from one class to another and deducted from one and added to the other.

Members who have not paid 30-cent dues for three years and quitting the trade under Section 76 and wishing to qualify for Section 77 as a beneficiary member should be kept on without any other change than to make a note of the intention on the ledger page. If such member desires to travel to another jurisdiction he should be given a transfer card and his intention to qualify as a 20-cent beneficiary member written on the transfer card. Such beneficiary members are not entitled to any benefits except sick benefits after one year's membership and whatever death benefits their term of membership entitles them to.

NOTICE TO OFFICERS AND MEMBERS.

In printing the nineteenth edition of the Constitution, an omission occurs in Section 77, on line 7; A comma and the words "and local assessments" should follow "International assessments." The sentence to read: "All International assessments, and local assessments levied for label agitation purposes." This amendment as published in another place is correct.

If you hold any loan cards of no further use send them to this office.

Before granting or accepting retiring cards secretaries and members should consult Sections 76 and 77 of the Constitution.

NOTICE.—How to duplicate Loan Cards.

It frequently occurs that new secretaries through error or lack of knowledge, transfer the amount a member "has coming" instead of what he owes. In duplicating a card, figure up all the member has borrowed and subtract all he has paid, and if there is a balance against the member transfer to new card in red ink in figures and letters the amount due the International Union. Also enter on new card all that may be essential that you find on the old, then sign and seal it. Send the old card to the international office.

MEMBERS OUT OF WORK ARE NOT ENTITLED TO THE SIXTEEN WEEKS' PRIVILEGE IN DUES UNLESS THEY NOTIFY THE SECRETARY WEEKLY BEFORE THE EIGHTH WEEK. THIS INCLUDES TRAVELING MEMBERS WHO SHOULD ALWAYS CARRY A CERTIFICATE AND HAVE SAME SIGNED WEEKLY.

Items for the Journal should be placed on separate slips of paper—not the backs of reports, etc. In order to insure prompt publication, and should reach this office not later than the 10th of each month if intended for current publication.

Unions when notifying this office of change in secretary will please at once give the new secretary's address, if possible, so as to obviate delays mistakes, etc.

In reporting deaths, kindly comply with the following and you will save time and unnecessary work. Give full name, number, date and place of initiation of member. Has member held retiring card? If so, did he pay his dues? This information relates only to such as you can obtain from the records of your own union. If admitted by card, state when and where from, and in addition send in such card, but place on your letter the information necessary as the latter is filed as a matter of record. Before paying death benefits study Section 145 and 151, inclusive. Send in death blank properly filled out for all death benefits paid.

If secretaries when ordering supplies will place the order on the regular blank, it will greatly simplify the work here and avoid unnecessary delay for those who order the supplies. We receive an average of 300 pieces of mail in the office daily. Sometimes an order is sandwiched into a two or three-page letter containing three or more different subjects, and there is danger in such cases of an order being overlooked. Hence we ask that in order to save unnecessary delay and annoyance you order on the regular blank, giving your name and address.

CORRESPONDENCE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 16, 1909.

Mr. George W. Perkins, President. Dear Sir and Brother:

No doubt you have learned that I returned to the United States from the trip in Europe directed to be taken by the Convention of the American Federation of Labor. The reception some of which I have chronicled and which you may have seen, others which I shall report from time to time. Among the things which interested me was our own trade, and found that in France, Austria, Hungary, and Italy, the cigar industry is a government monopoly, and as is generally the case, government monopoly means the poorest kind of product, made under almost primitive condi-

AN ITALIAN CIGAR FACTORY.
Manifattura Del Tabacchi — San Pancrazio — Firenze (Florence).

accorded to me at Washington on the evening of October 12th when I arrived here, and the demonstration and mass meeting, really beggar description. I have just seen a copy of the Trade Unionist, the official organ of the Washington City Central Labor Union, and am sending you a copy. I am confident that you will feel interested in the perusal of the account of the affair. Wednesday morning, the tions, and at low wages even as compared with other industries.

While in Austria, I visited a cigar factory but had to pay an admission fee of 12 cents American money for the privilege, and there I saw women, women, women, working at the cigar trade. I inquired as to their wages and may some time when I get a chance to get at it, give you the material facts I there learned.

INTERIOR VIEW OF A UNION CIGAR FACTORY.

thirteenth, just four months from the date of my leaving Washington, I returned to the office of the American Federation of Labor.

While abroad I saw many interesting things, and which, by the way, are general in those countries where the cigar industry is a government monopoly.

I had made arrangements while in the United States to have cigars sent me while in Europe, but my effort, owing to governmental regulations, was a lamentable failure, and hence I had to content myself with the best I could get, sometimes an imported cigar from Cuba, and at other times the best product which each of the countries afforded, and which was poorer than the average American five cent cigar.

You can imagine the conditions when I say that one of the highest officials in the factory at Vienna informed me that of all the cigars manufactured under the government monopoly in Austria, the average number of cigars in which Havana tobacco enters as filler amounts to between seventy and eighty thousand a year, about the average annual production of one American cigar maker.

While in Verona, Italy, I bought some cigars and saw upon the inside cover of the box a picture of an Italian cigar factory in operation. With considerable inducement and a payment, I managed to secure the cover of the box containing the picture. I send the cover of the box to you in a separate package, and I also enclose in that package a postal card of one of the union cigar factories in the United States for comparison; ours, all men, the Italian, as in all other European countries where the cigar industry is a government monopoly, all women. Inasmuch as the government ownership and operation is the ideal of Socialists, and inasmuch as there is not a word of criticism in Italy or in the other countries to which I refer against this monopoly, the system and the conditions, is not it a fair inference that the conditions prevailing, wages paid, etc., are the things to which we are often asked to aspire? In any event, the matter is sent you for such interest as you may find in it.

With best wishes, I remain,
Fraternally yours,
Sam'l Gompers,
President American Federation of Labor.

Denver, Colo.

Fellow Craftsmen:

Union No. 129 in placing the convention amendment before you is prompted by several good reasons, and we will endeavor to give you a brief synopsis at this time.

To devise ways and means to build a Cigar Makers' Home, to legislate for the permanency of the above.

To inaugurate an Old Age Pension System.

To institute a Bureau of Publicity.

By having the Home and Old Age Pension System we would save some money, and could take better care of our sick, disabled and old members. We as an organization are able to do more in such instances for our members than we realize. We owe it to ourselves, and the principle of the C. M. I. U. to start these issues on the road to success.

No doubt a great many will say, will the referendum not serve the purpose? Hardly, the referendum is better in theory than in practice.

The membership at large is indifferent to do effective work by referendum. They obey the mandate of the referendum to vote at the election of international officers, with a fine attached.

Denver does not want to be misunderstood, that in asking for a Home the inference may be drawn that we want it here. Denver is willing to have it anywhere. We are more than willing to share our part of it, but we do not believe it is right for other unions to throw the sick members on our hands, and that settles it as far as they are concerned.

In regard to the Bureau of Publicity, no doubt we all know that our system at present in advertising the Blue Label lacks results. We spend considerable money and in return receive very little. The Public (Consumer) must be told what the Blue Label stands for. No child labor, no sweat shop or coolie labor. The Blue Label should be the medium for the Public that the cigar is not only Union made, but it is a legitimate guarantee for a good cigar. We must be the Information Bureau of the people for anything pertaining to the Cigar Industry.

We should do all our printing in our own plant.

The successful business is run on a business principle; a Union must do the same in this age of competition. The fittest will survive. We must keep up to the times to progress, to forge ahead should be our only aim.

We believe in the ultimate success of the C. M. I. U. and have confidence in the membership to solve the problems that will accomplish the desired results.

We earnestly solicit the support of all Unions.

Fraternally yours,
Union No. 129, Denver, Colo.

Boston, Mass., October 26, 1909.

To Organized Labor, Greeting:

We beg to advise you that the controversy between the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union and the W. L. Douglas Shoe Co., of Brockton, Mass., has been settled to our mutual satisfaction. All of the Douglas shoe factories are to operate under the Union Stamp arbitration contract. The factories of the Douglas Co. in Brockton, Mass., are to resume operations at once.

We extend our thanks to Organized Labor for past favors and we will endeavor in the future to merit your approval of our course.

Fraternally yours,
John F. Tobin,
General President.

Ch. Baine,
General Secretary-Treasurer.

To the Officers and Members of the C. M. I. U. of A.

At the last meeting of this Local, Union 460 of San Juan, P. R., the personal letter published in the official journal of September, signed by Juan G. Garcia, secretary of Local Union 119 of Puerta de Tierra, was considered. In that letter he tries to make everybody understand that he speaks with the authority of all the unions of Porto Rico, by saying in different paragraphs of the same letter: "We wish, we want, we, the Porto Rico Unions."

Such a letter contains, as proved at the meeting, many inaccuracies, and malicious accusations, to which Local Union 460 cannot contribute, and so I am instructed to have this letter published.

Our Local maintains that the amendment offered by Local 481 of Bayamon to Sec. 210, as published in the Journal of June, is absolutely useful, and of good spirit, to the best development of the International, the Island, and the operation of its Local Unions.

Local 460 assures that it is not true that the actual organization of the Joint Advisory Board is such now as that offered in the amendment of Local 481.

The actual organic form of the J. A. B. is a wise one, and in accordance with the International Constitution, but with the amendment of Local 481, we wish to obtain more ways and better conditions to the development of the organization of the men and a good defense in all our fights.

Our Union declares, that it is false and malicious to affirm that the unions at the Island can't afford the expenses of the J. A. B. when it is proved that all the unions during three years have done so, and they can better now since they have progressed more. The same unions have determined the contribution and examined the accounts of the J. A. B.

For these and other reasons Local 460 resolved to deny the truth of the letter published against the amendment of Local 481 of Bayamon and the J. A. Board, and expresses its confidence in the Joint Advisory Board in Porto Rico that so opportunely leads the business and progress of the movement.

Decatur, Ill., Oct., 1909.

Every year the different local unions and State Label Leagues under the jurisdiction of the International Union spend a sum of money that reaches into thousands of dollars, in the one item: Advertising the Label. The reason we advertise our label is to create a demand for the cigars made by the cigarmakers who constitute our "grand union," and in creating this demand, we increase our work and wages. We have entered the field as a "union of advertisers," and we must stay by our start. What would be the results if we should "lay down" for a period of one year, or even six months? Why, the tobacco and cigar trust would step right in and help themselves to what we are fighting for year to year; they would feel very grateful to us, and extend us an invitation to come over to their factories and work for them, and their dictations. Is there a member among the cigarmakers who wishes to hand over that which has cost him so much in money and labor to create, to a monopoly who are ever ready to crush us? No member can afford to "lay down" now, and no member can afford to be parsimonious in purse or energy to keep alive that which keeps the cigarmakers' union in existence.

There are "good" and "bad" advertisements, and a great amount of good money has been thrown away on advertising matter that did not bring the results intended, and we are kept in a constant quandry to find "good matter." Our label deserves the best we can get, for one piece of "good advertising" is worth all the bad stuff we can devise; so we must get together and show the public that we can create something that will hold them to straight and narrow path, which leads at the end to the Blue Label.

One year ago Union No. 20 of Decatur gave their annual ball which has always proved a financial success, as well as an advertiser to the union. At these annual balls the local makes an effort to have something "special" to attract the public and press to the Label. Last year we worked in a vaudeville act that put all the dancers on edge and helped them to enjoy the occasion more. A team of singers was invited to produce a "musical number" composed by one of the members of this union. The number was a song under the title of "The Label of Blue" and was rendered with telling effect, as the act was encored repeatedly. Since that time the union has been asked and prevailed upon by many to have the song produced in print as a souvenir. The union took the matter up on an advertising base, and had the song printed as a "souvenir ad." The title or front page was gotten out in an attractive manner of three colors, with the Union Label occupying the center of attraction, with wording calling attention to the label etc., with compliments of the local union. Not since the days of Harris' "After the Ball" has a song been written that contains so much pretty music and harmony (the song being a waltz song), as well as catchy verse (being a two-verse and chorus song, calling the attention to the Label, etc., etc.). The song was a "hit" right in the start, and the union was compelled to issue 5,000 copies to cover the demand for the song in this city alone, and the best thing of the whole scheme was that the whole issue was taken right at home and preserved among other music and a lasting reminder of the Blue Label, not a copy was thrown away. Union No. 20 would consider itself very selfish if it did not give every Local Union and State Label League a chance to derive as much benefit from the advertisement as we have, and we have made arrangements with the printer to furnish us the song at a cost so that any union or league can afford to give the song away, as we have. We will begin to send sample copies to all unions soon and show them a way where the advertisement will cost the local next to nothing.

In the September Journal the present writer contributed, over the pseudonym "Plain Talk," an argument supporting proposed new section 67½, setting forth therein reasons why the amendment of No. 179 should be considered favorably by our members. We "stand pat" on the contents of that letter, as its every word, paragraph and statement is plain, unvarnished truth, and in its entirety it stands irrefutable and impregnable to the shafts of assault. To the finite mind restricted in area of discernment, truth devoid of embellishments assumes the form of an incomprehensible phenomena, producing sporadic thoughts and improper digestion. Thus, we read in October Journal letters from two writers (referred to hereinafter as respondents Nos. 1 and 2) from Boston, who in an attempt to contradict certain statements finish by corroborating, unconsciously of course, and adding proofs to the statements which they started out to try to disprove. Both "respondents" file objections to the "Plain Talk" signature which these brave (?) defenders ascribe to lack of courage of the writer. This we consider "silly rubbish" and will say that the identity of the writer is no secret, but rather well known. We saw fit to sign the letter in that manner and deem the criticism unworthy of further reply. Both "respondents" dispute statement regarding Providence, R. I., note by claiming that the Belgian boss who wrote that communication was a printer, ticket agent, etc. but their case falls when they admit the existence of such communication, and do not deny that the offer was to supply Huntoon & Gorham with cigarmakers, for that was the offer, and cigarmakers are usually "turned out" in cigar factories and not from print shops or ship wharves. They have not cleared their own case "Respondent No. 1" (pages 4 and 5 October Journal) seems unduly exercised over what he calls a "ripping up" and "slander." We are not to blame for the inability of him and his "preceptor" to understand words and truth when written. In trying to dispute my reference to the absence of apprentice laws in Belgian unions he states "one must be a perfect cigarmaker and at least 16 years of age to join the union." In this particular let me refer the members to the history of the card of Milanie Andries on page 5 of October Journal. Figure up the dates and draw your own decision. We fail to comprehend what constitutes a perfect cigarmaker in Belgium. Maybe that is a joke. He states that 80 per cent of Belgian cigarmakers start in at the age of 7 or 8 years, and in the next paragraph he declares "There is no such a thing as academies to make cigarmakers, etc." Comment is unnecessary and we decline to erase the term "Klondyke." It may or may not be true that 20 per cent of the Belgians attend evening schools, and while the city of Boston maintains a magnificent system of free day and evening schools it is not a question of what has been taught, but rather what learning has been acquired in measuring individuals. A perusal of letter of "Respondent No. 1" will prove this statement. He touches lightly on the matter of "an organization within the C. M. I. U., admitting that such an organization does exist. He next stamps as a "misstatement" the use of the word "immigration," saying that it should read "traveling" instead. Somewhat amusing, this wrestle with modern lexicography, and he repeats, in substance, the statement made in our September letter and goes further, by adding that if the recipients return within specified periods of time, moneys received must be paid back, naturally inferring that after the prescribed time the money need not be paid back. He fails in correction, and substantiates the charge that money has been paid to Belgians to come to this country, and we will continue to call it an "immigration" benefit. We cannot say whether that law has been repealed or not. In our reference to Mr. Henri Jutgers' letter we did not state that he issued cards; we used the pronoun "they," which is very plain. Again the "respondent" is disconcerted and the cause of his discomfiture is the fact that we made a distinction in differentiating between the classes of Belgians. We have no "axe to grind," and do not fear the pen of any one, but in simple justice to the old school we could not refer to the Belgians as a whole. We concede to the "respondent" the right to know to which class he belongs, and when he proceeds to bestow upon his class a choice line of invective, we offer no objection, that is none of our business, although in our letter we avoided the use of any such diatribe. His estimate of 700 Belgians in New England is far too low. And as a seminary he assumes the role of an "intellectual" in embryo, spreading wisdom on political affairs, which reading between the lines bears the "earmarks" of a call to "comrades" to defeat the amendment. His reference to the importation of cigars from the Philippines is misplaced, as it brings up another evil which the members of the C. M. I. U. will have to meet, additional to the evil which the amendment seeks to remedy. On the whole "Respondent No. 1" and his "preceptor" seem to want to feel aggrieved, to want to say something, and don't know just how to go about it. Ordinarily we would pass his letter unnoticed, but believing that a reply will be looked for by some of our members and for no other reason, this letter is written. We have nothing to retract, no correction or modification to make to our September letter, and while we could add to, we do not deem it necessary at the present time. We simply ask the members to read letter in September Journal signed "Plain Talk," read Boston letter in October Journal in reference to same, measure the text of each and we believe that the deductions contained herein will appeal to the fair-minded as being accurate, i. e., that our former statements have been proven and strengthened by criticism. To the readers of the Journal we will say that in writing we are not imbued with the spirit of self-aggrandizement or individual effect, but with the sole and only purpose of supporting a measure which we believe to be fair and just to all, and of especial benefit to the members of the C. M. I. U. When this letter is being read new Section 67½ will or will not have received the requisite number of endorsements. In either event, we have brought to the notice of our members a phase in our industry, and a weakness in our laws which should be corrected. And to those who may feel that the proposed initiation fee is too high, we would cite from personal knowledge of instances where sundry labor unions have charged initiation fees as follows: Wire Weavers, $200; Bartenders, $25; Barbers, $25; Musicians, $25, etc.

In conclusion, let us say, do not let your minds be influenced by anything except the question at issue, which as outlined in our September letter is: "As the American boy is restricted in opportunity to learn our trade and compelled to pay an initiation fee, why should not the foreigners also pay for the benefits of high wages, etc., which they receive immediately upon coming to this country?" In the vernacular, "Keep your eye on the ball, or stay out of the game." Our September letter contained argument, logic and truth. To all who recognize truth when presented to them, we need say no more. To all others, argument, written or spoken, is energy wasted. We do not feel constrained to offer an apology to anyone who wishes to think that their feelings have been hurt, and conclude with the appropriate term.

More Plain Talk.

The Executive Board of Union No. 97, in regular meeting assembled this evening, indorsed the following report and voted to request its publication in the "Official Journal."

Fraternally,

David Goldstein,
James Blyth,
Committee.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 3, 1909.

To the Officers and Members of the Executive Board, C. M. I. U., No. 97.

Gentlemen—The sub-committee of the Executive Board selected by your body for the purpose of tabulating the membership of our organization, that a more intelligent appreciation of the effect of foreign immigration upon our local organization may be had, submit the following report:

During the past ten years Union No. 97 has initiated 779 cigarmakers and packers from foreign countries, nearly all of whom were admitted by foreign cards.

Year.	Number.
1900.....	18
1901.....	15
1902.....	46
1903.....	109
1904.....	134
1905.....	81
1906.....	162
1907.....	113
1908.....	26
1909.....	55
Total	779

To the 779 who came directly into Union No. 97 from foreign countries there must be added others. Bearing in mind that our constitution demands that all applicants for admission into our organization shall be working at the bench before membership in Union No. 97 is conferred upon them, it often happens that cigarmakers coming to our city from the old world, upon failing to obtain employment, go elsewhere—to Manchester, Providence, New Haven, Philadelphia and other cities. Obtaining work, they join the C. M. I. U. of A. When trade is busy in Boston, many of these men, returning to their first port of entry, have, upon depositing their traveling cards, become members.

Hence these traveling card members are not included in the 779 foreign cigarmakers. In the following table we submit the number by nationality:

Belgium	521
England	114
Germany	40
Holland	37
Scandinavian
Norway, Sweden, Denmark	36
Russia	21
Cuba	10
Total	779

Upon examining the applications of members admitted by English cards we find that of the 114 accredited to England 18 learned their trade in Holland and 19 in Belgium. Thus, according to their foreign cards, they must be tabulated as English. But if they were listed according to their nationality, the figures for Belgium, England and Holland would stand as follows:

Belgium	540
England	77
Holland	55

We present next a table showing the number admitted to our local union yearly since 1900, according to the nationality of their traveling cards.

	Bel-	Eng-	Ger-	Hol-	Scan-	Rus-	Tot-
	gum.	land.	many.	land.	vian.	sia.	al.
1900...	8	1	4	2	3	18	18
1901...	7	2	1	1	2	15	15
1902...	31	10	2	3	1	46	46
1903...	74	13	7	5	6	109	109
1904...	98	35	2	9	8	154	154
1905...	53	12	8	1	2	81	81
1906...	120	16	11	4	7	162	162
1907...	67	21	3	13	4	113	113
1908...	17	2	2	3	1	26	26
1908...	46	2	2	2	3	55	55
Total	521	114	40	37	36	779	779

Your committee have examined the annual reports of the Commissioner General of Immigration for the past nine years ending June 30, 1908 (the 1909 report is not in print). Cigarmakers are included under the classification of tobacco workers. Of course a majority of them are cigarmakers, though cigarette makers and others who work in the tobacco industry make up the total. The figures are as follows (Belgians and Hollanders are classified under a general heading, namely, Flemish and Dutch):

Figures taken from annual reports for the fiscal years ending June 30.

	1900.	1901.	1902.	1903.	1904.	1905.	1906.	1907.	1908.	Tot.
Flemish and Dutch.....	20	40	52	99	136	166	128	140	113	894
England	7	14	23	28	21	47	24	40	21	225
Germany	23	31	46	46	35	58	43	57	38	377
Scandinavian	10	10	21	27	24	35	27	17	14	185
Russia	1	1	1	7	7	2	2	..	1	21
Cuba	2	2	24	19	1226	1918	1254	1483	406	6334
Hebrew	269	297	232	346	532	651	560	609	293	3789

It will be noted that the official figures tell us that only 21 English tobacco workers entered our ports in 1904; while, during the same year, Union No. 97 admitted 35 by English cards. This discrepancy is due to the fact that the official figures are based upon the nationality of the individual tobacco worker, while the table of our immigrant membership is made up according to the traveling cards presented for membership. Again, the official figures report that only 21 tobacco workers came from Russia to this country in the past nine years ending June, 1908. During that period Union 97 has initiated 19 cigarmakers, all of whom claimed to have worked at the trade in Russia. It should be noted that the immigration figures make a distinct classification of Hebrews, hence the larger number of tobacco workers from Russia to this port are classified as Hebrew, not as Russian. The total number of Hebrew tobacco workers who entered the United States during the nine years ending June 30, 1908, is 3,789.

In order that the practical import of the above table may be appreciated, we present the number of tobacco workers who came to this country from Belgium and Holland (who are tabulated by the Commissioner General of Immigration under the compound heading of Flemish and Dutch) in contrast to the number admitted by foreign cards into Union No. 97 from these countries during the same period:

Year.	Flemish and Dutch. Immigrants.	Foreign cards.
1900.....	20	8
1901.....	40	7
1902.....	52	31
1903.....	99	79
1904.....	136	107
1905.....	166	54
1906.....	152	124
1907.....	140	80
1908.....	138	20
Total	939	510

These figures are conclusive evidence that the greater proportion of the tobacco workers of Belgium and Holland become members of Union 97.

The registered apprentice book, from July 23, 1903, to July 23, 1909 (the period during which an exact record has been kept), shows that 319 apprentices have been registered in our local union for the term of three years each.

For comparison of apprentices to our total union membership as reported in our "Official Journal" we present the following table:

	Apprentices.	Total membership Union No. 97.
1903.....	59	1,615
1904.....	49	1,832
1905.....	47	1,851
1906.....	38	1,833
1907.....	56	2,103
1908.....	30	2,124
1909.....	40	1,747
Total	319

During the past seven years our average number of apprentices has been 45 and our average membership 1,872, giving a ratio of one apprentice to every 42 cigarmakers or packers. Your committee presents the opinion that the apprentice question should receive our union's most serious consideration. While the apprentice data gives the impression that we have succeeded in keeping down the number of persons who have entered our industry, the facts are quite to the contrary. For besides the cigarmakers turned out by the New York "academies" we have had to deal with those who have graduated from the shops on the other side of the water. Some of our members who abide strictly by the letter and the spirit of our constitution, who regard no country other than these United States as their home, have had to worry and struggle to get an opportunity to apprentice their own sons in a union shop within our jurisdiction, while others have sent their sons and daughters to Belgium to get their trade. The American apprentices have been forced to serve an apprenticeship of three years in a union shop, while those getting their trade abroad have returned to our shores after an absence of one, one and a half and two years. They have been admitted to membership under our laws governing foreign cards. Happening to have a three-year card, admission was obtained free of initiation fee, while our own boys after a three-year apprenticeship have been compelled to pay $3 entrance fee.

Another grave consideration is presented in the fact that the Belgium union, from which two-thirds of our foreign membership is recruited, is organized upon an industrial basis, therefore members of the Belgium union, when leaving for other lands, are given traveling cards for the time they have been in the industry. As strippers, bunch makers, cigarmakers, packers, etc., their traveling cards denote only the length of time they have belonged to the Belgium union, not the kind of work they have done.

Our American consul, H. Abert Johnson, reports that the Belgium government has established schools for teaching girls and boys cigarmaking. These schools are conducted by cigar manufacturers, who receive a government subsidy. The children attend these cigarmaking schools in the early morning hours before attending the regular schools, and "in order to encourage regular attendance and stimulate the zeal of the pupils a prize of 2 cents a day is offered for each day in which the pupil regularly attends the school." We believe, therefore, that the best interests of all our members would be served by a closer supervision of the cards presented for membership from this source.

We respectfully recommend that our National President, George W. Perkins, be asked to communicate with the Commissioner General of Immigration preferring the request that in tabulating the tobacco workers coming to this country they be subdivided into cigarmakers, cigar packers, cigarette makers, and others.

Respectfully submitted,

David Goldstein,
James Blyth,

Sub-committee of the Executive Board.

Your attention is called to an amendment offered by Union 22 calling for a 5-cent assessment upon all 30 and 15-cent members in favor of the Swedish strikers and their families. The Swedish Strike Relief Committee has issued an appeal. You can readily see by the appeal that the Swedish working class is carrying on a life and death struggle for the maintenance of their organization. They need the assistance of the workers of the world. Our interests are identical. Here is an opportunity to show the workers of Sweden that we understand the meaning of the word "solidarity." Endorse the amendment and give it your support when it comes to a vote.

Manila, P. I., Oct. 15.—Thirty-six leaders of the striking cigarmakers were arrested here to-day, charged with criminal conspiracy. This action is the result of the demand for higher wages after the Payne tariff bill went into effect. Several riots have occurred.

The complaint on which the leaders were arrested quote the alleged "blood pact" signed by the strikers. This was an oath each man was required to take, stating that if he betrayed the cause his brothers had the right to kill him without responsibility to the authorities.

ORGANIZER'S REPORT.

Toronto, Oct. 23, 1909.

Northern Ontario, or more properly speaking old Northern Ontario as distinguished from the section of country now known as New Ontario, has passed through the recent depression in business with less failures or other disturbance in business than probably any other section of the province. This immunity from serious depression may be, I think, attributed to the close proximity of the great mining camp of Cobalt, and the newer camps of Gowganda in which many rich strikes have been made, the result of which being the attraction of capitalists, prospectors, and speculators from all parts of the world, and so the nearest markets to the mineral regions have been the greatest gainers.

Whatever the main cause the fact remains that these towns, many of them originated by the lumbering industry, which has declined to a very great extent, are renewing their prosperity today.

Orilla on lake Simcoe is a case in point; it is attracting many manufacturing plants, it having abundance of cheap electric power generated by a municipally owned plant. The place is prosperous, and affords a good market for cigars. Brands bearing the blue label seem to have the call, but dealers say there is very little demand.

Recently a big fire here destroyed the entire plant of Tiedhope's carriage factory, one of the largest of its kind in the Dominion. They are rebuilding as rapidly as possible.

Midland is a great lumbering center, possessing some very large mills giving employment to a large number of men, who have on occasion responded generously to an appeal on behalf of the Union label. There is a good showing of label brands, amongst those offered for sale. This place is under local option. Some of the business men say it is a success, but the stranger is impressed with the fact that the bulk of the traffic is to Penetang, a wet town, and only a short distance away, and there does not seem to be any law to prevent liquor being brought into a place under local option. Penetang is also somewhat of a lumbering center; it is also a summer resort, situate on an arm of the Georgian Bay.

It is a good market for cigars with some demand for the label; here and at Midland I distributed some advertising matter.

Barrie, on Kempenfeldt Bay, lake Simcoe, has evidently taken a new lease of life and is lively and prosperous. There is one small factory here, the proprietor of which, a Mr. Janes, reports good business. The label is strongly in evidence here, although there is no organization to assist in creating a demand.

Allandale is the largest railroad center in this section, and many railroad employes make their home here. Despite this fact the demand for label goods here is not what it should be, and proves in my experience, that railroad organizations (with some honorable exceptions) are not very responsive to an appeal for the union label. There is a good show of union goods here.

New Market is another place that seems to have the faculty of attracting to itself new industries and bids fair to be a manufacturing center in the near future. There is a good surrounding country of which New Market is the market. There is some demand for union goods and a good showing of the same.

During this month the Street Railway Employes' Association held their convention in the City of Toronto, which I attended and addressed regarding the union label, and met with a good reception.

Fraternally Yours,
W. V. Todd, Org.

CHICAGO, NOVEMBER 15, 1909.

In another part of this issue we publish in full the report of President Sam'l Gompers' to the Toronto convention of the American Federation of Labor. The report is replete with useful and instructive information and should be carefully perused by every member.

PRESIDENT GOMPERS' REPORT.

So much has been said, so much comment made, much of it erroneous, concerning Mr. Gompers' sentence to imprisonment for one year for alleged violation of the injunction in the Buck Stove and Range Co. case we suggest that you read what he has to say concerning this case, his action, the Judge, etc. We will not attempt to review any part of what he says preferring to let him tell the story and in his own way. You will find by reference to his report that he has covered the whole case in a comprehensive and exhaustive manner.

The insidious attempt on the part of certain employers and a few, too willing, Judges to rob the masses of the right of free speech and a free press especially in strikes and purely labor matters is so pronounced and as the whole subject has now become one of the foremost issues in our own movement as well as politically and as the whole case has been and is being incorrectly stated by some newspapers makes it imperative, necessary that you not only read but reread all that President Gompers has to say on this vital issue.

The members of organized labor should at least thoroughly know and understand this whole case but they should be in a position to correctly state it to others. This can only be accomplished by a careful study of the whole case.

We are morally certain that Mr. Gompers considers that he had a moral and a legal constitutional right to do and say the things that he has and that he considered that it was his duty to the labor movement to do so as well. Our own conception after a careful consideration of all the facts is that Mr. Gompers in any event only committed at the utmost a technical violation of the injunction and that he is being persecuted by the Manfrs. association in the hopes that it will intimidate others if not him and for the further purpose of establishing the right of Judges to break up strikes, boycotts, etc., by the injunction judge made law process.

Our esteemed contemporary, "Tobacco," a publication in the interest of the retail trade, of THE TAMPA SCALE OF PRICES. contains the following report from Tampa in a recent edition:

"As is usual each year, when all the factories are busy, there are rumors of labor troubles. A mass meeting of cigarmakers was held early in the week and another will be held Sunday. What the grievances are seem to be problematical, except that an impression exists to the effect that there is a lack of uniformity of prices among the factories. This is such absolute folly on the face of it, that unless there is something more serious behind it, the situation is not in the least alarming. If, however, this condition does exist, the Manufacturers' Association are just as anxious and willing to have it adjusted as the workmen can possibly be. The Manufacturers' Association have provided for just such conditions, and it is only necessary for the operators to report a case to the officers of the association, and the matter will be promptly and summarily dealt with.

The largest and most influential manufacturers have assured the Tobacco correspondent that they are not in the least uneasy and do not anticipate trouble, for the scale of wages, as agreed upon in 1901 after the big strike are still in effect, and are absolutely fair to the manufacturers and operators alike."

The correspondent of "Tobacco" has evidently listened to only one of the parties in interest; he is totally in error in reference to the scale of prices paid to cigarmakers.

The facts are that the scale of prices to be paid cigar makers as agreed upon in 1901 has not been in force for at least five years. It has been reduced gradually from two to ten dollars per thousand.

In many cases this has been accomplished by unfair methods, by the substitution of brands, by calling Perfectos Londres-Grandas and other devices which cannot stand the light of an impartial investigation.

The working of a "clean table" by throwing the scraps back into the long fillers has reduced the wages of the cigar makers to a standard which makes life miserable; only sufficient to support a family in misery and poverty. The wholesale increase in the number of apprentices of tender age; some factories have nearly as many apprentices as journeymen, is a crying shame and a blot on American civilization.

It is true the cigar makers of Tampa are largely to blame for this deplorable condition, having failed to grasp the necessity of organization and unity of action. Within the last few months, however, a reaction has taken place and thousands have joined the unions. It is never too late to organize and make amends for past mistakes.

The cigar packers and selectors have formed a notable exception to the above; they have been organized for years with a scale of prices superior on many brands to any other in the country. They have regulated the employment of apprentices, and settled their grievances by conference and conciliation with the manufacturers. Guided by cool and level-headed leaders, who counseled moderation and the adjustment of trade disputes by conference, some of which lasted for weeks, they have obtained concessions which have no parallel in the trade.

If "the largest and most influential manufacturers," as the correspondent of "Tobacco" states are willing to settle the grievances of the cigar makers by honorable and fair methods, we see no reason why it should not be settled by conference and conciliation, and the adoption of a system of arbitration to adjust all future disputes.

In reviewing the condition of trade throughout the country for the month of September, 1909, in comparison with the corresponding month of 1908, everything points to a revival of the cigar industry in various parts of the country. The improvement, however, is not general; it is only in spots, here and there. In some districts production is still at a low ebb. It is much below the production of 1906-1907; fully eight per cent on the average. In some revenue districts it is over twenty per cent below the record years of 1906-1907. The greatest percentage of increase has taken place in the districts of Florida, Porto Rico, and the Second of Virginia and Fifth of New Jersey, controlled by the American Cigar Company and the corporation masquerading as the United Cigar Manufacturers, the employers of cheap female labor. We publish a detailed statement giving the production of nearly all revenue districts; some are missing. A decrease is marked by a star.

The Havana-American Tobacco Company, a branch of the American Cigar Company, is making Havana cigars on TRADE NOTES. the Spanish style, in Havana, Cuba, Key West, Fla. Tampa, Fla., New York city and New Orleans, La. In the last named place the cigars are made by females and young persons by the team system on a much lower scale of prices than paid in the other factories named. In case of a strike or lock-out the trust can transfer the business from one place to another. A thorough organization of the trade in all factories can alone overcome the power of the cigar trust in the Havana branch of the industry.

One of the large cigar manufacturers of New York city, known as the Hilson Co., has sold his brands to the American Tobacco Company. Years ago this firm was known as Foster & Hilson.

A press dispatch says: "The factory of the New Brunswick, N. J., branch of the 'United Cigar Manufacturers' Corporation' was reopened last Thursday, and a portion of the girls returned to work under the protection of some fifty policemen. There was considerable disorder, and strikers concealed in houses threw stones at the girls who returned to work. There were several arrests, and one girl who was arrested fought desperately, inflicting several bites upon the hands of one policeman. Three of the girls were sentenced to five days in jail." The factory employs over fifteen hundred females.

We received the following item of news from Tampa, Fla., recently: "Plenty of new members; lots of trouble in sight. The manufacturers are bringing in cigarmakers on every boat from Cuba; the factories are working every day in the week and on Sundays. The object is to fight the cigarmakers now organizing. Resolutions were adopted by the manufacturers' association to send agents to Cuba, and furnish money with which to import cigarmakers. They are trying hard to flood the city with men. The cigarmakers are still joining the union."

The United Cigar Manufacturers' Co. has declared the regular quarterly dividend on the preferred stock, 1½ per cent, payable December 1 to stock of record, November 26.

The American Stogie Co. has declared a dividend of 1 per cent on the preferred stock, payable December 1.

Mr. Eugene Vallens, formerly of "Rare-Bit" notoriety of Chicago, Ill., has resigned the presidency of M. Valle Cy. Co., a branch of the American Cigar Company in New York city. Years ago he failed to make a success of a cigar called Preferencia, which brand was subsequently purchased by the American Tobacco Co.

The U. S. government has given a clean bill of health to all cigars manufactured by Chinese coolies and natives in the Philippine Islands, by allowing the following label to be pasted on the boxes:

"Philippine Islands. Official Cigar Export Stamp. Manufactured, Graded and Packed Under Government Supervision. Quality Standard for this brand. Made by cleanly operatives in a sanitary factory under control of the Bureau of Health, from sound Philippine tobacco grown in the Cagayan Valley. Bureau of Internal Revenue."

The Western Leaf Tobacco Association and cigar manufacturers of several cities have entered their protests against this outrage by the government.

The report of Secretary Morrison of the A. F. of L. for the twelve months ending September 30, 1909, shows gratifying results, despite the depression that prevailed. At the close of the fiscal year the high water mark was reached. The funds showed a balance on hand of $167,303.46. The previous balance was $138,627.89. Some idea may be gained of the growth during 29 years when it is known that in 1881 the receipts were only $174, with expenditures of $154, while the receipts for 1909 were $232,377.64 and the expenditures were $203,702.07.

There was collected during the year on account of the 1c California Assessment $1,202.10 which with the balance on hand, amounted to $8,989.12. From this fund there was expended $8,768.37. The "Legal Defense fund assessment" with previous balance show a total of $5,459.67, and expenditures amounting to $5,045.68. From the appeal for appropriation to the Gompers-Mitchel-Morrison defense fund there was received $40,891.34, and expended $6,273.61, leaving a balance in this fund of $38,024.37; $41,852.59 was raised by assessment for the Hatters and turned over to that organization for use in its strike.

There were 176 charters issued to National and International, Department, State, Central, Federal Labor and Local Trade unions during the year, and affiliated unions reported 1,476 charters issued to their respective organizations during the same period. These affiliated unions report a grand total of benefits paid during the year of $2,509,258.04 as follows: Death benefit, $1,236,243.51; sick benefit, $731,955.15; traveling benefit, $51,967.87; unemployed, $484,028.49, and tool insurance, $5,063.02. The receipts of "The American Federationist" were $20,148.78 and the expense $22,703.57. Notwithstanding the deficit for the year of $2,554.84, the receipts for the past six years has been $1,049.02 more than the expenses for the same period. The defense fund for local trade and labor unions shows a gradual increase since its inauguration in 1902, and the balance on hand Sept. 30, 1909, was $115,877.14. For organizing work in the various states there was expended $48,359.63.

The foregoing is a brief summary of the Secretary's report, and shows that affiliated unions have made substantial progress during the past years.

It is the duty of all true union men and women to boost and encourage the trade union movement and all real union men will do so. Union men so-called often do considerable damage to the labor movement by finding fault with this, that or the other action of the union and with some officer or member and doing it in a manner that amounts to a positive knock. They do not fool the old timers, who know by experience the wonderful improvement that has been made in the condition of the workers through the instrumentality of the unions, but the damage is done with the younger and less experienced member who, not knowing the facts, is often misled by the knocking, fault-finding grumbler. A good healthy kicker is not necessarily a knocker and when he confines his kick to facts and in an impartial manner in the unions he is a benefactor. We respect an honest kicker.

A prize was offered by the Peoria central body to the person taking part in the Labor Day parade who had the most label goods. A union cigarmaker won the prize. The winner in the contest had the following labels on: Hat, coat, vest, pants, shirt, necktie, collar, two collar buttons, two sleeve buttons, cuff buttons, belt, suspenders, sox, shoes and pocket knife.

Men are often despondent and discouraged by environments. A kindly word with a cheerful smile often dispels gloom and gives encouragement. The lot of the toiler is hard at best, especially the unorganized, and all true men and women should do all they can first to encourage organization and secondly to make life more cheerful and its burdens less irksome. Be a ray of sunshine and not a grouch.

The following old but good adage is commended to the careful perusal of the professional knocker: "There is so much good in the worst of us and so much bad in the best of us that it ill behooves any of us to speak ill of the rest of us."

PRESIDENT GOMPERS' REPORT.

Toronto, Canada, November 8, 1909.
To the Officers and Delegates to the Twenty-ninth Annual Convention, American Federation of Labor:

Fellow-Workers: Permit me in the name of the great cause of labor and humanity in which we have the honor to be enlisted, to welcome you to this twenty-ninth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor. In this labor movement we gather as the representatives and by direction of our organized fellow-workers, and it is upon the labor movement that the toilers and the lovers of human freedom have set their hearts and hopes. They realize that the trade union movement of America is the historically developed potential force which bears the brunt and scars of battle and which makes sacrifices for right and justice for all, for all time. There is not a wrong against which we fail to protest or seek to remedy; there is not a right to which any of our fellows are entitled which it is not our duty, mission, and work and struggle to attain. So long as there shall remain a wrong unrighted or a right denied, there will be ample work for the labor movement to do. The struggle through the ages has always been attended with brutal tyranny and cruel injustice. Some have always had to suffer that the people might obtain some modicum of freedom. The times in which we now live are no exception to that rule. They who are true to their fellows, true to themselves, can not and dare not evade the duties and responsibilities which may come from their advocacy of the cause of the people.

Tyranny, exercised by no matter whom or from what source, must be resisted at all hazards. The labor movement which is the defender, protector, and promoter of the rights and interests of the people must be carried forward, its rapacious, ignorant opponents to the contrary notwithstanding. We should not, and we must not, surrender the rights which we have achieved for the toilers; we dare not permit the workers to become the victims of the tender mercies of their exploiters.

The higher manhood, womanhood, and childhood, a better standard of life which we have achieved for America's toilers, the better concept of human rights and liberties which have been secured at such great sacrifices are too precious heritages even to permit them to become debatable topics. They are the result of conquests in the struggle; they are ours to maintain and perpetuate for unborn generations.

Meeting in convention as we do for the first time in our history on Canadian soil, may we not indulge the hope that there will be brought to the consideration, discussion, and action of the work of our convention the very best that is in us, and so shape the course of our movement that it will prove of still greater advantage to our fellow-workers and the people generally, that we may win not only their respect and confidence, but their full association and co-operation?

The attention of friends and foes is equally attracted to this convention. Let us bring hope, comfort, and encouragement to the one; disappointment and dismay to the other.

Again, in the name of the toilers of our continent and for the success of the aspirations of the great cause of humanity and liberty, I bid you welcome.

The laws and practice of our Federation require that your president shall report to you annually, and it has been and is my desire to submit to conventions the matters which are most important, requiring attention and action.

The year which is just closed has been fraught with events of transcendent importance, and yet I feel that by reason of the many questions with which this convention must deal, as well as my absence from America for some considerable period, the report which I have the honor to submit falls far short of that which I hoped I could present.

There is no limit to the lines of activity in which our movement is engaged for the betterment of the conditions of the workers, to attain all rights, and to work for the attainment of justice. The interest and the right of anyone of our fellows is the concern of the labor movement. To bring light into the homes, hope to the hearts, aspirations to the minds of the workers, is the duty and mission of our movement. To make mankind truly free has been the dream of philosophers, song of the poets, and the struggle of the workers.

Organization and Growth.

It is a source of great gratification to be able to report the growth in the trade union movement during the past year. From the time of the panic, October, 1907, there were myriads of our fellow-workers unemployed, and this necessarily had an injurious influence upon them. As a consequence, there was a falling off in membership in many of our organizations. These, however, have been regained and additional members enrolled. There can be no doubt but that our experience before, during, and since the last panic has fully justified the attitude of the American Federation of Labor so stoutly maintained by nearly all workers. The declared position of America's workers that wage reductions would be resisted at all hazards, not only prevented reductions to any appreciable extent, but also gave courage to the workers to maintain their membership and stand true by organized labor.

Previous industrial crises were not only prolonged and made acute, but the organizations were crushed out of existence or they emerged from these periods with ranks decimated and unions disbanded. The period of our last panic was not only shortened, but the wage standard practically maintained, and the organizations of labor emerged from them better organized and better prepared to defend and promote the rights and interests of the workers.

It is impossible here to enter into detailed statements. Some other opportunity through our official magazine may present itself.

The present average membership of our affiliated organizations for the year is nearly up to the highest standard in the history of the Federation. The officers of, one-third of international unions affiliated to our Federation, have made report of an increase over previous years. Thirty-four of them reported a net increase of over 80,000 for the past year, while there has been a substantial increase in the membership of the local unions formed or revived, attached to the international unions or directly affiliated to the American Federation of Labor. The reports of the one-third of the organization may be taken as a fair indication of the general growth.

We issued during the fiscal year 176 certificates of affiliation. Of this number 3 were to international unions: the Operative Plasterers' International Association of the United States and Canada, the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, and the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite, and Paper Mill Workers of the United States and Canada; 2 to departments, as follows: Railway Employees' Department and Union Label Trades Department; 40 to central labor unions; 2 to state federations, Nebraska and Wyoming; 52 federal labor unions, and 77 local trade unions.

I strongly recommend that every effort be made to organize the yet unorganized workers of America. We must not cease our efforts to bring every wage-earner within the beneficent fold of unionism, to cultivate the spirit of fraternity and solidarity, that we may go onward and forward to a higher, better standard of life for all.

Summary of Injunction, Contempt and Appeals.

The injunction proceedings of the Buck's Stove and Range Company of St. Louis, Mo., of which James W. Van Cleave is president, against the American Federation of Labor, resolved themselves into two separate cases; one, the original injunction issued by Justice Gould of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia; the other, the proceedings for contempt brought against Vice-President John Mitchell, Secretary Frank Morrison, and myself. An appeal was taken by the American Federation of Labor on both cases. For convenience and an intelligent understanding, a brief summary of the case is here given.

Owing to the refusal of the Buck's Stove and Range Company, of St. Louis, to continue the nine hour workday to the metal polishers in its employ and its discrimination against and discharge of employees because of their membership in the union, and despite efforts to harmonize and adjust the differences existing, the labor organizations in interest of St. Louis placed the product of the Buck's Stove and Range Company upon their "We Don't Patronize" list. Application was made to the American Federation of Labor at our Minneapolis convention, 1906, to endorse the action of the workers particularly interested and place the name of the company upon the "We Don't Patronize" list of the American Federation of Labor.

The matter was referred by the convention to the Executive Council for the purpose of investigation and, if possible, adjustment. The Executive Council entrusted the matter to Vice-President Valentine to use his best efforts in the direction indicated. At a subsequent meeting of the Executive Council Vice-President Valentine reported that he had gone to the limit of his opportunities, and definitely ascertained that any effort on his part or on the part of anyone else to confer with Mr. Van Cleave upon the subject would be utterly fruitless, and though some of the then employees of the Buck's Stove and Range Company, who might be affected, were members of the Iron Molders' Union of North America, of which Mr. Valentine is president, he could not conscientiously interpose any objection to the attitude of the workers and organizations aggrieved or to the full endorsement of the application of our fellow-workers to place the Buck's Stove and Range Company upon the "We Don't Patronize" list of the American Federation of Labor. Thereupon, the Executive Council unanimously voted to approve the application.

On December 18, 1907, Mr. Van Cleave, president of the Buck's Stove and Range Company of St. Louis, who at the time was also president of the National Association of Manufacturers, obtained from Justice Gould, of the District of Columbia, an injunction against the American Federation of Labor, the members of the Executive Council, both officially and individually, the officers and members of local and international unions affiliated to the American Federation of Labor, its agents, friends, sympathizers, or counsel, forbidding them in any way to publish, print, write, verbally or orally communicate the fact that the Buck's Stove and Range Company was unfair to or had any dispute with organized labor, or that it was "boycotted" by organized labor. The injunction prohibited the publication of the company's name upon the "We Don't Patronize" list of the American Federation of Labor, directly or indirectly, and all were forbidden to state, declare, or say that there existed or had been any dispute or difference of any kind between the company, the American Federation of Labor or any of its affiliated organizations in any manner whatsoever.

Hearing was had before the temporary injunction was issued by Justice Gould. He declined later to modify it or to explain its terms. On December 18th the court issued the temporary injunction. It becoming effective December 23d when the Buck's Stove and Range Company filed its bond, approved by the court. The temporary injunction was made permanent March 26, 1908, by Justice Clabaugh of the same court.

Upon the authority of the Norfolk Convention of the American Federation of Labor an appeal from the injunction was taken to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, our main contention being that the terms of the injunction were in violation of fundamental constitutional rights and guarantees, and that it was, therefore, invalid and void. While this appeal was pending before the court, so hasty and vindictive was Mr. James W. Van Cleave, of the Buck's Stove and Range Company, that he petitioned the court which issued the injunction to adjudge Vice-President John Mitchell, Secretary Morrison, and myself guilty of contempt of court and to require us to show cause why we should not be punished therefor. We were harassed for months, our counsel and witnesses being required to travel throughout large sections of the country to take testimony. Days upon days were consumed in the examination of Messrs. Mitchell, Morrison, and myself at Washington. Practically the history of the American Federation of Labor, printed, written or unpublished, was made part of the testimony.

The court heard argument of counsel on both sides as to whether the defendants, Mitchell, Morrison, and I, were guilty of contempt of court. And while the appeal on the original injunction was pending, Justice Wright on December 23, 1908, adjudged us guilty of contempt of court and imposed a sentence of six months, nine months, and one year's imprisonment respectively upon "Morrison, Mitchell, and Gompers."

This passing comment appears apropos. It is that an unprejudiced, impartial judge might well have deferred a decision in a contempt case alleging violation of an injunction while an appeal upon the validity of the injunction itself was pending and was being considered for decision by a higher court, and further, that the unprecedented sentences imposed were entirely in conflict with the spirit and plain provision of the constitution as being cruel and unusual.

The language and manner of Justice Wright in delivering his opinion upon the guilt of the men charged with disobeying the terms of the injunction, the fact that he had given his opinion, or permitted it to be given, out in advance, the whole mockery and formality of asking us whether we had any reasons to assign why sentence should not be pronounced, when he had determined on the sentences in advance; all these, as well as the matter and manner of the arrangement for the scene and the delivery of the opinion and sentence indicated the unfitness of the man to wear the judicial robe and occupy the judicial position.

What are the offenses for which Mitchell, Morrison, and I are sentenced to long months of imprisonment, and the ignominy of being classified as criminals? We have dared to defend our constitutional rights as men and as citizens, despite the injunction of a court which sought to invade the rights of free speech and free press secured to the Anglo-Saxon people centuries ago by Magna Charta and clinched by the adoption of the first amendment to the constitution of the United States.

And what, after all, are the grounds upon which Justice Wright held the defendants guilty of violation of the terms of the injunction? When the injunction was issued and went into effect, both temporary and permanent, we proposed to test the principles involved before the established legal tribunals. By instruction of and with authority from the Executive Council the name of the Buck's Stove and Range Company was removed from the "We Don't Patronize" list in the American Federationist.

Vice-President Mitchell, it was alleged, violated the injunction by allowing certain acts to be performed by the officers of the American Federation of Labor, and also, that while presiding at a convention of the United Mine Workers of America, a resolution, regularly introduced by a delegate, calling upon the members of that organization not to bestow their patronage upon the product of the Buck's Stove and Range Company was submitted by Mr. Mitchell to the delegates for a vote.

Secretary Morrison was charged substantially with having violated the terms of the injunction in so far as that he sent, or caused to be sent out copies of the printed official proceedings of the previous convention of the American Federation of Labor containing officers' and committee reports and resolutions of the convention relative to the Buck's Stove and Range Company's injunction and copies of the American Federationist containing similar references, circulars, appeals for funds, and editorials written by me on the injunction abuse.

The allegations charging me with violating the terms of the injunction were that I did, or authorized, or directed to be done, these things; because, by authority of the convention and of the Executive Council I sent to our fellow-workers and friends an appeal for funds in order that we might be in a position to defend ourselves before the courts in the very injunction case involved; because in lectures and on the public platform, during the Presidential campaign I made addresses to the people giving the reasons for the vote as a citizen I was to cast at the then pending Presidential election, and because I dared editorially to discuss the fundamental principles involved, not only in the injunction pending but the entire abuse of the injunction writ. Aye, because I published in the American Federationist the order of the court to show cause why we should not be punished for contempt of the injunction was made part of the testimony upon which Justice Wright deemed it important to hold me guilty.

Immediately after Justice Wright declared us guilty of contempt of the injunction and imposed the sentences, notice of appeal was given and bonds furnished in the following sums: Gompers, $5,000; Mitchell, $4,000, and Morrison, $3,000, for our appearance before the court at any time when called upon.

On March 11, 1909—that is, nearly four months after Justice Wright imposed these sentences for alleged contempt of the injunction—the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia handed down its decision upon our appeal in the original injunction. That court greatly modified the terms of the injunction, holding that no publication could be forbidden except in furtherance of a "conspiracy" to boycott.

The injunction as modified and affirmed by the court is as follows:

"It is adjudged, ordered and decreed that the defendants, Samuel Gompers, Frank Morrison, John B. Lennon, James Duncan, John Mitchell, James O'Connell, Max Morris, Denis A. Hayes, Daniel J. Keefe, William D. Huber, Joseph F. Valentine, Rodney L. Thixton, Clinton O. Buckingham, Herman C. Poppe, Arthur J. Williams, Samuel R. Cooper and Edward L. Hickman, individually and as representatives of the American Federation of Labor, their and each of their agents, servants and confederates, be, and they hereby are, perpetually restrained and enjoined from conspiring or combining to boycott the business or product of complainant, and from threatening or declaring any boycott against said business or product, and from abetting, aiding or assisting in any such boycott, and from directly or indirectly threatening, coercing or intimidating any person or persons whomsoever from buying, selling or otherwise dealing in complainant's product, and from printing the complainant, its business or product in the 'We Don't Patronize' or 'Unfair' list of defendants in furtherance of any boycott against complainant's business or product, and from referring, either in print or otherwise, to complainant, its business or product, as in said 'We Don't Patronize' or 'Unfair' list in furtherance of any such boycott.

"The costs of this appeal are equally divided between appellants and appellees.

"Modified and affirmed."

The court which handed down this "modified and affirmed" decision is composed of three judges, each of whom delivered different opinions. One justice who concurred in the conclusion gave different reasons. It is difficult to read Justice Van Orsdel's concurring opinion and reconcile it with his conclusion to affirm the injunction even in modified form. Chief Justice Shepard dissented from the conclusion of the court.

I urge upon every wage-earner and every one interested in the discussion of great rights and principles involved to read the decision and opinions of the justices rendered in this case. The opinions and decision were published in the April, 1909, issue of the American Federationist.

The Court of Appeals did not take any original testimony in the case, and I am justified in saying that the judges were somewhat in error in their estimate of the actual facts in relation to the boycott of the Buck's Stove and Range Company. This is understandable from the fact that the American Federation of Labor at no time entered a detailed defense to the allegations of the Buck's Stove and Range Company, although the charges were untrue in many important particulars.

On account of the fundamental issues of free press and free speech, which were involved in the original injunction, we preferred to stand upon the unconstitutionality of the injunction rather than obscure this great issue by going into the details of the original trouble with the Buck's Stove and Range Company.

Justice Wright's prejudiced and misleading extracts from the original testimony, and his ignoring of testimony, also tended still further to becloud the facts.

The Court of Appeals said, that the only reason the publication of the Buck's Stove and Range Company was enjoined from appearing on the "We Don't Patronize" list was because they believed that a "conspiracy" to boycott had been entered into and that "threats," intimidation and coercion had been used on innocent third parties. On this wrong assumption the modified injunction was affirmed.

It was regrettable that the court should have been so in error as to the facts of the boycott.

Even if we had been guilty of unlawful conspiracy and coercion and intimidation—which we were not—surely there should be some more adequate punishment than by a process of injunction. In fact, existing laws do provide greater punishments for these offenses, and we respectfully submit that if we are guilty of them we should be tried by the due process of law before a jury of our peers and if found guilty punished as the law provides, rather than be subjected to the caprice of a judge who solely determines the sufficiency of the charge, the guilt of the defendant and who imposes punishment as his whim may prompt.

It was to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, the personnel of which has undergone no change since the rendering of the opinion modifying the injunction, that the appeal in the contempt proceedings was made. The argument upon the appeal against the sentences imposed by Justice Wright was made April 19-20, 1909, Hon. Alton B. Parker and Hon. J. H. Raiston making the arguments in labor's behalf.

It may be interesting to know that Justice Wright assessed "Gompers, Mitchell, and Morrison" in the sum of $1,500 as costs of the injunction proceedings against them. From this decree an appeal is also pending.

Free Speech—Free Press.

In the whole history of our movement no greater struggle has taken place than that for the preservation and the maintenance of the right of free press and free speech. As you well know, this arose under the injunction proceedings and court decisions in the case of the Buck's Stove and Range Company against the American Federation of Labor, December, 1907.

The technicalities of the case were soon lost sight of in the battle to preserve the great principles of human liberty which were involved.

The people of our country have with the men of labor made it clear to the whole world that no curtailment of the rights of free press and free speech will be tolerated.
